They were walking slowly along the beach, within sight of the hotel at which both were guests. Both were with their parents at Atlantic City, spending a very delightful summer. Jack Blair had joined the party two weeks before, and still had four weeks left of the vacation given him generously by his senior partner in their Baltimore bank. The two girls talked for some time, and when they had finished, both were laughing heartily, when they came suddenly upon a couple sitting on the sands. They had a huge light sunshade over them, and the man—none other than Jack Blair himself—was quite pronounced in his desire to protect his companion's complexion from the sun; while he was swaying a fan to and fro, quite near the pretty pink and white face of Nell Glynn, one of the most unscrupulous and industrious of flirts.

Lena and Nannie nodded to them and passed on. Lena laughed mischievously.

"Strike just such an attitude some time for his benefit," and Nannie smiled a little also.

The next evening there was to be a pleasant hop at a neighboring hotel, and Jack had promised to escort Lena and Nannie. He was waiting for them as he had promised, when his sister approached him alone.

"Isn't Nannie ready?" he asked. "Everybody has gone; Miss Glynn and her mother went half an hour ago."

"And Nannie has been gone more than half an hour," Lena responded, calmly.

"With her mother? I understood that Mrs. May was not going."

"She is in the parlor. Nannie went with Mr. Anderson."

Jack started.

"She was to go with us."

"I told you so, but I was mistaken, you see. We will be late, Jack."

He offered her his arm and led his sister across the terrace and along the sands, looking a trifle grave.

"Nannie will be the belle to-night, I'm positive," Lena continued. "She looked beautiful in a satin, white dress, with pearls on her arms. If I were you, Jack, I'd be a little bit afraid. You see Sandy Anderson has admired Nannie for a long time, and he is so very agreeable and so handsome."

"A fop and a fool!" Jack exclaimed disgustedly, and Lena only smiled.

They were late, and found the floor filled with waltzers. While they stood watching the circling couples Nannie floated by, light as a zephyr, fair as a flower, held by Sandy Anderson, whose head was bent—rather too tenderly, it seemed to Jack—over the fair one of the girl. She was smiling shyly, and, as her eyes met those of her betrothed, she flushed, in what struck him as being a very guilty manner.

When the other waltzers hid them, and Jack, with a most unaccountable sense of injury upon him, stood moodily near the doorway, although Miss Glynn had sent a signal across the room to him. As the hours went on, he found it impossible to get near enough to Nannie to say even a word to her; and this was so unusual that he felt confused, injured, indignant and angry altogether.

The following morning, directly after breakfast, Jack was standing on the terrace when Nannie and Mr. Anderson crossed it on their way to the beach. They did not return until lunch hour, and he noticed how bright and pretty the girl looked in her white flannel dress and broad sun hat; and he had been no more particular about the preservation of Miss Glynn's complexion than seemed Sandy about his companion's.

In the afternoon they—Nannie and Anderson—went driving on the sands. In the evening they sang duets in the parlor, and when they finished Jack heard a picnic planned for the following day, to which Sandy asked Miss May if he might be her escort, and she smilingly assented.

Then Jack became insanely jealous, and he sent Lena to induce his betrothed to go for a turn on the terrace. He followed Lena, and then, when Jack had drawn her arm through his, Lena left them and went in, and Jack commenced upbraiding his pretty love until he melted her to tears.

Surely Nannie May would never have become a queen of tragedy, for she owned to everything then and there, and dried her tears on Jack's broad bosom, and she even informed him of his sister's engagement in her excited confusion.

"Lena thought you neglected me, and that I took it too meekly; so she arranged and planned it all," she sobbed. "She thought you might not spend so much of your time with Miss Glynn if you knew how badly I felt about your doing so, and she bade me try to make you jealous. But you're not angry, Jack? You're not angry with me?"

His anger didn't seem very terrible, for he kissed her.

"Lena ought to be ashamed of herself," he declared, "and I think I'll forgive Anderson all old scores. He'll not find life full of flowers if he becomes my brother-in-law. But, my pet, you ought not to think of being jealous of Miss Glynn nor of anybody else. There is no girl in the world so sweet and lovable as yourself; and even Lena shall not say I neglect you hereafter."

"And you're not jealous?"

"Of a fellow like Anderson? Nonsense, dear!"

But he had been very jealous.

FOR YOUNG MEN TO REMEMBER.

That clothes don't make the man.

That if they once get in debt they may never get out of it.

That parting the hair in the middle brings on softening of the brain.

That to deal honorably with all men they must begin with their washerwoman.

That they need something more substantial than cigars, kid gloves, and a cane to start housekeeping with.

That they can't reckon on their father's fortune to bring them through life. Fortunes are slippery things—better have something besides to fall back on.

That a girl who decks herself in the latest things out, and parades in the street while her mother does the washing, isn't worth wasting much love on.

That a fellow who deliberately proposes matrimony to a girl when he can't support himself, is either a first-class fraud or a fool—unless he marries for money and becomes her hired man.

OUR CONVICTS.

Of the eight hundred-odd convicts confined in the State Prison, six are serving life sentences, three of whom have been there many years already; one had forty years of imprisonment meted out to him, while five were sentenced to thirty years, nearly the average life-time of man. Twenty-seven years was the sentence of two and a like number got twenty-one years. Twenty were given twenty years each, three eighteen years, one seventeen and twenty-three were sent there for fifteen years. Two got thirteen years, seven twelve years, one eleven and ninety got ten years. Two years appears to be the most favored sentence, as 135 are serving out that length of time, five years being next with 129. One hundred and one got three years and ninety-eight were sentenced to one year.

The crimes for which the 843 persons are being confined are as various as the offences which are laid down in the statute books. They range from murder in the first degree to illegal voting, only one man being caught at the latter. The arson, barn and building burner, burglar and bigamist, is represented, while the forger, embezzler, bad book-keeper, and the obstructor of the administration of justice are not missing. For the greatest offence, murder in the first degree, thirty-four are languishing, and sixteen are serving terms for manslaughter. There are four polygamists and ten bigamists, seventeen forgers and seven false pretenders; and so it goes on even to two who published false statements and one who overdrew a bank account. The greatest number for any one offence is 126, for breaking, entering and larceny; assault and battery coming next with eighty-four and grand larceny third with eighty.

The youngest person, when sentenced, was only fourteen, another was one year older and 118 were between fifteen and twenty. Between the ages of twenty and twenty-five there are 242, between sixty and seventy there are eight and over seventy there are three. One man is serving out his eighth sentence to the same prison, one is on his sixth, four on their fifth, eleven on their fourth, forty on their third and 104 on their second. There are only thirty-one women in the prison.

The Clerk's tables show 31 persons from Mercer county against 178 from Essex, and 186 from Hudson. Passaic has 70, Union 54 and Camden 50. Then comes Middlesex with 38, Bergen with 32, Monmouth with 30, Atlantic 27, Morris 23, Burlington, 22, Sussex 18, Gloucester 16, Warren 14, Cumberland, 9, Hunterdon 4, Cape May 3, and Ocean brings up the rear with two.

THE SPELLING BEE.

BY A. F. BRADLEY, AGED FOURTEEN YEARS.

934 PASSYUNK AVENUE, PHILADELPHIA.

It was Tuesday, and Tuesday in the Yaleville district school meant a new spelling bee. At 10 o'clock Master Brown called the class up to commence the first spelling bee of the term. Sixteen happy faces glowed with expectation of winning the prize—a handsome book.

The class ranged along the side of the room, and the quiet became so great that the tick-tick of the small clock on the shelf seemed to sound as loud as the village clock on the court-house. Master Brown fixed his spectacles more firmly on his nose and said:

"Through the kindness of one of the school directors I am enabled to offer this handsome book as a prize for the best spelling. James Robins, spell franchise."

"F-r-a-n—fran, c-h-i-c-e—chice, franchice," answered James, in a tremulous voice.

"Next, Harry Jones."

"F-r-a-n—fran, c-h-i-s-e—chise, franchise," spelled Harry.

"Correct," and the master gave out the next word. Nearly all the class failed on it, but it was spelled correctly by the fourteenth boy.

"Frank Dare, spell parole. I think you will spell it right," and the master looked approvingly at the fair-faced boy near the end of the room.

"P-a-y—pay, r-o-l-l—roll, pay-roll," answered Frank.

"Not correct. Samuel Thompson, spell parole."

Samuel Thompson was the only son of Robert Thompson, a farmer who lived some miles from the school. He was a bright, active boy and under ordinary circumstances he would have been able to spell the word, but he had gone on an errand the night before and had not had time to study his lessons. As his eyes roamed around the room they met the fingers of his chum, Joe Bates, rapidly forming the dumb alphabet. Sam watched them a second and saw them form the word.

Sam looked at the teacher, and, after a little pause, spelled:

"P-a—pa, r-o-l-e—role, parole."

"Correct. Samuel Thompson is entitled to the book," and Master Brown handed the volume to him.

So quickly had the deception been practiced that none of the scholars noticed it. Indeed, Sam hardly knew what to think of it. As his meanness flashed across his mind he formed a resolve, and hoisted his hand.

"What is it?" inquired the teacher.

"Mr. Brown, I did not spell the word honestly. I did not know how to spell it until I saw a boy form the letters with his fingers. I think Frank is entitled to it, as he could not hear it, because a wagon drove past as you gave it out."

Master Brown took the book and gave it to Frank, at the same time expressing his gladness at Sam's honesty. That night Sam had a better feeling than if he had taken the book. Several days after the master gave him a book with the motto inscribed:

"A REWARD FOR HONESTY."

THE SCIENTIFIC TEST.

Royal Baking Powder Absolutely Pure and Wholesome.

The following reports from the Government chemists and others equally well known who have, from time to time, made tests of the various baking powders of the market to ascertain their true value and character, are evidence impartial, scientific, and positive, of the absolute purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal," and of its superiority over all others as a perfect leavening agent:

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances.
"E. G. LOVE, Ph.D.,"
U. S. Government Chemist.

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.
H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."
U. S. Government Chemist.

"The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and this practical test, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, prove it perfectly healthful, of uniform excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance.
WM. MCMURTRIE, E.M., Ph.D.,"
Prof. Chemistry, Ill. Industrial University; late Chief Chemist U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome.
S. DANA HAYES,"
Late Mass. State Assayist and Chemist.

"I have examined a sample of Royal Baking Powder, and find no injurious substance nor any adulteration. The materials comprising the powder are pure, and the proportions quite accurate.
F. L. BARTLETT,"
Maine State Assayist and Chemist.

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or other injurious substance.
"HENRY MORTON,"
President Stevens Institute of Technology.

IT LEADS ALL.

No other blood-purifying medicine is made, or has ever been prepared, which so completely meets the wants of physicians and the general public as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases. If there is a lurking taint of Scrofula about you,

SCROFULA AYER'S SARSAPARILLA will dislodge it and expel it from your system.

For constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh,

CATARRH AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

ULCEROUS SORES "Hutto, Tex., Sept. 28, 1882. "At the age of two years one of my children was terribly afflicted with ulcerous running sores on its face and neck. At the same time its eyes were swollen, much inflamed, and very sore.

SORE EYES Physicians told us that a powerful alterative medicine must be employed. They united in recommending AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. A few doses produced a perceptible improvement, which, by an adherence to your directions, was continued to a complete and permanent cure. No evidence has since appeared of the existence of any scrofulous tendencies; and no treatment of any disorder was ever attended by more prompt or effectual results.
Yours truly, B. F. JOHNSON."

Plainfield, N. J., March 2, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

To Repeal certain Ordinances.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

That the following Ordinances be and the same are hereby repealed:

"An Ordinance designating a Council chamber and a city court room," approved November [illegible]

And

"An Ordinance regulating the sale of goods, wares and merchandise at auction," approved January 8, 1873.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.
O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., March 2, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

For the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield for the year 1885.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be assessed, levied and collected by tax for the current expenses of this city for the year 1885 the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.)

SEC. 2. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the support of the City Poor for the year 1885 the sum of Thirty-five Hundred Dollars ($3500), at the same time and in the same manner as the said sum of Ten Thousand Dollars mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance is assessed, levied and collected.

SEC. 3. There shall be still further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the purposes of the Library Fund of the City of Plainfield a sum equal to one-third of one mill on the dollar on all the taxable property in said city, such tax to be levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner with the amount mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance, and the moneys when collected shall be held as provided in Chapter CLXIII Laws of New Jersey for 1879.

SEC. 4. That in addition to the taxes to be assessed, levied and collected by the first section of this Ordinance, there shall be assessed, levied and collected for the use of the City of Plainfield for the year 1885, an extra tax to wit, the sum of Five Thousand Dollars, ($5,000), pursuant to Section Twenty-six of the City Charter and the vote for "Money" of the city election thereunder held on the second day of December, 1884, said sum of Five Thousand Dollars to be assessed, levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner, and the commissioners of appeals on said extra tax to meet at the same time as directed by law in the case of the annual city taxes.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

MARRYING AN HEIRESS.

"Congratulate me," said Harry Vernon to Albert Courtney. You can guess for what."

"You are engaged to Miss Townsend?"

"Yes."

"I do with all my heart. But I am sorry she is an heiress."

"Well, now, that is odd."

"Not so odd as you think. Have you ever thought, Harry, what the marrying of an heiress really means?"

"It means being the envy of all the nice young fellows, having a splendid woman with 'lots of tin' in prospect some day."

"That's it. It's the 'lots of tin you expect' some day that does all the mischief."

"How so?"

"I will tell you. Take two girls, one brought up as an heiress and one with little or no expectations. The latter has no absurd ideas of position to keep up. If she has taste she will look as well in a chintz as others do in silks. She will get up an entertainment, and you will be astonished how little it costs.

"With such a wife a man can live on two-thirds of what he would otherwise have to spend; and from these savings alone he will grow comparatively well off in time."

"I know who sat for that picture, old fellow. But Anne certainly is a treasure. Now fire away at me and Mary."

"It is not of Miss Townsend, individually, I shall speak; it is the class. A girl brought up with the notion that she is to be rich must be almost more than mortal not to imbibe notions of her own importance. What are luxuries to others become, through long use, only necessaries to her. How is it possible she should escape being selfish?"

"But her husband will have some income, and her fortune, when it comes, will help that out."

"There is nothing like figures."

"Very well."

"Now, when a girl, with twenty thousand in expectancy, marries, she spends, generally, a thousand a year more than if she had no fortune in prospect. If twenty years elapse before her portion falls to her the whole of it has been spent before it arrives, and, twenty years is not, in the average, an excessive time to have to wait. But in fact, if the loss on interest is taken into account, the twenty thousand will have been expended before."

"But you don't mean to say that we will spend a thousand a year more than you and Anne?"

"I don't mean to make any personal application of my remarks, Harry. That I leave for yourself."

"If I wasn't the best natured fellow in the world I should get angry. But I know it's all nonsense what you've been saying. You only wish to croak a little; you always would croak, you know."

The two friends were married about the same time. Both moved into the same block, paid the same amount of rent, and seemed to start life almost exactly alike. It was not long, however, before Courtney's predictions began to be realized. Mrs. Vernon soon found that she could not do without an extra servant. Then she rarely went into the kitchen, never having been taught anything about cooking. This made her table cost more than Mrs. Courtney's.

She had a false notion, only too common, that drudgery was not lady-like, and hence neglected a proper supervision of her house. Her unmarried sisters were very gay and were constantly giving parties. And she could not but give them and others parties in return. At the end of the year, when Vernon cast up his accounts, he found that his expenses had greatly exceeded his expectations. He thought, ruefully, of what Courtney had told him, and resolved to do better next year. But the next year passed and things were even worse. Increased expenses had come, which were unavoidable. He was a young lawyer, and young lawyers are proverbially slow in getting practice, and he began to look forward to the future with uneasiness, for as yet he had not profited a cent by his wife being an heiress, nor was it probable he would for many years, for Mr. Townsend was still a hearty man, not yet fifty.

Time passed. In ten years Courtney had laid by quite a little capital, which, by judicious investments, now began to increase rapidly. If he had wished to he could have spent twice as much as he did, and still have lived within his income. He and Vernon continued to occupy the house into which they had moved on being married. But while that of the Courtneys belonged to them the Vernons still had to pay rent for theirs, and often found this no easy matter. The one house was always tidy and fresh; the other had a look of faded gentility. In the one was comfort and competence; in the other a constant contrivance to keep up appearances.

Courtney is still handsome, and so is his wife. But both Vernon and Mary have a jaded look, which plainly betrays the struggle they have with fortune. Of all property that of people like the Vernons is the worst. What did Harry make by marrying an heiress.

LITERARY NOTE.

The Art Amateur for March contains very attractive designs for a mirror frame (morning glories), a dessert plate (carnations), a plaque (child's head), a Christmas-card box-cover (birds and holly), a chair-back, doilies, and repousse work. Articles of special value are the notice of "The American Water Color Society Exhibition" and "How Two Houses were Furnished." Dr. Dresser begins a series on "The Decoration of our Homes," and wood engraving, clay modelling, picture framing, china painting in water colors, church needle-work and embroidery stitches are among the practical topics treated in this number. The Art Amateur is a singularly happy union of the instructive and the entertaining in the domain of art, and stands without a rival in its chosen field. Price, $4 a year; single numbers, 35 cents. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

"THAT WOMAN."

BY M. F.

"Yes, Winona, the less you have to do with that woman the better pleased I will be," said Frank Bennet to his wife as they stood together on the veranda of the Mountain House.

"At any rate," replied Winona, "you might at least designate her by her proper title—'that woman' is scarcely a term for a gentleman to use in speaking of a lady."

Bertha Roland, the woman of whom they were speaking, was a widow, eight and twenty years of age. Her hair was a deep gold, which suggested hours of patience spent under the dyer's hands. Her complexion was beautified by the best of cosmetics, but even without these artificial additions she would have been a handsome woman. Winona was just the opposite—dark, petite and only pretty.

"Well, then?" said her husband, "Mrs. Roland is not a fit companion for my wife, and I want your friendship with her to come to an end at once."

"Then you will want in vain," replied the wife. "I am not going to insult her just on account of your silly prejudice, which is caused by your begrudging me the little pleasure I get in her society."

"You are wrong, Winona; you are at liberty to enjoy yourself as much as you please, but not by putting yourself under obligations to that woman."

"There you are, 'that woman' again. Mrs. Roland, my dear husband, considers me under no obligation because I ride out with her on the back of one of her horses, or play lawn-tennis on her premises. She is my confidential friend, and I am not going to be ungrateful."

"Very well," Frank sadly said, "do as you please, Winona. I shall say no more, no matter how much I feel that Mrs. Roland is not a fit associate for a respectable woman." Then he walked away.

Winona was too angry to speak. This was their first quarrel and she felt it keenly. They had just been married six months, and until summer had brought them to the Catskills all had been peace and happiness.

No more was said in regard to Mrs. Roland until after supper, when Winona said:

"Frank, as you have promised to play cards with Mr. Jackson, I think I will just run over to Mrs. Roland's. I promised her I would."

"That woman again," exclaimed Frank; but he said no more and Winona went.

Her husband watched her enter the gate of the magnificent villa, and then turned away with a sigh. Mr. Jackson was beside him.

"You don't seem to like Mrs. Roland," said he.

"I do not dislike her," returned Frank; "but we know nothing about her or her antecedents. My wife is infatuated with her, and all I say will not keep her from that house."

"I agree with you; come take a turn in the garden and I will tell you the best cure in the world for your wife's infatuation."

In the meantime Winona hastened to her friend's house, and found it alive with mirth and music. Mrs. Roland's face beamed with smiles as she welcomed Winona, and until ten o'clock the merriment was unbounded; then, to Winona's utter surprise and displeasure, her husband was ushered into the parlor.

He spoke to the hostess, politely but coldly, and received her introduction to the other guests in a like manner.

Then he advanced to his wife saying: "Winona, I have come to escort you home as soon as you are ready to go. You need not be in any particular hurry, though."

Winona was pleased with his words, and followed her own inclinations as to hastening her departure.

Music and wine followed, and while Winona played on the grand piano her husband talked to Mrs. Roland.

On the way home he said to Winona: "Your friend is a nicer woman than I thought her to be."

The young wife's face beamed with smiles. "Oh, Frank!" she cried, "I knew you would come to my way of thinking yet. When you know her more you will like her better."

This was not his last visit at Mrs. Roland's; many more followed, and soon the young man could not speak highly enough of her. Winona was overjoyed. At last Frank was coming to his senses and learning how to appreciate her friend. One evening she sat sewing on the hotel veranda when Mr. Jackson approached, and seating himself beside her, asked:

"Have you ever read 'The Treachery of Laura?'"

"No," she replied.

"I have it here," he continued. "If you would like to read it, you may. It is a remarkably well written story. It deals with a subject I have often thought of. A woman pretends to be another woman's friend only to take from her her husband's affection. Do you not think such treachery is unpardonable?"

"I do," cried Winona, "but—but the husband is often to blame." Then her face flushed and tears filled her eyes. "Why did you speak of this to me? You are only hinting at my husband and Mrs. Roland. He is infatuated with her. Oh, I wish I had never met that woman!"

"I fear, Mrs. Bennett," said Mr. Jackson, "that your husband is not to blame. I myself do not think Mrs. Roland entirely ignores his attentions; at least let me advise you to watch him a little more closely."

That evening Mrs. Roland gave one of her charming garden fetes, and the prettiest woman present was voted to be Mrs. Bennet. Mr. Jackson was there, and about nine o'clock asked her to walk about the grounds. Soon the dazzling lights of the house were left behind and they stood in an obscure summer house.

"Why have you brought me here, Mr. Jackson?" asked Winona, when she saw they were alone.

"Hush," he said, "some one is coming."

"I shall not remain here—" but her protest was cut short by the entrance of her husband and Bertha Roland. Being in the shadow they did not observe her and Mr. Jackson.

"What a pity," Beatha was saying. "What a pity you tied yourself down to that little doll baby."

"I am very proud of my wife," he said.

"And you love her, too, I suppose?"

"Why should I not?"

"That is evading my question. You have led me to suppose your heart was wholly mine."

"But I have no money, my dear Bertha, and what good would I be to you?"

"You are unkind; you are cruel, when you know how much I love you. I have wealth sufficient for two; what should I care for your money?"

"I have heard enough," cried Winona, springing from the darkness. "Frank, our paths will be in opposite directions in the future. Mr. Jackson, take me home."

"Yes, Mrs. Bennet," said that gentleman, "after I have informed you that your husband is perfectly innocent, and this has been a ruse of his to show the true character and unbounded friendship of Bertha Roland!"

"Thank heaven!" gasped the young wife; "and thank you for opening my eyes to the treachery of that woman!"

"Mrs. Roland, my dear," said Frank, "not 'that woman!' Remember how you berated me for so designating her!"

Winona only sobbed and nestled closer to his breast.

A HAPPY NIGHT.

"Come in!" shouted together the host and the hostess of a little German wayside inn near the banks of the Rhine, and not far below the city of Basle and the borders of Switzerland. It was Christmas eve, and a tempestuous night. The wind was raving round the little inn and tearing away at the windows and doors, as though mad to get at the brave little light within, and extinguish it without mercy. The snow was falling fast, drifting and driving, obstructing the highway, blinding the eyes of man and beast.

The "come in" of the hostess was in answer to a loud, hurried rap at the door, by which there immediately entered two travelers. One by his military dress seemed a soldier and the other appeared to be his servant. General Wallenstein was on his way from Carlsruhe to his home in Basle. He had been delayed by an accident to his post carriage and by the storm; and now found himself obliged to stop for the night at this lonely and comfortless little inn.

When the officer threw aside his plumed hat and military cloak of rich fur, and strode up to the fire with his epaulets flashing in the light and his sword knocking against his heels cling, clang, the gruff host was greatly impressed with his importance, and willingly went out to assist the postilion in the care of the horses. As for the hostess, she bustled about with wonderful activity to prepare for the great man.

"Ho, Carl," she cried, "thou young Rhine spirit, thou water imp, run to the wood for another bundle of faggots! Away, haste thee or I'll give thee back to thy elfin kinsfolk, who are ever howling for thee!"

At these strange, sharp words, a wild-looking boy started up from a dusky corner of the room, where he had been lying with his head pillowed on a great tawny Swiss dog and darted out of the door. He was coarsely dressed and barefooted, yet there was something uncommon about him—something grand yet familiar in his look, which struck the traveler strangely.

"Is that your child?" he asked.

"No, indeed," said the old dame; "I am a poor woman, and have seen trouble in my time; but blessed be the saints! I'm not the mother of water-imps."

"Why do you call the boy a water-imp?"

"I call him so, your Excellency," said the woman, sinking her shrill voice into an awestruck tone, "because he came from the water and belongs to the water. He floated down the Rhine in the great flood four years ago come spring, a mere baby, that could barely tell his name, perched on the roof of a little chalet in the night, amid thunder, lightning and rain! Now it is plain that no human child could have lived through that. My good man spied him in the morning, and took him off in his boat. I took him in pity; but I have always been afraid of him, and every flood-time I think the Rhine is coming for his own again."

The traveler seemed deeply interested, and well he might be; for in the very flood of which the superstitious old dame spoke his only child, an infant boy, had been lost, with his nurse, whose cottage on the river bank below Basle had been swept away by night.

"Was the child alone on the roof of the chalet?" he asked in an agitated tone.

"Yes," said the hostess; "all but an old dog, who seemed to belong to him."

"That dog must have dragged him on to the roof and saved him!" exclaimed the General; "is he yet alive?"

"Yes, just alive. He must be very old, for he is almost stone blind and deaf. My good man would have put him out of the way long ago, but for Carl; and as he shares his meals and makes his bed with him, I suppose it is no loss to keep the brute."

"Show me the dog!" said the officer with authority.

"Here he lies, your excellency," said the dame. "We call him Elfen-hund (elf-dog)."

General Wallenstein bent over the dog, touched him gently, and shouted in his ears his old name of "Leon." The dog had not forgotten it; he knew the voice, the touch of the hand. With a plaintive, joyful cry, he sprang up to the breast of his old master, nestled about blindly for his hands, and licked them unreproved; then sank down, as though faint with joy, at his master's feet. The brave soldier was overcome with emotion; tears fell fast from his eyes.

"Faithful creature," he exclaimed, "you have saved my child and given him back to me." And kneeling down he laid his hand on the head of the poor old dog and blessed him.

Just at that moment the door opened and little Carl appeared toiling up the steps with his arms full of faggots, his cheerful face smiling brave defiance to the wintry winds and night and snow.

"Come hither, Carl," said the soldier. The boy flung down his faggots and drew near.

"Dost thou know who I am?"

"Ah, no; the good Christian king, perhaps," said the little lad, looking full of innocent wonderment.

"Alas, my poor child, how shouldst thou know me!" exclaimed General Wallenstein sadly. "I remember thee; thou art my boy, my dear, long lost boy. Look in my face; embrace me; I am thy father!"

"No, surely," said the child, sorely bewildered: "that cannot be, for they tell me the Rhine is my father."

The soldier smiled through his tears, and soon was able to convince his little son that he had a better father than the old river parents. He told of a loving mother who yet sorrowed for him, and of a blue-eyed sister who would rejoice when he came. Carl listened and wondered and laughed, and when he comprehended it all, slid from his father's arm and ran to embrace old Leon.

The next morning early Gen. Wallenstein after having generously rewarded the innkeeper for having given a home, though a poor one, to his little son, departed for Basle. In his arms he carried Carl, carefully wrapped in his warm fur cloak; and if sometimes the little bare feet of the child were thrust out from their covering, it was only to bury themselves in the shaggy coat of Leon, who lay snugly curled up in the bottom of the carriage.

I will not attempt to tell you of the deep joy of Carl's mother nor of the wild delight of his little sister, for I think such things are quite beyond any one's telling; but altogether it was to the Wallensteins a Christmas to thank God for, and they did thank him.

A LITTLE SHOP GIRL.

"She's an old darling," said Grace Craxall, "and I mean to help her all I can. I've got a beautiful recipe for chocolate eclairs and on Friday evening I am going there to make up all I can, so that the school children will buy them on Saturday. I know how to make cinnamon apple tarts, too, and lemon drops and cocoanut balls."

"Grace, I do believe you have taken leave of your senses," said Medora May. "One would think it was disgrace enough for Aunt Deborah to open a horrid little huckster shop, without our mixing ourselves up in the affair."

"But Aunt Debby must live, you know," said Grace, who was perched kitten fashion on the window-sill, feeding the canary with bits of sparkling white sugar. "And Cousin Nixon couldn't keep her any longer. I suppose you wouldn't be willing to have her come and live with you!"

"I!" cried Medora. "Do you suppose I want to proclaim to the whole town that I have such a dilapidated old relation as that?"

"I would take her quick enough," said Grace, "if I didn't board with Mrs. Howlit, and share the little upstairs back room with the two children. Just wait until I marry some rich man," she added, with a saucy uplifting of her auburn brows "and then see if I don't furnish up a stately-apartment for Aunt Debby."

"Don't talk nonsense," said Medora, acidly. "It's very likely, isn't it, that a factory girl like you is going to marry a rich man?"

Grace Craxall laughed merrily. All through life she and her cousin, Medora May, had agreed to differ on most points. Grace, seeing no other career before her, had, on the death of her last surviving parent, cheerfully entered a factory, while Medora, taking her stand on the platform of a false gentility, had done fine sewing and silk embroidery on the sly to support herself, putting on all the airs of a young lady of fashion the while. And now Aunt Deborah May, to the infinite disgust of her aristocratically-inclined niece, had actually opened a little low-windowed shop in a shady street just out of the main thoroughfare.

"But what am I to do?" Aunt Deborah had said.

"What can you do?" said Grace.

"I don't know. Your uncle always used to say I was a master hand at making bread."

"Then make it," brightly interrupted Grace.

"Eh?" said Aunt Debby.

"There's a nice little store to let on Bay street," went on Grace, "for ten dollars a month."

"But I haven't got ten dollars a month," feebly interrupted Aunt Deborah.

"I'll lend it to you," said Grace, "out of the wages I have saved. And there's a pretty bed-room at the back of the shop, and a clean, dry basement under it, where you can bake your bread."

"Do you mean to open a bakery?" said bewildered Aunt Debby.

"Not exactly that," explained Grace. "But if the ladies around here could get real home-made bread, such as you make, do you suppose they would put up with the sour stuff they get at the bakers' shops? And you could easily get up a reputation on your raisin cakes and fried crullers, and New England pumpkin pies. Now, couldn't you?"

The old lady brightened up a little.

"I used to be pretty good at cooking," said she. "And if you think I could support myself so——"

"I am sure of it!" cried cheerful Grace. "And I'll go there with you this very day to look at the place, and will engage it for three months on trial. And I can paint you a sign to put over your door: 'Home-made Bread by Mrs. Deborah May!' And I'll help you some curtains and arrange the shelves in the low window. I almost wish I was going to be your shop girl," she added merrily. "But I can help you in the evening, you know."

Grace Craxall's prophecies proved correct. Aunt Debby's delicious home made bread, whiter than powdered lilies, sweet as ambrosia, soon acquired a reputation, and the lady could scarcely bake it fast enough. People came half a dozen blocks to buy the yellow pumpkin pies and delicious apple tarts; children brought their hoarded pennies to invest in chocolate sweetmeats, vanilla caramels, and cream cakes with puffy shells and delicious centers of sweetness. The little money drawer grew fat with coins, and Aunt Debby's dim eyes grew bright and hopeful again.

And one day Mr. Herbert Valance, walking by with Medora May, stopped and looked in.

"Isn't that your cousin Grace," said he "behind the counter?"

Medora turned crimson with vexation.

"My cousin Grace," she said. "No, indeed!"

Mr. Valance looked up at the sign over the door.

"The name is May," he remarked indifferently.

"Yes," said Medora, angry at herself blushing so deeply; "but we are no relation."

Mr. Valance thought over the matter; he afterward met Miss May at a party given by a friend, where pretty Grace Craxall was also present; he had taken rather a fancy to the bright blue eyes and delicate blonde beauty of the former. Valance Hall, on the hill just out of the city, was solitary enough now that his sisters had all married and gone away, and perhaps a man might find a less attractive and graceful wife than Medora May. But he could not be mistaken, he thought, in Grace Craxall's identity.

And so the next evening, about the same time, he sauntered into the shop.

Grace was behind the daintily clean little counter, taking some newly baked maple caramels off the pan. She looked up with a smile.

"Good evening, Mr. Valance," said she.

"So," he thought, "I wasn't mistaken after all. And the little blue-eyed seraph is mortal enough to tell a lie in spite of her angelic-appearance!"

But he looked serenely at Grace.

"I didn't know you were in trade," said he.

"Didn't you? Well," retorted Grace, "I am my Aunt Deborah's shop girl at present. I always come here in the evenings to help her, because," she added, with a sweet shade of seriousness coming over her face, "aunt was old and poor, and she didn't quite know how to maintain herself in independence; and, unfortunately, my wages at the factory are not enough for us both. So I advised her to open this business, and she did, and she is doing well; and she bakes the most delicious bread and pies you ever ate, so," with a saucy twinkle under her eyelashes, "if you know of any customers, will you please recommend our firm?"

"To be sure I shall," he answered, in the same spirit, "and I am very glad, Miss Craxall, to see that you are not ashamed of being a working girl."

"Of course I am not," said Grace. "Why should I be?"

"But your cousin Medora is."

Grace gave a little shrug of her shoulders.

"Very likely," said she. "Medora and I differ in many things."

Mr. Valance bought a pound of caramels and went away.

"She is a beauty," he said to himself. "And she is a sensible beauty into the bargain."

He must have been very well pleased with his purchase, for he came again the next evening, just in time to walk home with Grace Craxall. And they talked over Aunt Deborah's affairs, and concluded as flour was low just then, it would be a favorable opportunity for the old lady to lay in her winter stock.

Only a few weeks had elapsed when Medora May was electrified to learn that her cousin Grace was engaged.

"To some master baker or journeyman confectioner, I suppose," she said contemptuously.

"No," said Grace, with eyes roguishly sparkling; "to Mr. Herbert Valance."

"I—don't—believe—it," said Medora, growing red, then pale.

"But it's really so," said Grace. "And we are to be married in three months. And Aunt Debby is to come to the Hall and live with me as soon as she can dispose of her business to advantage. And, dear Medora, I hope you will often come and visit me there."

WAS SHE A GHOST?

"Marry!" repeated Mordaunt; "well, that would be a gay old joke. Who the deuce"—Mordaunt sometimes invokes strange gods—"out of Utah would I get for priest?"

Now Mordaunt, when he said this, put on just that look which every unlucky dog of an impecunious old bachelor, who can't for his life keep soul and body comfortably together, and who had failed to induce the heiress he has in view to even tolerate his presence, knows as the faithful married man's look when said married man is rallied about his manifold agreeableness among the fair ladies; and not only did he put that look on, but he looked it out to the other end of the room, to empty space, very much in that exasperating way your model married man will look to his wife to confirm his assertions.

Like myself, Mordaunt was an old bachelor. Alas, and there the parallel ends. Not only was he the very personification of what we know as a thoroughly good fellow whom everybody liked, which he deserved, but he was a successful business man. Money in dock-heaps rolled itself up into mountains under his manipulations. Then he had the best heart going. The women all liked him—and that was the peculiarity of his old bachelorhood—they liked him and looked up to him as women like and look to the honorable head of a full, happy household. He had reached middle life, was good looking, and of unexceptionable habits. I, weary of asking the question of myself—too well I knew the answer—had propounded it to him:

"Mordaunt, why don't you marry?"

He had replied as stated at the beginning of this narrative.

"But, Mordaunt," urged I (for he was not a man given to jocularity, at least where women were concerned), "you seem, of all men in the world, the last to stay unmated. Utah! pshaw! What do you mean?"

"I mean——" He checked himself. Another of those married man's looks was directed into the air. This was quite tioning. "I mean what I say," conclusively and with the air of a man speaking under delegated authority.

"Bigamy?"

"Yes."

"Eh?" I'd like to see the Mrs. Mordaunt number one."

"Must a man believe that his wife is any the more his when another man has seen her?"

"Aha! Another man not see her! If you're doing the Turk you might as well set up your seraglio and be done with it. Yes, Utah is in order."

Mordaunt was silent. I had offended him. I remember how he looked at me, not angrily, not sentimentally; I cannot describe his expression, only—he was himself in it. I seemed to feel his personality, his very being, pressing all around, enfolding me as it were; and meantime, I cannot account for the change that was gradually creeping over me. I saw Mordaunt; I was watching him as in ordinary times—the clear-headed financier, the always welcome home presence at the rosy fireside, the man versed in public affairs—but I certainly saw more.

Talk about materialization, paraffine, or what not—I never sat in a "circle." I always abhorred the whole machinery of clap-trap known as "spiritualism"—I saw, standing, facing Mordaunt, just where his eyes had 'settled' when he answered me, a woman; no mere shadow, but, to all appearance, a flesh and blood woman. I saw her as distinctly as ever I saw my own sisters. As for being stricken with terror, as ghost-seers tell me they are in the presence of the immaterial, I was stricken with admiration. She was not handsome—at least I do not remember to have thought of that or of what she wore. It seemed to me that I saw all that I know which was grand and godlike in the character of my friend, standing there instinct with breathing vitality, a living individual presence. I was not dreaming. I do not believe I was under a mesmeric spell. My individuality was not merged in that of Mordaunt. How could it be when I heard him as distinctly as ever I heard him speak, introduce "My wife," and I, in the most commonplace manner imaginable, exchanged compliments with this hitherto unheard-of Mrs. Mordaunt, she acting her part with corresponding every-day civility.

I did not take my eyes off her; she did not move aside. I cannot recall that she stirred, but it seemed to me Mordaunt did, and directly, as the reflection of a face vanishes from a mirror, she was gone.

But Mordaunt was still there. "Will that suffice?" he inquired, directly; his concise, business accents emphasizing the question with more than usual distinctness.

I suppose I muttered an assent.

"You are the only human being," he added, in the same matter-of-fact voice he would have used if he had mentioned that I was looking old (I was), "who has ever entered my household. That woman I loved when I was a boy; I have always loved her. We have always been one, and yet her body has been lying in Hollywood Cemetery for more than twenty years. Hers is no ideal presence, no imaginary nearness; you have seen as well as I that I am under no hallucination. She has never left me, and whatever I am that is manly and wise, under God I owe to her real presence and never withheld counsel."

There now, was Mrs. Mordaunt, a ghost? I know I saw her and was introduced to her. I know Mordaunt holds to the belief of her real, continual presence with him as firmly as he believes in the reality of his bank stock, and yet I know no Mrs. Mordaunt clothed in material clay either.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

A HAPPY OMEN.

Mr. Blaine called on President Cleveland at the White House the other day and extended to him kind personal regards.

We like that.

It is a happy omen.

It may herald the coming day of joy when partisan bitterness will lose its venomous sting.

The defeated clasps the hand of the elected and mutual good feeling attests the act.

We think it an incident worthy of record.

What a glorious era it would be did political animosity melt away like vapors before the golden sunbeams, and every species of partisanship, be it Democratic, Republican, Greenback or Prohibition, merge contention in loyal obedience to PATRIOTISM.

Let the fact have perpetual remembrance, that differ as we may—as partisans, we are still the countrymen of Washington.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

Grover Cleveland was elected President of the United States for the purpose of restoring to sovereign sway in the administration of public affairs honesty, economy and efficiency.

He has nobly commenced that important work, and it is a herculean task to accomplish, involving as it does the overhauling and removal of many years of accumulated error.

It requires time and thoughtful action. Reckless haste is not the antidote. That might only exchange evil for evil.

President Cleveland's policy is to move slowly but surely for the attainment of a specific purpose—HONEST GOVERNMENT.

Every patriotic citizen ought to and will applaud his grand endeavor.

The first and foremost purpose of an Honest Government is to protect and advance national honor and the rights and interests of all the people.

For that end this government was established, not to gratify sordid personal gain, not to quarter unworthy claimants on the treasury, but to defend from harm the public welfare and perpetuate its manifold blessings.

The country has suffered immensely and is still suffering because of an opposite course long pursued.

Political corruption has grown to be a giant curse in the land. Political integrity, faithfully and fearlessly maintained, is the only salvation for free institutions.

President Cleveland means right, and if within the scope of human effort, he will wisely handle the knife of reform and cut out those many flagrant abuses, which every honest man must desire to see forever destroyed.

The President begins well, in a systematic and practical business manner he is determined to discharge duty, without fear, favor or affection, as a sacred trust imposed upon him by the popular will.

He has drawn around him as official advisors and assistants a Cabinet in point of character and ability never excelled by those of any of his predecessors. Every man of them was selected not alone because of partisan service, but because of individual good standing and especial fitness for responsible departmental work. They are all undisguised Democrats, and all clearly meet the Jeffersonian requirement of integrity, capability and unsullied repute.

Each Department is being carefully examined with an eye single to the public good. Already many sinecurists, partisan vampires, whose only labors consist in drawing unearned pay, have been notified to leave, and no doubt a host of similar worthless barnacles will be shaken off, while throughout the country scores of office-holders will, as their cases are reached and considered, for amply sufficient cause, be compelled to make way for more deserving incumbents.

Reform is the popular demand.

President Cleveland is its commissioned agent.

Governor Abbett has signed Assembly bill No. 49 forbidding the hire, loan or sale of toy pistols.

Attorney-General George Gray on Monday last, received the nomination for U. S. Senator of Delaware to succeed Mr. Bayard.

The Democrats carried the city of Orange at the recent Charter election. They have a majority of three in the Common Council.

Ex-President Arthur retires to private life with the well-wishes of all good citizens, irrespective of party. He leaves a good record behind him.

It is understood that President Cleveland has offered General McClellan his choice of the London, Berlin or Paris missions, and that the General has accepted the latter.

On Monday last the President sent to the Senate the nomination of Joseph S. Miller, of West Virginia, for Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Mr. Miller is Mr. Randall's friend.

A letter, signed by 250 gentlemen of New York, without regard to party affiliations, has been handed ex-President Arthur, inviting him to dine with them at Delmonico's on such a date as would be most convenient to him. Mr. Arthur replied that he would name a date.

A dozen Tammany braves went to Washington on Monday and waited upon President Cleveland, inflicting him with a long speech, in which they said they make no specific demands but propose to remind the Administration that the tribe was not wiped out at the last election, and that it is prepared for peace or war. Tammany's days are numbered.

The lady who will preside over the White House for the next four years, Miss R. E. Cleveland, is daily growing in popularity with the public for her kind and gentle disposition and unaffective action. In dress she affects only that neat and plain. In looks she is pretty, not beautiful. She speaks several languages and is well informed in the arts and history. The many ladies who called upon her at receptions since she assumed her station at the White House, are unanimous in their expression that she is "sweet" and well calculated to do honor to her position as mistress of the home of the President.

NO LICENSE AND NO VOTE.

Chatham recently voted on the question of "license" or "no license" for the ensuing two years, and the license men carried the township by 206 majority. Several voters, including Rev. Dr. Aikman, lost their vote because they had not provided themselves with "no license" tickets, and could find none at the polls. They voted for township officers and then went off to secure a ticket on the license question. Returning, they found that other persons had followed them in voting and that they, having voted once, were debarred from voting a second time.—Morristown Banner.

THE READING'S PERPLEXITIES.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—The statement was made to-day as coming from a good source that the Reading Railroad Directors had been informed by the Directors of the Jersey Central Railroad Company that they would not be allowed to raise the interest due on the consolidated mortgage of the latter company April 1 by selling the coupons of that loan. This being the case, it is stated that the Jersey Central will pass into the hands of a Receiver at that time, and that the interest will be raised by certificates issued by this receivership. It was also stated by a gentleman supposed to be in the confidence of the Reading Company that the latter had provided the money, and would meet the interest promptly.

COST OF THE WAINWRIGHT TRIAL.

In the Wainwright murder trial the State produced a piece of lead sinker from which it was claimed the bullets or slugs found in Wainwright's body were cut. The missing portion of the sinker is now in the possession of J. Holmes Birdsall, one of the lawyers for the defense of Mrs. Wainwright and her children. It was found several days ago attached to a fishing line in the pocket of an old coat belonging to the murdered man. The Board of Chosen Freeholders of Ocean county met Wednesday of last week to audit the bills incurred in the prosecution of the case. The cost of the trial foots up about $15,000. The principal items are as follows: Sheriff Holman, including witness fees, $5,391; Herbert W. Knight, stenographer, $2,100; jury and constables, $571; A. P. Irons, maps, $495; District Attorney Middleton, $750; detective, $700; inquest $1,000; R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the State, $2,000. The last-named item was not acted upon.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The House came together again on Monday last at 3 o'clock, but very little important business was transacted until the evening session. There was evidently some outside pressure being brought to bear upon some of the Republican members of Assembly to make them desist in their relentless war upon the Governor by their constituents through the State but it is not likely to take much effect, as a bill was passed in the evening taking away from the Governor his power of appointment of Fish Wardens and vesting it in the Board of Fish Commissioners. Gov. Abbett that evening sent to the House his veto of a bill providing for the appointment of City Attorneys, on the ground that it was special legislation, excluding from its operation the city of Jersey City, and was therefore unconstitutional. Senator Cranmer introduced a bill authorizing the Governor and Controller to expend $500 for the purchase of a burial ground for the interment of bodies cast upon the shore of Ocean county. Robert Carson, member of Assembly from Middlesex, tendered his resignation that evening. Mr. Carson was recently appointed Postmaster at New Brunswick. Mr. Corbin moved for a reconsideration of the vote in the Assembly by which the Hudson County Boulevard bill was defeated. Mr. See, of Hudson, opposed the motion and moved to lay it on the table, which was adopted. A bill was passed in the House providing for the appointment of local Boards of Education by the Mayor.

Senator Fish on Tuesday afternoon unrolled a map of the proposed road from Essex county through Hudson. Rather curiously the House was engaged at the same hour in discussing this question. Mr. Brinkerhoff made a rattling fight in favor of having the Commissioners appointed by the Supreme Court, and during the discussion adjournment took place. The special order in the Assembly the same morning was the consideration of the Senate bill which authorizes cities to contract with railroad companies to lay their rails over any land within the limits which was under tide water in 1864 or is yet partly under tide-water. This measure is of vital interest to Jersey City, where great opposition has manifested itself. An amendment was added, making the vacation proper only by ordinance and not by resolution, and the discussion was resumed in the afternoon. Finally it was ordered without further amendment to a third reading. The attempt to consider the Jersey City Bridge bill was a failure. The Governor's veto of the Jamesburg Reform School bill was overridden in the House by the usual party vote.

The election of a State Superintendent of Public Instruction was the most engrossing business of Wednesday. Lobbying became so active that several members of the Board, under the plea of urgent business, remained away. After a half dozen ballots, E. O. Chapman, who is now serving his third term as Representative of the Fourth District in Hudson, was elected as the successor of E. A. Apgar, the present incumbent. Mr. Chapman is a Normal School graduate and has been long known as one of the finest teachers and scholars in the country. The general indorsement of his selection was shown when it became known in the House, where proceedings were interrupted for several minutes while members of both parties congratulated him. The bill making the legal rate of interest 5 per cent., but authorizing 6 per cent. also, passed the Assembly. Despite a vigorous resistance, the Republicans overrode the veto of the Governor of the bill which places the election of the State Normal School in joint meeting. The same may be said of the veto of the bill respecting the managers of the Morristown Lunatic Asylum. Most of Wednesday afternoon was spent over Senate No. 28 (relating to the vacation of streets in Jersey City). Near the close of the session it passed by a vote of 37 to 20.

One of the longest courtships on record was happily terminated with a marriage at Harrisonville a few days ago, the parties being Hiram J. Cheeseman, of that place, and Miss Eve M. Thomas, of Clayton. The couple had been "keeping company" continuously for twenty-eight years.

A CLEVER WOMAN.

A Washington correspondent of the New York World devotes a column and a half to the "lights of the social circle" in that city. First in this list he places that spiritual beauty, Mrs. John R. McPherson, of whom he says:

"I will now take the liberty of passing in panorama before you some of the charming and delightful women who exercise an influence upon the society of the National capital. Mrs. John R. McPherson, wife of the Senator from New Jersey, is a lady whose health and search for health has taken her from the capital for some time and is now established in her handsome new house. She will be one of the lights of that social centre called Washington if her fragile frame can bear such strain. She entertains in so polished a manner you can only recall as an afterthought the luxurious home and table, and remember at the time the fluent conversation of this clever woman."

True, indeed. This lovely lady is always an intellectual refreshment to the guest. Perhaps of all the ladies in Washington Mrs. McPherson is least of the earth earthy. Of a delicate organization, she has suffered much from nervousness, as all intellectual people do; but her frequent visits to Europe have given her great relief, and she is now able to enjoy a season at the National capital, in one of the most beautiful mansions in that beautiful city. The Senator had it built according to his own designs. It is a delightful home, with quiet and pleasing surroundings.—Jersey City Herald.

PARTISANSHIP.

The recent endeavors of the Republican majority of the State Legislature to deprive Governor Abbett of his right to political privileges, is to say the least, despicable in the eyes and minds of all honest and law-abiding citizens. Instead of legislating in the interest of the people, by enacting necessary laws now before them, the Republican majority in both branches of the Legislature, have, for days, been successfully endeavoring to legislate so as to displace all Democratic officials in office, who were appointed by the Governor in accordance to previous law, and providing for the appointment of Republicans in their stead. Even the matter of Public School Superintendents have been dragged into the political arena, so that the officials shall be Republican. The Governor's vetoes of partisan measures are treated with contempt and derision and passed over his head by the blind and bitter Republican majority. While that majority are loud in their praise of President Cleveland's Civil Service Reform address and movements, they are reckless in their crusade against the will of the people, who, by their votes, placed a Democratic Governor in the executive chair of the State. Well, let them go on in their blind partisanship. A day of reckoning will come, or else we misjudge the people of New Jersey, who by their votes will next Fall see to it that a Democratic majority will rule both branches of the Legislature. Civil service reform is lost upon such a body of representatives as now control the New Jersey Legislature.

The annual inspection of the Sixth regiment will take place at Vineland about the 1st of May.

H. W. Merrell, of Morristown, has been appointed agent for Morris county by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

President Cleveland has subscribed for the New York World, and the editor says that is the extent of the Federal patronage he expects to get from the new government.

When the Legislature adjourns Governor Abbett will bar the doors, and when they are opened next year the same gang will be eating dishes of crow in their various districts.

The plant of the Boonton Iron Works in Morris county, which has been idle for nine years, will be sold at public sale on May 1. It is valued at $1,500,000 and belongs to the Lord estate.

A big tube to shoot passengers through from Newfoundland to Ireland is one of the latest chimerical plans of pure genius without any business in it. The proposer gravely suggests that it will cure sea-sickness.

While workmen were excavating recently the ruins of Janeway & Co's wall paper factory, burned in the fire of February 7, at New Brunswick, the remains of Patrick Dougherty, who foolishly entered the burning building, were discovered. Only a few charred bones were found.

A great deal is being said about the retention of the Republican Postmaster of New York city in his present position. We see no reason why he should be re-appointed. There are certainly plenty of Democrats just as efficient and capable of being Postmaster of New York city as Mr. Pearson.

Congressman McAdoo, of New Jersey, has made a host of friends since he took his seat in the House of Representatives at Washington, both North and South. He is an able debater and has the interests of his constituents at heart. New Jersey is proud of her representatives, even though none of her honored citizens secured a Cabinet position.

In the announcement of Committees by the U. S. Senate, New Jersey's Democratic representative, John R. McPherson, has been honored by responsible positions on the Committee on Finance and Naval Affairs. The Senator is most eminently fitted for the positions assigned him. As a representative of the people, Senator McPherson is considered an able and influential man in all matters pertaining to the good of the National government. Senator Sewell, Republican, also has been justly honored with responsible positions on Committees. As Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, Mr. Sewell is well qualified for the position.

President Cleveland took his oath of office upon a small Bible presented to him years ago by his mother. This was not done by Mr. Cleveland for notoriety or effect, but out of pure, lovable respect for his mother's memory, and in recollection of the teachings given him by her which has resulted in his so assuming the ordinary duties of life to himself and country as to elevate him to the highest position practically in the gift of this great nation. Partisan papers may talk about "luck" in his attainment to this high office. It was not that; but the straightforward and honest life led by him in his maturity, resulting from the early teachings and lessons of his paternity which he has respected ever since.

The Mistress of the White House.

On the eve of the convention that nominated the present Executive of the nation, the National Women's Christian Temperance Union met in national concert of prayer, asking for the spiritual guidance in the deliberations of the Presidential conventions. The woman who then directed and led that solemn meeting, which prayed that whoever should be the mistress of the White House "might be endowed with heavenly graces and divine strength to stand in the Nation's highest house its true priestess and its safe example," was Miss Cleveland, who to-day is mistress of the President's home; a Christian woman and a wise and active member of the N. W. C. T. U. The temperance women of the country are delighted.

The World's Exposition.

Every patriotic citizen of this country cannot but rejoice that the World's Exposition has come triumphant out of the clouds of misstatements and slander, which for weeks past have so darkly enveloped it, and now stands before the world, acknowledged by every fair-minded intelligent visitor, of whom McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, Governors Hamilton, of Illinois, Cameron, of Virginia, Bourne, of Rhode Island, Knott, of Kentucky and Vice President elect Hendricks, are instances, as the greatest, grandest industrial Exposition of which history furnishes any record. It is such an Exposition in which every citizen has an interest. Every object it can conserve has a direct influence upon the welfare and prosperity of the country. The immense magnitude of the World's Exposition, incurring as it has an immense expense, will undoubtedly deter the citizens of this generation from the attempt to organize another. Hence, the present may be the only opportunity presented during the century of attending a great World's Exposition. Railroad companies have already established the lowest rates ever heretofore given. They have agreed to make exceptionally low excursion rates to the people who wish to be present at the special "State Days." We advise all our readers who possibly can, to attend the Exposition. The weather at New Orleans is now, after a season of unexampled atrocity, simply superb. Everything about the Exposition is now complete. The rates of entertainment and accommodation are as low as at any time, and with low transportation rates no other incentive is needed to insure a large attendance from this section. Wednesday, March 25th, is "Jersey Day" at the Exposition.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

An exchange says: A party of men drove to the Grove Episcopal church, Newark, Friday night, with large boxes and scoop nets, and, after placing ladders against the walls of the church, began to capture the sparrows in the full glare of the electric street lamps. One of the men said to a citizen that the sparrows were to be used in shooting matches, but an other said they were to be loosed in the country. The Rev. Mr. Christian, rector of the church, said yesterday that the sparrows could be well spared, but he did not like the manner in which they had been taken. Several hundred sparrows were captured by the men.

A new law prohibits the killing of doves from January 1 to August 31, under a penalty of $5 for each bird killed.

More bills, amending the game laws, have been introduced in the New Jersey legislature the present session, than for many years past. Some are good, others are useless laws and will work harm if passed.

Sanitary Code
OF THE
Township of Westfield, Union County, New Jersey.

Organized in pursuance of an Act of the Legislature, approved March 11th, 1880, entitled "An Act concerning the public health and the record of vital facts and statistics relating thereto," and "An Act relating to local Boards of Health," approved March 23d, 1881.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained by the Board of Health of the Township of Westfield, Union county, New Jersey, that the chairman of the Township Committee for the time being shall act as chairman of the Board of Health, and the Secretary of said Board shall be elected at its annual meeting for organization.

SECTION 2. The chairman shall perform such duties as usually appertain to such offices, and the Secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the Board and of all complaints relating to sanitary matters, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Board in the discharge of their duties.

SECTION 3. Meetings shall be held monthly at the time of the meetings of the Township Committee and oftener when deemed expedient by the chairman or any three members of the Board. Three members of the Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SECTION 4. It shall be the duty of any member of the Board, when appointed by the Board to act as Health Inspector, to investigate and report upon any complaint of a nuisance, cause of sickness or source of [illegible] detrimental to the public health, and to perform any other duty relating to the public health which may be assigned to him by the Board.

SECTION 5. All cases of smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, yellow fever, typhus fever, measles, asiatic cholera or other contagious or infectious diseases, and all cases of death therefrom in the Township of Westfield shall be forthwith reported in writing to the Board of Health of the said Township by the owner or occupant of any dwelling in which any of such diseases or deaths shall have occurred, and also by the physician in attendance on the case. All directions which the Board of Health shall prescribe for the purpose of preventing the spread of any of such diseases, either by the use of disinfectants, fumigation or otherwise shall be strictly carried out, and any order that may be made by the Board for the destruction of clothing or other articles for the purpose aforesaid shall be promptly obeyed.

SECTION 6. That all funerals and interments within the Township of Westfield of persons dying of any contagious, infectious, or pestilential disease, shall be under the direction of the Board of Health of the Township, and shall be strictly private; and it shall be the duty of householders and all persons concerned, when a death occurs from any such disease, to prevent needless assembling in the apartments or house, where such diseases are, of all persons liable to become infected thereby.

SECTION 7. That no person shall keep, sell or offer for sale in the Township of Westfield any impure or adulterated drink or drug, or any tainted, infected or unwholesome meat, fish, fowl, vegetables or fruit either as food or medicine, and any such articles so kept, sold or offered for sale, may be seized and destroyed by order of the Board of Health.

SECTION 8. That all animals which die or are killed and not used for food within the said Township, shall forthwith be buried by the owners thereof under at least four feet of earth.

SECTION 9. That the owner of, agent for, or tenant of any private property upon which a nuisance, source of [illegible] or cause of sickness detrimental to the public health may be found shall upon notice given by the Board of Health, or given by their direction, cause the same to be abated within the time specified in the notice, and in case of failure to comply therewith, such nuisance, source of [illegible] or cause of sickness shall be abated under the direction of the Board of Health by its officers or agents, and the cost of such abatement in addition to a fine of five dollars shall be recovered by action of debt in any court of competent jurisdiction from the person or persons failing to comply with the terms of such notice. The private property referred to in this section shall be construed to include so much of the streets or highways adjacent thereto as belong to the said private property subject to the public use, and no person shall deposit in the gutter, or streets or public roads of the said Township any [illegible] decayed or decaying [illegible] or other substances detrimental to the public health.

SECTION 10. It shall be the duty of all owners, tenants and occupants of any or all buildings in said Township, [illegible] any sink, privy vault or cesspool connected [illegible] to [illegible] overflow upon the surface of the ground or into the streets or gutters, or running streams, or in any way to become [illegible] detrimental to the public health, and all privy vaults shall be emptied [illegible] in the spring and fall [illegible] and at all times [illegible] that shall not be injurious to the public health.

SECTION 11. [illegible] vault, sink or cesspool [illegible] in said Township [illegible] unless a special permit [illegible] shall have been granted by the Board of Health, and any privy vault hereafter constructed shall be made water tight and extend below [illegible] feet above the surface of the ground.

SECTION 12. That no person shall hinder or obstruct any member or agent of the Board of Health in the discharge of any of his duties or in any way prevent [illegible] investigation of any alleged nuisance [illegible] source of [illegible] or injurious to the public health.

SECTION 13. That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance or code shall be subject to a fine for each offence of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, and all fines and penalties shall be recovered by action of debt in any district court or court for the trial of small causes with costs, and when collected the same shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Township for the use of the Township. This [illegible] shall not apply to offenses for which a specific penalty has been herein prescribed.

SECTION 14. All ordinances and parts of ordinances heretofore adopted inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Adopted Monday, March 16, 1885.

THIS IS THE "WONDER SHIRT"
HAS NO WEAK SPOT ANY WHERE.
"ACORN" TRADE MARK.

"THE WONDER" SHIRT.
The latest shirt issued under the "Acorn" Brand is "THE WONDER," and it is also the best shirt ever made for the Trade. The following are some of its principal points of excellence, a printed list of which is attached to every shirt:
1st. It has the finest and heaviest muslin ever put in a shirt, (Utica Nonpariel improved).
2nd. It has a three-ply linen bosom.
3rd. It is of extra length.
4th. It is reinforced both back and front extending and meeting under the arms where most needed.
5th. It has the Tomlinson patent endless facing.
6th. It is custom-make and finish.
7th. It cannot break or tear anywhere.
Like the Deacon's "one-hoss shay" it has no weak spots and will never "give" anywhere, but at the end of scores of years it will dissolve into space, not a thread broken or a seam started.
Fathers will bequeath these shirts, purchased in early manhood, a priceless legacy to their children.
We expect a large demand for them to place in the corner stones of public structures as evidence of the greatest triumph of modern civilization. These shirts are manufactured expressly for

THERE will be a grand musical concert in the First Presbyterian church at Dunellen, N. J., on Tuesday evening, March 24th. The price of admission will be twenty-five cents.

THOSE who were sanguine that Spring had arrived, in consequence of the balmy atmosphere last Monday morning were sadly disappointed in the afternoon when blinding snow squalls prevailed.

AFTER July first, the letter rate will be two cents for each ounce, instead of each half ounce. It will not add nor detract much from the revenue, but it will save many provoking "due two cents."

WE read of a man who dropped dead while cutting wood for his wife. One of our esteemed contemporaries suggests that it be a warning to all men not to interfere with their wives' pleasures.

THERE was a fair attendance to the fifth lecture of Prof. Fiske at the Reform Club Hall last Monday evening. The audience evidenced their appreciation of the subject discussed—"The American Revolution"—by frequent applause. The next lecture of the course occurs March 21st.

NEWSPAPERS throughout the State say that local communities are generously providing appropriations for their health boards to do battle against the cholera which it is probable, will be here in the Spring. Summit generously contributed one dollar. Pass it around.—Summit Record.

THE last State census in New Jersey was taken in 1875, and as it is required that the census shall be taken every ten years, it becomes necessary to perform the work during the present year unless the legislature should deem it necessary in view of the very complete census taken in 1880 by the National Government.

THE Lambertville Record says that the frost has rarely penetrated the ground as deep as it has the past winter, and it is yet increasing. In the lowlands in the valley of the Delaware it is found at the depth of three and a half feet, and in the uplands where there is a clay loam mixture, it has reached the depth of eighteen inches.

THE policy of every man in business and who must live by the public, should be to let the public hear of him. His best speaking-trumpet is the newspaper advertisement. In a populous community and a rapid age like this, every trader must make himself heard and known, otherwise he will fall behind the progress of his neighbors.

ASSEMBLYMAN CORBIN, of Elizabeth, has introduced a bill before the legislature, providing for the appointment of county auditors in all counties having more than 30,000 population, to be elected in the Fall of the present year and every three years thereafter. This bill affects Union county. It does away with the Clerk of the Board of Freeholders and provides for a salary that would amount to $2,500 with the perquisites of the office. Union county does not need such an official.

EXTENSIVE improvements have been made in the carpet department of Pope Bros. store, corner of Front and Somerset streets, and a large stock of latest designs in carpets are now on exhibition there at low prices. The above popular firm claim to have the largest assortment of carpets, rugs, matting, etc., in this city. Their well-known enterprise, and the fact that the recent improvements have made their carpet department light and airy, should attract the attention of the public in quest of goods in their line.

THE choicest cut flowers, fresh every day, may always be had of Miss Lincoln, the florist, on North avenue opposite Force's Hotel. Baskets and bouquets, and floral designs for parties, weddings and funerals, arranged in all the latest and most artistic styles.

THE election for a school trustee in district No. 38, North Plainfield, took place on Tuesday evening last and resulted in the re-election of Mr. James Mageo. There being no opposition the election was made unanimous. It was also voted to raise $500 extra for school purposes, making the amount to be assessed $4,000.

ABOUT the latter part of April, Mr. A. Venino, a professor of music of much talent and skill, will give a high-class concert in this city, upon which occasion will appear among others, Mme. Dossert and Mr Rhodes who have so frequently attained enviable successes in N. Y. city with the Theo. Thomas Philharmonic concerts.

THERE is roguery in all trades except printing. We notice that it seems to be merely a matter of policy and conscience with a storekeeper whether he will charge you fifty per cent. or two hundred and fifty per cent. profit. Policy invariably dictates the latter figure, and his conscience is generally equal to the two hundred and fifty per cent. strain. P. S.—These remarks, for obvious reasons, do not apply to plumbers or butchers.

Fire at New Brooklyn.

The large barracks of Mr. Albert Manning, at New Brooklyn, N. J., were destroyed by fire Wednesday night of last week, involving a loss of about $150 on agricultural implements stored therein. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Gospel Meetings.

The Rev. Geo. F. Pentecost the evangelist, with Mr. and Mrs. Stebbins the vocalists, will begin a series of gospel meetings in the Trinity Reformed church, next Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock, and continuing each successive evening. A chorus choir will assist. Commencing Tuesday, a bible reading will be conducted every afternoon at 4 o'clock in the M. E. church.

Success to the Effort.

We hope that the efforts now making to secure for the Music Hall Bartley Campbell's great drama, "White Slave," may succeed. The author is his his own manager, and unites with the highest literary ability, the taste of an artist, so that the play has deserved the great reputation which it has gained. The management of the Music Hall hope to produce the play here about April 2nd.

The Eclipse.

The eclipse of the sun on Monday last came off as advertised promptly at 12:13 o'clock. At least 369,000 noses were blackened by looking through smoked glass at the shining orb of day, which was partially obscured by reason of the moon crossing the Sun's disk. Observations were taken of the eclipse in various parts of the world, by scientists, and undoubtedly much valuable information obtained.

This Evening's Concert.

The Columbia College Glee Club that is to entertain the public with its songs, glees and madrigals in Music Hall, this evening, exceeds in quality and quantity not only, as usual, other like organizations, but its own of the past, as well. The excellence of the Club's training and the attractive programme it will present, deserves a large audience. The manager of the Columbia boys is Mr. A. L. Woodruff, of the Mendelssohn Glee Club, and in his hands the affair will be an artistic success.

A Musicale.

A very successful reception-musicale was held at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Potter last Saturday evening. The affair was private and the invited included the creme of select society on both sides of the brook. Miss Hexsen, a Plainfield favorite, sang sweetly the "Dedication" by Franz, "Queen of Sheba" by Gounod, and Tours' "Because of Thee." Prof. Venino rendered selections of Chopin with great ability, while Miss Mildred Potter's execution of two little compositions of Mendelssohn's displayed wonderful talent and good teaching.

Missionary Meeting.

The Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, will celebrate its 12th anniversary on Friday afternoon and evening, March 27th. The afternoon meeting for ladies will be at 2:30. The evening service will be at 7:30, to which all are invited. No pains have been spared to make these exercises both interesting and instructive. Mrs. M. U. Drake, a very earnest lecturer, has consented to lend her aid, as also Mrs. H. W. Hancock, who has just returned from the Leegong mission. Meetings held at First Baptist church.

The Case of Joseph Stiles.

A great deal that is false and lamentable in the way of rumor has recently been circulated in and around this city regarding the case of Joseph Stiles a veteran who lies dying of consumption at his home on the mountains back of Washington Valley. The statements publicly made are untrue in every particular where they reflect on the charity of the church, the relief association or the unfortunate man's fellow comrades. Although not a member of its own organization, the detailed Relief Committee of the Winfield Scott Post visits Mr. Stiles frequently and assists him in every way. The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, Dr. M. B. Long and others have personally aided him, and not long since a dozen men worked all day in chopping and piling wood for the sick man's family.

Oh For Electric Lights.

Arrangements are being made for an electric light plant in Elizabeth, and it is said a company has been formed of citizens of that city. It is rumored one of the rinks will be the first to use it. The lights will be run under a new system. It is projected to light Broad street by a tower of considerable height. The light is very fine, and is now in extensive use in the west.

Moving Day.

April 1st, New Jersey's moving day, will soon be here, and parties intending to change their places of residence on that day, will want to know of a suitable person, and a suitable vehicle, to perform that service for them. We will heartily recommend to the notice of such citizens, Mr. T. J. Carey, who has just received fresh from the hands of Mr. J. P. Homan, builder, and Mr. John H. Dunning, painter, the largest vehicle for moving goods, yet built in this State. This truck is thirteen feet long and eleven feet high, and is capable of carrying the goods of a small family at one trip. Mr. Carey has rightly named the truck the "Jumbo." Pianos, and all kinds of household furniture are carefully handled by Mr. Carey, whose advertisement appears in another column.

Fra Diavolo.

Carleton's English Opera Co. sang "Fra Diavolo," Tuesday evening, in Music Hall, most creditably. By reason of the delayed arrival of the orchestra there was no rehearsal with the musicians, and Mr. Carleton refused to risk the reputation of his fine company by rendering an opera of which the orchestration is so necessary a part, with a lot of inexperienced instruments. In consequence, the notes of a piano alone accompanied the libretto. Carleton's strong Baritone and Clarke's rich bass, are unexcelled, while Miss Guthrie's soprano is both clear and true, and admirably handled. The company and its combined talents deserved a large audience, but—well Plainfield's reputation as a judge of music, and as possessing any taste or desire for it, is, like Othello's occupation, gone.

Plainfield Vocal Society Concert.

The second subscription concert of the P. V. S. was given in the Music Hall on the 12th inst. This concert was, judging from the popular opinion, more of a success than the first, as the music was lighter and more pleasing, although the Society worked much harder in the former production. An attempt has been made since the last concert to throw all the sound into the auditorium by stretching canvas over the flies, but there was little, if any, improvement. The Society labors under great disadvantage in the Hall, as much of the sound is lost, while the least defect is very apparent. The programme opened with Champneys' "Rustic Coquette," a pleasing ballad, which was followed by Blumenthal's "Night." The latter was beautiful as well as odd, the sopranos and bassos taking the air in the first part, and the altos and tenors taking it in the latter part. Hermann's "Rest," a quintette of first and second soprano, alto, tenor and base, is full of harmony and was sung with much expression. Mendelssohn's "O, Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast," a duet by the soprano and alto, received the first encore for the Society. This was followed by "Hear My Prayer," by the same composer, and sung by Madame Studwell and the Vocal Society. This same composition was given with the same soloist some years ago, and was received with no more enthusiasm. Nothing need be said in criticism of one who is so thoroughly known and enjoyed in this place as Mrs. Studwell. She sings as if it pleased her and not as if she were doing the Society a great favor in being there at all—as the manner of some is. After the intermission "Allen-a-Dale went a hunting"; but although "his bow was stout and strong," he had a pretty hard time of it, and no one was more glad than the Society when he reached home without a complete break-down. "There is an Hour of Hallowed Peace," by Mr. Fitzhugh, was received with the appreciation that is generally given his compositions. That reminds us that we have heard repeated calls for a male quartette with tenor obligato entitled, if we remember rightly, "Rest, Dearest Rest," and by the same composer. "This latter was sung by the Society four years ago. Faning's "The Miller's Wooing" was very brilliant and was followed by Gounod's psalm, "By Babylon's Wave." Of this, all we need say that it is worthy to be placed among that composer's best works. The programme ended with Max Bruch's "Fair Ellen," by Mrs. Studwell, Mr. Stoddard and the P. V. S. This is very bright and not too long. Mr. Stoddard, who is another favorite in this city, sang that and his other selections with his usual good taste and evenness of tone.

The Latest Rinkles.

Philadelphia has a rink for ladies only. That's just like Philadelphia.

At the banner march, Wednesday evening, Miss Hobby and Mr. Drier were the fortunate winners of the prizes. North Plainfield gets it every time.

To-morrow afternoon and evening, Plainfield's favorite, Mr. Charles West Thompson, will give exhibitions of his wonderful skill as a skater, as well as his marvelous evolutions on a six-foot table.

This Friday afternoon the members of the Columbia Glee Club will attend at the Casino rink by invitation of the proprietors. Fine music will be provided for the occasion and other interesting attractions prevail.

Roller skates have found a champion. He is a homœopathic physician, and he says that he has cured a woman of nervous disease by having her practice on roller skates a few hours daily for three months. So says the Easton Free Press.

Pressure will be brought to bear at no distant day on the Park Commissioners to secure their approval of a scheme to erect within the confines of Central Park, New York, an immense roller skating rink.

The future of roller skating is bright. The present devotion will probably die out before a very great while, but, as in bicycle riding and in other sports which at first became passions; sober second thought has done much to improve the original idea.

The first fancy dress carnival in this city will be held next Thursday evening, and extensive preparations have been made by the subscribing gentlemen interested, to insure its brilliant success. Admission tickets are to be twenty-five cents each, with a reserved seat at twenty-five cents additional.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, speaking of rinks, says: "These places are said to be immoral, are they? Well, the same was said of our old New England singing schools, which also brought our young people together. However, I think too highly of our American young men and girls to believe that they would misbehave themselves in being brought in contact—of course, allowing for the usual discount of wrong-doers."

It was at the rink, and the gentlemanly young man was initiating the shy young thing of sixteen into the mysteries of roller-skating.

"You strike out boldly like this," said he, illustrating with a graceful sweep, and then, as she bravely tried to imitate him, he exclaimed:

"Ah, you're catching on!"

She didn't make any audible reply until she had finished the somersault. Then she put down her skirts with both hands and murmured softly:

"No, that's the trouble. There wasn't anything to catch on to."

Personals.

County Clerk Vosseller is convalescing from severe illness, bordering on pneumonia.

Mrs. Teale, wife of Oscar Teale, the architect, is lying seriously ill at her residence on Madison avenue.

Thanks are tendered Comptroller Anderson for a copy of "Final Determination of Valuations of Railroad and Canal Property in New Jersey."

We are under obligations to Prof. Geo. H. Cook, State Geologist, for a copy of the Geological Survey and Atlas of New Jersey. This work is a very valuable one.

The many friends of Mr. Robert S. Miller, of Park Place, this city, are pleased to learn of that gentleman's convalescence from a sudden and severe attack of pneumonia.

The many friends of Mrs. Col. James Mulligan, will be pleased to learn that she is slowly regaining her health after a long siege of illness, in her rooms at Force's Hotel, North avenue.

Mrs. Auguste Saltzman, her children Maud and Auguste, also her mother, Mrs. Marcile, started for Florida last evening, to be absent several weeks, and to look after their interests in growing orange groves owned by them in the vicinity of Jacksonville.

Horace F. J. Drake, formerly editor of the Elizabeth Herald, and Augustus M. Laing, a former resident of this city, hold responsible positions in the Government printing office at Washington, D. C. They will not be removed under the new order of government.

The congratulations of many friends are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Newton P. Drake, of North Plainfield. The marriage ceremony occurred Thursday evening, March 12th, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. P. M. Demarest, the well-known grocer of Front street. The gifts on the occasion were numerous and costly.

Gleanings From Exchanges.

Young ladies who think they have a call to write poetry should stop and remember that "poets are born not maid."

The Jersey City Police Commissioners Tuesday last dismissed Policeman Alexander Robertson for being intoxicated and refusing to go on duty.

The Legislature will probably get through its political work this week, and can then devote more time to passing and defeating such bills as the railroads want them to. After that they will be ready to adjourn.

Just now the Blaine organs take delight in calling attention to the fact that the Inauguration of Mr. Cleveland cost $40,000. Well, the Democrats paid the money out of their own pockets and the contributors unite in declaring that the show was well worth the money.

It is now openly declared that when the Democrats of the senate made that Middlesex statesman, Schenck, president he promised that he would keep out of the caucuses of his party and ignore partisan legislation. It is unnecessary to add that Mr. Schenck has deceived those who elected him.

It has been settled that Madison Square Garden will be turned into a skating rink. Tuesday last a lease was signed by the New Haven Railroad Company, and Mr. William Wood, by the terms of which Mr. Wood will control the Garden for five years. The rental is $50,000 a year. It is proposed to tear out the Fourth avenue end of the building and fit up a number of stores.

The General Term of the Hudson county (N. J.) Supreme Court, on Tuesday last set aside the verdict of $12,000 damages, which was awarded to John May against the North Hudson county Railway Company on the ground that the amount was out of proportion to the injuries suffered by the plaintiff. A verdict for $1,000 obtained against the same company by Patrick Duffy was also set aside.

Notice having been given by the company that the Delaware and Raritan Canal would be opened on the 16th, two powerful Pennsylvania Railroad tugs attempted Monday to break the ice that still closes the Raritan river for several miles below New Brunswick. The effort was only partly successful and was renewed on Tuesday. As soon as the channel is clear the steamer New Brunswick will resume her daily trips down and up the river.

On the complaint of Charles D. McKelvey, Superintendent of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, Abram W. Montfort, of Hackensack, N. J., was arrested Tuesday night on a warrant issued by Justice Berthoff for annoying female passengers on the trains, and particularly for committing an assault on two female passengers. He was held in $1,000 to answer at the April term of the Court, John B. Conklin being his bondsman. This is said not to be his first offense in that line.

Tuesday afternoon the boss masons in Newark yielded to the demands of the journeymen, and an agreement was made by which the bosses promised to pay the men $3.50 a day. The journeymen then demanded the immediate discharge of all the foul men who had taken their places during the strike. Some of the bosses refused to yield, but others agreed to let the men go. Finally the matter was compromised by retaining the men who will join the Journeymen's Union. All others will be discharged.

Reuben A. Weeks, a lineman of the Bell Telephone Company, was up a pole tightening wires Tuesday afternoon and, thinking it perfectly safe in daylight, he caught hold of an electric-light wire. The shock rendered him unconscious. He hung on until his fingers were badly burned, when he fell and was caught on a wire by the strap of his climbers. He remained suspended in the air, head down, for several minutes until a ladder was procured and he was rescued. When brought down he was still unconscious, and was taken to the hospital, where he was soon restored. One finger was burned entirely off, and the other and the thumb were amputated.

For several months a company has been boring for petroleum near Phelps. A few days ago workmen bored into a vein of water, and upon examination it was found to be a vein of salt about twenty feet in thickness. An analysis of the brine from the vein has been made at the Syracuse Salt Works and twelve ounces of brine have been found to produce three and a half ounces of pure salt. A company of wealthy citizens in Phelps and Clifton Spring is being formed in order to develop the mine. Two more wells will be sunk and a large salt manufactory built. Salt men from Syracuse who have examined the well at Clifton state that they believe the newly found vein is the same as that which supplies the Syracuse and Warsaw salt works.

The first annual report of the State Board of Assessors just published, gives evidence of the great care and ability with which the Board have performed their duty, and gives an insight into the great labor which they have performed in the adjustment of the new law to the almost chaotic condition in which they found the property of the railroads as submitted for the purposes of taxation. The actual result of their work can be judged by the fact that they have discovered $140,236,605 of real and personal property and $50,201,368 of franchises for taxation which produce to the State $952,188.99, and to the localities $322,481.90 of tax. When this is compared with the beggarly $750,000 which used to be derived from the railroad property of the State, the necessity for the creation of the board, and the thoroughness with which they have done their work will be apparent.

NEW MARKET NOTES.

Mr. Robert E. Pierce will remove to the Isaac Dunn place.

Mr. George Coriell was elected road master by a handsome majority. If he desires to perpetuate himself in public favor and to creep up the ladder of promotion, let him see to it that people have a decent sidewalk so as they can either get to the depot, church or school in comfort.

Since the inauguration New Market has not been behind in anticipating a change of office, some believing that "the spoils to the victors belong," but under the new reform doctrine of Cleveland a good many would-be federal officers are going to get left. If removal for cause is the sine quo non in all cases it will be some time before the post office will change hands here, the present incumbent being popular with both parties, and certainly cannot be changed with any prospect of sustaining it, the use of office to further partisan gain. Petitions are around. One in favor of Dr. Nelsons seems to have sought the outlying districts more than New Market proper, and in one instance at New Brooklyn, solicitation was made upon the faith that the petition was drawn up by Judge Green. Now in order that no one may be misled, I have the best authority to say our Democratic representative in Congress did not draw and has not been connected with Dr. Nelson's or any other applicant's petition. If any such statement has been made it is purely gratuitous. He is not committed to anyone and will do what the Democrats in the vicinity wish. If a change is made the Democrats want the office on the New Market side of the pond, not half way to Dunellen. Another rumor is that Dr. Nelson's petition is to favor the retention of Coriell. This is equally false. In fact, if Coriell retains the office, it will be on account of competency and not as a deputy for a new incumbent.

At the school meeting held Tuesday evening, $1,500 was voted to carry on the school, and after taking three ballots Mr. Parks was elected Trustee by a very small majority.

A large house situated on the Osborne farm, between the Plains and Westfield, was totally destroyed by fire on Thursday night of last week. The cause of the fire was undoubtedly incendiarism. The property belonged to Mr. Geo. W. Coles, of Plainfield, and was partly insured.

At a regular convention of Good Will Lodge, No. 101, K. of P. held March 12th, 1885, and Pythian Period the XXII, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS It has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, to remove from our midst Brother John R. Haskard, a Past Chancellor and Charter member who, for many years was an active worker in the Lodge, and having served in the high office of D. D. G. C., had become widely known in this district No. 14, and whereas, While we reverently bow to the inscrutable decrees of our Heavenly Father, we desire to here express our deep sense of the loss this death brings to this Lodge and the Order, his family and friends, therefore

Resolved, That we hereby tender to the family of our deceased brother, our most sincere sympathy and condolence in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That the Charter and Altar be draped in mourning for sixty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the record book of the Lodge, and a copy sent to each of the public papers of Plainfield, and an engrossed copy presented to the family of deceased.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

In England it takes pounds to purchase hammered silver.

Nineteen of our residents attended the Theodore Thomas concert at Music Hall, Plainfield, last week.

Mr. Charles Kimball has moved into his new residence recently purchased of Mr. George Crouse in Cranford township.

Mr. George Soltan, of Brooklyn, lately associated with Mr. D. L. Moody, has been conducting religious services at the several churches the past week.

The W. C. T. U. held a social entertainment and supper at Temperance Hall, on Tuesday evening, March 17. It was largely attended and the supper table well patronized by our residents.

It is hoped that the overseers of the several road districts in our township will repair the roads as soon as the frost is out of the ground and they become settled, and not delay it until late in the Summer and early Fall.

"Are you tired?" asked a young lady of her escort, as he suddenly sat down on the floor of the roller-skating rink. "N-n-no," he stammered, "b-b-but I th-th-think th-th-the w-w-wheels of th-th-these s-s-sk-skates are t-t-too er-er-er-round, d-d-don't-cher-know."

An error was made in last week's wisps in not giving the vote received by A. Z. Chambers for 2d Asst. Engineer of our Fire Department. Mr. Chambers received 37 votes. Twelve from H. & L. Co. No. 1; twelve from Bucket & Engine Co. No. 1, and thirteen from Empire Engine Co. No 2.

At the Annual School Meeting of District No. 10, held on Tuesday, March 17, Dr. Joseph B. Harrison was unanimously elected school trustee, and the sum of $4,400 special tax was voted to be assessed the ensuing year for the purpose of paying a portion of the mortgage on the school building, and running the school for the coming year.

The Board of Health met the Town Rooms March 16. Present—Jas. L. Miller, Levi Cory, E. Embree and Joseph B. Harrison. James L. Miller was elected Chairman and John M. C. Marsh, Secretary of the Board for the ensuing year. The sanitary code as revised by the Township Counsel was read and adopted. On motion, Dr. Joseph B. Harrison and John M. C. Marsh were appointed a committee to have the code published in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for three weeks, and also to have 500 copies in pamphlet form for use in the township. On motion, adjourned, subject to the call of the Chairman.

The Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Monday, March 16, at 4.30 p. m., for the purpose of organizing for the ensuing year. Present—Jas. L. Miller, Levi Cory and E. Embree. The Board was called to order by Luther M. Whitaker, Town Clerk. On motion, Mr. James L. Miller was elected Chairman and Mr. E. Embree, Treasurer. The result of the Annual Town Meeting held March 10, was read, and on motion, ordered spread in full on the minutes. The following oaths of office of township officers were read and also ordered on the minutes: Town Clerk, L. M. Whitaker; Assessor, John M. C. Marsh; Overseer of Poor, Hiram L. Fisk; Commissioners of Appeal, David Sayres, Evert M. Pierson, Oliver M. Pierson; Surveyors of Highways, Albert A. Drake, Sherman Cooper; Constable for two years, J. Wallace Cox. The following reports of Road District elections were received and ordered placed on the minutes: Road District No. 1, no election; No. 2, E. M. Pierson, overseer, special tax, $100; No. 3, John J. Willis, overseer, special tax, $500; No. 5, Wm. A. Brown, overseer, special tax, $100; No. 6, no election; No. 7, no returns; No. 8, N. B. Day, overseer, special tax, $300; No. 9, F. B. Baker, overseer, special tax, $100; No. 10, no returns; No. 12, O. M. Pierson, overseer; No. 13, no election; No. 14, James M. French, overseer, special tax, $400; No. 15, no returns. On motion, report of Road District No. 4 was laid over. The Westfield H. & L. Co. No. 1 presented the quit claim deed as was requested Jan. 17, 1885. The Clerk was instructed to have the same recorded in the County Clerk's office. On motion, the following township bills were ordered paid: John S. Burhans, inspector of election, $9; A. E. Wilcox, do, $9; Charles E. Leveridge, judge of election, $9; L. M. Whitaker, clerk, $13.50. On motion, adjourned, subject to call of Chairman.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Powerful Medicine in Baking Powder.

This certifies that I have examined samples of Cleveland's and the Royal Baking Powders purchased by myself of grocers in Burlington, and that I find Cleveland's Baking Powder is composed of pure and healthful materials, properly compounded; while the Royal contains as an adulteration or impurity an Ammonia compound. The use of Ammonia compounds in such a preparation I regard as injurious, as they are powerful medicines and do not serve as food in any way. The Royal, contrary to the representations of its manufacturers, contains Tartrate of Lime.

I find, moreover, that Cleveland's Baking Powder is of considerably greater strength than the Royal, both samples being equally fresh.

A TERRIBLE NIGHT.

BY J. W. C.

Halligen is the name given to a group of small islands on the west coast of Schleswig, which rises very little above the level of the sea.

At high tides or stormy weather they are completely under water, so that only the earth hills on which the houses of the inhabitants are built, stand above the waves.

If at high tide the waves are driven by violent storms, the danger then commences for even these higher dwellings.

And naturally it is still more formidable when the furious waves make playthings of large blocks of ice, which, with a noise like thunder, they hurl against the crashing houses.

Many years ago, in the month of January, a terrible night occurred to the unfortunate inhabitants of the Halligen.

For several successive days a violent northwesterly storm had been blowing; the raging sea had already passed over island, and only with great risk of life was it possible to sail from one house to another.

A thick darkness lay over the surging waste of water, which was only now and then illuminated by a flash of lightning, which tore asunder the thick cloud masses, while its forked tongue darted down from the sky into the angry waters.

The howling of the wind seemed to vie with the roar of thunder, and to both was added the raging of the waves, which seemed as if they were determined to swallow up the unhappy islands.

About 10 o'clock the waves, which were casting great blocks of ice against the unprotected islands, overflowed the earth-hill, which was about twenty feet high, and the wretched inhabitants had to take refuge in the upper stories or on the roofs of their dwellings.

And fortunate indeed were those whose houses did not give way before the mighty waves of the sea and the floating ice.

The first shock broke down the strongest piles upon which many of the dwellings were built, so that the whole building fell in at once, burying man and beast in a watery grave.

At the first rising of the storm (as the parish clerk of Keitum, a village on the island of Sylt, relates) the neighbors had fled to one of my friends and had, while the storm every moment increased, prayed together and read the Bible.

The father had taken the eldest child in his arms, the mother pressed the two youngest to her breast, and another neighbor undertook to measure the rise of the waters.

At 3 a. m. they would attain their greatest height; on ordinary occasions they rose nine feet, this time they might easily reach eighteen.

If they stopped there, safety was possible (for the house was twenty feet high with the roof). Provided no block of ice dashed against the house, and that waves did not loosen the strong piles deeply driven into the earth, they might escape.

The first soundings gave them reason to hope that the danger would pass by them, for, in spite of the hurricane, the sea rose very slowly.

But a fearful thunder-storm was passing with the gale over the sea, and by the gleam of the forked lightning the unfortunate sufferers beheld an awful sight.

They saw dismasted ships being dashed against towering masses of ice; and houses, whole or in pieces—men and cattle—were being cast about hither and thither in the floods and driven helplessly by the house of my friend.

With this thunder-storm the tide rose with incredible rapidity. The water now poured into the house; the furniture began to float; the storm broke the windows and drove the rain inside.

Through the thin partition wall, which separated the stable from the dwelling-room, they could plainly hear the groaning of the cows; and when a huge wave tore away a portion of the wall, they perceived the bow of a large boat fast stuck in the stable wall.

As the water had now risen so high that the unhappy people were in danger of being jammed against the ceiling, and perhaps drowned in the room, they forsook the tables and benches on which they had hitherto floated, and fled up a ladder into the hay-loft; but the sea soon robbed them of this last refuge.

Like a hungry monster it rolled every minute, and followed the fugitives till they were quite under the roof.

No longer finding a dry spot for himself and his family, the wretched father, who still preserved his presence of mind, made a hole in the thatch of the roof. He first swung himself up on the roof, where, passing his hand round the staff of the weather-cock, he took up his dangerous position.

"Now for the children," he cried, out as loud as he could; and even if the storm drowned his voice, the mother's heart understood his words, and in trembling haste she reached the two eldest children up to him, and then, with the youngest in her arms, she followed her darlings, and soon the whole family sat trembling with cold and horror, firmly clinging to each other, the father with his back to the storm, with one arm round his wife, and with the other holding fast to the staff of the weathercock.

When on the morning of the 4th of January, the sun shone down upon the work of that fearful night, the tide had ebbed, and my friend with his whole family, were saved.

The fishermen of Fohr, who on this occasion won the admiration of every one, found the wretched family on the thatch of their roof; and though their limbs were so stiff that it was feared the children would die from the exposure, yet by God's mercy they all recovered.

Cleveland was never sick a day in his life. But wait until the long-haired hordes of Southern office-seekers move forward to the attack.

Cranberries in Ocean county have nearly all been sold. The highest price received was $3.75 per bushel, while most were sold early in the season for $3 per bushel.

A couple of Philadelphia visitors to the New Orleans Exposition were seen examining and admiring the Liberty Bell the other day. They had never seen the old relic before, and they said they were glad they had visited the show.—Norristown Herald.

MR. GRANT'S LESSON.

BY MAY VIVIAN.

Mr. grant had finished his breakfast and was seated in his easy chair by the cozy fire reading the morning paper.

Mrs. Grant lingered by the breakfast table, altough she too had completed her morning meal, and with a worried look on her pretty face was nervously tracing patterns in the crumbs that lay beside her plate.

She looked at her husband two or three times as if she had something to say, then her courage seemed to fail her and she was silent.

Presently when he tossed aside the paper and rose to go she said, rather timidly:

"Will, can you let me have some money this morning before you go?"

"More money!" exclaimed Mr. Grant, a slight cloud overspreading his pleasant face. "Why, I gave you three dollars yesterday morning. Surely you haven't spent that already?"

"Willie's shoes cost just three dollars," answered Mrs. Grant.

"Well, I don't see how you manage to get through so much money," answered Mr. Grant, paying no attention to her explanation. "How much do you want? What do you want to get with it?"

"I am going in the city to do some shopping with Mrs. Dean," answered Mrs. Grant, "and she has taken me to lunch with her so often that I thought I would like to invite her to lunch with me for once."

"Oh, nonsense!" exclaimed Mr. Grant, impatiently. "There's no necessity for that. If Mrs. Dean chooses to spend her money for lunches in the city, don't you think that you must do the same thing. There's plenty of necessary ways to use up money without doing anything of that kind," and he buttoned up his coat as if the matter was conclusively settled.

Tears gathered slowly in Mrs. Grant's blue eyes. It had been an effort for her to ask her husband for some money, and only the remembrance of the humiliation she had felt so often at never being able to extend any invitations to old friends who pressed them upon her so cordially had enabled her to do it, and she had been unsuccessful after all.

"Will," she said presently, as her husband was fumbling with a refractory button, "would you mind making me an allowance?"

"An allowance, Eva!" and Mr. Grant stared at his wife with unfeigned surprise. "What in the world do you want an allowance for? Don't your have everything you want? All the money I earn is as much yours as mine, so what do you want to divide it for?"

"Because practically I don't feel that I have any right to a cent of your money," answered Mrs. Grant. "If I want any I have to ask for it, explain just what I want it for, and then if you happen to approve of my plan you dole it out to me as if I was a beggar. I have been married eight years, and in all that time you have never even given me as much as a dollar for myself. You have no idea how I dislike to ask for money even for the necessary purchases for the table. Now, if you would give me regularly ever so little money I would divide it up and try to get along without asking you for any more. Won't you do this, Will?" she pleaded.

Mr. Grant looked at his wife in astonishment.

"I don't see any use in it," he answered. "Now, if I was in your place and had everything that I needed, I wouldn't care if I never had any money to spend."

"Try it once!" exclaimed Mrs. Grant eagerly. "Let me take charge of your purse, and I will give you money for any necessary expenditures. I just want you to give my suggestion a fair trial. You say you would not care to have any money if your wants were supplied; now just see whether you would be willing to be impecunious, and ask for every thing you wanted. Let me keep your money for a week, and then see whether you do not think an allowance would be a better plan."

"All right, it's a Bargain," said Mr. Grant, after a moment's hesitation emptying his pockets of all their loose change and throwing his pocketbook on the table.

"Now, I want 12 cents for car fare and, well, say a quarter for lunch."

"Here it is," answered Mrs. Grant, counting out 37 cents and gathering up the rest.

Mrs. Grant's thoughts wandered to her husband many a time that day, and she wondered how he liked the sensation of being almost penniless. As for herself she felt rich in having so much money in her possession, and ventured to make two or three little purchases that she had wanted to make for a long time, but had put off because she disliked asking for the necessary money.

At least a dozen times that morning Mr. Grant's hand found its way to his pocket before he remembered that he had only the exact change for his lunch and car fare. At noon, when he went out for lunch, he met an old friend, and nothing but the consciousness of his empty pockets kept him from inviting him to lunch with him. Then for the first time he realized that it might possibly be a trial to Eva never to be able to extend invitations to her friends. He was not prepared to admit the inconvenience of empty pockets when he went home that evening, though.

"I got along first-rate," he said, in answer to his wife's question, "but I'll ask you to give me a little more money this evening."

"What for?" demanded Eva, serenely.

"For 'sundries,'" laughed Mr. Grant. "Cigars, et cetera; half a dollar will do."

"I don't see what you want cigars for," answered Eva, calmly. "I guess you can get along without them if you try. Half the wants in this world are merely imaginary ones."

Mr. Grant's face flushed; he recognized the words as his own. He would not ask again for any more money, but settled himself with his paper in moody silence, wishing that he had possession of his pocketbook again. The first day it had seemed more like a joke than anything else to start off for the day with barely sufficient for his most necessary expenses, but the next day it was decidedly disagreeable to know that he had not a single cent over the money for his lunch and car fare.

"If Eva feels this way all the time I don't wonder that she wants an allowance of her own," he said to himself as he rode homeward.

One day more convinced him thoroughly that it was annoying as well as humiliating to be obliged to present a petition for every small sum, and when he went home that evening he confessed that he had learned by experience how inconvenient an empty purse is, and admitted that a regular allowance was no more than was justly due his wife. He set aside a certain portion of his income for Eva's use for the household expenses and an additional amount for her own personal use, and after this she never put off making some necessary purchase for weeks, because she had to ask for the money.

"I learned a lesson that I never forgot in those three days," Mr. Grant often tells his friends when they are arguing against making regular allowances to their wives.

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care, and skill attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision, and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome, and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity, and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

ANOTHER LOVE MATCH.

BY MARY C. PRESTON.

"So! This is your sole business with me to day, young sir?"

It was surely not a very promising manner in which the words were said; but then what could one expect? Surely the young barrister had been wildly presumptuous when he, with his moderate income, his trifling practice, had come to ask the wealthy banker for the hand of his only daughter. The young man's face flushed hotly, but he kept his self command, replying with admirable coolness:

"This is my sole business with you to-day, Mr. Forrester. I have come to you, hoping for the consideration which man should show to man, independent of position, social difference, the world's opinion or anything outside this one bare fact. I, with all the force of my manhood, love your daughter, and ask your permission to go to herself and tell her of it. You have not answered me yet, sir."

"Oh, it won't take long for me to do that;" the banker's tone was rather ironical. "I have but one daughter, and—I have very different plans for her future. You understand me?"

"I cannot fail to do so." The young man's face was white now and had a little sternness in it. "May I ask you whether or not you speak in this manner solely because you know I am not wealthy? Would you speak differently were I—well, not a struggling barrister?"

"Oh, I have no personal objection to you," Mr. Forrester said, carelessly, playing with a paper knife on the table beside him—a costly toy, all ivory and gold, one of the curiosities brought by him from Egypt some years before, when he had taken his now deceased wife for a trip on the Mediterranean.

"You do me no injustice, I am confident," Dick Alvon pursued, a sort of dignity on his fine, blonde face. "You understand fully that Miss Forrester's position, your own reputed wealth, have had nothing to do with this interview. I have hesitated to speak because of them; but I fancied that even I—poor and obscure as I am—had a right to make a trial for the happiness I craved. I have come to you solely as a man, Mr. Forrester, hoping to find in you the sympathy of man for man, casting aside for the moment all other considerations."

"That is quite sufficient, sir." The banker spoke indifferently, still playing with the pretty toy. "It is of no consequence what you fancied. You will understand that Miss Forrester is henceforth a stranger to you."

"It is her desire, sir."

"She will have nothing to do with it; she will not even know of your—your presumption. I am fully capable of judging for my daughter." He was not quite so indifferent now, and the young lawyer arose from his seat.

"And I for myself, Mr. Forrester, having reached the age of discernment. I will have one interview with Miss Forrester, with your permission, should you kindly give it."

"And should I withhold my permission?" The banker was becoming angry, and his eyes were very cold as he surveyed his visitor. The young man bowed.

"You will not do so, lest I find myself constrained to find a means of having one without," he said, quietly. "I am still under the impression that a man should allow no other to speak for the woman he loves; that he should try to win her, let what may stand in the way, and I take my final dismissal from her alone."

The banker pitched aside the toy, and rising, motioned the young man back to his seat while he rang the bell.

"This is quite refreshing," he said, ironically, "being entirely unlooked for and unusual; but you shall be gratified."

A servant answered the summons. "Tell Miss Forrester I wish to see her at once if she is disengaged."

The servant vanished, and the two men stood facing each other in perfect silence.

Five minutes, ten, fifteen went by; then there was a rustle of silken draperies in the hall, the door opened and a beautiful girl entered the room. Beautiful? Well, not perhaps with the simple beauty of chiseled features; not with the beauty at sight of which a sculptor's pulse might quicken; but a girl, beautiful with the beauty of a true womanhood; with dark, unshadowed eyes, red, inflexible lips, a smooth white, girlish forehead, and rich wealth of dusky hair coiled low on the graceful head; a girl with ready smile, yet with enough of her father's iron will showing in chin and eyes and in the curves of her pretty lips to make one understand that she would hold her own in a struggle.

She had known the young lawyer for six months; had met him here and there, for he was received in the best society; she had danced with him and found him a good dancer, she had talked with him and found him perhaps a trifle more than agreeable, being unlike most of the men who conversed with her, earnest and frank, rather than inane and complimentary. It had dawned on her that of late he had sought her before others, had seemed to care for her society, and with the dawning of the knowledge had come a new pleasure to her. Unlike most young ladies of the present day, Leola Forrester did not value a man either by his ancestry or his bank account.

"You wished to see me, papa?" she said, in a pleasant, clear voice, through the music of which one caught a ring of self-confidence; then she saw Dick, and, smiling, held out her hand to him.

"Mr. Alvon," she said, pleasantly, "I am pleased to see you." Her father frowned haughtily as he stepped forward in time to prevent the young man's touching the offered hand.

"Leola," he said, half sternly, "I sent for you that you might assist me to convince this—this gentleman that you still obey me."

She looked from one to the other with open, wondering eyes: the young man was deadly pale and his lips were firmly set; indeed, he looked very unlike a lover, but very handsome for all that.

"You will kindly cling to facts, Mr. Forrester," he said, quietly, and the banker flushed angrily.

"What do you intend to imply? Have you more insolence to offer?" he asked.

"I offer no insolence," Dick answered, now recovering himself sufficiently to draw forward a chair for Leola, for which she thanked him. "I simply asked your——"

"My permission to make my daughter an offer of your hand—and fortune, was it not?" the old man broke in witheringly, "and I declined the honor in her name. Doubtless you would like very well to woo and win an heiress, Mr. Alvon, but, as I told you, I have other views for my daughter."

"Papa"—Leola had not taken the chair Dick offered her, but stood near it, one hand resting on the back—"for shame, papa!" she cried; "is it necessary to insult a gentleman who pays your daughter so great a compliment—who is deserving at least of your courtesy? Since you have spoken so rudely to Mr. Alvon, perhaps it would be as well for him to speak to me on this subject; I will answer him as a woman can answer such things, papa; I——"

"You will tell him then that his presumption is insufferable," her father said, still angrily. "You will tell him that you and I can manage to exist without counting a beggarly lawyer among our acquaintances."

"I do not think I will quite say that, papa," the girl said, her cheeks flushed, her eyes glowing. "I will say solely what my heart prompts. I am listening, Mr. Alvon."

Dick had been very patient, considering that he was not usually slow to anger. He was rather pale still as he lifted his head and addressed Leola.

"I am what I have been called, Miss Forrester—a beggarly lawyer," he said, calmly; "but I am a man, for all that. It may seem as strange to you as it does to your father that one in my circumstances should think of love or a chance of happiness, being unable to purchase it; and yet, I wrong you! You will listen patiently, believingly, while I tell you that I have grown to love you with a man's best love; that I would fain tell you of it, and ask if there may not be a chance of my winning you. Not now, not while I can offer you but my empty hand and my honest love; but some time, when I have won away and drawn success to me by the effort I can make and will make with such a hope before me. If there is a voice in your heart that would speak for me do not silence it. I am saying this to Leola Forrester, the woman I love—not to Miss Forrester, the belle and heiress. Will you answer me now here, in your father's presence? I would take no answer from him; I would take an answer only from your own lips. What will it be?"

His words, which had made the veins on the banker's forehead swell with indignation, moved Leola strangely; she flushed and paled and the hand on the chair-back began to tremble.

"And I have told you she wants none of your love," Mr. Forrester broke out impatiently; but his daughter turned to him with a sudden gesture which silenced him.

"How much you were mistaken, papa," she said clearly, "for I do want it—all of it! I quite understand you," turning to Dick, "and I honor the frankness of your manhood; I take your love, oh, so willingly, so gladly! I have long respected you beyond all others; I love you now; I will go with you; I will help you in your every struggle; I will not watch you from afar, I will——"

"You are mad!" her father cried. But she had held out her hands to Dick, and he was covering them with kisses and whispering loving, disconnected words of gratitude and affection.

"Leola, do you know what you are doing?" her father cried again, ready to tear his hair with vexation. But she smiled in her lover's face, and answered very pleasantly:

"I know perfectly, papa. I am promising to be Dick's wife, and telling myself how happy I will be."

"You will be a beggar, then," Mr. Forrester said, through his shut teeth. "I'll give my money to some charity; I'll found an asylum; I'll sink it in the Hudson river. You'll never touch a dollar of it!"

"Papa, dear, money is very nice, but it is not everything, especially to a woman." Leola said pleasantly. "I don't think I'll mind you very much, papa."

"I'll close my doors against you! I'll never look on your face again," fumed the stern parent. She paled then.

"Papa," she said, softly, "you'll not do that! You loved my mamma. Why should I not love somebody, too? You may do what you will with your money, but love me still, papa. I could not live without it."

Here Dick came to the front again, smiling, rather heartlessly, I confess, at the scene which he had caused.

"I think this can be arranged a little differently, after all," he said, cheerfully. "I am not the presumptuous beggar you think me, Mr. Forrester; I am the fortunate inheritor of a very snug fortune left me lately by an aunt. It consists of a fine old place on the Hudson, a cottage at Newport, a farm in the northern part of this State and a few hundred thousand in the bank. I have fancied myself not utterly indifferent to Leola, and wanted to assure myself that she loved me—was willing to give her troth to a poor man, simply because she loved him—before I made this disclosure. I am perfectly willing to forget all you said, sir, and will promise to do my best to make you a model son-in-law. Will you give me your daughter now, Mr. Forrester?"

"It's about the only thing I can do now, seeing that she was willing to give herself to you any way," the banker said, grasping the hand Dick offered him. And so, when the heiress became a bride, late in the autumn, there was another love-marriage to be recorded, and the bride's bonnet to be criticised by a fashionable gathering of the city creme.

Mary had a pair of skates
All nickel-plated o'er,
And every time she put 'em on
She fell upon the floor.
She took 'em to the rink one day
And loaned them to a boy,
And when he sat upon his [illegible]
She jumped and laughed with joy.

SAVED BY A WOMAN.

The sun was just setting at the close of a long, hot day in June when Ernest Black and myself drove our wagons up to the bank of the Red river on the Territory side. We were hauling freight for the United States Government, and were on our way to Texas for a load.

We signaled the ferryman, living on the Texas side, and, as soon as he came over, began to cross. The boat was too small to take over both wagons at once, so I crossed first and came back to assist Ernest.

He had two refractory mules, which had always to be held in a ferryboat, and it sometimes took both of us to do so.

Just as the ferryboat neared the Nation a large, powerful horse, evidently nearly exhausted, came into view around the bend in the road, a double burden on its back. A young man of noble appearance, but looking weary and harassed, rode in front; behind, a beautiful girl, nearly white, but with sufficient Indian blood showing through her clear skin to add a piquant charm to the features.

They rode up to the wagon, and the young man without dismounting spoke to Ernest:

"Sir, I am a white man, and some days since I had a quarrel with another, in which, unfortunately, he was accidentally shot. I am pursued by his brothers, who are close behind, and who have sworn to kill me on sight. I ask your help to cross the river; if possible, unseen."

"Why do they?" began Ernest, but the stranger cut him short:

"Time presses, sir; you must answer 'yes' or 'no!' If not I must do the best I can for myself. I dislike to shed blood, but if I am too closely pursued——" and the gleaming of the blue eyes finished the sentence.

Ernest took another look at the open, manly face, which, whatever might be written there, showed no trace of crime.

Then he spoke, and fast—for the trampling of horses feet, rapidly approaching, could now be heard.

"I suppose you wish to take the lady with you? Get into the wagon, and under a wagon sheet, which you will find there loose. I will hide your horse in the bushes."

The young man dismounted, assisted off the girl who was riding behind him, and did as directed, cowering down in the bottom of the wagon.

After depositing the sheet so as to look as if it had only been carelessly thrown in, Ernest led the horse a short distance from the road, and after taking off saddle and bridle he turned him loose and returned to his team.

I had witnessed the scene from the boat, which by this time had reached the bank, and the wagon drove in. After giving the ferryman a caution to silence Ernest turned to me:

"I may be helping a fugitive from justice, but I will risk it. Loose the boat and put off, Beecher!" he added to the ferryman.

At this moment, however, a pair of horses covered with dust and sweat came around the turn in the road, and their riders drew rein at the river side. They were two powerful, evil-looking fellows, with belts stuck full of revolvers, and a rifle across the pommel of each saddle.

The elder-looking one of the two addressed Ernest:

"Have you seen anything of a man and woman on one horse anywhere here?"

As he spoke his eyes roamed to the wagon and sheet in it, and both men dismounted.

"Why, what do you want of them?" asked Ernest.

"He has killed a man in the Choctaw nation, is trying to get away the woman with him, and I want to arrest him. If you help him to get away it will be the worse for you. I believe he is under that sheet anyhow."

And he stepped on the ferryboat. The other remained on the bank, with his hand on a pistol, ready to assist his brother.

The one on the boat approached the wagon and was about to raise the sheet, when Ernest, with his eyes gleaming dangerously, spoke to him:

"This wagon is in the employ of the United States Government, and no one but a regularly authorized official can search it."

The fellow, however, still persisted, but as he laid his hand on the sheet a well-directed blow from Ernest floored him.

The one on the bank started to draw his revolver, but before he could do so I had him covered. One learns to be quick with the pistol on the frontier, as a man's life may depend on his "getting the drop" on some ruffian.

The ferryman, terrified at the scene before him, had remained quiet, but now, at a sign from Ernest, pushed the boat from the bank.

Ernest, keeping the prostrate man covered with his pistol, spoke to the one on the bank:

"I shall take your companion with us as a hostage for your good conduct. If you shoot after us he suffers. Remember."

After seeing his captive in the skiff, first discharging all his weapons, he spoke to the now cowed man:

"When you get to the other side, stand on the bank until the boat returns. If you attempt to go into the bushes, or try any other treachery, I will shoot you."

The ferryman put him across the river and returned, and Ernest came up the bank to where the wagons were. Meanwhile I had driven up the hill and relieved the occupants of the wagon from their uncomfortable covering. They were nearly smothered, but had made no movement until all was safe.

The young man jumped to the ground and, with a simple shake of the hand and the earnest words, "I thank you both," assisted his companion out.

Ernest now came up, and to him the stranger turned:

"I owe you my life, and if ever I can in some manner pay so great a debt, trust me, I shall not be wanting."

"I am glad to have been of service to you," said Ernest simply. "I think you are safe for the night. There is no other ferry within twenty miles, and they will not cross any one after night. Red river is too high to swim over. If you remain with us to-night we can make the lady a bed in the wagon, and the rest must take the ground. You can tell us, then, how you managed to get into the scrape."

After some further discussion it was arranged, and we went into camp. Supper over and the horses staked off, the young lady retired to one of the wagons, while the rest of us, at some distance, reclined on blankets and saddles, guarded by our faithful dog. Nothing could come within one hundred yards of the camp without his giving the alarm.

Then the stranger, whose name was Herndon, gave us an account of how he happened to come to the river in such a plight:

"Some months since I was at the Chickasaw nation, buying up cattle, when I became acquainted with Mr. Williams, who has married and settled among the Indians.

"I found it convenient to go very often to his house, about cattle, I persuaded myself at first, but I had soon to acknowledge that the attraction was his daughter, Lily, the young lady who is with me.

"She is only an eighth Indian, well educated, and as to her beauty you can see for yourself. She soon began to look with favor on me, and I asked her of her father. He was willing and we were engaged.

"But there were three sons of the old man by a former marriage with a white woman who hated me from the start. I think they had hoped to get possession of Lily's property, but knew if I married her there would be little chance of that. Matters went on, however. I was too happy to care for them, although they became more unbearable from day to day. They bore no good reputation in the country, and I was warned against them more than once.

"Three days ago the explosion came. I was walking with Lily when the youngest of the three met us and, after a few insulting words, accused me of dishonorable conduct.

"It was more than I could stand, and I sprang toward him to strike him. He attempted to draw a pistol, but I closed with him and attempted to take it away. In the struggle the pistol went off and he was shot dead. I stood for a moment stunned with horror, when Lily's voice roused me.

"'Oh, fly! fly! The others will kill you when they see you. They will swear it was no accident.'

"'Not much of an accident! I saw the whole thing and he shall swing for it,' said a voice behind me.

"I turned around and there stood one of the other brothers, with leveled rifle bearing directly on me. I attempted to speak, but he would not allow it.

"'March straight to the house, and if you try to get away I'll shoot you like a dog. I would shoot you now, but for the pleasure of having you hung.'

"My own protestations, Lily's tears and entreaties were of no avail, and to avoid immediate violence I thought it best to comply.

"On the way to the house we were joined by the other brother, and after a few words in some language unknown to me they both hurried me on. The old man was not at home when we reached the house, and after another consultation they chained me securely and then made preparations for a journey.

"As I gathered from hints—purposely let drop—they intended to take me to Fort Smith to be tried. I did not exactly see the object of this, since if the case was once brought to trial I could easily be cleared by Lily's evidence.

"After sending some of the servants to bring in the body, they mounted me on a horse, they tied my hands behind my back and my feet under the horse, and, with one riding behind and the other before, we set out.

"Lily begged to be allowed to go, but they refused. It was a lonely country where Mr. William's lived—no house within twenty miles—or she would have gone for help to stop them.

"The first day's travel passed without incident. My captors were taciturn, saying nothing to me and but little to each other. At night they loosed my hands sufficiently to eat, which was little more than I expected, but after supper my hand and feet were securely fastened, the chain carried around a tree and securely fastened with a padlock.

"The night of the second day we camped on the edge of an old field, grown over with brown grass. The same precautions were taken as on the previous night, and soon my captors were wrapped in slumber. I knew that in all probability it was my last night on earth, and many conflicting emotions filled my mind, driving away sleep. But chiefly I thought of Lily, my prairie flower, left to the mercy of these rude men.

"About midnight my meditations were interrupted by a soft rustle behind me in the bushes, but before I could speak or make a motion a voice whose music I never expected to hear again on earth said, 'Hush!' and in a moment Lily was beside me.

"Then, with her arms around me, her lips close to my ear, she told me that she had overheard her brothers talking of killing me on the way, being afraid to do so at home; she had caught two of her own horses (the best in the country) and followed with the hope of rescuing me.

"She had a key which she thought would open the padlock fastening the chain that held me. The padlock was one of the spring kind, with the keyhole, a simple slip, at the bottom. The key is a plain, flat bar, with various indentions in it to fit the wards of the lock, and by simply pressing on it the lock flies open.

"So quietly that not a link rattled, Lily unwound the chain and I was once more free. We started for the horses, but unfortunately had got but a few feet when I stepped on a dry stick, which broke with a loud crack. Lily's brothers were light sleepers, and they woke immediately. Not seeing me, they rushed hither and thither in search, and just as we reached the horses one of them caught sight of us and fired. The ball struck Lily's horse and killed it. In a moment I had seated Lily behind me and, concealment being now impossible, rode away at full speed.

"They saddled and came hard after us. We kept our distance, but, on account of the double burden which our horse carried, were never able to get far out of hearing, while they followed with a persistence worth of a better cause. Not daring to stop in the nation, I rode for the river, which I fortunately reached in time to meet you and baffle them. Our horse, good as he was, was nearly exhausted, and could not have carried us much further. Thanks to you, I hope we are safe now."

The story was ended and we were soon asleep. In the morning we took Herndon and Miss Lily to the railroad, where they took the train for Fort Smith.

We received a letter from him afterward. He stood the trial, came out clear and married Miss Lily. The Williams boys were soon afterward both killed in a drunken fight.

LITERARY NOTES.

An article of much interest to Southern readers is promised for the April Harper's, on "Some Richmond Portraits." It has a number of portraits of Virginia belles, beaux, and wits of old times as well as in later days, and the paper itself is from the pen of Mr. Eugene L. Didier.

In the North American Review, for April, Charles Dudley Warner presents an interesting "Study of Prison Management," while Robert Buchanan, the English poet, discusses "Free Thought in America," T. V. Powderly, "The Army of the Discontented, and Prof. Hunt, "How to Reform English Spelling." The other articles are: "The Law's Delay," by Chief-Justice Thomas F. Hargis; and "Characteristics of Persian Poetry," by A. R. Spofford. But what will probably attract the most immediate attention in this number is the new department of "Comments," consisting of brief criticisms of articles that have appeared in the Review. Murat Halstead's political article in the March number is here discussed by three writers—a Democrat, a straight Republican, and an Independent Republican. Richard H. Stoddard comments with a good deal of feeling on Max Müller's "Buddhist Charity," and other correspondents take this pleasant opportunity to offer a single thought where an extended article would, perhaps, find neither room nor readers.

The Art Interchange of Feb. 26 contains a beautiful design in color, suitable for stained glass panel, for fire screen or for illuminated portfolio cover. The designs in black and white include some seventeen patterns for Scandinavian wood carving; a fish design with shell border for crumb tray in brass repoussé work; a butterfly and nasturtium design for mush and milk set; a Japanese study of birds—life size—suitable for panel decoration; an arrangement of pink and white clover, designs for after dinner coffee cups and simple but effective patterns for napkin corners; a striking design, a study of roses and two very useful drawings showing how to enlarge pictures, are also given. The text includes a chatty article on Woman's Work at the Water Color Exhibition, some practical suggestions on wood carving, reviews of George Eliot's Life and the Money Makers, as well as books of lesser note. The useful Note and Query Department treats among other topics of painting in black and white, gauze for lamp, artistic furnishing, inexpensive gifts for a bride, satin sheeting. The Art Interchange is published by William Whitlock, 140 Nassau street, New York. Price, 15 cents per copy.

"An eight-page, forty-column weekly a whole year for only 50 cents." This is the offer made by the publishers of the American Rural Home, of Rochester, N. Y., to all persons who send in their year's subscription before April 1st, 1885. This is an opportunity to secure one of the best farm journals in the world at a bargain. The Rural is the brightest, cheapest and most popular weekly published for the farmer and his family. It is not a paper of mushroom growth, like many so-called farm journals that are at present being extensively advertised, but has been published regularly for fifteen years. Many of the ablest Agriculturists and Horticulturists write for it. It is, in short, the model journal for those who dwell in villages and country homes, and should be the first one subscribed for after your local paper. We are acquainted with both paper and publishers and cheerfully recommend it to our readers as a first-class agricultural journal, worth twice the money asked for it. The regular price is One Dollar a year in advance, but the special offer of Fifty Cents will be accepted if sent in before April 1st, 1885. Remember, this is no humbug but a genuine bona fide proposition to furnish for Fifty Cents a year the only eight page forty-column agricultural Weekly ever offered at that price. Address, RURAL HOME Co., Limited, Rochester, N. Y.

COUNTY BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Farmers, gardeners, stock raisers, fruit growers and agriculturists generally, in Union county, may find something that will be of interest and advantage to them in the Union County Board of Agriculture, recently recognized by the Secretary of the State Board as the representative agricultural organization in this county. It was organized Feb. 5th last, by the consolidation of two clubs, one of which was the old and useful "Farmers' Club" that dates back to 1868; the other a later organization. Under the State law it is now fully entitled to representation in the State Board, and will receive a share (probably about $50 per annum) of the money appropriated to promote State and County Boards of Agriculture.

It has a library of nearly 150 volumes, including reports, pamphlets and treatises on the farm, garden, fruit, trees, horses, cattle, sheep, poultry, flowers, architecture, etc., many of them standard agricultural works by the best authors. All these are free to the members. It meets in the Court House, Elizabeth, the first and third Thursdays in each month, at 2 p. m., and the sessions are occupied in discussing agricultural subjects, reading prepared papers, reciting experiments, comparing crop notes, asking and answering questions and advancing agricultural interests in the county generally. No meeting is without valuable information to every farmer in the county, and they are highly interesting, instructive and entertaining even to those not practically interested in agriculture. Many sales and exchanges are incidentally effected through these meetings, and advantages accrue in every way, compensating many times over for the time spent at them.

All who are interested in agriculture in any of its branches are heartily welcome at the meetings, not only to listen but to make inquiries and take active part in the discussions. If they desire to become members they may do so by being proposed, paying one dollar initiation fee and twenty-five cents quarterly. No other expenses whatever, as it is not a financial organization in any sense. Young and active farmers are particularly desired as members, so that the Board may become progressive and representative in a degree that will make it a generous rival of other county Boards in the State.

Correspondence is asked for on any agricultural subject, and any valuable, instructive or curious statistics regarding the farm or crops of any kind will be welcomed. It is not possible for all the farmers in Union county to regularly attend the meetings, but those who can are particularly requested to do so whenever convenient and be their only judges of the advantages.

Union county has large agricultural interests that have never been fully represented in the State Board, and have never received the recognition to which they are entitled. Through this County Board it is hoped that a deeper and more widespread interest may be awakened, and that by increased active membership, animated discussions, practical suggestions, the recital of valuable experiences, the collation of comprehensive statistics, and particularly by the dissemination of such agricultural knowledge as is useful in this particular section of the State, the Union County Board of Agriculture may become a useful and powerful agent in encouraging and directing to better farming, larger crops, more progressive and successful methods; and an incentive to advancement in all the branches of agriculture followed in this county.

All the readers of this article will be welcome at any of the meetings of the Board, and correspondence may be sent to or further information obtained by addressing "The Secretary of the Union County Board of Agriculture, Elizabeth, New Jersey."

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

REFORM.

The man who honestly and persistingly endeavors to do right, regardless of selfish motives, will in the end come out all right.

No matter how earnestly men may differ with him in judgment, they will respect his opinions and confide in his integrity.

Those few remarks portray the character of men which the independent voting spirit of the present time desires to place in positions of public trust and responsibility.

The people are sick and tired of merely professional politicians, corrupt gamblers in politics, who strive to convert office-holding into an arena for public plunder, and who hesitate not to sacrifice the honor of country and the dearest interests of the honest citizen in order to pocket mercenary gain.

Reform is the watchword.

Honest men in office is the popular battle cry.

CHEERING HOPE.

Make haste slowly but surely is the injunction of wisdom.

That is exactly what the Administration of President Cleveland is doing, and it is just what the public welfare demands.

He was not elected to hand the Government over to a horde of spoilsmen and he won't do anything of the kind.

His mission is to reform abuses and make Honesty, Economy and Ability the ruling principles of Government.

For the accomplishment of that praiseworthy object he will dedicate every power at his command.

Already has the work commenced by a practical and fair overhauling of the records and business of each Department, and cutting down useless expenses by discharging unnecessary employees, and it will go on for the sole and patriotic purpose of advancing the public good.

Another marked feature in the judicious policy of President Cleveland is his appointments to office. He is not swayed in the least by place-hunters, but seeks to fill each position with officials of the most worthy character and fitness, and to that end endeavors to obtain reliable information.

He may in some instances be deceived, but he will not knowingly commission improper men.

His appointments have been and will be, as a general rule, Democrats of deserving repute.

If President Cleveland can succeed in perfecting his laudable ambition to restore the Government to the honesty, simplicity, economy and efficiency of the earlier days of the Republic, he will be one of the most honored of Chief Magistrates.

The people look to him with cheering hope.

In Hunterdon county the Board of Freeholders stands: Democrats, 15; Republicans, 0. What's the Republican party there for, anyhow?

Governor Abbett has signed the supplement to the oleomargarine act, which provides a fine of $200 for making or selling any imitation of butter in this State.

The Millville borough council has refused the application of John G Hampton for a license to sell wine, although he offered to pay a fee of $1,000 per annum.

It should be very gratifying to educated people, and people, too, who are not so educated, that the Hon. Elwin O. Chapman has been elected Superintendent of Public Schools of this State.

The Legislature is about through its political work and can now devote more time to passing and defeating such bills as the railroads want them to. After that they will be ready to adjourn.

The Elizabeth Herald thinks "if Secretary Stiles of the Senate don't sue the Trenton Times for libel in having published his alleged likeness, he has not the pluck of an Elizabeth lawyer." But "if he do" he won't get much.

The California Legislature is considering a bill which gives to any young man under 26, who learns a trade by serving a three years' apprenticeship, and who is of good moral character, a bonus of $250 out of the State Treasury. Young man, go to California.

The State Board of Education held a meeting on Wednesday afternoon of last week for the purpose of electing a State Superintendent of Schools to succeed E. A. Apgar, who has held the position for eighteen years. E. O. Chapman, a member of the Assembly from Hudson, was elected on the fifth ballot. There were twelve candidates for the position and eleven got left.

The Ocean County Board of Freeholders has failed to approve the bill of $2,000 for the compensation of the special counsel, Mr. Lindabury, employed by the prosecution in the Wainwright murder trial. The Toms River Courier intimates that it was the duty of the Attorney-General to either conduct the case personally or assign his assistant, and not thus allow the county to be saddled with so large an expense.

Intimations recently thrown out that the Jersey Central Railroad Company would again go into the hands of a Receiver are correct, and the property will certainly go into a Receiver's hands on or about the 1st of April. This relieves Reading from fear of the lease being taken away, and also of the payment of $136,000 of taxes to the State of New Jersey, which was postponed at the solicitation of Reading until the 5th of April.

The constant rush of visitors to the Executive Mansion at all hours of the day has so encroached on the time of the President that he has felt impelled to make a set of rules for the reception of visitors. Hereafter he will limit his office hours to from 10 to 1 o'clock, except on Tuesdays and Thursdays, (Cabinet days,) when they will be from 10 to 2 o'clock. During these hours he will receive all persons who call on official business. An hour will also be set aside every afternoon for the reception of visitors who have no business with the President, but who merely call to pay their respects. The President desires to reserve the afternoons and evenings to considering the business of his office, and will receive no persons outside of the hours above specified except by special appointment.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

The President on Monday sent to the Senate the following nominations:—To be Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary of the United States: Edwin J. Phelps, of Vermont, to Great Britain; Robert M. McLane, of Maryland, to France; George H. Pendleton, of Ohio, to Germany; Henry R. Jackson, of Georgia, to Mexico; Mæcenas E. Benton, of Missouri, to be Attorney of the United States, for the Western District of Missouri; Assistant Engineer, John W. Saville, of Maryland, now on the retired list, to be a passed Assistant Engineer, on the retired list of the Navy. On Wednesday the President sent to the Senate the name of Congressman Samuel S. Cox, of New York, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Turkey. He also sent in the names of thirty-five post office appointments.

Governor Abbett's vetoes of the Republican partisan bills have the ring of the true metal.

President Cleveland last week publicly stated that he would carry out the Civil Service law, and no postmaster would be removed before the term expired, except for cause. There are just ninety-two candidates for the Plainfield post office who will read this announcement with sorrow.

Among the Postmasters nominated by the President on Wednesday last, was that of Hon. James T. Wiley, for Elizabeth, N. J. This nomination is a fit and well-deserved one. Mr. Wiley once represented Union county as State Senator. A sudden stroke of paralysis a number of years ago, compelled him to retire from active political work, but his counsels were always sought and respected in Democratic circles. We congratulate Mr. Wiley and the people of Elizabeth, on this excellent appointment.

The scheme to remove the State House from Trenton to Newark is again receiving a boom. Since the recent fire at the State House, a resolution has been introduced into the House by Mr. Doremus, recommending such change. To get rid of it the resolution was referred to the Committee on Revolutionary claims, which is composed of Hudson, Essex and Union members. The Committee has made a unanimous report in favor of the measure. A strong endeavor will be made to pass the resolution before adjournment.

Captain David B. Harmony, of the U. S. Navy, has been appointed Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, in the Navy Department, with rank of Commodore. We understand that Commodore Harmony was originally appointed to naval service at Annapolis from Union county and married the daughter of Captain McGowan, of "Star of the West" notoriety, who resides at Elizabeth. Commodore Harmony is a strong Democrat, an able officer, and has been placed in a very important position by this appointment, which honors Union county.

The New Agricultural Board.

Those farmers who attend the meetings of the Union County Board of Agriculture say that they are very full of agricultural information, and are often very helpful in many ways. They are well attended as a rule and the discussions are carried on with much spirit and a free expression of opinion. The last meeting was held at the Board room in the Court House, Elizabeth, and poultry raising was discussed among other topics. At the next meeting, April 24, at 2:30 p. m., they will consider "How can Union county farmers best co-operate to their advantage." Quite a number of new members have recently been added, and visitors are present at almost every meeting. All who are in any way interested are welcome. A quantity of valuable seeds, sent by Commissioner Loring, were distributed among those present at the last meeting, and more are expected.

Fire At The State House.

The front portion of the State Capitol at Trenton was damaged by fire early on Saturday morning of last week to the extent of $50,000. The building consists of three rectangular structures lying parallel to each other the front and center ones being connected by a rotunda with a dome and the centre and rear by a smaller structure. A broad corridor, running from front to rear, is crossed by three corridors running through each of the three buildings. The front building was the one damaged. It contained the offices of Quartermaster-General Lewis Perrine, Clerk in Chancery George Duryea, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and the Zoological Museum, which were entirely gutted, and of Secretary of State Kelsey, State Treasurer Toffey and Supreme Court Clerk Lee, which escaped with less damage. The fire was discovered about 2.45 a. m., in the Quartermaster-General's office on the ground floor. After the alarm and the arrival of the engines there was a delay of fifteen minutes, owing to the fire plugs being frozen. In less than an hour the flames were bursting from the roof, and it seemed as though the Capitol was in danger. Presently the roof fell in and this gave their first opportunity. From the dome they poured a dozen streams into the roaring furnace beneath. There was little to burn except the floors, furniture and ceilings and by seven o'clock the fire was completely mastered. Fire proof vaults protected from damage, except by water, the valuable books and documents of the Quarter-master-General's office, and of the Court of Chancery. The contents of the Labor Bureau's office were totally destroyed, including a part of the manuscript of the forthcoming report. The greater part of the geological museum are safe in the State's department at the New Orleans Exposition. The rescue of the old Jersey battle flags was made at great peril by a party of brave old soldiers. Captain Cunningham rescued gallant Phil Kearney's sword and saddle at the risk of his life, after further attempts to save them had been forbidden. Governor Abbett arrived at ten o'clock. He consulted with Comptroller Anderson and State Treasurer Toffey, and ordered an immediate investigation into the cause and extent of the fire. Governor Abbett sent a special message to the Legislature at once suggesting many needed improvements when the repairs are made. The insurance on the building amounts to $175,000 and $5,000 on furniture. Secretary of State Kelsey has removed to the white house on State street directly opposite the capitol; Chief Bishop is located at his own residence on State street; the office of the clerk in chancery has been transferred to the chancery court room, and that of the supreme court clerk partly to the chancery motion room and partly to the State library. The state treasurer's office for the present is in room No. 5 in the State house. This is the old room of the railroad commissioners, and adjoins the comptroller's department. The quartermaster general is in governor's reception chamber. Chancery Clerk Duryea states that he has lost nothing of value except private papers and a few unimportant cases that can be replaced. Some of the records of the Supreme court clerk are wet, but not greatly hurt. The treasurer's vault was found as dry as a chip.

Mend Our Ways.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger of a recent issue we extract the following words of wisdom that should be read by every citizen. The legislation proposed by Pennsylvania should be adopted for this State, and we believe the day is not far distant when the fact will be generally known that road expenditures result in increased valuation of adjoining land. "Mr. Francis Lightfoot has been agitating for some time in the West Chester Local News a project to secure good roads in that and other counties of the State, and now a bill has been introduced into the Legislature providing an improved system of road making. The subject is important and the time is ripe for improvement, at least in this part of the State. Bad roads like bad streets impose an enormous tax on those who have to use them, and indirectly on the whole community, who are more or less dependent upon common road vehicles for the transportation of supplies of all kinds. In a new country the first thing to be done is to open up simple dirt roads. Costly as they are to maintain and in the friction they present to travel, they are all that a new community can afford. But as travel and wealth increase the roads are or ought to be improved. In the case of Chester county, Mr. Lightfoot estimates that a million dollars could be profitably expended in grading and macadamizing four hundred miles of principal roads, and that this amount would be at once returned in increased value of land. To secure good work he proposes the election of County Road commissioners (nine in number), who shall select a qualified engineer of roads and bridges and an assistant. The county is then to be subdivided into districts of such size as may be attended to by a road master, and road masters are then to be appointed by the engineer, subject to the approval of the Board. Work on the roads is to be done according to a systematic plan of improvement prepared by the engineer, approved by the Commissioners, and carried out by the road masters. The Commissioners, together with the engineer, are also to serve as a road jury for assessing damages involved in the opening of new roads, changes of grade, etc. Provision is also made for borrowing money for permanent improvements, subject to the approval of the qualified voters, and it is also proposed to make the acceptance of the act optional with the voters of the several counties."

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Expressman Edgar has bought himself a new express wagon for use at depot.

Joseph B. Rodgers moved the past week from Cumberland street to the corner of Broad street and Central avenue.

On Saturday evening last one of Hackman Urmston's horses ran away and fell, throwing the coffin joint of one of its legs out of place.

Howard P. Manning has moved from his late residence, corner of Central avenue and North avenue, to Broad street. William Smith from Broad street to corner of Central and North avenue.

Miss Helen Lansing, eldest daughter of Robert G. Lansing, who formerly resided in our town, died at the residence of her father at Nyack, New York, on last Monday morning after a short illness.

On Tuesday evening the beautiful hedge west of depot, adjoining the depot park, was set fire to by sparks from a P. & R. R. coal engine. The hedge was nearly all destroyed. Quite a number of the residents turned out and fought the flames.

Mr. Soltan held meetings every afternoon the past week at the Congregational church, which consisted of Bible readings, also holding service in the Presbyterian church in the evening. On Tuesday evening last at the special request of business men, he gave Bible readings instead of a gospel address. A large choir of singers were in attendance. All the meetings were well attended.

The Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Monday afternoon, March 23, 1885, at 4:30 o'clock. Present, James L. Miller, E. Embree and Levi Cory: L. M. Whitaker, Clerk. Minutes of last meeting were approved as read. Report of road district No. 7 was received. John S. Burhans, overseer, and $100 special tax. On motion received and ordered placed on file. There having been failure to elect Road Overseer, in districts Nos. 1, 10, 11, 13 and 15, and there having become vacancies thereby in said offices, the following appointments were on motion made for the several road districts. No. 1, James W. Fink, No. 10, Charles B. Winans, No. 11, Chauncey B. Ripley, No. 13, Wm. These, No. 15, Henry Nelson. On motion the appointment for Road Overseer for district No. 6 was laid over. On motion the amount of Township Collector's bond was fixed at $15,000, Overseer of Poor, $500 Constables, $500 each. On motion the Township Treasurer's salary was fixed at $25. The Treasurer reported the receipt of $500 from Township Collector. Moved and carried that Frank Bergen, Esq., be employed as Township Counsel for the ensuing year. The clerk was instructed to inform Mr. Bergen of his appointment. The clerk was instructed to prepare and deliver to the Road Overseer, commissions of office as far as made. Adjourned subject to call of Chairman.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

In pursuance to the notice given by the Township Clerk, the Township Committee of Township of Fanwood meet at Excelsior Hall, Scotch Plains, on the evening of March 19th, 1885, to organize. The committee was called to order by the Town Clerk. On the motion of Mr. Geo. Kyte, William D. Johnson was chosen chairman and L. W. Miller, Treasurer. The oath of office of Norman Dunn, Township Clerk; Jno. Robinson, assessor; E. M. Johnston and Frank Hossinger, Surveyors of the Highway; Henry Cook, and Thomas Clever, Commissioners of Appeal; John Waterson, Overseer of the Poor, were placed on file. The bond of John Waterson as Overseer of Poor was read and accepted. Minutes of road district No. 1 were read and on account of the notices for the meeting not being put up in time, there was no action taken on them. On motion Mr. Frank Hossinger was appointed Road Overseer of road district No. 1. There being no election in road district No. 2, a petition was presented from voters asking for the appointment of E. M. Johnston, the petition stating that he was the most suitable person to be appointed. The petition was dated on March 10th, and signed by a majority of the voters of road district No. 2. Another petition was presented by H. Hand asking for his appointment, signed by over fifty voters of the road district. The petition was dated March 10th. On motion of Mr. Geo. Kyte, Mr. Hezekiah Hand was appointed, Kyte and Miller voting for said appointment. The minutes of road district No. 3 being regular, Mr. Frederick Happell was declared Overseer. The minutes of road district No. 4 being regular Mr. Geo. Kyte was declared elected, and the appropriation of $300 was declared to be legally voted on. Mr. Jacob French was declared elected Overseer of road district No. 5. There being no election for road district No. 6, and a petition being presented by Isaac Lambert for his appointment, signed by six voters of his district, on motion Mr. Isaac Lambert was declared Overseer. There being no election for road district No. 8, Mr. Lambert Decamp was appointed. On motion Messrs. Jackson & Codington were retained as Township Counsel for the coming year, at the same fee as last. The chair was instructed to consult Counsel in regard to the legality of road meeting in road district No. 1, as they voted to raise a special tax of $500 to purchase crushed stone, for the road district. Moved that the Township Committee rent the building of Excelsior Hook & Ladder Co., No. 1, for all township purposes at the same rate as for the last year. Laid on the table. A communication was received from Engine Co., No. 1, to rent their room to the Township Committee for the committee meeting, and all township purposes, except election, for $20 per year. The proposition was signed by George R. Nicholl, foreman. Laid on the table until the next meeting. Following bills were ordered paid: W. C. Stanberry, inspector of election, $6; Edw. Miller, do., $6; Dan'l. H. Terry, judge of election, $6; J. A. Baker, clerk of election and notices, $7 50; Jno. Flannery, provisions for Mrs. Jarolomen, a poor person, by order H. Hand, overseer of poor, $3 53; bill of Mrs. Pizzie for five weeks board of Adam Martin, a poor person, order of H. Hand, O. of P., $25. Bill of H. Hand, overseer of poor, for hack hire, railroad fares, dinners and carriage hire in taking Mrs. Stillman Dunn to Morris Plains Asylum, $26. On motion of Mr. Kyte and seconded by Mr. Miller, that inasmuch as the county pays the above bill for the removal of Mrs. Dunn to the asylum, that this bill be paid out of the township fund and Mr. H. Hand who, being appointed by the county to collect the rent from her place, pay the same over to the township treasurer. Motion carried, Messrs. Kyte and Miller voting in favor of the motion. Bill of David Hand, for board of Mrs. Dunn from Feb. 1 to March 14, at $4 per week, $24. Bill of F. W. Westcott, M. D., services Board of Health for the year, $7. Moved and seconded that Messrs. Robinson, Johnston, Kyte and Miller receive $5 each for services on Board of Health. Carried. Moved and seconded that Dr. F. W. Westcott be appointed township physician for the coming year. Carried. Application for a license to keep an inn and tavern by Thos. M. Paff was read. The freeholders who endorsed the application were Jas. A. Baker, Wm. Van Volkenburg, James C. Lyon, Philip Radin, John R. Hackard, John Lambert, Thos Lee, Andrew Schuyler, Michael Trainor, Myron Young, John Bulkley. On motion, license granted, to date from April 24, 1885. An application from John Flannery to keep an inn and tavern was read. It was endorsed by the following freeholders: Edward Miller, Joseph Eiler, Henry Brick, Henry Cook, William Hetfield, Anthony Dobbing, Aug. Frentz, Frederick Schoelan, James Bulkley, Isaac C. Farley, Matthias Schmidt, Joseph Brick and J. E. Flannery. On motion, license granted, to date from April 2d, 1885. An application from John Roulston for a license to keep an inn and tavern at A. DeBaud's place was read. The application was endorsed by Benoit Brittie, Thomas M. Paff, John Flannery, William E. Terry, John Blake, Levi Darby, Joseph A. Patterson, Charles Thorn, Louis Roeton, D. A. Schimbeck, Edward Maher. On account of the $30 fee not accompanying the application it was laid over until the next meeting of the committee. The committee adjourned to meet Saturday afternoon March 28, 1885, at 3 p. m. After the committee adjourned the Board of Health was called together by J. Robinson, chairman of last Board of Health. The Board proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year. Messrs. William D. Johnston was chosen president and Dr. F. W. Westcott Secretary. The other members composing the Board being L. W. Miller, George Kyte and John Robinson. On motion, Board adjourned at call of chair.

WONDER

"THE WONDER" SHIRT.

The latest shirt issued under the "Acorn" Brand is "THE WONDER," and it is also the best shirt ever made for the Trade. The following are some of its principal points of excellence, a printed list of which is attached to every shirt:

1st. It has the finest and heaviest muslin ever put in a shirt. (Utica Nonpariel improved).
2nd. It has a three-ply linen bosom.
3rd. It is of extra length.
4th. It is reinforced both back and front extending and meeting under the arms where most needed.
5th. It has the Tomlinson patent endless facing.
6th. It is custom make and finish.
7th. It cannot break or tear anywhere.

Like the Deacon's "one-hoss shay" it has no weak spots and will *never "give" anywhere, but at the end of scores of years it will dis*solve into space, not a thread broken or a seam started.

Fathers will bequeath these shirts, purchased in early manhood, a priceless legacy to their children.

We expect a large demand for them to place in the corner stones of public structures as evidence of the greatest triumph of modern civilization. These shirts are manufactured expressly for

An Old Soldier's
EXPERIENCE.
"Calvert, Texas, May 3, 1882.
"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
as a cough remedy.
"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."
Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

To the rear, quick—March.

It is now lawful, but extremely difficult, to catch trout.

A. L. CARNEY, Chief of the Fire Department, is suffering from a severe attack of tonsilitis.

THE Pentecost gospel meetings have drawn away from the rink attendance to noticeable extent.

OWING to the cholera scare in the cities Summer cottages will probably be rented earlier than usual this year.

THE Union Club holds a special meeting this (Thursday) evening, to decide upon the releasing of its present quarters.

THE Philadelphia & Reading Railroad now insist on the baggage men of their trains making returns for the dogs carried on the cars.

THE Macdha waltzes, the latest of Mr. Clark W. Evans' contributions to the dance music of the day, are bright and full of tune and originality.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, hold an adjourned meeting in the parlor of Alert Hose house, this (Thursday) evening.

MESSRS. W. S. Darling and J. F. Plummer will commence the erection of other attractive residences at Netherwood, when grading and digging can begin.

FRIDAY last was the first day of Spring, —gentle Spring—yet everything exposed was frozen up, and the wind blew the roof off a freight car, just East of Netherwood.

THE Central Railroad of New Jersey has declared a quarterly dividend of one per cent. payable on and after April 15. The P. & R. guarantee was for six per cent per annum.

WATER or no water. Sewerage or no sewerage. The public is getting agitated over these questions as the surety of some action in the matter by the present Council, gains ground.

PROF. MAYNARD has started a branch of his North avenue tonsorial parlor, on Somerset street. In consequence, North Plainfielders can now be shaved and cut as fine as though they lived in the city.

MR. GEORGE W. FORCE'S Spring opening of his new glass-front store at 11 West Front street, occurred on Tuesday. There was a fine display of the latest styles in boots and shoes at remarkably low prices.

MR. PETER WEAVER has succeeded in capturing the young man who recently stole five pairs of club skates from the Casino Rink. The thief was a resident of Grove street, but he is now boarding in the Somerville jail.

THE Seventh Day Baptists held one of their satisfying sociables, last Wednesday evening, the most pleasing feature of which (as at the preceding sociable) was the society's paper with its entertaining contributions.

THE Public Herald, published at Philadelphia, Pa., by L. Lum Smith, is one of the best of friends to country newspaper publishers, and in fact to everybody. Its monthly expose of frauds is worth double the subscription price.

L. L. MANNING of 69 West Front street, has on hand a large and elegant assortment of marble mantels, and headstones of all descriptions in Quincy and Connecticut granites. The prices are as low as any other establishment in the State.

HOTEL proprietors are required to provide fire-escapes on their hotels, under certain regulations as to pattern and number, in a bill passed by the lower house of the Legislature. Something similar is already upon the statute books.

THE Assignee of Mulford Cole, will sell at public auction, at Laing's Hotel, at two o'clock in the afternoon of next Tuesday, some valuable real estate and other property, a full description of which will be found on our second page of this issue.

THE P. C. M. M. & T. C. of N. J. has, it seems, consolidated its interests and its initials. It is now known as the Fire Proof Building Company of New Jersey, and the Plainfield Clay Mining, Manufacturing and Transportation Company has gone to join

THE new Amateur Musical Association of Plainfield includes in its membership almost all of the best voices in the city—besides some that are not so good. Under the training and leadership of a capable instructor, the society proposes to render a series of Cantatas.

REMOVALS have already commenced, truck loads of household goods being quite frequently seen in the streets. There will be numerous changes in this place this Spring—several families will remove here from other places, although but a few will depart.

THE Jersey cow, Princess 2d, 8,047, as recently tested, under the supervision of a committee appointed by the American Jersey Cattle Club, made forty-six pounds and twelve and a half ounces of butter in seven days. This is the largest record ever made by any cow of any breed.

MONDAY, April 13th, is the date of the election of two members of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department. All are entitled to vote, and every citizen should have sufficient interest in the city and the city's good, to call out their votes and their influence for the best men.

WHY North Plainfield should want a little Fire Department of its own, is beyond our understanding. It now pays but one-seventh of the cost of the existing Department, and has the benefit of it all. In fact, North Plainfield's limits can be reached quicker from the houses of the different apparatus, than can the City's limits.

WIGGINS has been clubbing himself all over Canada for his recent weather. But he thinks one of his predictions for 1886 or 1887 will come right anyhow. In the meanwhile Wiggins stands ready to scoop any good sized storm that comes along. Moral: It is not always safe for a weather prophet to trust to the vernal equinox.

THERE is a great deal of talk behind the back of the Fire Board, against its proposed payment of salaries to the City Assessor, and to the Treasurer and the Secretary of the Board. The people give or refuse the Board power to pay such salaries, by their vote, Monday, April 13th. If you are opposed to the intention, vote against it.

THE HON. EZRA WHITE has recently associated himself with Prof. Henry Coleman of the Coleman Business College at Newark, and will hereafter act as the President of that college—the highest in character and most successful in the State. Mr. White has just entered on his third term as Mayor of Poughkeepsie. He is Vice-President of a Poughkeepsie bank, President of the Board of Health, and was for three years a member of the Board of Education.

BONS-DE-NUITS with "Fedora" fronts were included in the trousseau of a Seventh street lady, recently married.

MR. JOHN N. CLARK of First Place has purchased the elegant residence of architect E. L. Roberts, on Park avenue.

ON Monday next, at one o'clock in Laing's Hall, T. J. Gillies will sell by auction a fine lot of household furniture, etc.

IN the State Legislature on Tuesday last a bill was passed giving cities the right to impose a license fee upon skating rinks.

THE original Fiske Jubilee Singers are to give a concert at Music Hall, April 10th, for the benefit of the Children's Home.

THE new public school building at "East End" this city, will probably be completed before next Winter. But where?

REVIVAL services are in progress all over the county, and a great improvement in the morals of New Jersey may be expected.

"SUPPOSE we had no sugar?" gravely suggests an English magazine. Well, then a great many more persons would take theirs straight.

THE Reform Club are talking of bringing to this city one of the most accomplished and gifted young lady elocutionists in the profession.

THE opening of the Male Art Gallery—which event is soon to occur—will undoubtedly surpass in local interest any public affair of many years.

TO-MORROW the young man who acts as the street sprinkler's book-keeper, will call on some of us for the first time of the season. He is another harbinger.

MESSRS. E. & H. T. ANTHONY & CO., manufacturers of the best and lowest priced outfits for amateur photography, advertise in this issue full particulars.

THE Elizabeth Athletic Club will have no ball nine next year, as its grounds are to be taken by the Water Company for some use in connection with the reservoir.

THE Second Adventists have fixed upon the 19th of May as the day on which the world shall come to an end. In view of this fact, we need not care whether the cholera comes or not.

THE next lecture of the thirteen by Prof. John Fiske, that tell the story of the American Revolution, will be delivered at Reform Hall, to-morrow evening. It will be the ninth of the course.

THE Assessors just elected will have an increased compensation this year. The State census is to be taken and the assessor of each township is the person who does the work and gets the fees.

DUPLICATES of every part of the Fire Department's engines liable to break, are kept on hand in case of emergency. So fear of the possible disabling of either steamer for any length of time, is needless.

IT is reported that the frost has extended deeper in the ground the present Winter than for a number of years. It is stated that the frost has penetrated to a depth of nearly four feet in some localities.

AMONG the numerous engagements announced as Spring approaches and the robins nest again, is that of a Plainfield clergyman. Coupled with such report, is the rumor of his marriage in the near future.

STRANGERS naturally turn to the advertising columns of a newspaper as they would to a business directory to ascertain the commercial standing of the town in point of the number and kind of interests represented.

THERE is a good deal of talk about the "unprecedented" cold weather we are having for this time of the year. We remember it just as cold last year later in the season, though perhaps not so continuously so.

WROUGHT iron in the style of the sixteenth century is now the proper caper for chandeliers, firewood caskets, cranes, fire-dogs, lanterns and a host of other things used in decoration, for making the home beautiful.

MR. AL. EVERITT is to succeed Mr. Harry Lindsley as organist of the Crescent avenue church, the latter having accepted a like position in Englewood. If the church doesn't build a new organ, now, it ought to be ashamed of itself.

MR. JOHN C. CODDINGTON, one of the best known citizens of Rahway, died last Tuesday night. He was an ex-mayor, cashier of the savings institution, and held a number of positions of honor and trust. He was fifty-five years old.

THE Times, with its usual enterprise, judgment and generosity, has started a Bartholdi Pedestal Fund; to which we shall next week add such contributions as we have, and hereafter recommend all our friends to subscribe directly to that office.

THE acts and amendments regulating elections have been published, by the State, in pamphlet form. Newly elected Judges and Inspectors will find this a great convenience and can obtain copies by writing to the Secretary of State at Trenton.

AND naturally, some of the most talented of the vocalists prominently mentioned as members of the new singing society, object to being dragged into the association against their will, and to having their names connected with it in print without authority.

MESSRS. J. C. POPE & CO., of Front street, over the City National Bank, are agents for the Mutual Life Ins. Co., of N. Y., besides some of the highest class fire insurance companies. They also offer money on bond and mortgage and very favorable terms.

THE managers and owners of the Casino Rink have offered the free use of that building to the clergy of this city for Sunday gospel services. If it was possible for Mr. Pentecost to remain over, extensive meetings would be held in the rink, next Sunday.

IT is rather an unusual thing to find the boys and girls skating on St. Patrick's Day, though such was the case this year. We are not fretting about it, however. But the fear that we may catch them at the same sport on the Fourth of July does naturally cause us some uneasiness.

THE Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, is now in session at Nyack-on-the-Hudson. The pastor of the Plainfield M. E. church, Rev. A. H. Tuttle, and Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., are in attendance. In the absence of the pastor, the services in the M. E. church next Sunday will be conducted by Rev. J. E. Price of Elizabeth. Preaching morning and evening at the usual hours.

Can the Doctors Tell?

Anti-tobacco is getting a big boom. One of the latest cases of cancerous growth in the mouth from excessive smoking is that reported from Fort Plain, N. Y., where a Mr. Van Buren is under the hands of the surgeons, who are wondering whether they can cut the cancer out or not. Is smoking any more persistently indulged in than in previous years? Or is the tobacco now used in cigar-making less wholesome—or more unwholesome—than formerly? These questions should be satisfactorily settled before any conclusion is reached as to the responsibility of tobacco for cancer in the mouth or throat. It may be taken for granted that immoderation in smoking, as in eating or drinking, must needs be injurious to health. But does this excess cause cancerous growth? In the interest of millions of moderate smokers, the medical fraternity should endeavor to settle this question. Otherwise, many men, panic stricken by false reports, may sacrifice one of their greatest comforts to no purpose.

A Special Meeting.

This evening the Rev. Mr. Pentecost will hold a service for men only in the Trinity Reformed church, beginning at 7.45 o'clock. Admission will be by tickets that can be procured at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., or of the pastors of the different churches.

At the Music Hall.

The intensely interesting and successful drama of the "White Slave," one of Bartley Campbell's best productions, is to be given in Music Hall, next Tuesday evening. The cast that will interpret it is the original company that has scored the great successes of the present season in the largest cities of the United States. It numbers 26 people, and a car load of realistic scenery accompanies them.

What Will the Boarders Do Now?

The supplement to the oleomargarine act, which provides a fine of $200 for making or selling any imitation of butter in this State, has been signed by Gov. Abbett. The new law prohibits the manufacture and sale of the stuff entirely, while the old law only provides for selling it under pretense that it was butter. One-half of the fine imposed goes to the county, while the informer will get the other half.

A Word To Subscribers.

Those of our subscribers who intend to change their places of residence this Spring should apprise us of the fact as soon as possible, so that we may know how to direct their paper that they may receive it promptly in their new homes. Persons out of the city ordering their paper to be changed should be particular in mentioning the post-office to which it is now sent, as well as the one to which it is to be directed in the future. By doing so they will save us much trouble.

Forced to Be Old Maids.

The Census Bureau has published a map of the United States, with each State so marked as to show which of the sexes predominates there, and how much. It is a shocking looking map. All the Eastern States are red, showing where females predominate; all the Western States are green, showing how many men were green enough to go West without partners. In New York there are 72,000 more women than men; and in Massachusetts there are also 55,000 predestined old maids.

The S. K. of T.

The Scarlet Knights of Temperance held their regular weekly meeting on Thursday evening, which was addressed by members in short, pointed remarks, with music by Prof. Butterworth on the violin, and Mr. Lyon, the piano. Nine signed the pledge of total abstinence. On Sabbath evening the services alternated between good speaking by Sir Knights Sayers, Dr. Platt and others, and gospel hymns led by Mr. Oscar Philpitz. Three signed the pledge. This society is attracting those who find a temperate life profitable to themselves and families.

We Want a Change.

It is not at all probable that our farmers will start their plows and get their oats sowed in March this year. We have often seen considerable planting done by the middle of March, but the weather was rather more propitious than it has been this month. Indeed, it is not often that such severe cold weather is experienced in this latitude in the month of March as that which we had the last two weeks. Each night the thermometer ran down to within eight or ten degrees above zero, and varied but a few degrees above that in the middle of each day—the weather being below freezing point all the time.

The Pentecost Meetings.

The Pentecost gospel meetings began in the Trinity Reformed church, Monday evening, and have continued since with large gatherings and great success. All the churches are interested and have contributed the influence of their respective pastors and the talent of their miscellaneous choirs. Under the leadership of Messrs. Chas. McCutchen, H. O. Newman and others, the chorus singing of over a hundred voices is all that can be desired, and the sweet solos of Mr. Stebbins are particularly sweet and peculiarly effective. Dr. Pentecost's addresses are accomplishing much good, and promise lasting influence.

Pentecost on Bicycling.

The Rev. George F. Pentecost may be all wrong in his guesses as to our future state, but the following words from his lips prove he's sound on matters concerning our mortal condition:—"I simply wish to give my voice heartily and cordially in favor of the bicycle. If I could not get another I would not give up mine for its weight in solid silver. I wouldn't give it up for its weight in gold. For fifteen years, up to six months ago, I lost from three to six and eight days every month on my back, with incurable, stubborn sick headache. Since I have been riding the bicycle I have lost only two days from that cause. I haven't spent a dollar for a doctor since I have had a bicycle."

Doubt No More.

From the Mount Holly Herald we take the following figures, and below give the shipments from the Plainfield post office that prove this city is also ahead of all others in a business way.

"From Feb. 11th to March 17th, 4,588 lbs. of postal matter were received at and 5,481 lbs. were sent from the Mount Holly post office. We doubt if any county town in the State, barring Jersey City, Newark and Trenton, can beat it."

During the same period the Plainfield post office received 9,819 lbs. of postal matter and sent out 7,253 lbs. Just at present 1,000 lbs. a day is handled, and it isn't a good month for mail, either. That Mount Holly office, although in a county town, can't touch Plainfield in any way. We're first in health, first in wealth and first in the matter of business.

Many Thanks.

The following resolutions in relation to a gift we recently spoke of, have been adopted by Winfield Scott Post of this city:

WHEREAS, Mr. Loyal Farragut has kindly committed to the care of this Post a signal gun, captured by his famed and honored father, the late Admiral David G. Farragut,

Resolved, That this Post hereby express its heartiest thanks to Mr. Farragut for this mark of his confidence and esteem, and its feeling of honorable pride in having in its keeping this notable trophy, and that this signal gun be provided with a proper pedestal and be kept in the new quarters at the "Outpost" on North avenue, under the guardianship of the Council of Administration.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings be suitably engrossed and forwarded to Mr. Farragut, duly signed by the commander and attested by the adjutant of this Post.

Building Association.

The first annual meeting of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association was held on Monday evening last. A detailed statement of the past year's business was submitted to the shareholders and which showed the Association to be in a very prosperous condition. The election for Directors to serve the ensuing year resulted in the unanimous choice of Messrs. J. S. Cutter, B. F. Coriell, G. Bachman, F. S. Runyon, W. R. Codington, J. P. Homan, L. E. Barkalew, C. R. Austin, N. Harper, J. Hickey, W. H. Williams, W. A. Woodruff. At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors the following officers were elected:

President—Joseph S. Cutter.
Vice-President—B. Frank Coriell.
Treasurer—Gabriel Bachman.
Secretary—Nathan Harper.
Solicitor—John H. Jackson.

Columbia's Glee Club!

Last Friday was a cold day, and, financially, the Columbia College Glee Club's concert was a failure. Less than a hundred gathered in Music Hall to enjoy the singing, but they being ably reinforced by a few fellow students, succeeded in creating storms of applause that were just and deserving. The Club hasn't Yale's name and past reputation to "travel on," so it depends upon its talent and collective ability of the present. The result must be satisfactory to those personally interested. No better concert of male voices has ever been given in Plainfield, than that of which we speak. But the loss of Seaman has not been overcome.

Chip In!

The statue of Liberty is now being removed in sections to Havre for transportation to this country in a French National vessel. Of the money so far raised for the pedestal more than ninety per cent. has been contributed by New York and its immediate vicinity. A large quantity of granite remains quarried and cut at Leetes Island, and the work upon the pedestal at Bedloe's Island is suspended for lack of funds to continue it. The receipts thus far have been $182,491, and payments $179,624. There is a box in the office of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the reception of contributions to the fund necessary to complete the pedestal and save our country from disgrace. Let all the readers of this "chip in" their little mites.

No Clerk.

By an oversight at the recent election, the First District of North Plainfield is without a clerk, for by law the Town Clerk elected acts as clerk of election in the district where he resides. Mr. L. E. Barkalew, the Town Clerk at the time of the election, was a resident of the 1st District, but Mr. H. N. Spencer who defeated him is a resident of the 2d District. Consequently although Mr. Spencer succeeds Mr. Barkalew as Town Clerk he does not succeed him as Election Clerk of the 1st District. The 1st District is thus without a Clerk, as Mr. Spencer must by law act as such in the 2d District where he resides. And because the law so provides, the election of Mr. Ira Riker who defeated Mr. N. B. Smalley for Clerk of the 2d District, is null and void.

How to Kill a Town.

If you wish to keep a town from thriving, don't put up any more buildings than you can conveniently occupy yourselves. If you should accidentally have an empty dwelling, and any one wants to rent it, ask him three times the actual value of it. Demand a Shylock price for every inch of ground God has given you stewardship over. Turn a cold shoulder to every mechanic or business man seeking a home among you. Look at every new comer with a scowl. Run down the work of every new workman. Go abroad for wares rather than trade with those who seek to do the business in your midst. Fail to advertise or in any way support your paper, so that the people abroad may not know whether any business is going on in your town or not. Wrap yourself up with a coat of impervious selfishness.

A Queer Measure.

Some unrivalled legislative idiot has introduced a bill which makes it unlawful for a man to catch trout of less than five inches in length. This will compel the lone fisherman to carry a foot rule in his pocket so that as soon as he lands a fish he may measure it, and if it is found less than the prescribed length may promptly, but kindly, return it to its native water. Or perhaps it may be that the fisherman will be expected to place a sign neatly done in ichthyological characters on the end of his hook notifying the adventitious trout to be good enough to refrain from nibbling at the seductive fly unless the speckled little chap can produce a certificate that he is at least five inches long. On the whole, we are bound to admit that the able lunatic who is responsible for this bill should devote some time to considering how much superior brains are to wood in a man's head.—Jersey City Argus.

Morris County's Loss.

As we looked over the various newspapers from that county last week, we became convinced that one of the old and great institutions of Morris, the Dickerson mine, had caved in and disappeared from view forever. A gentleman informs us that George Washington used to get his words closer together than the correspondents up in Morris county. He says that there were two large caves in the same mine within the last ten years, and that they caused little comment; that the total obstruction is just twenty-two feet in width, i. e., that twenty-two feet of the track on the slope leading from the surface to the bottom of the mine, is covered with rock which must be opened by tunnelling, before a car can run through. He says that his informant is Mr. Fred A. Canfield, engineer for the Dickerson Company, who measured it. Boys, we'll tell you what you heard up there. It wasn't the Dickerson mine at all. It was the bottom falling out of the Republican party up there, that you heard. We heard it here three or four months before you say you did. We are no miners, but we never mistake the sound of dropping ballots for a landslide in an iron mine.

More About the First Presbyterian Church.

Our oldest readers were much interested in the article in our issue of the 13th inst., relating to the original subscription list that was drawn up and signed for the building of the First Presbyterian church in this city. Few are aware, however, that Mr. B. T. Mulford, an octogenarian still living in North Plainfield, is the only person alive to-day who helped to build that old church in 1825. He and his brother were at that time serving apprenticeships with John Faratt, a mason living at Somerville, who had the contract for erecting the building. No railroad being then in existence, the young Mulfords were often obliged to walk in from Somerville, and back again on Saturday evenings. Mr. Mulford, after his marriage, came to this city where he has since resided. When the church was rebuilt some years ago he was awarded the contract, and erected on the site of the old building the present structure. The old church was purchased by Mr. Mulford, removed to Fourth street, and converted into two dwelling houses that are standing to-day.

Postal Changes.

The Post-office Appropriation Bill, as passed by the recent Congress, provides for the following important changes, which will take effect on July 1: The weight of all single-rate letters is increased from one-half an ounce each or fraction thereof, to one ounce each or fraction thereof. The same increase of weight is allowed for drop letters, whether mailed at stations where there is a free delivery or where carrier service is not established. All newspapers sent from the office of publication, including sample copies, or when sent from a news agency to actual subscribers thereto, or to other news agents, shall be entitled to transmission at the rate of 1 cent per pound or fraction thereof, the postage to be prepaid. This is a reduction of one-half from existing rates. A special stamp of the value of 10 cents may be issued, which, when attached to a letter, in addition to the lawful postage, shall entitle it to immediate delivery at any place containing 4,000 population or over, within the carrier limit of any free-delivery office, or within one mile of the post office; and such specially stamped letters shall be delivered between 7 o'clock a. m. and midnight.

The Latest Rinkles.

Dr. Talmage condemns roller skating. This will be a sore disappointment to rink owners.

The last men's race at the Casino has again been postponed, but the public expectantly awaits it.

Over 1,000 miles in a week on roller skates shows what can be done by a man whose brains are in his feet.

Some rinks now give button-hole bouquets to the purchasers of tickets. A suit of clothes may, in the near future be held out as an inducement, or possibly a life-sized chromo.

The disappointment in the hearts of the young ladies at last Friday's matinee, when the hours sped away and the College dudes cometh not, is beyond our ability to picture on paper.

A new material for skating rink floors has come into use and is very successful. It is paper pulp, and it is as smooth as glass, without joints, and, compared with wood and cement, is comparatively noiseless.

Pneumonia has carried off many people this season, and efforts have been made to attribute the fatal results to rinking. Now, however, the doctors come out and say it is the overheated ball-rooms, decollette dresses, and evening costumes.

She—"You here, Mr. Simpkins? I thought you were down on roller skating." He—"So I am—down every two minutes," and dusting off the bosom of his pants, he staggered off, wondering why they didn't invent some sort of bustle for men.

This (Thursday) evening is to witness the culmination of the efforts of weeks past in the organization of a Carnival. Everything points to its successful accomplishment, and we expect next week to publish an account of entirely satisfactory results.

Prof. Charles West Thompson, or "Tompsy" as his many friends in Plainfield have named him, gave a wonderful exhibition of skill on rollers during Saturday afternoon and evening of last week. He has improved even since his last appearance in the Casino, which is giving him great praise.

At Vassar College there is a conflict between the members of the Faculty and the young lady pupils as to their attendance at skating rinks. In several instances where pupils were forbidden to skate on rollers in public, the parents have written to the college authorities asking that their daughters may be allowed to skate in moderation.

Special Fire Board Meeting.

A special meeting of the Fire Board was held in the parlors of Alert Hose Co's house on Friday evening, 20th inst. All the members were present. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with. The committee on Warren Engine reported progress. The committee on building stables for Gazelle Engine Co. and Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co., reported that they had examined the buildings, and approved the work. Report accepted. Mr. Livingston moved that when the Board adjourn, it be to meet on the evening of the 26th inst., in the parlors of Alert Hose Co. Carried. Warren Engine Co., No. 3, reported that they had accepted the resignation of Francis M. Whitely, as a member of said company, and returned Mr. Whitely's badge, No. 244. Action of company approved and confirmed. The said company also reported that they had elected Henry W. Bilyeu as Secretary of their company, in place of F. M. Whitely, resigned. Action of company confirmed. Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co. reported that they had re-instated Solomon Fisig as an active member of said company. Action of company confirmed. A communication was received from Mr. Don A. Gaylord, offering soft coal for use of steamers. Referred to the Com. on Repairs and Supplies. A communication was received from Engine Co., No. 2, stating that they would act upon the charges brought against George Reed, by the foreman of said company, for disobeying orders while on duty, at the fire of the 5th inst., for disorderly conduct, and being intoxicated at said fire, at the next regular meeting of the company. Received and placed on file. A communication was also received from Mr. William A. Dunning, stating that on the night of March 5th inst., George Reed, while driving the hose cart of No. 2 Co., and being in a state of intoxication, ran into and knocked to the ground, his aged father, badly bruising him, and asking that the matter be investigated. Laid over until the next regular meeting of the Board. A communication was received from the Chief Engineer, stating that Mr. William D. Johnson, chairman of town committee of Fanwood Township, had requested from the Plainfield Fire Department, the use of the condemned hose of said department. Received and placed on file. A communication was also received from Excelsior Hook & Ladder Co. of Scotch Plains, accepting the terms of which the P. F. D. loaned to them the old Gazelle Hand Engine, and the old hose carriage of No. 2 Engine Co. Received and entered on the minutes. A communication was received from Patrick Lynch, stating that he resided within the limits of the P. F. D. Received and placed on file. The Secretary reported that he had investigated the claim of W. B. Stewart, and Mr. Stewart would accept $70 as payment in full for the damage done to his carriage. Referred to the Com. on Repairs and Supplies for further investigation. The action of Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co. was confirmed, in their declaring vacant the office of Second Assistant Foreman, held by C. W. Davis, in consequence of his living out of town; and electing in his place Alonzo Wallace. The Com. on Repairs and Supplies was instructed to purchase a bell for No. 2 hose cart. The Secretary reported the new by-laws of Gazelle Engine Co. correct, and they were referred to the President for his approval. The following bills were audited and ordered paid: J. J. Johnson, agent, for building stables, to Second street House, $1,043.54; T. O. Doane, $197.96; W. B. Maxson, $79; J. F. Rogers & Co., $3.09; Earl & Jaques, $8. The Secretary reported certificates of exemption issued to the following named firemen: I. W. Pangborn, Peter Rickert, Thomas MacDonald, Chas. B. Overbaugh, Hugh O'Donnell, James G. Van Winkle, John H. Carney, John M. Shepherd, John Kelly, Chas. Seibel, John A. Thickstun, David J. Carney, N. W. Conway, Ferdinand Ruttman, Chas. P. Sebring, William Wright and Stephen C. Ryder. A certificate of membership was granted to George Rickert of Gazelle Engine Co. Mr. Morris offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing for the election of two members of the Board on Monday, the 13th day of April prox., and for other matters, as prescribed by the charter of the Fire Department, as follows:

Resolved, That the annual election for two members of the Board of Managers, to fill the vacancies caused by the expiration of the terms of office of J. Van Winkle and Wm. E. Jones, be held on the 13th day of April next, at Laing's Hall, between the hours of two and seven o'clock, p. m.

Resolved, That the sum of $7,000 be raised by taxation the ensuing year, to pay bonds coming due and interest, and for the general current expenses of the Department, and that the Assessor be paid an annual salary of $100 in lieu of fees; the Treasurer be paid an annual salary of $100 for which remuneration he shall collect the taxes as well as act as Treasurer of the Department, and that the Secretary of the Board of Managers be paid an annual salary of $50.

Resolved, That the President and Secretary of the Board be and are hereby directed to give the legal notices of the next annual election, as required by the Charter of the Plainfield Fire Department, and in accordance with the above resolution.

The Board then adjourned.

Deserved Sympathy.

The following letter was recently forwarded to General Grant by the G. A. R. Post in this city:

GENERAL U. S. GRANT:

DEAR SIR:—At a regular encampment of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held in their Post rooms, March 11, 1885, there was an universal expression of sympathy and sorrow at the affliction which has of late befallen you, our great commander; and it was ordered that the grateful and cordial good wishes of the comrades be conveyed to yourself, with the assurance of their prayers for your restoration to health and happiness.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Commander.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

What Constitutes a Pure Baking Powder. Opinion of Eminent New York Chemists.

We have analyzed samples of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER and of CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER, bought by ourselves in the open market.

We find in the ROYAL BAKING POWDER,

Sesqui-Carbonate of Ammonia.
Free Tartaric Acid.

We regard these two ingredients as highly objectionable.

Ammonia, which is a product of decomposition and a refuse of the worn-out tissues, should not be tolerated in any article of food. It is a powerful drug and its use in food is vigorously condemned by all physicians.

Free Tartaric Acid over-accelerates and wastes the leavening action of the baking powder. Both of these ingredients are cheap, inferior and deleterious substitutes for the more costly and wholesome pure Grape Cream of Tartar and pure Bicarbonate of Soda which we find uncontaminated in Cleveland's Baking Powder, and which, with a small amount of flour to preserve the compound, are the only ingredients of this powder.

THE BEAUTY OF YOUTH.

"No matter how handsome or stalwart a young man may be otherwise, nothing can make up for a partially bald head. Shining talents are attractive, but a shining poll is not. The causes may be sickness or anything else, yet Parker's Hair Balsam will stop the loss of the hair and start a new growth of glossy and soft hair as quickly as to surprise you—restoring the original color at the same time. Not a dye, not oily, delicately perfumed. Only standard 50c. dressing.

The dress-coat is generally worn by the groom at the city wedding, but for an elopement there is nothing like the cutaway.

SOMETHING FOR THE BABY.

What a terrible affliction about the house is a cross, crying baby! A young man on the very edge of matrimony might easily be frightened from his purpose by having too much of that sort of music at the house of his married friends. The babies cry commonly when they are sick. One teaspoonful of Parker's Tonic, given the little one, will bring rest and sleep to the baby and all in the house. Only 50 cents, at druggists.

The principal seasons illustrated at the roller-skating rink are "fall" and "spring." Some of the remarks they provoke are summery.

CASTORIA.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she was a Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

BEYOND CRITICISM.

BY A. R.

"You're not in earnest, Mr. Theodore?"

"Of course I'm in earnest, Della. You're the prettiest little piece of roses and dimples I ever saw. Don't your glass tell you the same thing? Ten o'clock! Why, where on earth has the time slipped to? I ought to have been down town half an hour ago. It's all your fault, Della."

And Mr. Theodore St. Volens hurried off, chucking Della Stephens under the chin as he went by.

"I wonder," thought Della, "if he really loves me. I wonder——"

"Della! Della! what are you loitering about?" cried a shrill, high-pitched voice. "Ten o'clock, and the poodle not washed, the canaries neglected, and the drawing-room not dusted! Really, Della, I don't know what's come to you of late."

"I—I was detained. I'm just through here, ma'am," faltered Della, flushing crimson up to the very roots of her hair as she hurried out of the room.

Della Stephens was Mrs. St. Volens' parlormaid and especial attendant. She had been a milliner's apprentice before the rich lady saw and took a fancy to her, when she—Mrs. Volens—was dictating as to the trimming of a fall hat.

"How much do you get here?" said Mrs. St. Volens, and Della answered meekly:

"Only my board, ma'am."

"I'll give you ten dollars a month," said Mrs. St. Volens.

And Della Stephens abandoned her trade and came to live with the rich lady.

She was a farmer's daughter from a little inland village, and now that she had obtained this fine situation, as it seemed to her, she wrote home a letter of triumph.

"I might have stayed there in the wilderness all my days," wrote Della, "and never earn anything more than my board."

It was half an hour or so afterward, and Della was busy fluting some wide Valenciennes lace for her mistress, when Mrs. St. Volens' shrill voice summoned her up-stairs. And Della knew from the very accent that something was wrong.

Mrs. St. Volens stood in the middle of the room as Della entered it, a red spot on either cheek, and a bit of cardboard in her hand.

"Look here, Della Stephens," said she. "The housekeeper has just brought this to me—a photograph of my nephew, Theodore. She says she found it in your room!"

Della turned scarlet, and felt instinctively in her bosom.

"I—I must have dropped it," said she, scarce considering her words.

"Then it is yours?"

"Yes," faltered Della.

"How came you by it?" sternly catechised Mrs. St. Volens.

"He gave it to me."

"He? Who?"

"Mr. Theodore."

Mrs. St. Volens' face grew grim and hard as adamant. "You are discharged," said she, turning on her heel.

And Della, stunned and bewildered, went up to her room to pack her few belongings and think what she should do next.

Mr. Theodore St. Volens was considerably surprised that afternoon to see his aunt's maid walk into the down-town office.

"Little Della," cried he, clapping a pair of eye glasses to his eyes. "It isn't possible!"

"Yes," said Della, "it is I. Oh, Mr. Theodore, what am I to do? Your aunt has dismissed me."

"Dismissed you! And why?" demanded the young man.

"She—she found your picture in my possession," faltered Della, beginning to cry.

"And what a precious fool you have been to let her find it," said he impatiently. "What else could you expect, Della?"

"And what am I to do now?" she questioned, piteously.

"Do?" repeated Mr. St. Volens. "Why, get another situation, to be sure."

"How can I, with no references? And ——"

"Now, look here," said Theodore, irritably, "all this is no business of mine. I don't see why you should come here bothering me!"

"No business of yours?" vaguely repeated Della.

"Not at all."

"But it was your fault that I lost the place."

"My fault!" echoed Mr. Theodore, with a strident laugh. "My fault, because I just told you what a pretty little thing you are, and Aunt Anastasia got mad with jealousy and spite. Come, that is a little too good."

"But—but—," hesitated Della, with a deadly chill settling around her heart, "didn't you mean anything all the time?"

"Mean? No; what should I mean? Really, Della, this is becoming annoying. Now you are crying again! Oh, confound it all!"

"You need not go, Mr. St. Volens," said Della with what dignity she could command. "I shall rid you of my presence at once. Excuse me for making such a mistake as to suppose you were an honorable gentleman."

Mr. St. Volens winced a little under the cutting irony of her words as she walked out of the office and went to Mademoiselle Ferromiere, the milliner.

"Perhaps," thought Della, "she will take me on again, for I can't starve."

But Mrs. St. Volens, as she discovered to her grief, had been beforehand with her. Mademoiselle Fertomiere rolled up her eyes.

She was sorry for Miss Stephens—but really it was a very improper thing to be making eyes at her mistress' nephew. And she couldn't afford to lose a customer like Madame St. Volens—and besides she had the characters of her young women to look to, and——"

But Della, who was as innocent of any guilty thought or deed as a white dove, turned away with a shudder.

"Do—do they think I have done anything wrong?" she asked herself. "Oh, has it come to this?"

Della went home to the little brown farmhouse in the country—but even there a letter from the indignant Mrs. Volens had preceded her. Her father met her with cold, averted eyes—her mother burst into tears.

"Oh, Della, to think that you should come home so! And we all thought your fortune was made!"

"You're welcome to stay for a night or two, Della," said Mr. Stephens, coldly; "but after the way in which you have treated your confiding mistress ——"

"Father," burst out Della, "what have they been telling you?"

"Facts speak for themselves," said the old man, grimly.

In the middle of the night Della came to her mother's bedside, looking as white as a ghost.

"Dear me, child," said Mrs. Stephens, half asleep, "what is the matter?"

"Mother," said Della, "where is your laudanum bottle? I've got such a dreadful toothache!"

"It's on the clock-shelf," said Mrs. Stephens, drowsily.

In the morning Della was found dead among her pillows. Dead and cold. And the shocked parents never knew whether it was an overdose of laudanum or a deliberate act of suicide that opened the gates of another world to heir stricken child.

However, she was beyond all criticism or carping now, thank Heaven!

HUNTERDON'S AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Board of Directors of the Hunterdon county Agricultural Society met at Humphrey's Hotel, in Flemington, recently, and fixed upon the 22d, 23d and 24th of September next as the time for holding the annual fair. The matter of giving a Spring Meeting was left to the Committee on Grounds. A Committee to revise the Premium Schedule was appointed, and the list will be put in good shape and be ready for distribution as early as possible. Various improvements upon the grounds were determined upon, among other things the building of a new ticket office at the gate by the Lehigh Valley railroad station. The following Superintendents and Committees were appointed:

Superintendent of Grounds—David Van Fleet.
Superintendent of Police—Benjamin E. Tine.
Superintendent of Horse Dept.—L. A. Exton.

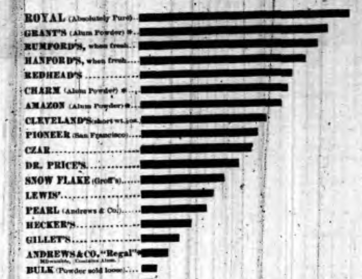
COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.



Reports of Government Chemists as to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum, or phosphates, or other injurious substances.
E. G. LOVE, Ph. D.

It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.
H. A. MOTT, Ph. D.

The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and this practical test, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, prove it perfectly healthful, of uniform, excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance.
WM. MCMURTRIE, E. M., Ph. D.

I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or other injurious substance.
HENRY MORTON, Ph. D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology.

I have examined a sample of Royal Baking Powder, and find no injurious substance nor any adulteration. The materials comprising the powder are pure, and the proportions quite accurate.
L. F. BARTLETT, Maine State Assayer and Chemist.

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal indorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and boards of health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders as shown by the chemical analyses and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, besides affording the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the Diagram shows some of the Alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

A HOME DRUGGIST
TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public.
E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

Sanitary Code
OF THE
Township of Westfield, Union County, New Jersey.

Organized in pursuance of an Act of the Legislature approved March 11th, 1880, entitled "An Act concerning the public health and the record of vital facts and statistics relating thereto," and "An Act relating to local Boards of Health," approved March 23d, 1881.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained by the Board of Health of the township of Westfield, Union county, New Jersey, that the chairman of the Township Committee for the time being shall act as chairman of the Board of Health, and the secretary of said Board shall be elected at the annual meeting for organization.

SECTION 2. The chairman shall perform such duties as usually appertain to such offices, and the Secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the Board and of all complaints relating to sanitary matters, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Board in the discharge of their duties.

SECTION 3. Meetings shall be held monthly at the time of the meetings of the Township Committee and oftener when deemed expedient by the chairman or any three members of the Board. Three members of the Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SECTION 4. It shall be the duty of any member of the Board, when appointed by the Board to act as Health Inspector, to investigate and report upon any complaint of a nuisance, cause of sickness or source of foulness detrimental to the public health, and to perform any other duty relating to the public health which may be assigned to him by the Board.

SECTION 5. All cases of small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, yellow fever, typhus fever, measles, asiatic cholera or other contagious or infectious diseases, and all cases of death therefrom in the Township of Westfield shall be forthwith reported in writing to the Board of Health of the said Township by the owner or occupant of any dwelling in which any of such diseases or deaths shall have occurred, and also by the physician in attendance on the case. All directions which the Board of Health shall prescribe for the purpose of preventing the spread of any of such diseases, either by the use of disinfectants, fumigation or otherwise shall be strictly carried out, and any order that may be made by the Board for the destruction of clothing or other articles for the purpose aforesaid shall be promptly obeyed.

SECTION 6. That all funerals and interments within the Township of Westfield of persons dying of any contagious, infectious, or pestilential disease, shall be under the direction of the Board of Health of the Township and shall be strictly private; and it shall be the duty of householders and all persons concerned, when a death occurs from any such disease, to prevent needless assembling in the apartments or house, where such disease are, of all persons liable to become infected thereby.

SECTION 7. That no person shall keep, sell or offer for sale in the Township of Westfield any impure or adulterated milk or drug, or any tainted, infected or unwholesome meat, fish, fowl, vegetables or fruit either as food or medicine, and any such articles so kept, exposed or offered for sale, may be seized and destroyed by order of the Board of Health.

SECTION 8. That all animals which die or are killed and not used for food within the said Township, shall forthwith be buried by the owners thereof under at least four feet of earth.

SECTION 9. That the owner or agent for, or tenant of any private property upon which a nuisance, source of foulness or cause of sickness detrimental to the public health may be found shall upon notice given by the Board of Health, or given by their direction, cause the same to be abated within the time specified in the notice and in case of failure to comply therewith, such nuisance, source of foulness or cause of sickness shall be abated under the direction of the Board of Health by its agent or agents, and the cost of such abatement in addition to a fine of five dollars, shall be recovered by action of debt in any court of competent jurisdiction from the person or persons failing to comply with the terms of such notice. That the property referred to in this section shall be understood to include so much of the streets or highways adjacent thereto as belong to the said private property, subject to the public use, and no person shall deposit in the gutter, or streets, or public roads of the said Township any solids or fluids, decayed or decaying substances or other substances detrimental to the public health.

SECTION 10. It shall be the duty of all owners, tenants and occupants of any or all buildings in said Township, not to allow any privy vault or cesspool connected or used with such buildings to become filled within one foot of the top, or to overflow upon the surface of the ground or into the streets or gutters, or running streams, or in any way to become a nuisance or detrimental to the public health; and all privy vaults shall be emptied of their contents in the Spring and Fall of the year at least, and oftener if necessary, and at all times kept in a condition that shall not be injurious to the public health.

SECTION 11. No privy vault, sink or cesspool shall be hereafter constructed in said Township within fifty feet of any well, unless a special permit for that purpose shall have been granted by the Board of Health; and any privy vault hereafter constructed shall be made water tight and extend not less than one foot above the surface of the ground.

SECTION 12. That no person shall hinder or obstruct any member or agent of the Board of Health in the discharge of any of his duties or in any way prevent a full investigation of any alleged nuisance or other source of foulness or sickness or injury to the public health.

SECTION 13. That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance or code shall be subject to a fine for each offence of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, and all fines and penalties shall be enforced by action of debt in any justice court or court for the trial of small causes with costs. And when collected the same shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Township for the use of the Township. This section shall not apply to sections for which specific penalties have been herein prescribed.

SECTION 14. All ordinances and parts of ordinances heretofore adopted, inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Adopted Monday, March 16, 1885.

POETRY

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth;
The impulse to a wordless prayer,
The dreams of love and truth;
The longing after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need;
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
That proves a friend indeed—
The plea for mercy, softly breathed
When justice threatened high,
The sorrow of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

The memory of a clasping hand,
The pressure of a kiss,
And all the trifles sweet and frail
That make up life's bliss;
If with a firm, unchanging faith,
And holy trust and high,
Those hands have clasped and lips have met,
These things shall never die.

The cruel and the bitter word
That wounded as it fell,
The chilling wants of sympathy
We feel but never tell—
The hard repulse that chills the heart
Whose hopes were bounding high,
In an unfading record kept—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love—
Be firm and just, and true,
So shall a light that cannot fade
Beam on thee from on high,
And angel's voices say to thee,
These things shall never die.

MONEY.

BY E. C.

Ezra Alden was in love with Clara Scudder, and sometimes in moments of great exultation—for he was a modest youth, as every true lover should be—he had dared to think that she did not frown upon his passion. But Clara was the Squire's daughter and an heiress, while Ezra was but a small farmer, and so far from successful in that pursuit that it seemed absurd as well as impossible that he should aspire to the hand of the lovely Miss Scudder, who had been courted in vain even by fine city gentlemen. So he had sighed and cast longing looks from his place in the choir (where he sang in a fine tenor voice on Sundays) into the Squire's pew; and more than once he thought pretty Clara blushed brightly, and he knew well enough that she always smiled sweetly, and her voice when she spoke to him had a caressing sound, and altogether her manner towards him was not discouraging.

But Ezra would not be encouraged. He felt that it was useless for him to ask the Squire for his daughter's hand unless he had a good pot of money in his own hand with which to back his proposal. So, instead of trying to compass the desired end by increased industry he neglected his little farm more than before, and spent his whole time in wishing that he could find a pot of money somehow in the manner of old-fashioned stories—at the foot of a tree or under the foundation of his house.

Suddenly a rumor spread abroad that a wonderful gypsy had appeared. Of course the rumor reached Ezra Alden, and equally, of course, he was much exercised in mind concerning it. He found out the place where the fortune teller divined these fair fortunes, and one evening, after watching the sun slowly disappear behind the western hills, he repaired thither stealthily. She was a very old woman, bent almost double; her lined and wrinkled face was the color of a butternut, and the tangles of her hair hung in elf-like grizzled locks about her eyes had a wonderful brilliancy and such a keen look that they seemed to see right through him.

"I know the desire of your heart, my pretty gentlemen," said the gypsy. "It is a certain maiden not a hundred miles away, only you have a faint heart that seldom wins a fair lady. But if you could find a pot of money your spirit would be bolder. Listen to me and obey me, and you shall have your wish. You must dig up every foot of land you possess; you mustn't grow weary in your search—you must dig and dig continuously, and plant and harvest, and dig again, if necessary; and, mark my words, before a very long time you will find the pot of money and the maiden will be yours."

Ezra listened with faith and departed with joy in his heart. He fulfilled the fortune-teller's injunctions so well that all the country-side took to talking of him after the gypsy disappeared. He not only dug, but he plowed and sowed and harrowed; he seemed taken with a sudden mania for farming, and work which before had seemed distasteful and monotonous, now that he had an object in view, was full of excitement and interest. At first he dug and dug, looking for his pot of money; but as it did not turn up he continued to dig, full of faith, and growing every day more interested in his efforts.

Ezra Alden had particularly fine crops that season; and his success at farming having also developed his commercial ability, he sold all that he had to sell to excellent advantage.

"Well," said Ezra, as he counted his gains, and tied them securely in his money-bag. "I haven't found my pot of money, but this little pile is not to be despised, and I shall keep on. By George! I wonder if this was what the old gypsy meant?"

Ezra had some time on his hands now for dreaming; and he took to sighing for Clara once more, but in a more hopeful spirit.

"I will speak to her father," he thought; "and, if he gives me encouragement, I will ask Clara, plump, if she will marry me."

So he took his money-bag in his hand and sought the presence of Squire Scudder.

The Squire sat reading a volume of the "Pickwick Papers" in his handsome old fashioned parlor, and being in a very genial mood, he received Ezra with the most encouraging kindness, and listened to all that he had to say with a benignant smile.

"It is not a great deal," concluded Ezra, holding up his money-bag, "but there's plenty more where I found this, sir."

"And, pray, where did you find it, Mr. Alden?" asked the Squire, rather taken aback.

"At the roots of my wheat and barley," answered Ezra, adding, with a laugh: "To tell the truth, sir, I consulted a fortune teller, and she told me to dig and dig, and I would certainly find a pot of money. I haven't found it yet, but I intend to keep on digging, and I don't doubt but I shall find it by and by."

Squire Scudder burst into a hearty laugh, and kindly patted Ezra on the shoulder.

"I don't doubt but you will, my lad," he said, cheerily. "Honest industry is the best pot of money any young man ever found. As for Clara, you can talk over the matter with herself—she's sitting there by the window, hidden behind the curtains."

Now that was dreadfully mean of the Squire not to have given a hint of Clara's presence before; but he didn't mean it. It seems quite impossible for these old gentlemen to realize how serious such matters are to boys and girls.

Squire Scudder rose with a nod and a smile and went away, leaving Ezra in dire confusion staring at the window curtains, and wishing the floor would open and swallow him. But it didn't. Instead the window curtains opened and a lovely young lady stepped out from them.

"So, Mr. Alden," she said, stepping forward, "you consulted the gypsy fortune teller, too."

"O, Miss Scudder—Clara—you have heard everything," stammered Ezra, sinking into the chair from which he had risen in his consternation. "What a terrible fool you must think me!"

"But I don't—I have great confidence in that gypsy's predictions."

"Then you consulted her, too?" asked Ezra.

"Dozens of times—she beguiled me of all my small silver."

"Well, she got but a single piece from me, that's some comfort," said Ezra, recovering somewhat, and venturing to laugh slightly.

"Was it anything like this?" asked Miss Scudder, producing one from her pocket, and holding it toward Ezra on the palm of a hand like cream.

Ezra looked and started and gave a little cry. It was his own lucky silver piece. He glanced into the laughing, blushing face; and then for the first time he looked straight into Clara Scudder's eyes. They were very, very dark and wonderfully brilliant; but this time they did not seem to look through him—they sank before his glance, and veiled themselves under lovely, long black lashes.

"O, Clara?" murmured Ezra; "you were the gypsy!"

"Of course I was."

"And you knew I loved you all the time?"

"Of course I did, you foolish boy—that's why I had to invent a way of telling you so."

CONNOR O'CONNOR.

Connor O'Connor was really a true-born Irishman; his walk, his merry blue eyes, as large as nature could make them, and above all his rich mellow voice, with just a suspicion of brogue, betrayed his nationality at once. Having come to America a few months before the opening of my narrative and given his recommendation as a gentleman, society had received with open arms this son of Erin. As this particular society happened to be located in Boston, and, as Connor was making a rather precarious living as a journalist, the worthy dames of the "Hub" had opened their houses and hearts to this shining light without demanding his grandfather's pedigree.

Now at the same time there was dwelling in the "modern Athens" a bright, mischievous young lady known as Dorothea Bertrand, but generally styled Theo by the charming circle she drew around her. Papa and Mamma Bertrand having gone to Europe had left the little lady in charge of a maiden aunt, whom they hoped would control this skittenish damsel and keep her out of harm's way.

But, alas, for short-sighted mortals! The little blind god with his bow and arrows came along and with the aid of Master Connor's blue eyes threw a dart deep into Theo's unsuspecting heart. Her pride revolted against this. Why should she care for a poor young author of whom she knew nothing, who had only his talent for his fortune—she, the pride and pet of a fond old father?

But, try as hard as she would, Connor with his coaxing voice and abundance of legendary poetry was always in her thoughts; of course all ended by her falling desperately in love with our Celtic hero.

Naturally this state of affairs could not continue long, and finally things reached a climax. Miss Dremont, Theo's aunt, like the rest of her friends, worshiped every literary star that appeared on the horizon. She had welcomed young O'Connor, and he, taking advantage of this, used every opportunity of presenting himself before his idol, and there we find him.

Theo was seated in a huge armchair drawn up to the open grate, the firelight playing with her brown hair and shadow after shadow chasing each other across her piquant face, as she turned over the pages of a magazine. Connor, who was at the piano playing gingling melodies, occasionally glanced over his shoulders at the little figure by the armchair. Once their eyes met, and both blushed furiously.

Presently she found something that seemed to interest her very much, for she left the cosy nook and came over to the gaslight to read it.

"Mr. O'Connor, is this your last poem, 'Hearts' Longing'?" she asked.

"It is, Miss Theo. Do you like it?"

"Very much," she answered, casting a loving glance at his tall form. He caught it, and came quickly to her side.

"Do you know to whom I addressed it?" he said, in a low voice, full of meaning.

For answer her head drooped, and holding one little hand toward him, she put the other on his shoulder. He clasped her to his heart in a tight embrace; a burning torrent of words rushed from his long closed lips that surprised him, and as he pressed passionate kisses on her trembling lips, he wondered at his boldness. How long they talked they never stopped to think, until Miss Dremont came in wrapped in her sealskin and seeing Conner pressed him to stay for dinner, but he declined, greatly to Theo's surprise, on the plea of a previous engagement.

"We must be cautious," he said, at parting. "If your aunt suspects anything, alas for us!"

But "the best laid plans o' mice and men oft gang agley," and those of the youthful lovers followed the path of many others of the same kind, for the terrible Miss Dremont did suspect, and without any difficulty discovered the true state of affairs, the outcome of which was that the following cablegram was sent to Cannes:

Bertrand Richard—Your daughter is unmanageable. Return at once. [illegible]line.

To this the answer came as follows:

Keep cool. Explain things and I'll settle matters without any fuss.
Richard Bertrand.

A few weeks later Theo received a letter from her father which so alarmed her that after reading it she inclosed and sent it to Connor. Thus far Miss Emeline had not forbidden him the house, so the happy pair never dreamed of the coming storm. This was the letter.

Dear Daughter—I hear from a very good source that you are keeping company with an individual very far beneath you in society, and if this thing is not stopped I'll take means to stop it. You shall never marry him with my consent. I intend to return in the next steamer, and when you receive this will be on my way. Sailing with me are two friends of mine, the Count and Countess of D——, whose son, the purser tells me, is a remarkably fine young man.

R. Bertrand.

Connor at his earliest opportunity called at the Bertrand mansion. He found Theo very much worried, though, with assumed calmness, she informed him "she didn't care one bit!" But with the quick eyes of love he detected the artifice, and at once proceeded to quiet her fears.

"[illegible] darling, [illegible] you know—and that certain individual will be just nowhere!"

"Never mind the peers, sweet; the individual will stand up for his own, no matter how many dozens of boy bards dare to oppose him!" replied Connor.

The steamer was at last due that carried the dread paterfamilias and the nobility, whose arrival caused a profound sensation in the circle the Bertrands moved in. But it disturbed no one's peace of mind so much as it did Theo's. Though she never lost faith in her lover's prowess, yet she knew her father's strong will; then, besides, there was that everlasting son of the Count and Countess.

The morning of the arrival of the Ocean Queen Mr. Bertrand called Theo into the library and had a long conversation, which ended in her coming out in tears. Later in the day there was to be a grand dinner in honor of the Count and Countess, to which Connor was invited.

His "individualship" made his appearance and was met in the vestibule by Theo.

"He wants to see you at once, dear, and you are looking irresistible," she [illegible], conducting him to the library door. "Are you afraid?"

"Not a bit!" he answered, patiently. The door opened.

"Mr. O'connor, papa."

"Very well; you may go. Take a seat, sir," said Mr. Bertrand, not looking up from his desk. When he did look up he was quite unprepared for the genteel style of the young Irishman, but muttered an ugly scowl on his never remarkably handsome face.

"You are young O'Connor, eh?" he growled.

"Connor O'Connor, sir."

"What is your trade or occupation?" was the next question, with an anxious glance toward the half open door.

"Journalism."

"Ahem! young man, please close the door."

Connor arose to obey, but it was pushed wide open and the Countess rushed in, her arms extended, crying:

"Connor, my dear, darling boy! James, James! come here," and in came James, otherwise the Count, his face wreathed in smiles; seeing how matters stood he embraced both the mother and son.

"Pon my honor! I'm completely staggered!" muttered Mr. Bertrand, staring stupidly at the scene. "Yes, you jackanapes! you young Duncemon! my soul!" and he collapsed into a chair.

"Yes, sir; it's not so strange, though. I can explain all in a few moments," commenced Connor.

"Confound it all, not a word," sputtered the old gentleman. "Go, get out and come in here, you monkey!" to Theo: "Take her, Connor, and welcome. You're a fine boy, that you are, you rascal," added he, first admiring Connor's tall figure and then his pretty blushing daughter. "Suppose we go to dinner."

SHE KNOWS MORE NOW.

A fashionable society girl married a man who lived in a country town, and she really loved her husband. She wanted to do all she could to please him. One day she told him she was going to make some nice home-made cider for him, and when he came home she had about two bushels of little, hard apples piled up in the kitchen.

"Why, Maude," he exclaimed when he saw them, "what have you got here?"

"Apples, darling," she replied, with a smiling face.

"Where did you get them?"

"Bought them, of course, love."

"But what did you get such hard ones for?"

"Didn't you say you wanted me to make you some home-made cider?" she asked with the trace of a quiver in her voice.

"Yes dear, but these are not good cider apples."

"Why—why—" she hesitated—"you said you liked hard cider, and, of course, I had to have hard apples to make it with, didn't I?"

The husband kissed the wife and never said a word. Young husbands are not like old ones.

LITERARY NOTES.

The World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, and the chief features of interest connected with the various apparatus, appliances and machinery to be seen there, will be found tersely and ably treated, in popular language and with many handsome illustrations, in the March 14th and 28th issues of Industrial America. These two editions are Special Exposition Numbers, the publisher having himself visited New Orleans, and personally superintended the preparation of the report. Copies may be ordered through any newsdealer at 10 cents each, or the paper will be supplied regularly by newsdealers at a cost of 10 cents every other week. The subscription is $1.00 a year, and the office No. 9 Murray street, New York.

The Eclectic for April contains an unusually varied and attractive list of contents, both the subjects and authors being of a sort to command attention. "A Word More About America," by Matthew Arnold, will be read with great interest. "Frederick Harrison gives a review of the Year," and Henry Irving has something pleasant to say of "The American Audience." The celebrated English essayist, John Morley, is represented by a masterly paper on George Elliot, a propos of her husband's life of her just published. Other thoughtful articles of special note are "Stimulants and Narcotics" by Percy Greg, "Automatic Writing?" by Frederick W. H. Myers; and "Scientific versus Bucolic Vivisection," by James Cotter Morrison. There are two bright and interesting short stories, poems by W. E. H. Lecky and Paul H. Hayne and a number of choice and well assorted short papers on subjects of popular interest.

It costs more to maintain the city of Boston, in proportion to population, than any other city in the United States.

THE CRACKSMAN'S STORY.

BY D. C. MACDONALD.

My profession isn't a popular one; in fact, there is considerable prejudice against it. As for myself, I don't think it's much worse than a good many others. However, that has nothing to do with my story. Some years ago me and the gentlemen, who was at that time connected with me in business—he's met with reverses since then, and at present isn't able to go out—was looking around for a job, being at that time rather hard up, as you might say. We struck a small country town. I ain't agoin' to give it away by telling [illegible] bank, [illegible] town. There wasn't another officer but the cashier, and they had a boy who used to sweep out and run errands.

The bank was on the main street, pretty well to one end of it—a nice, snug place on the corner of the street, with nothing very near it. We took our observations and found out there wasn't no trouble at all about it. There was an old watchman that walked up and down the streets nightly, when he didn't fall asleep and forget it. The vault had two doors; the outside one was chilled iron and has a three-wheeled combination lock; the inner door was no door at all—you could pick it open. It didn't pretend to be nothing but fire-proof, and it wasn't even that. The first thing we done of course, was to fit a key to the outside door. As the lock was an old-fashioned Bacon lock, any gentleman of my profession who chances to read this article will know just how easy that job was and how we done it. I may say here that the gentlemen in my line of business, having at times a great deal of leisure on their hands, do considerable reading, and are particularly fond of a neat bit of writing. In fact, in the way of literature, I have among 'em—however, this being a digression, I drop it and go on with the main job again.

This was our plan: After the key was fitted I was to go into the bank, and Jim—that wasn't his name, of course, but let it pass—was to keep watch on the outside. When anybody passed he was to tip me a whistle, and then I douse the glim and lay low. After they got by I goes on again. Simple and easy, you see.

Well, the night as we selected the president had gone to be out of town—gone down to the city, as he often did. I got inside all right with a slide lantern, a steel jimmy, a bunch of [illegible] and a green baize bag to throw [illegible]. I fixed my light and rigged my breast-drill and got to work on the door right over the lock.

Probably a great many of your readers are not well posted as to combination locks, so I may say for them that a three wheel combination lock has the three wheels and a slot in each wheel. In order to unlock the door, you have to get the three slots in each wheel. In order to unlock the door, you have to get the three slots opposite to each other at the top of the lock. Of course, if you know the numbers the lock is set on you can do this, but if you don't, you have to depend on your ingenuity. There is in each of these wheels a small hole, through which you put a wire through the back of the lock when you change the combination. Now, if you can bore a hole through the door and pick up those wheels by running a wire through those holes, why, you can open the door. I hope I make myself clear. I was boring that hole. The door was chilled iron; about the nastiest stuff I ever worked on. I went on steady enough; only stopped when Jim—which, as I said, wasn't his real name—whistled outside, and the watchman toddled by. By and by, when I'd got pretty near through I heard Jim, so to speak, whistle again. I stopped and pretty soon heard footsteps outside, and I'm blamed if they didn't come right up the bank steps, and I heard a key work in the lock. I was dumbfounded when I heard that you could have slipped the bracelets right on me. I picked up my lantern, and I'll be hanged if I didn't let the slide slip down and throw the light on to the door, and there was the president! Instead of calling for help, as I thought he would, he took a step inside the door, and shaded his eyes with his hand and looked at me. I knowed I ought to knock him down and cut out, but I'm blest if I could, I was that surprised.

"Who are you?" says he.

"Who are you?" says I, thinking that was an innocent remark, as he commenced it, and a-trying all the time to collect myself.

"I'm the president of the bank," says he, kinder short; "something the matter with the lock?"

By George! the idea came to me then. "Yes, sir," says I, touching my cap. "Mr. Jennings, he telegraphed this morning as the lock was out of order and he couldn't get in, and I'm come on to open it for him."

"I told Jennings a week ago," says he, "that he ought to get that lock fixed. Where is he?"

"He's been a-writing letters, and he's gone up to his house to get another letter he wanted for to answer."

"Well, why don't you go right on?" says he.

"I've got almost through, says I, "and I didn't want to finish up and open the vault till there was somebody here."

"That's very creditable to you," says he; "a very proper sentiment, my man. You can't be too particular about avoiding the very suspicion of evil," he goes on, coming round by the door.

"No, sir," says I, kinder modest like.

"What do you suppose is the matter with the lock?" says he.

"I don't rightly know yet," says I; "but I rather think it's a little worse on account of not being oiled enough. These here locks ought to be oiled about once a year."

"Well," says he, "you might as well go right on, now I'm here; I will stay till Jennings comes. Can't I help you—hold your lantern or something of that sort?"

The thought came to me like a flash, and I turned around and says: "How do I know you're the president? I ain't ever seen you afore, and you may be trying to crack this bank for all I know."

"That's a very proper inquiry, my man," says he, "and shows a remarkable degree of discretion in you. I confess that I should not have thought of the position in which I was placing you. However, I can easily convince you it is all right. Do you know what the president's name is?"

"No, I don't," says I, sorter surly.

"Well, you'll find it on that bill," said he, taking a bill out of his pocket; "and you see the same name on these letters," and he took some letters from his coat. I supposed I ought to have gone on then, but I was beginning to feel interested in making him prove who he was, so I says, "You might have got these letters to put up a job on me."

"You're a very honest man," says he; "one among a thousand. Don't think I'm at all offended at your persistence. No, my good fellow, I like it—I like it," and he laid his hands on my shoulder.

"Now, here," says he, taking a bundle from his pocket, "is a package of $10,000 in bonds. A burglar wouldn't be apt to carry those around with him, would he? I bought them in the city yesterday, and I stopped here to-night, on my way home, to place them in the vault; and I may add that your simple and manly honesty has so touched me that I would willingly leave them in your hands for safe keeping. You needn't blush at my praise."

I suppose I did turn sorter red when I seen them bonds.

"Are you satisfied now?" says he. I told him I was, thoroughly, and so I was. So I picked up my drill again and gave him my lantern to hold, so that I could see the door. I heard Jim, as I call him, outside once or twice, and I like to have burst out laughing thinking how he must be wondering what was going on inside. I works away and kept explaining to the president what I was trying to do. He was very much interested in mechanics, he said, and he knowed as I was a man as was up in my business by the way I went to work. He asked me about what wages I got, and how I liked my business, and said he took quite a fancy to me. I turned round once in a while and looked at him a setting there as solemn as a biled owl, with my dark lantern in his blessed hand, and I'm blamed if I didn't think I should have to holler out.

I got through the lock pretty soon and put in my wire and opened it. Then he took hold of the door and opened the vault.

"I'll put my bonds in," said he, "and go home. You can lock up and wait till Mr. Jennings comes. I don't suppose you will try to fix the lock to-night."

I told him I shouldn't do anything more with it now, as we could get in before morning.

"Well, I'll bid you good night, my man," says he as I swung the door to again.

Just then I heard Jim whistle, and I guessed the watchman was coming up the street.

"Ah," says I to the president, "you might speak to the watchman, if you see him, and tell him to keep an extra look out to-night."

"I will," says he, and we both went to the front door.

"There comes the watchman up the street," says he. "Watchman, this man has been fixing the bank lock and I want you to keep a sharp lookout to-night. He will stay here until Mr. Jennings returns."

"Good night again," says he, and he went up the street.

I saw Jim—so called—in the shadow on the other side of the street, as I stood on the stoop with the watchman.

"Well," says I to the watchman, "I'll go and pick up my tools and get ready [illegible]."

I went back into the bank, and it didn't take long to throw the door open and stuff them bonds into the bag. There were some boxes lying around, and a safe I should rather have liked to have tackled, but it seemed like tempting Providence after the luck we'd had. I looked at my watch and see it was just quarter past twelve. There was an express went through at half past twelve. I tucked my tools in the bag on the top of the bonds, and walked out to the front door. The watchman was on the steps.

"I don't believe I'll wait for Mr. Jennings," says I. "I suppose it will be all right if I give you this key."

"That's all right," said the watchman; "I wouldn't go away very from the bank," says I.

"No more I will," says he, "I'll stay about here all night."

"Good-night," says I, and I shook hands with him, and me and Jim—which wasn't his right name, you understand—took the half past twelve express, and the best part of that job was, we never heard anything about it. It never got into the papers.

WOMEN WHO WON'T MARRY.

Men marry the rattle brains of society. They choose the pretty, good-for-nothing girls, for that is the kind they like; they run after and marry the liveliest girl at a picnic or a ball, though she may be a "holy terror" at home; they run after the belle and the heiress, though she may be selfish and spoiled, silly; they pass by the jewels and take "the soida," for that is all they know, and then, like Adam, they blame the fruits of their own folly on the woman. 'Twas ever thus.

But, brethren—we wish to break it to you gently—there are women right here at home who have their own money to use as they please, who have their own pleasant homes and congenial occupations, who can, if the fancy seizes them, pack their trunks and take a jaunt to New Orleans, slip off to Washington for a few weeks, take in the stream of New York, or the balmy airs of Florida; in short, have a royal time in any way they choose, who call no man master, and who "would not marry the best man that ever stepped in shoe leather."

This will be a shock to you, beloved brethren, but it is none the less true. Women find pleasure and comfort and happiness outside of matrimony. It is not flattering to man, but there is a growing disinclination to marriage among women. They are growing more critical as to the measure of a man. He will have to come up to a nobler, higher standard, or in the poetical parlance of the day, he will get "left."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Providence man has a wager that he can open 75,000 oysters in six days, working fourteen hours each day. This is a commendable wager in comparison with Dr. Carver's ball-shooting. An opened oyster is worth more than a cracked ball.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

OUR COUNTRY.

Throughout the immense limits of the American Republic peace prevails. Clear of internal discord and threatened not by foreign complications, the sunshine of enduring amity and prosperity blesses the land of Washington.

What a glorious present, and what cheering hopes for our national future?

The old world is agitated by war and rumors of war. There the people are bowed beneath a galling weight of public expenditure to keep alive the impious claim of Kingcraft and to support the curse of human bondage it entails.

Not so free born America.

Here no dissolute monarch has the divine right to rule and rob, no bloated aristocrats here possess legal authority to ride rough-shod over honest industry, here brains and integrity are superior to presuming blood and station, and the humblest citizen may, through personal worth, become the most honored of sovereign millions.

What a magnificent example has just been exhibited by the great Republic of the West?

Intensely excited for months from end to end by political strife, a Presidential election was held without disturbance of any kind, the result ascertained, the successful candidate inaugurated, and the administration transferred from one party to another as gently as snow flakes fall upon the sod.

That silences all hostile criticism.

It is the victory of popular sovereignty.

To Kings it is a hand writing on the wall, and they know its terrible significance.

Let the people of the United States only press onward with loyal devotion to the principles of the Constitution, which mean equal and exact justice to all. Let mutual respect and interests forever destroy sectional animosities. Let laws justly encourage and protect, and no noxious seeds of foreign growth be permitted to take root. Let personal ambition be earnestly directed to the advancement of the country's moral and material prosperity, and an influence will expand and strengthen, a thousand fold more powerful than armed legions, and which will eventually induce shackled freemen, the world over, to arise with manly dignity and break into fragments the riveted chains of tyranny, as did our patriot forefathers of the American Revolution.

Heaven haste the day!

President Cleveland's nominations give general satisfaction.

There is every indication of war between England and Russia.

If Plainfield is to have Water Works why should not the City control them instead of a corporation?

Plainfield needs a Poor Farm, where the poor now, and to be taken care of, can earn their living.

Ex-Congressman H. S. Harris and a son of Chief Justice Beasley have formed a law partnership at Belvidere.

The war between France and China is affecting the tea trade. Prices are low at present, but may be expected to advance.

Ingersoll predicts that the Republicans will elect a President in 1888. "Bob's" views on the hereafter were always a trifle shaky.

The third re-union of the surviving veterans of the 14th Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, will be held in Dover on the 4th of May next.

The Legislature of Texas has passed a law which requires all heads of departments to give at least one-half of the political positions to women. This looks like fair play as between the sexes.

Daniel Dunham, of Piscataway, Middlesex county, had a daughter born on the day Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated, and a granddaughter born the day President Cleveland was inaugurated.

It is not expected that there will be much of a decrease in the public debt for March. The receipts are up to the average, but the disbursements have been larger than usual, pension payments alone amounting to $9,000,000.

These two from the Newark News:

"In carving up the political goose it looks as if Jersey Democrats will get the piece that went over the fence last."

"The early office-seeker catches the canker worm."

Francis C. Allen, of Elizabeth, aged 32 years, committed suicide at Lakewood recently by cutting his throat. He had been employed as a clerk in New York, but was obliged to give up his position through illness.

The President has designated Assistant Secretary Fairchild to act as Secretary of the Treasury in the absence of Secretary Manning, and Assistant Secretary Coon to act as Secretary in the absence of Mr. Manning and Mr. Fairchild.

Currie, the Texas desperado, who shot and killed the actor Porter some years ago at Marshall, Texas, while the latter was trying to save some ladies from insult, has himself been killed by some other disreputable character in New Mexico.

Jotham Johnson, of Durham, Me., is six months more than 100 years old and is more active than his boy, who is only seventy-three. The old man is proud that he voted for Grover Cleveland last November and says he shall take pleasure in doing it again in 1888.

The physicians of Rahway have issued a circular, setting forth the need of maintaining reform in the city. There are many careless people who are preparing pest holes for breeding disease next Summer in that city, and the Health Board desires that they should clean up now.

The sun still shines, Spring is coming, so are the blue birds, people are changing their residences, and in fact the whole world moves, yet Cleveland is President. Alas! for the predictions of those zealous Republicans before the election, that the world was coming to an end in case the Democrats came into power. By the way, the New York World still lives, and is one of the best papers in the land.

Among the many spoken of in connection with the Law Judge of Somerset county, to be appointed under the provisions of a recently enacted bill, is Mr. John H. Jackson, of North Plainfield. Although not a candidate in the literal sense of the word, Mr. Jackson would not refuse the appointment if it were tendered him. North Plainfield is entitled to some of the "crumbs." Why not the Law Judge?

During the the late election, Assemblyman Jernee, of New Brunswick, made a bet with John Whitehead, of South River, N. J., of $5,000 to $3,000 that Cleveland would be elected President. The stakeholder, J. Bayard Kirkpatrick, gave the stakes, $8,000, to Jernee. Now, Whitehead brings a suit to recover his $5,000 from Kirkpatrick. All the same, "Billy" has the money and Whitehead is dubbed a "squealer" by his former friends.

WATER WORKS.

The subject of introducing hydrant water through the streets of Plainfield is again being severely agitated. At the next meeting of Council, new propositions may be presented to that body for their consideration. A complete survey of the mountain sides in North Plainfield and a chain survey of the streets of this city is being made by Mr. J. H. Low of Kingston, N. Y., a gentleman who has had long experience in the construction of water works, to ascertain the feasibility and cost of constructing a reservoir and the laying of mains for supplying this city with water, which will be presented to Council, with maps, when the proper time arrives.—While Plainfield can boast of as pure water as any city in the State, it is not to be denied or ignored that the time is not far distant when Water Works will be erected here, and a system of sewerage inaugurated. Before that time comes, it will be well for the people to ponder and express their views as to whom the power to control such Water Works shall be delegated to; Whether it shall be a corporation or the city.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate received the following nominations from the Governor last week: For Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals, Martin Cole, of Sussex county (reappointed); Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Monmouth county, Alfred Walling, Jr. (reappointed); Riparian Commissioner, Miles Ross, of Middlesex county, in place of Gershom Mott, deceased; Prosecutor of the Pleas, Cumberland county, Jas. R. Hoagland (reappointed); Prosecutor of the Pleas, Salem county, Albert H. Slape (reappointed); Visitors to the State Agricultural College, Wm. Parry, Second District; John De Mott, Fourth District; Wm. H. De Wolf, Jr., Fifth District, and William M. Force, Sixth District. In executive session these nominations were all referred. The nomination of Uzal Canfield for Lay Judge of Warren county, was confirmed.

The joint resolution prohibiting the State from making any further irrepealable contracts or special immunities with railroad and canal companies, after considerable debate, passed the House by a large majority on Tuesday. Governor Abbett sent in two vetoes on Tuesday, the first of the bill providing for the election of the State Prison Supervisor in joint meeting, and the second of the bill allowing insurance companies to invest their surplus funds in State or city bonds or in first mortgage bonds of solvent railroads. The Senate in executive session confirmed all the nominations sent in last week except that of ex-Congressman Miles Ross as Riparian Commissioner, which was laid over until Wednesday. Tuesday afternoon the Governor sent in the following nominations: Commissioners of the Sinking Fund—Jos. M. Bodine, of Mercer county, and Eugene S. Doughty, of Somerset; Trustees of New Jersey School for Deaf Mutes—Messrs. Beach, of Hudson, and Thos. L. Kinney, of Essex; Judge of the Common Pleas of Morris County—Charles H. Munson. The nomination of Eugene S. Doughty was confirmed. The others were referred.

The bill to remove the State Capitol to Newark came up in the House on special order Wednesday morning last. Fifty-three of the 58 members were in their seats. Speaker Armstrong took the floor in opposition to the bill, Mr. Murphy, of Essex, advocating it. After a long discussion the bill was lost by a vote of 29 to 27. Mr. Kirkner voted for removal and Mr. Vetterlein against. Had Mr. Bell voted for the bill as expected, it would have passed.

Chapman's bill, providing for the appointment of members of local boards of education by the Mayor, subject to a vote of the people at a charter election, was signed by the Governor Wednesday afternoon. Gov. Abbett the same day vetoed the bill stripping him of his power of appointment of Judges of the District Courts. The veto was one of the most vigorous the Governor has sent in.

The nomination of ex-Congressman Miles Ross as Riparian Commissioner, in place of Gen. Gershom Mott, deceased, was confirmed by the Senate in executive session Wednesday afternoon. Senators Vanderbilt and Smith, Democrats, voted against the confirmation, while four Republican Senators, Cranmer, Schenck, Herring and Pancoast voted to confirm.

MORE NOMINATIONS.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate on Monday last:

To be Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary:—

Thomas J. Jarvis, of North Carolina, to Brazil.

Alexander R. Lawton, of Georgia, to Russia.

Anthony M. Kielley, of Virginia, to Italy.

To be Ministers Resident:—

Isaac Bell, Jr., of Rhode Island, to the Netherlands.

Rufus Magee, of Indiana, to Sweden and Norway.

George W. Merrill, of Nevada, to the Hawaiian Islands.

To be Ministers Resident and Consuls-General:—

Edward Parke Custis Lewis, of New Jersey, to Portugal.

Rasmus B. Anderson, of Wisconsin, to Denmark.

To be Consuls General:—

Thomas M. Waller, of Connecticut, at London.

Frederick Raine, of Maryland, at Berlin.

Edmund Jussen, of Illinois, at Vienna, Austria.

To be Consul of the United States:—

A. Haller Gross, of Pennsylvania, at Athens, Greece.

Evan P. Howell, of Georgia, at Manchester, England.

The President also sent to the Senate the same day the following minor nominations:

Brown, Shipley & Co., of London, England, to be special fiscal agents of the Navy Department.

To be Collectors of Internal Revenue:—Nathan Green, for the Second District of Tennessee; Isham G. Searcy, for the Third District of Texas; Clement Dowd, for the Sixth District of North Carolina; John N. Henderson, for the Eleventh District of Indiana.

Alexander McCue, of New York, to be Solicitor of the Treasury.

David Settle, to be Marshal for the Western District of North Carolina.

Joseph E. Johnston, of Virginia, to be Commissioner of Railroads.

Lewis McMullen, of New York, to be Appraiser in the District of New York.

Wm. Caldwell, of Ohio, to be Surveyor of Customs port of Cincinnati.

Captain William J. Volkmar, Fifth Cavalry, to be Major and Assistant Adjutant-General.

Captain George H. Burton, Twenty-first Infantry, to be Major and Inspector-General.

To be postmasters:—

Myron H. Peck, Jr., at Batavia, N. Y.; Andrew D. Morgan, at Ilion, N. Y.; Erastus F. Babcock, at Elmira, N. Y.; Michael J. Dougherty, at Galesburg, Ill.; Wilbur F. Horn, at Idaho Springs, Col.; Palemon Wiley, at Central City, Col.; Ansel Watrous, at Fort Collins, Col.

Edward Parke Custis Lewis, of New Jersey, is a resident of Hoboken, and son-in-law of the late Commodore Stevens. He was an Elector on the Democratic Presidential ticket last year, and served a term in the State Legislature, 1877-78. He has been prominent in Democratic politics for years.

On Tuesday the President sent the following nominations to the Senate:

Henry G. Pearson to be Postmaster at New York City.

To by Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary of the United States:—Wm. R. Roberts, of New York, to Chili; Chas. W. Buck, of Kentucky, to Peru; Richard B. Hubbard, of Texas, to Japan.

Chas. T. Russell, of Connecticut, to be Consul at Liverpool, England; Wm. W. Lang, of Texas, to be Consul at Hamburg, Germany.

J. T. McGraw to be Collector of Internal Revenue of West Virginia, and A. J. Boyd for the Fifth District of North Carolina.

H. P. Kernochan to be Naval officer of Customs at New Orleans.

Gov. Abbett did not forget, with all the multitudinous business before him, to send a congratulatory telegram to Gen. Barney at the New Orleans Exposition on the occasion of "Jersey Day," which was received with delight and applause by those present on that occasion.

The death of General Grant is momentarily expected.

Hon. Miles Ross has been confirmed as Riparian Commissioner in place of Gershom Mott, deceased. The office is a life one. Good for Miles. Earthquakes itself can't stop him when he sets out for a purpose.

The City Council of Trenton has been brought to terms by the firemen, who will hereafter receive the following amounts: Each engine company, $1,800; each hose company, $900; each hook and ladder company, $1,000 per annum—payable quarterly.

Senator Carpenter has been an able champion for the people on the Democratic side of the Senate during the Legislative session. The Senator is level-headed, or else he could not be the editor of such an able exponent of Democracy as the Clinton Democrat.

The many friends of Congressman Green, of the Third N. J. District, predict for him a brilliant career at the Nation's Capitol after he takes his seat there as a representative. They have confidence in his ability and wisdom to ably and fairly represent the people.

Nevada has a law against "treating" at public bars, and an arrest has already been made at Carson City with a view of testing the law. The penalty is a fine of from $5 to $20, or imprisonment of from two to ten days, for each offense; and this penalty is doubled where evasion is attempted by "any chicanery or subterfuge whatever." The workings of this unique attempt at legislation will be watched with curious interest.

The council of the Receivers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company on Monday last presented a report by the Master with their application for authority to pay $170,000 into the New Jersey treasury to enable them to appeal from the assessment for taxation of the property of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, in this State. The application was allowed and an order was made by Judge McKennan giving authority to make the payment as requested.

The nomination by the President of Mr. Pearson for Postmaster of N. Y. city, while it was a surprise to many, gives general satisfaction, except among extreme partisans. The appointment is a recognition of the claims of the Independents, and in response to the endorsement of a large majority of the business men of New York. President Cleveland is endeavoring to be a President of the people. He has the courage to do that which he thinks is right. It is a somewhat singular fact that there was not a single Democratic application for this Postmastership put on file at Washington.

Warren 3 Engine.

In regard to the anxiety of some to have Warren 3 engine re-built, would it not be well for the Fire Board to withhold the large expenditure that will be necessary to have said work done until it is known whether or not the big Water Works scheme for Plainfield is going to be carried through and a Fire Board elected in the interest of the schemers! If the plans of the Water Works manipulators are fully consummated, no steam fire engines in Plainfield will be necessary, but a raid will be made on the Fire Board for a big appropriation for hydrants that will give sufficient water pressure, without the use of engines, and a large revenue to the Water Works Company.

E. L. MORRIS.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Concerning Water Works.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I desire through your paper to invite the attention of the people of Plainfield to Chapter CCXII of the laws of 1884, in which you will observe the Common Council of our City is empowered to "contract for a supply of water for public use," with "some board or corporation," and the amount of money necessary to pay for such water can be raised by an extra levy and assessment equal to one dollar for each inhabitant of the City of Plainfield. If more than one dollar per inhabitant is necessary, or thought to be necessary, to pay for water, the people must vote upon the proposition—but the one dollar per head for man, woman and child ($8,000 to $9,000) can be levied and collected by order of the Common Council without any vote of the people, and such a tax would be in addition to all other taxes, vide the law.

The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.

WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Cistern Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make itself apparent to all users, in doing away with drip trap, the most of all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip trap it cannot help but become foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1½ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two local or vent vents of 1½ inches diameter are intended for right or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

THIS IS THE "WONDER SHIRT"
"ACORN" TRADE MARK.
EVERY SHIRT WARRANTED PERFECT.

"THE WONDER" SHIRT.

The latest shirt issued under the "Acorn" Brand is "THE WONDER," and it is also the best shirt ever made for the Trade. The following are some of its principal points of excellence, a printed list of which is attached to every shirt:

1st. It has the finest and heaviest muslin ever put in a shirt, (Utica Nonpariel improved).
2nd. It has a three ply linen bosom.
3rd. It is of extra length.
4th. It is reinforced both back and front extending and meeting under the arms where most needed.
5th. It has the Tomlinson patent endless facing.
6th. It is custom make and finish.
7th. It cannot break or tear anywhere.

Like the Deacon's "one-hoss shay," it has no weak spots and will never "give" anywhere, but at the end of scores of years it will dissolve into space, not a thread broken or a seam started.

Fathers will bequeath these shirts, purchased in early manhood, a priceless legacy to their children.

We expect a large demand for them to place in the corner stones of public structures as evidence of the greatest triumph of modern civilization. These shirts are manufactured expressly for

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

THE Union Club has leased its present quarters for another year, and there will be no public school building erected on that property, right away.

A NEW JERSEY girl is charged with having two husbands, one a plumber and the other an ice man. She has probably determined to roll in wealth all the year round.

THE Gloucester City Common Council have chosen Mr. William Thompson as its President. "Billy" is a sound Democrat and will make an efficient presiding officer.

FAIRCHILD, the Furniture dealer, is now located in his new store on Front street, Nos. 20 and 22, opposite Van Deventer Hall, where he is displaying a large stock of fresh goods.

HOLY WEEK has been given up to the scholars of the North Plainfield Public Schools as a vacation of rest, and that, where necessary, the young folks can assist in the family's moving.

DR. PENTECOST will discuss "The Resurrection—the key stone in the Arch of Christianity," this (Thursday) evening, in the First Baptist church. The meeting will be for men only, and admission by ticket.

AMONG the newest Easter offerings is a lace pin in the form of a tiny chicken entirely encrusted with brilliants, with a ruby-eye and a golden egg-shell on the bar beside it.

THE Somerset Messenger has been removed to more neat and commodious quarters. We congratulate our contemporary upon the move and the continued prosperous condition of the Messenger.

ASSEMBLYMAN JENKINS of Morris county has been so busy introducing bills to mix up the game and fish laws during the past session of the Legislature that it would seem as if he has had no time to attend to anything else.

IT will take all the time available until the first of May, to complete the alterations in Van Deventer Hall necessary to accommodate the Y. M. C. A. The rooms arranged will be models of comfort, convenience and appearance.

IT will take all the time available until the first of May, to complete the alterations in Van Deventer Hall necessary to accommodate the Y. M. C. A. The rooms arranged will be models of comfort, convenience and appearance.

THE little three-year-old child of Dr. Doriand, formerly of this city, and now a resident of Somerville, fell into a cistern of deep water one day last week. "Doc" quickly sprang into the water and rescued the nearly drowned child.

THE many friends of Chris. Van Arsdale in this section, will hereafter find him located at the Commercial Hotel, near the depot, Somerville, N. J. "Chris." is a popular landlord, and has secured a good location for a paying business.

BOUND to please his customers in every way, Charley Smith has now placed on tap genuine Milwaukee Beer. The mere mention of the fact drew a large attendance at his popular saloon corner Front and Somerset streets, last Monday evening.

MR. ANTHONY C. VAIL of West Fifth street, has recently purchased the elegant residence of the late Wm. B. Lewis, Esq., on Madison avenue and Eighth street. Mr. Vail is the owner of one or two of the handsomest and speediest horses in this vicinity.

THE following gentlemen have been drawn as petit jurors for North Plainfield to serve during the April term of the Somerset courts: George W. Bullman, Chas. E. Austin, Wm. H. Pangborn, Lewis E. Blackford, Thos. Rutledge, Joseph S. Van Arsdale.

THE weather was so severe last week that ice several inches in thickness was formed on the Raritan river. A number of boys from Bound Brook took advantage of the fine opportunity afforded for skating, which at this late season, has heretofore been unheard of.—Chronicle.

THE Pentecost Gospel Meetings are being continued during the present week, in the First Baptist church. The music is still a most enjoyable and effective feature of the services, and Dr. Pentecost's sermons have sown deeply seed that in time must bear an abundance of fruit.

ON our second page is duly advertised the Fire Board election of the 13th inst., in which advertisement is enumerated the many matters to be voted on. Read and act according to your judgment in relation thereto. Don't stand around with your hands in your pockets and find fault with that which you use no effort to correct.

CARNEY BROS., of Somerset street, have been compelled, in consequence of their increasing business, to secure more room, and have accordingly leased the store room formerly occupied by Fairchild, next to their place of business, also half of the second and all of the top floor of the building, which they will hereafter occupy.

THE Rahway Democrat's correspondent asks "is it right for the Newark and Plainfield papers to depend on the National Democrat for Westfield news?" To which we—who furnish the papers of the State, as well as the Rahway Democrat, with Westfield news—say no. Such dependence is extremely foolish, when the same news can be found in the columns of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST many days before.

THE New York Tribune has the following to say about country newspapers: "The local paper is the best read paper in the world. All the city papers cannot supply the place of the home paper. No other discusses the affairs of town and county, or gives in detail the local news, which cannot be obtained from any other source. Everybody reads it, and that is way the little local paper is the best read paper in the world."

SAWYER cassimeres are a strictly all-wool fabric, made by an old established concern, which has gained a reputation for first-class goods. The goods are made in a large variety of styles and colors, excluding all loud or flashy patterns, but of neat, stylish designs. The goods do not wear to a gloss. They are made up in suits or parts of suits, sold low, and will give everyone satisfaction. McGregor & Company, in the iron front, 850 and 852 Broad street, Newark, are the clothiers who handle these goods.

COUNCIL meeting next Monday evening.

MARCH came in like a lamb and went out like a lamb, as well. This has been a bad year for "signs."

SPRING fever seems to have struck the Casino Band. Wednesday's matinee music was hardly up to Prof. Herman's standard.

"DO YOU K-N-O-W," that the sale of reserved seats for the "Private Secretary" begins to-morrow morning at Reynolds' and Shaw's.

THE Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, A. M. Powell, Newton Spencer, Justice Wadsworth and ex-Mayor Maxson will speak in Reform Hall, Sunday evening.

A QUANTITY of Superior Furniture will be sold at auction by T. J. Gillies at Laing's Hall, to-day (Friday) commencing at 1 o'clock. See adv.

BY order of the Administrator, Levi Hetfield, the personal property of the late Alfred Berry will be sold at public sale, Wednesday, April 8th.

MRS. L. ADAMS announces that she is now prepared for Spring trade in Millinery and Fashionable Dress Making, at her store, No. 42 W. Front street.

SEVEN Newark gunners have put in their claim to have shot the first snipe of the season. The bird is supposed to have worn Arctic shoes and had an icepick bill.

AT an election of Wednesday evening of last week, Messrs. J. B. Probasco, M. D., George F. Brown and Rufus K. Case were elected deacons of the First Baptist church.

ROBERT SIMPSON has commenced the work of excavating the grounds next to Force's Hotel, on which will be erected Livery Stables and Store buildings by D. S. Roberts.

GREEN & CO., have a large stock of Parlor and Bed Room suites which they have marked down low for cash. They invite the attention of the public to their large stock of goods.

PRESIDENT Jeremiah Van Winkle of the Fire Board should be re-elected. He has faithfully served the people during the years of his membership in the Board, and there is apparently no reason for his retirement.

DURING Thursday of last week, Mrs. Amos Moffett died at the residence of her husband, Constable Moffett, after a long illness, in the 66th year of her age. She leaves four children, one of whom is the wife of Elmore D. Moffett of this city.

COUNCILMAN Love will move his Grocery from his present location to the building now occupied by Chas. Zimmer, Mr. John O. Campbell will occupy the quarters vacated by Mr. Love, as a shoe store in connection with his manufactory.

THE shed burned on Sixth street, last Tuesday morning, was in the rear of the residence of "Old 49er." He says that in all his experience he never saw such efficient service as was rendered by Plainfield's Fire Department on that occasion.

ALL ladies who would be willing to represent the W. C. T. U. at the semi-annual Convention of the State Union, to be held at Salem, N. J., during Wednesday and Thursday next, are requested to send their names to Mrs. Jos. W. Yates.

THE commissions of the following named Commissioners of Deeds have been forwarded to the County Clerk's office:—M. M. Thorn, J. C. Pope, L. F. Wadsworth, V. W. Nash, Wm. D. Murray, F. A. Dunham, W. R. Coddington. All of Plainfield.

THE W. C. T. U. of New Jersey will hold its semi-annual convention in the Baptist church, Salem, during Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The programme includes exercises for morning, afternoon and evening, and promises most interesting meetings.

THE Saengerbund Fair begins Monday evening the 13th inst., and will continue during the week, with matinees on Thursday and Saturday afternoons from two to five o'clock. Societies from Newark, Elizabeth and New Brunswick will be present during the Fair—one society each evening.

A GRAND entertainment is being arranged for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital, to take place in Music Hall, Thursday evening, the 23d inst. Among the artists who will appear and who have already been engaged, are Mme. Alberti the elocutionist and Miss Dora Henson the vocalist.

Relief Association.

The Relief Association find a greater demand for cast-off clothing than their supply can meet. Still, kind people of Plainfield, please remember us as you are packing Winter clothing away or are preparing to move. All contributions will be most gratefully received and can be left at the rooms of the Association, corner Second street and Madison ave.

LAURA H. RUSHMORE, Secretary.

Is There a Distinction?

Mrs. Price a temperance speaker of much eloquence, power and illustrative ability, lectured on the evils of intemperance at the Bethel Mission (colored) on East Fifth street, last Sunday. An effort is now to be put forth having in view the creation of a temperance revival among the colored people of the city, and the organization of a sort of a Mount Zion Reform Club. But—as the boys say—"what's the matter" with present Reform Club? Isn't a colored person eligible for membership?

The Barn Burners Again.

Just before two o'clock of Tuesday morning, one of the old stable buildings on East Sixth street was fired by the usual "party or parties unknown." The excitement in the neighborhood was intense for a while, but the prompt action of the Department not only prevented the spread of the flames to equally inflammable buildings adjoining, but confined the fire to the frame shed in which it originated. Mr. John Osborne who rented the premises lost a wagon sulky, some straw and hay, valued at $200, on which there was no insurance.

Rest at Last.

The attention of the charitable was called, some weeks ago, by an article in these columns, to the case of Joseph Stiles, a poor sick man residing on the mountains back of North Plainfield. Since then his family and himself have been generously cared for, in spite of false and sensational reports to the contrary. His sufferings were thus allayed and his death on Tuesday morning made as easy as possible by generous hearts and kind hands. The G. A. R. Post of this city, with the nobility of comrades, took charge of the funeral on Wednesday.

The Private Secretary.

"Do you k-n-o-w," the Rev. Robert Spalding, private secretary to Mr. Marsland, will appear at Music Hall, next Tuesday evening? This three act farcical comedy, that is the greatest of the Madison Square Theatre's successes, is to be presented by its best company with Mr. Leonard Grover at the head. The play abounds in more humorous situations and laughable tableaux of the finest character, than any we know of. Everybody in New York has seen it a dozen times, and now everybody in Plainfield is afforded an opportunity to see it once. Don't miss it!

Still There's More to Follow.

Upon the closing of Lent, entertainments innumerable spring up. Next Tuesday evening a grand bicycle feast will be prepared and spread before the public in the Casino Rink. Tuesday evening "The Private Secretary," the greatest comedy success of many seasons, will be given in Music Hall; followed, Friday evening, in the same place, by the Original Fiske University Jubilee Singers, for the benefit of the Children's Home. Besides all these a number of the best attractions of the year, and of varied character, are already booked for the present month by the Music Hall management.

Thirty Days as a Starter.

Joseph Donnelly, a big burly dynamiter, roamed around among the residences on Duer street, North Plainfield, Monday morning, and frightened the wives and children of the households, in the absence of their husbands and fathers, by demands for food and clothing, accompanied by threats of violence. Assistance being secured the offender, after a pretty rough handling, was also secured, and on being arraigned before Justice Mattison was given thirty days in the County Jail. Constable Peter Weaver and Deputy Samuel Moore escorted Mr. Donnelly to Somerville, where he now "languishes." Mr. Weaver will in time make a supplementary charge of "resisting an officer," which we trust will land Donnelly in State Prison where he belongs.

No Protection For Slaves.

Although the same terrible fate has been met by the faithful slaves of the Central R. R. Co. many times before, and by the same cause, no means to protect their lives have been taken, and John Gerracht last Friday afternoon, was added to the list of victims. The highway bridges between this city and Fanwood, cross the track so low that a number of freight train brakemen have been struck, knocked off their cars and run over, or have had their brains dashed out as they stood with their backs to the bridge, forgetful of its existence. Other roads stretch across the track, hanging signals of warning, to arouse the brakeman's attention some minutes before the danger is reached. But "our road" is compelled to reduce its expenses outside, so that those inside may fill their pockets.

Not In Plainfield.

Carpenters are complaining of dull times.—Elizabeth Journal.

New Temperance Paper.

The XVIIth Amendment is the title of a new temperance organ just started at Buffalo, N. Y., with W. H. H. Bertram as its editor. Its columns are filled with interesting reading matter.

Howell Division.

A public installation of the newly elected officers of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, will be held in the rooms of the Division, Front street and Park avenue, on Tuesday evening next.

Coax Him Back.

Nothing has yet been decided—although the question is anxiously and frequently considered—as to who shall succeed the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., as pastor of the Park avenue Baptist church.

Inventive Genius.

Some inventive genius has produced a machine that will darn stockings. One by one the few remaining inducements for men to marry are being withdrawn, and it is not surprising that women are casting about for new spheres.

A Roller-Skating Prima Donna.

Miss Jessie Lafoue, a phenomenal performer on the gay and giddy castors, has been engaged to appear at the Casino Rink, Friday next, the 10th inst. She is considered Miss Houghton's only rival, and her exhibition here promises us a great treat.

Attention, Boys!

There is a stringent law imposing a heavy penalty against any person caught tearing down or defacing show or hand bills. The Music Hall Association are determined to prosecute the first offender of the law in this respect, posters announcing plays at Music Hall, having recently been disfigured and torn down.

The Children's Home Benefit.

All know of the vocal ability of the Fiske Jubilee Singers, and all know how worthy an object is the Children's Home. The former organization is to appear at Music Hall, next Friday evening, in a concert for the benefit of the latter association. Let us all do our part to make the affair a financial success.

Auction Sale of Real Estate.

The attention of the public is directed to the advertised sale of valuable real estate of the Dime Savings Institution, April 7th, at Laing's (Miller's) Hotel, this city, commencing at 2 o'clock p. m. There are chances for bargains at this sale. The properties must be sold. Read the advertisement on the 4th page.

Mud.

The roads were never much worse. A number of vans of furniture have been stuck in the mud in this vicinity, and only by doubling up their combined teams could they be pulled out. A Plainfield confectioner's wagon was fast all Tuesday night between Scotch Plains and Rahway, and an extra team was necessary to get the vehicle started again the following day.

Honesty Will Have Its Reward.

Billy Stillwagner, the popular proprietor of the Turf Exchange, corner of Courtland and Greenwich streets, N. Y. city, came to Plainfield on Monday to visit friends. As he was leaving the depot he observed a lady drop her portemonnaie. Picking it up, he politely approached the lady and restored her property, being rewarded with a sweet smile, which caused a blush to mantle Billy's handsome face. Such rare cases of unadulterated honesty from strangers are scarce in our city.

How They Voted.

The following is the vote of the members of Assembly on the Constitutional Amendment bill, House 175, which came up for final passage last week:

Ayes—Messrs. Benson, Bolton, Caminade, Clark, Corlies, Dickinson, Doremus, Drake, Flynn, Frambach, Harrigan, Harrison, Heck, Hollsworth, Hughes, Jenkins, Kenney, Kelly, Low, Martin, A. F. R., Martin, Jno. Murphy, O'Connor, Parker, Romaine, Savage, Scheele, See, Wade, Wills.

Nays—Messrs. Ackerman, Abbott, Armstrong, Armitage, Baird, Bell, Bond, Braker, Chambers, [illegible], Grant, Haines, Heyer, Jewett, Larison, Ludlam, Lupton, North, Rue, Smith, Vetterlein, Wildrick, Winton, Woolverton.

Sunday School Statistics.

The annual Sunday School report for New Jersey for 1884 has recently been published. It contains the constitution of the association, names of the officers, etc. Mr. S. W. Clark, Corresponding Secretary, reports a loss of 13 schools and of 363 scholars joining the church, as compared with the preceding year. The gains are: Scholars reporting, 14; open the entire year, 22; teachers, 713; officers, 368; scholars, 26,874; adults, 7,360; average attendance, 9,347. The amount of benevolent contributions has decreased $626 307.

A Councilmanic Vacancy.

In consequence of the change of residence of Councilman Andrew Love, Sr., from the Fourth Ward of this city to corner of Craig Place and Duer street, North Plainfield, he will become ineligible to hold office as Councilman. His resignation will be handed in to the Council next Monday evening, and the vacancy caused thereby must be filled by Council within thirty days thereafter. Mr. Love is a Democrat, but as the Council has a Republican majority it is likely that his successor will be of the latter political faith until the next annual election.

Spring Clothing.

The well-known and popular clothing firm of Colyer & Co., 815 and 817 Broad street, Newark, N. J., announce in this issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, a large and elegant assortment of Spring clothing at popular prices. Among the many salesmen in this immense establishment is Mr. George Marshall, a former resident of Plainfield, who will take extra pains to wait upon any of his many friends or customers from this city. Read the advertisement of Colyer & Co., and don't forget the number, 815 and 817 Broad street, close by the Broad street railroad station.

Reform Club.

A largely attended and very interesting meeting was held in Reform Club Hall last Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Hurlbut was expected to conduct the devotional exercises, but being prevented from appearing until the close of the meeting, Rev. Mr. Honeyman officiated in his place. Most excellent addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Honeyman, Col. Julian Scott, Dr. Thiers, James R. Perine, Captain Ostrom, Rev. Mr. Hurlbut and President John H. French. A couple of strangers, after signing the pledge, made a few appropriate remarks. The selection and rendering of music by the choir, Messrs. Vanderbeek and F. S. Runyon and Mrs. Pope, elicited warm approval. Several names were added to the pledge roll.

He Meant Elizabeth.

The other day Mayor Rockfellow entered into conversation with a stranger in New York city, who asked the Mayor why the authorities of Plainfield did not agree to the terms of a New York syndicate who offered to settle Plainfield's large debt. Mayor Rockfellow replied that there was no such debt existing. "Oh yes there is, my dear sir, an enormous debt," replied the stranger. "Well," replied His Honor, "I am Mayor of that beautiful city, and when I left home this morning, Plainfield had no debt, and money to its credit. I must hurry right back and see what has been going on since I left." The countenance of the stranger fell. Explanations followed, and the true facts of the case came out—he meant poor Elizabeth.

The Council's Power Regarding Water Works.

A correspondent in another column calls the attention of the public to the following law, approved May 9th, 1884, which every inhabitant should read and consider:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the city council, township committee or other governing body of any municipal corporation in this state, by whatever name such governing body shall be called, to enter into and make a contract and agreement with any aqueduct board or water company for a year or term of years, for the obtaining and furnishing of a supply of water to be used by and within such municipal corporation for the purpose of extinguishing fires and for such other public uses and purposes as may be thought necessary or convenient; which contract and agreement, when so made, shall be the lawful and valid contract of such municipal corporation, as well as of the said aqueduct board or water company, according to the tenor thereof; and the sum or sums of money in said contract agreed to be paid in each year by any such municipal corporation shall be levied and assessed as a tax upon the real and personal estate within such municipal corporation, and liable to taxation for other municipal purposes, and the said real and personal property is hereby made liable to the assessment and collection of such tax; provided, however, and it is hereby expressly enacted that no such agreement and contract shall be made for a period longer than ten years in any one term, and that the amount of payment in such contract agreed to be made in any year, shall not exceed a sum equal to one dollar for each inhabitant of such municipal corporation, unless the provision be approved by a majority of legal voters in such municipal corporation at an annual or special election, to which the same may be submitted; and, provided, that this act shall not apply to any city now supplied with water for public purposes [illegible] an existing contract or [illegible] with some board or corporation.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 9, 1884.

The Crescent Rink.

It being found impossible to complete the Crescent Rink in time for spring patronage, the necessity of rushing the work is done away with. Consequently the continuance of the contracts will run along through the Summer, more time and care can be expended in the building, and it may then be opened early in the Fall thoroughly complete in every particular. No changes in the plans have been made that will at all alter the attractive appearance of the Rink, or its conveniences, as described by us in past issues.

Don't Growl, But Pay up.

We have heard nothing recently of the proposed North Plainfield Fire Department. Our neighbors over-the-brook with undoubted good sense, probably see the wisdom of paying but a minimum of the expense and receiving the benefit of the whole plant of the existing Department. When we speak of North Plainfield as paying a share of the expense, we hope we are not giving credit where credit is not due. Those within the fire limits over-the-brook are assessed about one-seventh of the total. But, it is stated, the majority are delinquents.

Retired With Honors.

After over twenty-one years of service in the Illinois Central R. R. Co., Mr. L. V. F. Randolph of this city resigned, on Tuesday last, the office of Treasurer which he has occupied for the past twelve years. The Company had known for many months of its Treasurer's desire to be relieved of the confining duties of his office, but the Board of Directors had so felt the necessity of Mr. Randolph's retention as the manager of the road's finances, that, in fact, his re-election in 1884 was really against his will. From a series of resolutions recently passed by the Board of Directors in this relation, we extract the following clause:

"That this Board in acceding to the wish of Mr. Randolph do so with regret, and desire to put on record the high esteem in which they hold him, and their appreciation of the faithfulness and ability with which he has discharged the duties of the office he has so long and so honorably filled, as well as their earnest wish for his future happiness and success."

The Latest Rinkles.

The first Carnival at the Casino Rink, last Thursday, was not a success in point of number of participants, but very much so in sociability and select attendance. There were thirty-two couples in costume, some of which were very tasty and others unique. Eleven couples from Elizabeth helped to swell the number in costumes. Among them were Mr. Fred S. Dunn, costumed as Mephistopheles; electric lights gleamed from the horns and caudal appendage of his satanic majesty as he skated along with his fair partner, Miss Jennie Dobbs, who wore a neat Butterfly costume. Master Willie Dunn created mirth among the audience by his personation of a Bootblack. E. Ferber, W. Hildebrant and P. Luster as Dudes, A. B. Dunn and Charles Hathaway as Colored Dudes; M. Decker, Mother Hubbard; E. Ferber, Turk; J. Decker, Soldier, Messrs. Morton and J. Walker, were other Elizabethans.

Cause Unknown.

The Music Hall was comfortably filled down stairs, and packed in the gallery, Tuesday evening, with an audience that sat through three hours of "White Slave" with commendable patience and some distress. The play is good—good in its lines of emotion, passion, tenderness and humor, and probably good in its moral effect. The caste was judiciously distributed, and all the artists, with but one or two exceptions, were less constrained in mind and body, and gave more expression and natural personification to their characters, than is the customary disposition of members of even the highest grade of road combinations. The scenery was even, upon occasion, of the kind called "realistic," and all the mechanical effects were smoothly handled by Mattox and his assistants. But—in spite of all this—the play dragged, the audience seldom thawed, not one eye stealthily wept, and disappointment was general. With what, or just exactly why, no one seems able to say.

Fire Board Meeting.

A special meeting of the Fire Board was held in the parlors of Alert Hose Co., Thursday evening of last week. Present—President Van Winkle and Messrs. Jones, Cutter and Morris. Reading of the minutes of the previous meeting dispensed with, and rules of order suspended. On motion Messrs. Van Winkle, Jones and Morris were appointed a special committee to examine and audit the Treasurer's accounts for the past year. The wheels of No. 2 Engine were reported as requiring attention; and the matter was referred to the committee on repairs and supplies with power to have same repaired, or to purchase new ones if found necessary. The rear king-bolt of Zephyr H. & L. Truck was reported as being bent, and that braces were required to make it permanently plumb. Referred to the Com. on Repairs and Supplies with power. The special committee on Warren 3 Engine reported progress. On motion said committee was instructed to communicate with the Amsterdam (N. Y.) parties, who have had a Steam Fire Engine for sale, and ascertain if said engine is still for sale; and if so, at what price it can be purchased. On motion adjourned.

Give Him Twenty Years.

Last Monday morning, about half-past eight o'clock, as Assistant Warden Philip Breen, of the Union County Jail, entered the cell of a prisoner, named John Mitchell, alias "Mitchell, the Bum," to see if everything was all right, he was suddenly savagely assaulted by Mitchell, who stabbed Breen several times with a large pair of shears about the face and head. It was apparent that the prisoner designed to stab out his keeper's eyes, but Breen, by ducking his head, received the stabs about the head and neck. The most dangerous wound was in the neck, narrowly missing the jugular vein, another went through the cheek, two bad cuts were also received in the head. Finally, recovering from his surprise, Breen knocked his assailant down, and assistance arriving, he was secured, and the injured keeper's wounds dressed. How the prisoner came into possession of the shears is a mystery. He had evidently premeditated the attack, for he had the handle of the scissors bound around with rags, so as to get a good hold, and he held the blades open, and made the murderous dash with one, using it like a pointed knife. Mitchell has been in jail before, and there is a rumor that he served a term in State Prison. He was arrested on January 29th last on a charge of stealing chickens from a yard in Linden. When he was caught in the act by the lady of the house, he committed an assault and battery on her. He has since been in jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. Mr. Breen's wounds are not serious, and he is attending to his usual duties.

Cutting Their Employees.

It is not many weeks since the sympathies of the just, and the compassionate feelings of those whom humanity arrays on the side of the persecuted, in the struggle of the poor and oppressed when imposed upon by the rich and arrogant, were roused in righteous indignation at the course of the management of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad in cutting down the meagre wages of the scrub-women in the stations, and every other employee they dared reduce. The fair and upright were loud in their denunciation of so partial and so wrongful an action. No one claimed that the management was not the best judge of the necessity of a reduction, but all did claim that such reduction should fall on each alike from head to foot, and probably in greater ratio upon the over paid and under-worked officers that were filling their pockets from the Treasury.

It is not just—it is crime, that men working twelve hours a day for from $20 to $30 per month, in whose hands are the lives of thousands, and whose personal responsibility is, in consequence, enormous—men who from overwork and insufficient food, might doze at their post and neglect to turn a switch or fail to display a signal, and awake to find themselves murderers of hundreds, and the walls of a prison between them and their starving families—it is a crime, we say, that they should be cut down, while a band of officers—half of whom are useless—are drawing almost half a million of dollars yearly, as wages for strolling in and out of the offices at Philadelphia, between the hours of nine and four.

Look at some of these salaries per annum, of the officers of the road:

And these are all of the General offices at South Fourth street, Philadelphia. We could continue the list, including Chief clerks in the President's and the Secretary's offices, and other sinecure positions of large salary connected with the road, amounting per annum to about $300,000.

Personals.

County Clerk Vosseller is slowly recovering from his recent severe illness.

We received a pleasant call from our friend ex-Assemblyman Schomp, of Somerset county, on Monday. "Billy" is not a candidate for Law Judge.

The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes is quite ill. A severe sore throat, and general debility brought about by overwork in his profession, has caused his confinement to the house for some days.

Mr. William B. Dunn has been confined to his home for a week or more past in consequence of serious neuralgia affection. His many friends will be glad to learn that he is once more about.

Mrs. K. P. Ketcham, who had recovered in so gratifying a degree from her serious illness of last Fall, was taken suddenly and alarmingly worse, during Sunday last. Although just now easier, her condition is still most critical.

By Steamer "Ems" for Bremen, Wednesday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Arens, their three children and nurse, left New York for a six months tour of pleasure in Europe. Miss Emily Schipper of Union avenue, accompanied them.

Miss Emma S. Runk died of pneumonia at the residence of her father, on Kensington avenue, during Tuesday last. The deceased was very prominent in church work, and admired by her many friends as a particularly lovely girl. She was the light and life of a widowed father's home.

The many friends of William H. Sebring deeply sympathize with him in the loss of his wife, by death, which sad event occurred on Saturday last. She leaves three small children behind her. Rev. J. C. Bliss, D. D., her former pastor, came from Philadelphia, to preach the funeral services at her request.

Florence Elden, sister of Mrs. T. E. Hazel, corner of Franklin Place and Sixth street, a young writer of ability and growing prominence is stopping with her parents at Force's Hotel, after a two months visit in the South. Recent articles written by her on the New Orleans exposition and other subjects, have met with commendation by prominent publishers.

From Montgomery, Ala. papers, we learn of the marriage of Ida, oldest daughter of John T. Lee, Esq., a former resident of this city, to Dr. Frank D. Squires, of Birmingham, Ala. The event occurred on Friday afternoon, March 27th. The Montgomery Daily Advertiser says of the affair:—"Miss Lee was an efficient member of the Young Ladies' Working Circle of the First Baptist church and was a general favorite here."

Ex-Councilman R. M. Stover had the misfortune to receive an injury to one of his legs one day last week, which will confine him to his home for some days yet to come. In ascending the steps of the Equitable building, N. Y. city, he missed his footing, striking against a former fracture on one of his limbs, which assumed serious proportions the next day. We are glad to learn that he is improving from the accident as rapidly as circumstances will admit of and good nursing can accomplish.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

A subscriber writes—"The article published in last week's Scratchings, giving proceedings of Fanwood Township Committee, was a very full and in the main, correct report. There was, however, one or two mistakes, which it appears to me should be corrected. In the account of appointment of overseer for road district No. 2, your correspondent says that both petitions were dated March 10th. The fact being that Mr. Hand's petition was dated March 10th and Mr. Johnston's on the 13th. Again he says that 'Mr. Johnston had a majority of the voters of the district,' the fact being that Mr. Hand had the majority. I ask the insertion of this correction in this week's Scratchings as an act of justice to the members of the Township Committee, as it would appear from the former communication that between two candidates equally well qualified for the position, they had appointed the one having the least number of signers; while in reality they did appoint the man who had the majority of the voters."

WESTFIELD WISPS.

John has a recipe for growing moustaches. He wrote for it.

Nine hundred and seventy-five feet from our post office to the railroad depot.

Luther M. Whitaker received his commission as Commissioner of Deeds on the 1st inst.

Rev. Dr. W. M. Cogswell, of Boston, who is negotiating for a Westfield place, spent Sunday with his daughter.

Mr. Percy Philips, who has resided the past two years on Central avenue, removes on the 15th inst to Dunellen.

Mr. H. N. Wheeler, who recently purchased the store goods of Mr. Wm. O. Morton, on Broad street, has rented the dwelling house of Mr. John Hetfield on North avenue.

Mrs. Georgie H. Cory and Lloyd R. Harbison were united in matrimony on Monday, March 30th. The Rev. William Hoakes, of Grace Episcopal church, performed the ceremony.

Chaplain McCabe will deliver his celebrated lecture, "Sunny Side of Life in Libby Prison," under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian church, on Thursday evening, April 23d.

Mr. John Hodges removed on the 1st inst from his residence on Elm street to the property he recently purchased of the heirs of the estate of Jacob Miller, on Fourth avenue. Mr. Hugh Wiseman and family who resided on South avenue, has removed to Cranford, N. J.

Dr. Willard H. Morse has not retired from editorial connection with the N. Y. Medical Journal, as has been reported, but being occupied with the third edition of his work on "New Therapeutical Agents," he is having a month's vacation, and meanwhile is moving into his new residence, the Moffit place, on Mountain avenue.

The death of John A. Manning, after a lingering illness, occurred at his residence on Picton street, on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was aged sixty-one years and had always been a resident of our town. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held Friday at his late residence. Interment in Fairview cemetery.

Our Town Committee are early to work in the matter of crushed stone for our roads. Eight car-loads arrived this week. As soon as the frost is out of the ground and it has settled, then is the time to repair our roads; not wait until after all the farming work is done, as some of our overseers have been in the habit of doing, and not getting through until the ground is frozen in the Fall.

Henry Baker, aged 88 years, died on Wednesday afternoon. The deceased was one of our oldest residents. He lived on a farm about a mile from the town, until about fifteen years ago, when he purchased a residence on Central avenue, where he has since resided. He was for a long time a member of the Presbyterian church and held some of the important offices. It was through his exertions that the old Presbyterian church burying ground was thoroughly cleaned of its underbrush and briars which had been allowed to accumulate for many years. His wife, Mary A. S. Baker, died on Feb. 12th., aged 84. He leaves a number of children and many friends and neighbors to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held on Saturday. Interment in the Presbyterian churchyard, in the family plot.

The Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Wednesday afternoon, April 1st, 1885, at 4.30 p. m. Present—Jas. L. Miller and Levi Cory, Com.; Luther M. Whitaker, Clerk. Minutes of the last meeting were read and on motion approved. The Assessor was authorized to procure duplicates and field books such as he may need. Bonds of the following township officers were received and approved: E. Embree, Treasurer; Hiram L. Fink, Overseer of Poor; David T. Pierson, Collector. The Clerk was instructed to prepare duplicate bonds and file the originals in the County Clerk's office. Report of Road District No. 4, which was laid over at the meeting of March 16, was on motion called up and approved. Wm. G. De Lamater, overseer, special tax, $550. A petition from residents of Road District No. 6, requesting the appointment of George W. Campbell or Wm. M. Long were received, and after considerable discussion, it was on motion resolved that Campbell be appointed road overseer for the ensuing year. The Clerk reported having served the notices of assessment of damages and benefits in the Wm. G. Peckham road matter as per memorandum enclosed. On motion adjourned subject to call of the Chair.

Now that the wise solons at Trenton have tussled with and passed a bill making it illegal for any person to retain a black bass (after he is caught) less than seven inches in length, it will be necessary, we presume, for every angler to carry along with him a rule or tape line. When such senseless laws are strictly obeyed, look out for the millenium. How is the average small boy to know how long a fish is, and if he did, what does he know about law? The true angler would never think of retaining such a size bass to increase the number in his creel. That great legislator from Morris, Jenkins, is the father of the bill.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

The Proof.

The following eminent chemists have analyzed Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder and find it free from Ammonia, free from Alum, free from Lime, free from all impurities, and composed only of pure and healthful ingredients:

Prof. R. OGDEN DOREMUS, M. D., LL. D., College of the City of New York.
JAMES F. BABCOCK, Massachusetts State Assayer.
Dr. ELIAS H. BARTLEY, B. S., Chemist of the Brooklyn Board of Health.
Prof. A. H. SABIN, State Chemist of Vermont.
FRANK L. BARTLETT, Maine State Assayer.
WM. M. HABIRSHAW, F. C. S., Chemist of the New York State Agricultural Society.
Prof. R. A. WITTHAUS, A. M., M. D., University of Buffalo, N. Y.
STILLWELL & GLADDING, Chemists to the New York Produce Exchange.

They Find

The Royal Baking Powder to contain Ammonia, a drug of disgusting origin and unfit for use in food.

The crying of "Lime" by the Royal Baking Powder Co. is to divert public attention from the use of Ammonia in their powder. They know that Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime, Alum, or any adulteration whatever.

WHAT CONSTITUTES AN IMPURE BAKING POWDER. Analyses of Cleveland's Baking Powder show the following ingredients: Lime, Mono carb. soda (Washing Soda), Sulph. soda (Glauber Salts), Chloride sodium (common salt), Flour.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

The Legislature has passed a bill to prohibit the killing of any birds out of the list of game, (excepting English sparrows) under a heavy penalty. Sparrows can be slaughtered indiscriminately, for which we should all be thankful.

That slight cold you think so little of may prove the forerunner of a complaint that may be fatal. Avoid this result by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the best of known remedies for colds, coughs, catarrhs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, and all other throat and lung diseases.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

Germany has one beershop to every thirty-one inhabitants. This prevents the disagreeable crowding so noticeable in this country.

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price 10 cts., 50 cts., and $1. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

"HACKMETACK" a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by C. A. Butler.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

DESTROY THAT SIGN.

One may feel that he's getting old, but it is naturally dislikes that anything about his appearance should advise others of the fact. Yet nothing does this so effectually as thin and faded hair. No woman wants to marry a man, and business firms hesitate to employ a man, who shows this fatal sign. Parker's Hair Balsam is needed by you, in this regard, more than its weight in gold. Use it, and have plentiful and glossy hair. Many have had every trace of grayness removed and bald spots covered by using a single bottle.

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

The Oxford's easily beat the Cambridge's in the great 'Varsity boat race on the Thames, last Saturday, winning by two lengths.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE." Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

MISS PEASLEE'S NEIGHBOR.

CHAPTER I.

"An old bachelor! It's just too bad," cried Miss Jane Peaslee, excitedly. "I never could abide old bachelors, and here one of 'em's gone and moved in right next door! He's got a great horrid dog, too. I'll warrant he'll be the plague of our lives."

"Mebbe not, Jane," mildly expostulated her sister, Mrs. Webb. "Old bachelors ain't apt to be meddlesome, gen'erly."

"Him! I meant the dog," snapped Miss Jane. "Of course he'll be a runing over here, tormenting the cat and digging holes in the flower beds next summer for a cool place to lie in; or a chasing the hens, an' stealing the eggs, when they've made nests in the weeds. But I won't put up with it, an' I shall tell him so plump, the very first chance I git."

"The dog, Jane?"

"The dog! Of course not. I meant the crusty, crabbed old bachelor himself."

"O Jane! You don't think he would steal the eggs and make holes in the flower beds, do you?"

"Fiddlesticks! Ain't you got no sense at all, Melancey? A body might as well talk to a clothes prop as you! I said the dog would steal the eggs, an' I shouldn't put up with it, an' I should tell the old bachelor so, too. Now do you understand? An' so I will! I'll take the broomstick to him, too. See if I don't," she concluded emphatically.

Miss Jane and her sister owned the little cottage in which they lived, which was about all they did own, and managed to eke out a living by doing plain sewing, dressmaking or anything of the kind they could get to do.

"There's the gate open and Sam Pickles' ole bell-cow a-tramplin' round in the truck patch, of course," and snatching up a sun bonnet she darted out to put a summary stop to the old bellcow's depredations among her "garden truck."

Meanwhile the old bachelor next door was taking a survey of the situation.

"Two women folks, and one of them an old maid, I'll bet a pocketknife. The other looks like she might be a widow, from allus dressing in black. Thunder! What did I ever move in here for? Paid six months' rent, too! Confound it all, a man ain't safe anywhere hardly these days. Of course they'll both be a-setting their caps to ketch me—but I won't be caught! I'll keep out of their way as much as possible, and even if I meet one of 'em face to face I'll look another way. I see they keep a parcel of old hens, too. If any of 'em come a scratching about here I'll set the dog on 'em, sure. I ain't going to be pestered by old maids or their hens either. I've hired a man servant a purpose to keep out of their clutches, an' I ain't a-going to be took in by the smartest woman that ever lived."

He was by no means the crusty, crabbed old bachelor Miss Jane had declared him to be, but a rather fine looking man, with pleasant, dark eyes and only a few threads of silver shining in his abundant brown hair.

Moreover, his canine follower was not a "great, horrid" dog, but a very curly and frolicsome Newfoundland puppy.

CHAPTER II.

"There's that dog a worryin' the chickens agin," screamed Miss Jane one morning, and snatching up the broom, she hurriedly gave chase.

Finding himself pursued, the puppy at once released the leghorn rooster's tail, which he had been playfully shaking to the great disgust of its owner, and with a bark of delight, seized the edge of Miss Jane's homespun petticoat which showed beneath the rim of her dress, and shook it energetically.

The outraged Miss Peaslee in the meantime beat right and left with her broom, missing the culprit at each lick, however, until thoroughly exhausted, she dropped her weapon on the ground, whereupon Curly immediately seized it and scampered off with all his might.

Over the neat, gravelly walk; over the tidy border of blackberry lilies and Iris versicolor, round and round he whirled, dexterously avoiding the avenging foe, until at last he espied Bonaparte, the big gray cat, leisurely taking his morning walk. Whereupon he at once dropped the broom and gave chase to the cat.

Bonaparte fled up a tree in great terror, and Miss Peaslee, seizing the demoralized broom, made a sudden sortie on the dog. Curly, however, discovering this rear attack in the nick of time, scuttled swiftly across the yard and through the fence to his master's domain, where he immediately unearthed a half gnawed bone from its hiding-place and proceeded to solace himself therewith.

"You had a real fine play with him, didn't you?" said Melancey complacently, looking up as her sister made her appearance.

"Play! The vicious beast chawed the broom to pieces, an' tore my skirts half off o' me, if you call that play," sniffed Miss Jane wrathfully.

* * * * *

"Jane! Jane! What on airth is this that dog's been a shakin' an' wallopin' round in the dust?" cried Melancey a few days later.

The dog was growling and shaking some dark object fearfully.

After a desperate struggle the sisters succeeded in rescuing all that remained of—a coat. A man's coat, of fine, heavy dark cloth, hopelessly mutilated by the teeth and claws of the frolicsome puppy.

"Dear me, it's plum ruined," cried Melancey. "It must belong to the ole bachelor, an' the dog has stole it." And she surveyed it regretfully, holding it up by the tails.

"But—what's that?"

"That" was something that had dropped out of one of the pockets.

Jane seized it quickly. It was a letter.

"Why, Melancey," she cried breathlessly, "it—it's directed to me!"

And Jane opened it and read:

"MY DEAR MISS PEASLEE:—I never popped the question in my life before, so I don't know the proper way. But if you are willin' to be my wife, just say so, an' I'll be the happiest man in Honey Locust Holler. CALVIN CUMBERLAND."

"Jane, Jane, don't faint!" cried Melancey, alarmed as her sister grew first pale and then red.

"I ain't agoin' to faint," declared Jane, stoutly. "But look, Melancey, this letter is dated five years ago, when we lived over to the Hollow. What on airth does it mean?"

"Give it to me," said Melancey, promptly. "I'll soon find out what it means. I'll take the coat home, too, seein' the dog has left it in our hands."

In less than fifteen minutes thereafter the old bachelor, hatless and coatless, ran frantically through the gate, never stopping till he found himself in the presence of Miss Peaslee.

"Jane, Jane," he cried, with breathless eagerness, "I've come for my answer. It's five years since I writ that letter, an' thought I'd posted it, when there it was hid in the lining of that coat all the time. But you haven't said yet whether you'd have me or not."

Somehow or other Miss Jane forgot her dislike of men-folks in general, and old bachelors in particular, and said she would.

"We ought to be thankful to that dog," said Melancey, with tears in her eyes, when she heard how it was all settled, and indeed, Master Curly had no reason to complain of his treatment thereafter.—Helen Whitney Clark in St. Louis Magazine.

THE EVENT AT MIDGEVILLE.

It was the latter part of November, just before Thanksgiving, when an event occurred in Midgeville that agitated Midgeville society from center to circumference.

It was no new thing for Midgeville society to be agitated. Indeed, it would have been a much better thing for it to have remained unagitated for any length of time.

Mrs. Priscilla Downs often said that "Midgeville was the excitingest place she ever resided in." As her youth had been spent in the whirl of gayety at Bald Hill Cleve, and fifteen years of her married life within three miles of Poverty Corner, this was saying a great deal, but it was true, nevertheless; there was, as Mrs. Priscilla affirmed, always something happening at Midgeville.

Midgeville had fallen into a state of apathy not uncommon after great and prolonged excitement, when it was again aroused by the startling intelligence that widow Benson and her two children had been turned out of doors.

Mrs. Benson had formerly lived in Pinewood, but three years before had bought a pretty cottage of Dr. Holmes, and with her little family had taken up her abode in Midgeville.

She had paid $500 down (the neighbors soon found out) and an unmarried brother, who was earning a good salary in the city, became responsible for the remainder. But the brother had died soon after the purchase, and, being unable to make the payments herself, the widow was now to be turned out of house and home into the cold, cold world.

At least such was the story, and it came straight. Mrs. Muggins, the blacksmith's wife, had just stepped into Mrs. Benson's on Monday, "while the clothes were boiling," to get a little advice as to how she'd better trim Susan Maria's dress, and found her packing up and getting ready to move, and in answer to her inquiries as to her object in moving in cold weather she said that "Dr. Holmes wanted the house for one of his nephews."

"She didn't 'pear to want to talk much about it," said Mrs. Muggins, "poor creeter, I suppose she felt so bad she couldn't; I don't think she has the least idee where she's agoin' to live, although she's going to her sister's at Pinewood for a spell, but her sister has got a family of her own, and of course she can't be expected to provide a home for a widder and two children."

Mrs. Muggins was terribly indignant, and so was every one to whom she told the story, and it was thought best to have a meeting of the Union Sewing Society the next day (although it was not the day for their meeting) and see what could be done about it. The meeting was held at the president's, Mrs Murch's, who lived directly opposite Dr. Holmes' residence. It was well attended, and never did Union Sewing Society show a more united spirit than in denouncing Dr. Holmes and expressing sympathy for the unfortunate widow.

The Widow Sharpe boldly proposed raising money by subscription (of course, being a widow herself, she wouldn't be expected to give anything), but the other ladies, after making some mental calculations, concluded that it wouldn't be best; "Widow Benson was a dreadful high-spirited woman and might feel affronted."

So there seemed nothing they could do after all except to free their minds, but they did that thoroughly.

It was perfectly scandalous, they declared, for Doctor Holmes, the richest man in Midgeville, and not a child or chick in the world, to oppress the widow and fatherless.

"Such a good woman as she is in sickness," said Mrs. Taylor, whose children had had a run of measles; "and dreadful tasty," sighed grandma Newcomb, wondering where her pretty caps were to come from now. "But nothing gaudy; you never see her rigged out in flounces and furbelows," added Mrs Joel Clark, with a side glance at the ruffles on Mrs. Muggins' dress. "And an amazing good hand to mind her own business," was the significant tribute paid by the blacksmith's wife. There were but two dissenting voices: Mrs. Bean, whose husband kept store, said "widders hadn't ought to buy what they couldn't pay for," not, as she afterwards explained, because she blamed the widder Benson, but she wanted to hit the widder Sharpe a dab for not paying her grocery bill."

Miss Eudora Piper, who was afflicted with nervous headache, remarked that she "had always found Dr. Holmes most gentle and affection——" and then stopped suddenly as if she had said more than she intended to, although everybody, and especially the Widow Sharpe, knew she hadn't.

"There's the doctor's hired man harnessing the horse," said Mrs. Murch, looking out of the front window, "and as sure as I'm alive that's a brand new kerridge, and what a big one for just one——"

"Ma, ma," yelled Toby Murch, tumbling over the doorstep in his hurry to tell the news, "Will Benson says his mother was married last night to Dr. Holmes, and he's goin' to call him pa, and they are goin' ter Pinewood to Thanksgivin'."

True enough the doctor put the two children into the carriage and helped the mother in with a most loverlike devotion.

"He sort o' does 'pear affectionate," said the Widow Sharpe, looking at Miss Piper with an exasperating smile.

"There's no fool like an old fool," snapped the fair Eudora.

"Did you ever?" asked the President, as the carriage rolled past, and she turned from the window and gazed upon the members.

And the members admitted that they "never did, really, although they had mistrusted it all along.

Do try to be accurate, not only for your own sake, but for the sake of your sex; the incapacity of the female mind for accuracy is a standard argument against the quality of the sexes.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

REASONS WHY.

Royal Baking Powder is the Best in the World.

1. Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, and the only absolutely pure baking powder made. All others contain alum, lime, or other impurity. All the ingredients of "Royal" are first rendered chemically pure, so that no adulterant can possibly enter into it, and it is composed only of those materials pronounced by the most eminent physicians and chemists, and proven by practical experience, indispensable for the production of a perfect baking powder. "It is a scientific fact that Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure."—PROF. H. A. MOTT, Government Chemist.

2. The Royal Baking Powder is of the highest test strength. It produces the maximum amount of gas attainable in a baking powder compounded from proper and wholesome materials, and is, therefore, of the highest possible leavening power. "I find the Royal Baking Powder to produce 127.4 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder" (the largest amount given by any baking powder yet tested).—PROF. E. G. LOVE, Government Chemist.

3. The Royal Baking Powder is entirely free from lime—a quality of the highest importance. Tartrate of lime is present in all other baking powders, chiefly as an adulterant of the cream of tartar used in their manufacture. Cream of tartar, refined by patent processes that totally eliminate all the lime and other impurities, is used exclusively in the "Royal," but in no other powder. "The cream of tartar manufactured by the New York Tartar Company and used in the manufacture of the Royal Baking Powder, is perfectly pure, and free from lime in any form."—WM. McMURTRIE, Chemist-in-Chief, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

4. The Royal Baking Powder will retain its full strength for any length of time in all climates, and under all conditions of atmosphere, and will be found, whenever used, to possess the full leavening power it contained when first made. All other baking powders lack this perfect keeping quality, and will lose their strength to a large degree when a few weeks old. This is because they are made unscientifically, and from impure and improper materials. "I have tested samples of the Royal Baking Powder that had stood for several years upon the shelves of New England groceries, and find their loss of strength was almost inappreciable, being less than one per cent. I have found no other baking powder that will retain even one-half its strength under a similar exposure."—R. W. SCHEDLER, Analytical Chemist, N. Y.

Fuss and Feathers!

Many housekeepers have fuss and trouble with feathers because they are not

CLEAN AND ODORLESS.

We have made arrangements with the Cold Blast Feather Company, of Chicago, for the sale of their goods in this section. The system controlled by this Company for deodorizing feathers has effected a complete revolution in this branch of industry. We can now furnish feathers in perfect condition.

NO ODOR! NO DUST! NO QUILLS! NO GREASE!

Absolutely Clean, Pure and Sweet, and 12 per cent more bulky than feathers treated by the old-fashioned steaming process.

IT LEADS ALL.

No other blood-purifying medicine is made, or has ever been prepared, which so completely meets the wants of physicians and the general public as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases. If there is a lurking taint of Scrofula about you, SCROFULA AYER'S SARSAPARILLA will dislodge it and expel it from your system.

For constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh, CATARRH AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

ULCEROUS SORES "Hutto, Tex., Sept. 28, 1882.—At the age of two years one of my children was terribly afflicted with ulcerous running sores on its face and neck. At the same time its eyes were swollen, much inflamed, and very sore. SORE EYES Physicians told us that a powerful alterative medicine must be employed. They united in recommending AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. A few doses produced a perceptible improvement, which, by an adherence to your directions, was continued to a complete and permanent cure. No evidence has since appeared of the existence of any scrofulous tendencies; and no treatment of any disorder was ever attended by more prompt or effectual results.

Yours truly, B. F. JOHNSON."

Sanitary Code OF THE Township of Westfield, Union County, New Jersey.

Organized in pursuance of an Act of the Legislature, approved March 11th, 1880, entitled "An Act concerning the public health and the record of vital facts and statistics relating thereto," and "An Act relating to local Boards of Health," approved March 22d, 1881.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained by the Board of Health of the township of Westfield, Union county, New Jersey, that the chairman of the Township Committee for the time being shall act as chairman of the Board of Health, and the Secretary of said Board shall be elected at the annual meeting for organization.

SECTION 2. The chairman shall perform such duties as usually appertain to such offices, and the Secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the Board and of all complaints relating to sanitary matters, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Board in the discharge of their duties.

SECTION 3. Meetings shall be held [illegible] at the time of the meetings of the Township Committee and whenever deemed expedient by the chairman or any three members of the Board. Three members of the Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SECTION 4. It shall be the duty of any member of the Board, when appointed by the Board to act as Health Inspector, to investigate and report [illegible] of a nuisance, cause of sickness or source of [illegible] in the public health, and to perform any other duty [illegible] the public health which may be assigned to him by the Board.

SECTION 5. All cases of smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, yellow fever, typhus fever, [illegible] cholera or other contagious or infectious diseases, and all cases of death therefrom in the Township of Westfield shall be forthwith reported in writing to the Board of Health of the said Township by the owner or occupant of any dwelling in which any of such diseases or deaths shall have occurred, and also by the physician in attendance upon the case. All directions which the Board of Health shall prescribe for the purpose of preventing the spread of any of the said contagious [illegible] use of disinfectants, [illegible] otherwise, shall be strictly carried out, and any order that may be made by the Board for the destruction of clothing or other articles [illegible] shall be promptly obeyed.

SECTION 6. That all houses [illegible] within the Township of Westfield [illegible] any contagious, infectious or pestilential disease shall be under the direction of the Board of Health of the Township, [illegible] strictly [illegible] and it shall be the duty of house holders and all persons concerned, [illegible] occurs from any such disease, to [illegible] according to [illegible] each disease [illegible] of all persons liable to become infected thereby.

SECTION 7. That no person shall keep, sell or offer for sale in the Township of Westfield any unripe, adulterated milk or diseased or tainted meat, or unwholesome meat, fish, fowl, vegetables or fruit either as food or medicine, and any such articles so kept, sold or offered for sale may be seized and destroyed by order of the Board of Health.

SECTION 8. That all animals which die or are killed and not used for food within the said Township, shall forthwith be buried by the owner thereof under at least four feet of earth.

SECTION 9. That the owner of, or agent for, or tenant of any private property upon which a nuisance, source of foulness or cause of sickness detrimental to the public health may be found shall upon notice given by the Board of Health [illegible]

SECTION 10. It shall be the duty of all owners, tenants and occupants of any or all buildings in said Township, not to allow any sink, privy vault or cesspool connected or used with their buildings to become filled within one foot of the top, or to overflow upon the surface of the ground, or into the streets or gutters, or running streams, or in any way to become a nuisance or detrimental to the public health; and all privy vaults shall be emptied of their contents in the months of [illegible] of the year at least, and oftener if necessary, and at all times kept in a condition [illegible] injurious to the public health.

SECTION 11. No privy vault, sink or cesspool shall be hereafter constructed in the Township within fifty feet of any well unless a special permit for that purpose shall have been granted by the Board of Health; and any privy vault hereafter constructed shall be made water tight and extend not less than one foot above the surface of the ground.

SECTION 12. That no person shall hinder or obstruct any member or agent of the Board of Health in the discharge of any of the duties of his office, or in any way prevent a full investigation of any alleged nuisance or other source of disease, sickness or injury to the public health.

SECTION 13. That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance or code shall be subject to a fine for each offence of not less than one nor more than [illegible] dollars, and all fines and penalties shall be enforced by action of debt in any court of competent jurisdiction, in the name of the Board of Health, and when collected the same shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Township for the use of the Township. This section shall not apply to [illegible] which specific penalties have been heretofore provided.

SECTION 14. All ordinances and parts of ordinances heretofore adopted inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

POETRY

A DRAMA.

BY M. C. SHUFFEY.

First scene of all, a child is there,
With eyes of brightest blue
Not dreaming once of life's great care,
Of the great world, how untrue.

Second is boyhood's youthful dream,
Where none ever grow old,
And all that glitters to them seem
As if 'twas untarnished gold.

The third act is a man with cares,
Life's battles he must brave,
See how he falls in nets and snares,
Nor calls on God to save.

Fourth scene, and last—this is old age,
This act must soon end all,
When Death appears upon the stage,
We see the curtain fall.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A TIMELY RESCUE.

It was a beautiful day in July, and M. Pontoise, Prefect of the little Norman town of Virentan, lounged back in his arbor, the very picture of full-blown content. M. le Comte de la Croiserie, one of the most distinguished residents of the neighborhood, had asked the hand of Mlle. Melanie Pontoise in marriage. The happy parents could hardly contain themselves for joy, and were eager to tell their daughter the honor that awaited her.

Mme. Pontoise soon appeared, followed by a pretty, fair-haired girl, who put her hand caressingly on her father's arm.

"Now, then, petit pere, what is it you have to tell me? I see it is something nice. Another invitation to England, perhaps?"

"No; you have been too much in England already. M. le Comte de la Croiserie has written to ask for your hand in marriage."

"But I don't know him, mamma. I have only seen him twice."

"Who expects you to know him? We have not yet adopted the English habit of allowing girls to form intimacies with men. Remember, you have already vexed your father twice by refusing two very eligible offers. Do not disappoint him again by rejecting M. de la Croiserie, the most eligible of all. He is coming to a little dinner 'en famille,' so that you may judge of one another. And now I leave you to choose your dress."

Melanie stood at the window, gazing drearily out upon the view. Her heart sank within her. The count was a fine match from a worldly point of view. It was very flattering that he should wish to make her his wife, but she felt it would be impossible to love him. Suddenly there came a loud peal at the door. Who could be ringing so violently? While she was wondering, her mother came rushing into the room, holding a card in her hand.

"Here is young Mr. Paget come to see your father. How provoking! just as he had gone to the prefecture. Do go down and see him. You can speak English, and you must tell him where to go."

Melanie stood transfixed. The event which seemed so commonplace to the mother seemed a miracle to the girl. Mr. Paget was her father's English partner; it was at his house that she had paid those visits of which Mme. Pontoise disapproved. His daughter Alice was her school-fellow and friend; his son Tom was—well, he was her friend, too.

She ran quickly down stairs. A tall, sunburnt young man was standing in the middle of the room, looking eagerly toward the door.

"Oh, Monsieur Tom!" she cried; "est-il possible?"

"Why not?" he said, smiling; "am I so altered? But, I say, you mustn't talk French, you know. I can't understand a word of that!"

Melanie laughed, but the tears so recently repressed were very near the surface.

"Papa will be very glad to see you," she said, with her pretty accent.

Mr. Tom looked moderately elated at the assurance.

"I think you might say you were glad, too, Mlle. Melanie, for unless I had expected to see you I should not have come one hundred miles out of my way."

Just then her mother entered the room. She was displeased to find them deeply engaged in conversation, and packed him off to the prefecture without delay. But she never guessed what her husband would do. He was in such a state of effusive benevolence that he invited Tom to the important dinner in the evening! Mme. Pontoise was immediately disgusted.

Punctual to the moment, M. de la Croiserie arrived, a well-preserved man over fifty. "A galvanized mummy," thought Tom, but his opinion was not very valuable. He had learned the state of affairs from M. Pontoise and had at once conceived a strong prejudice against the Count. He had always liked his sister's pretty French friend, but he had no definite plan or scheme in coming to see her. Now that he found her again, no longer a schoolgirl but a beautiful woman whose life happiness was trembling in the balance, his feelings were stirred and deepened. When they went into the drawing room the mother was suddenly called away, and the Count and M. le Prefect had gone into the garden to discuss matters by the light of a post-prandial cigar. Tom seized his opportunity.

"If you don't like him, there is still time. When you are married it will be too late."

Before Melanie had time to answer Mme. Pontoise returned, and the young people separated.

The next morning M. de la Croiserie sent over a mounted messenger to beg the prefect and his family to lunch at the chateau.

After the ceremonious lunch was over the Count gave his hand to Melanie and led her into the old fashioned garden.

"I wish to thank you, Mademoiselle," he said, gravely, "for accepting my suit. I am older than you; many think me austere, but I assure you that you shall never regret the decision you have made."

Melanie said nothing, but her parents were voluble enough to make amends for her silence. The Count led them through the grounds to the river, where he had ordered a boat to be in readiness to pull them across. M. Pontoise went first, his wife followed. Melanie, pale as death, came third. Her dainty, high-heeled shoes, fit only for a polished floor, failed her on the bank. She slipped and fell into the water. The river was deep. Nobody could swim. The Count stood on the bank paralyzed—staring.

M. Pontoise had thrown off his coat and was struggling in the water, endangering his own life without saving his daughter's. Mme. Pontoise did nothing but shriek, but it was the best thing she could do. It brought rescue. Tom Paget had not gone to Paris; he was hovering about, undecided, uneasy; he heard her screams, and rushed up in a moment. He saw at once what had happened, and running a few yards down the stream plunged in. He had calculated well. Melanie rose to the surface close to the spot, and it was the work of a few strong strokes, and she was safe again in the boat. The next thing was to rescue M. Pontoise. His struggles had exhausted him, and when Tom dragged him out of the water he was quite insensible. Fortunately he was near home. Restoratives were procured, and soon he and Melanie were in each other's arms, rejoicing in their safety.

Tom had no reason to complain that M. Pontoise glared at him like a dragon now. The poor lady had no terms to express her gratitude. There was no more question of his continuing his journey to Paris. The grateful parents would not let him go. Before they retired for the night he had an opportunity of learning Melanie's wishes, and found they coincided entirely with his own. With Tom by her side Melanie feels equal to rejecting a dozen Counts; and it is not likely the worthy prefect and his wife will refuse their child to the man who saved her life.

"Does yer old man work on the dock now?"

"N-a-a-w. He is a musician."

"Is he the man that swallys the clarinet in the band?"

"N-a-a-w; he don't swally the clarinet in the band. He stands on the sidewalk and keeps time wid his fut."

CONSTANCY REWARDED.

AN OLD-TIME LOVE STORY.

The afternoon sun was glowing on the old portraits in Mrs. Knight's low wainscoted parlor as she sat gossiping with her friend. "Why is it old ladies do not wear changeable gray silks now? Nothing can be prettier, and Mrs. Temple looks well in hers."

"Well, my dear Constance, which do you think she will have?"

"Indeed," said Mrs. Knight, "I do not know, but I strongly suspect it will be the Captain, and I wish I liked him better. He hasn't good eyes and has a furtive way of looking at one, as if he had something to conceal. It may be because he knows his eyes are not much to look at. I have observed that persons who are conscious that their eyes are ugly do not show them much."

"I'm sure," responded Mrs. Temple, "to quote my Aunt Patty, 'love is blind agin the man,' but it's true that we know nothing whatever about him."

"Except," added Mrs. Knight, "that he is a handsome stranger and appears to have money."

"Yes, and there is Eustace Tracy, poor, it is true, but so well connected and so much in love with Caroline!—really quite as good looking as the Captain, too. Alas! if we could only choose husbands for our friends!"

"Indeed," said Mrs. Knight, "I wouldn't dare take such a tremendous responsibility on my shoulders. There is Caroline out riding with Captain Aldine now. She grows more beautiful every day."

Both ladies rushed precipitately to the window to see the subjects of the conversation dash by in a handsome turnout.

Well, Caroline Claiborne governed her own way, and she did intend to marry the Captain. A handsome, elegant girl she was—petted and admired in her aunt's family. Yet, unfortunately she had no male relatives living. She was an orphan quite alone in the world, but left with sufficient income to dress well, and was the pride and darling of her old aunt, whom Captain Aldine, with his [illegible] flattering tongue," had fully convinced that he was a most brilliant match for her neice.

Eustace Tracy, it was true, had long loved her in silence, seeming to regard her even in church as "the saint of his deepest devotion." But he was a poor, briefless barrister and had never told his love. Eustace, too, felt that vague distrust of Captain Aldine, but was too noble by far to say one word in disfavor of a successful rival. In his heart of hearts he vowed to retain his friendship for Caroline and make her interests his own, although sore with jealousy. He felt that having once loved as pure a woman he could never think of another. As I said before, it was a pity the girl had no male relatives.

It was a significant fact that none of Captain Aldine's family either wrote to the bride or appeared at the wedding (presents were not in vogue in those days), all of which her lover smoothed over with plausible excuses which completely deceived Caroline and her aunt Miss Harriet; but these facts were the cause of many misgivings to the two ladies who were their mutual friends.

Caroline was radiantly lovely in her bridal robes of white satin with her mother's old point lace and diamonds. Her lover's gift was an opal necklace.

"Don't wear it, honey," said her old nurse, apprehensively. "I've heard them stones don't bring no good to anybody."

Which very negative assertion Caroline merely laughed at, saying it was pretty and she meant to wear it, whether the omen were bad or good.

After the wedding, which was a grand one, Captain Aldine had to say good-bye to his fair bride, being ordered to sea. And had he not secured his prize?

Caroline had decided to remain with her aunt until his return. Only [illegible] or two after he sailed a packet arrived through the mail, sealed, and addressed to Captain Aldine in a lady's hand. Caroline had just finished writing a long letter to her husband to be sent at the earliest opportunity, and said to Miss Harriet: "I must open this and see if it is of importance, and I can send it with mine."

The letter was covered with postmarks, as if it had traveled far in search of him. Miss Harriet was feeding the canary and did not observe Caroline until she had broken the seal; she was the next moment startled by a wild shriek, and Caroline fell fainting to the floor. "My poor child, what is the matter?" she cried, and seizing the letter, she read, "My dear husband." She turned hastily to the signature—"Your affectionate wife, [illegible] Aldine." There was no mistake about it. Captain Aldine had another wife, who begged him in piteous terms to return to her.

Poor Caroline had by this time recovered consciousness—but alas! a consciousness of perfidy in the man whom she had implicitly trusted.

"I shall never willingly look upon his face again," cried she, passionately. "Yet, how shall I escape him?"

Her aunt soothed her as well as she could, and promised all the protection in her power.

Years passed. Captain Aldine returned and had the audacity to seek Caroline and claim her for his wife, declaring in feigned rage that the letter was a forgery. The contrary has, however, been clearly proved and Caroline resorted to all sorts of stratagems in order to elude him.

It was strange, indeed, that she did not resort to the law. But I never heard that she did. At one time she was compelled to escape over the roof of the house at dead of night and take refuge with her old friend, Mrs. Temple.

Need I say it was a relief to hear that his vessel had gone down at sea? Yet she feared that it was untrue, and that he might yet return to torment her. Meanwhile her aunt died, and she was thrown upon her own resources. Being still a beautiful and attractive woman, she had many lovers. Eustace Tracy was an invaluable friend, and she was not too proud to accept assistance from him in finding employment for her willing and accomplished fingers.

She understood mineralogy perfectly, and added to her slender income by arranging cabinets and making lovely shell ornaments, which were fashionable at that time.

In the course of years Captain Aldine did not return, and Caroline Claiborne (as she always called herself) breathed freely once more.

Instead of placing my moral at the end of my story, I will bring it in now, so that it may not escape you.

When you have a secret confided to you, do not even hint that you know it. Do not say, "I should like to tell you something you would give your eyes to hear."

Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Temple were, as you know, great gossips as well as friends. One morning in the course of conversation, Mrs. Knight said mysteriously to the latter:

"I was present at a secret marriage some time ago, and, my dear, I should greatly enjoy telling you about it, but am bound to secrecy."

Mrs. Temple had too much old-fashioned politeness to press her friend, but, of course, was consumed with curiosity. Not long after this conversation she entered Caroline's room unannounced, and to her surprise found her mending a gentleman's coat.

Caroline blushed and started a little, but soon regained her self possession, when she explained that her friend, Mr. Tracy, was obliged to go to Washington on business in great haste, and had begged her to sew a button on his coat. Mrs. Temple would have thought nothing of this trivial circumstance had not her suspicions been aroused; but putting that and that together, immediately the thought flashed upon her, "Here's the secret marriage!" So it proved. In the course of time a notice appeared in the papers to the effect that Eustace Tracy and Caroline Claiborne had been married eleven years previous, but now wished to announce their marriage publicly.

Why, you ask, had it been kept secret so long? Caroline explained to her friends that she had long been haunted by the fear that the man whose wickedness had shadowed her life would again return to persecute her, and a duel might be the result. Moreover, Eustace was not in a position to support a wife in the style he wished, and all his [illegible] maintained but he had been successful, and was now both distinguished and wealthy. An elegant home in Washington was now ready for his still beautiful and stately bride. There a reception was held which was attended by the élite of the city. Their constancy was rewarded after many years.

* * *

A vice that all men shun—advice.

THE LEGLESS HUSTLER OF MISSISSIPPI.

Kemper county, Mississippi, has a citizen who was born without legs, but who makes a modest living by tilling the soil. His name is James Lang, and this year he raised a bale of cotton and sufficient corn for his needs, doing all the work himself, except the plowing. He moves about his farm with ease in a common split-bottom chair. By a slight swaying of his body from side to side he makes his chair move along as one moves a pair of dividers. Mr. Lang keeps out of debt, and purchases enough of supplies after harvest to last him until he gathers the next crop.

NO USE.

A citizen of Brooklyn was met at the door of his office the other morning by a young man who had a bill to collect.

"For shoeing a horse—two dollars for shoeing a horse!" exclaimed the gentleman, as he glanced at the bill. "Why, I haven't owned a horse for the last five years!"

"I don't know anything about that," replied the young man, "but was given the bill to collect."

"Oh, well, I'll pay it. I was just going down to the gas office to protest a bill sent in for the three months that my house was shut up, but I see it's no use. If I have to pay for shoeing another man's horse I might as well pay for some other family's gas."

GIRLS BEHIND GLASSES.

The rage for wearing glasses has struck a majority of the Western cities, and it is not unusual to meet a round dozen pairs of coy feminine eyes looking out through gold, silver or shell rims in walking a single block. Opticians say they cannot account for this sudden passion, but slyly tip the wink and confide to their questioner that it is a fashion that will line their pockets, and should, therefore, not be discountenanced. "It gives one a more intelligent look," whispered a fair devotee of the pebble stone, "and beside," she modestly added, "one can hide one's eyes with them while on the street, and if you look at any person while passing they never know it and you are not accused of flirting."

RINK ETIQUETTE.

The Chicago rink owners are wise in their generation. In order to break the force of the denunciation of skating rinks as detrimental to morals by clergymen, they have formed an association and adopted a code of rules to enforce at the rink. The new rule provides that no person shall approach a woman on the floor of the rink except when she needs assistance in case of accident, unless a proper introduction shall have taken place. Any person violating these rules is to be expelled and not allowed to skate in the city. Tests of speed of over ten miles or of endurance of over three hours are prohibited. A committee of censors is to govern all questions of morality in the rinks and has power to forbid entertainments deemed objectionable. This is no reason why people should not skate upon rollers with as much impunity as they would on ice. There certainly can be no harm in the amusement itself, but all the harm comes from the "masher" and a certain class of precious young girls, who should always be accompanied by a parent or guardian when they appear in public places. There should be just as much social etiquette in a skating rink as there is in a ball room or parlor. A young man who lays any claim to good manners or good breeding would not ask a lady to dance with him unless he was first introduced, and yet young ladies are constantly subjected to this indignity at rinks which are not well conducted. The proprietors of skating rinks cannot make fine distinctions in admitting people, and the utmost promiscuity is the result. But in this case there is no reason why the refined and the coarse cannot skate, if the floor be large enough, without injury being given on the other. If it were not for the omnipresent masher there would be no trouble. These evils seldom display good breeding, if they have any, but they should be compelled to preserve the common rules of propriety, even if it be under a penalty.

THE PARTISAN BILLS.

Assembly No. 363. Provides for the appointment of the Board of Managers of the Morristown Asylum by the Legislature in joint-meeting, the Board to consist of an equal number from each political party. This Board consists of ten members and is now appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

Assembly No. 362. Provides for the appointment of the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School by the Legislature in joint-meeting, the Board to consist of an equal number from each political party. This Board consists of fourteen members, and is now appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

Assembly No. 226. Abolishes the office of Director-at-Large of the Board of Freeholders of Hudson county, and allows the Board to elect the Director.

Assembly No. 227. Limits the power of the Director-at-Large of the Board of Freeholders of Hudson county. It provides that the Board may pass any of its acts over the veto of the Director by a mere majority vote.

Senate No. 49. To enable the Republican Common Council of Newark to remove Democratic policemen.

Senate No. 15. Allows the Board of Freeholders to appoint County Superintendents of Public Instruction in counties in which vacancies have existed for six months. These Superintendents are now appointed by the State Board and the special object of this bill is to enable the Republican Board of Freeholders of Passaic county to appoint a Republican Superintendent.

Assembly No. 274. Abolishes the State Board of Charities and Corrections, and provides for a Board to consist of the Comptroller, Supervisor of Industries, Secretary of Board of Health and three persons to be appointed by the Legislature in joint meeting. This Board, as it now stands, consists of six members, and is appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

Assembly No. 307. Provides for the appointment of the Supervisor of the State Prison by the Legislature in joint meeting. The present incumbent is a Democrat.

Assembly No. 364. Provides for the appointment of the State Pilot Commissioners by the Legislature in joint meeting. The Pilot Commissioners are now appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

Assembly No. 321. Provides for the appointment of District Court Judges by the Legislature in joint meeting. These Judges are now appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Police Justices and Justices of the Peace are the only judicial officers not appointed by the Governor.

Assembly No. 383. Provides for appointment of the Board of Trustees of the State Reform School of the Legislature in joint meeting. These trustees are now appointed by the Board of Control, consisting of the Governor, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and the Chancellor.

Assembly No. 384. Provides for the appointment of the Board of Trustees of State Industrial School for girls by the Legislature in joint meeting. These trustees are now appointed in the same way as the trustees of the Reform School.

Senate No. 142. Provides for the appointment of the State Fish Wardens by a Board of Fish Commissioners, consisting of the Comptroller, Treasurer and one person to be appointed by the Legislature in joint meeting. The wardens are now appointed by the Governor without the advice or consent of the Senate.

The proposed line between Greenwood Lake and Morristown will be commenced as soon as the weather is favorable. Morristown has contributed $30,000 already, Caldwell will supply $15,000, Hanover has given the same ratio, and all along the route of the proposed line funds are coming in. The project has been attempted several times before, but has been stopped, as the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company has also promised to build a road in that direction. As this company has never fulfilled its promises, the people most interested say they will not be cajoled any longer and are determined to put the project through to completion. The high rate of transport on the present line is a great inducement for them to carry their work to successful termination.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS.

A BATCH OF LIVELY GOSSIPING SELECTIONS.

"BOOMING" TIMES.

"How's times, Smith?"

"Booming."

"Why, I thought otherwise. What makes them boom?"

"So many firms exploding."

A SURE TEST.

Mr. Consumer—"The price of gas must have been put down again."

Mrs. Consumer—"I had not heard of it. Why do you think so?"

Mr. Consumer—"I see the bills are higher."

HOW THEY KNOW.

Mrs. De Gossip—"I don't see how those horrid newspapers get to know everything that is going on. Do you?"

Mr. Blank—"Well, no; but I recently saw it stated that over two hundred women were employed on the daily newspapers of the country."

DESERVED HANGING.

Miss Amateur—"I would sing something more for you, but singing always makes me tired."

Ugly Old Bach—"Why don't you use a preventive?"

"A preventive?"

"Yes; stuff cotton in your ears."

MORE PRECOCITY.

"Mother," asked little Polly Witticism, the other day, "do you know why brother Tom is like a parrot?"

"No, my dear," was the reply, "unless it's because he's so talkative."

"Oh, that's not it; that's not it," shouted Polly. "It's because he's so green."

WHY SHE GOT BEHIND.

Mrs. Blank—Don't you think it was very cowardly in Mrs. Dudley to shoot Rossa in the back?"

Mr. Blank—"She had no choice."

"No choice? Why didn't she face him when she fired?"

"She was afraid the bullet might strike his cheek and glance off."

GOING SHOPPING.

Mr. Winks—"I do wish you would read the papers, Mrs. Winks. If you did you would not do so many foolish things."

Mrs. Winks—"Well, what's the matter now?"

Mr. Winks—"You should not carry your purse in your hand."

Mrs. Winks—"Oh, don't worry. It isn't at all heavy."

DIGESTION.

Miss Sharp is making her first visit to Washington. She wrote home to her ownest chum the other day as follows:

"I think I must have got a cast-iron digestion since I've been here. Yesterday, would you believe, I visited the Navy Yard and lunched on a monitor."

On her return she will probably dine on a Pullman car.

HE WANTED TO BE CERTAIN.

"Does the shining steel blade which I hold in my hand cause excruciating pain?"

"What?"

"I asked if the razor hurt you?"

"Is it a razor?"

"Of course it is. Why?"

"I thought it was a saw, but if you are sure it is a razor, go ahead."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Pointing to a jagged scar on his cheek, a tramp said to a pal: "How d'yer think it happened?"

"Bull dog?"

"Nope."

"Tom cat?"

"Nixey."

"What then?"

"I slept with my face on the edge of a poor-house pillow."

WHY HE EXPECTED HIM.

"Good morning, Mr. Longwait; I've a little bill against you."

"Yes, I expected you to call to-day."

"How's that? I never dunned you before and this account has been running eight months."

"Yes, I know; but I expected you to-day, because this is the only day in two years that I have had money enough in my pocket to pay you."

IT BROUGHT TEARS TO HIS EYES.

"I was rich once and drank wine," said a tramp as he poured out a stiff drink of gin.

"When was that?" demanded the bartender.

"A good while ago," he replied, wiping away a tear.

"Well, what are you crying about?"

"I am crying to think what a fool I was to drink wine when I might just as well have had gin."

DIDN'T LIKE TO HAVE HER WAY.

"I tell you I shall do as I please!" shouted Mrs. Miff.

"Well, well, my dear, I didn't say you couldn't," replied Mr. Miff.

"And you can't stop me!"

"I didn't say I could, my dear."

"You'd better not try!"

"Indeed, indeed, my dear, I won't."

"That's just all such a brute cares about his wife!" and Mrs. Miff prepared to cry her eyes out.

PUZZLED.

Milkman—"Are you sure the mistress said ten quarts? She usually gets but one."

Maid—"That's what she said, ten quarts."

"Expect company, perhaps?"

"I ain't heard of none."

"Queer! Is nothing unusual going on?"

"Not that I know of. Oh, yes; I heard her tell the master she was goin' to calcimine the bath-room to-day."

SHAKESPEARE'S FAILING.

Angiomaniac Dude—"Oh, yaas; Shakespeare is good enough, I fawncy; but I nevah read him, ye know."

Yankee Girl—"What, never read Shakespeare! The noblest poet, the master——"

"Ah! yaas, yaas. I grawnt all that, ye know, but I cawnt bear the fellow's language, don't cher know?"

"His language?"

"Yaas, it is so full of blasted Americanisms."

NEEDLESS CRUELTY.

Editor—"And you expect me to use this?"

Spring Poet—"Yes, sir; but I don't want any pay for it."

"Oh, you don't?"

"No, my only desire is to see how my effusion will look in print."

"Ah! Well, I am happy to say that your desire can be gratified; that is, providing you will do as I say."

"Oh, thank you. What shall I do?"

"Buy a type-writer."

THE MOVEMENT SPREADING.

Philanthropist—"Here, here. Stop that. What are you doing to your little brother?"

Boy—"Ain't doing nothin'."

"Why does he cry so then?"

"'Cause I took all his candy away from him."

"But didn't you have some candy too?"

"Yes, but I eat it all up."

"That gives you no right to rob your little brother."

"Yes it do. I'm a Socialist, I am."

GOING TOO FAR.

California Ostrich Farmer—"My dear, did you feed the birds regularly while I was away?"

Mrs. Ostrich Farmer—"Yes, as regularly as I could. I never saw such appetites. The provisions ran short, and I had to feed them on whatever I could find around the house. I gave them two kegs of nails."

"That's right."

"And all the gate hinges and three pieces of old stove pipe."

"Yes? Glad you were so thoughtful."

"Oh! Yes; I forgot. They didn't seem to be satisfied, even then, so I gave them a piece of mince pie."

"Great [illegible], woman, did you want to kill them?"

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

KEEP SEDATE.

Some of our worthy Democratic friends are a little chagrined at the reappointment of Postmaster Pearson in the City of New York, he being a Republican.

Keep sedate, brethren, let us reason together.

The New York Post Office is the most important in the United States.

Its business is immense and demands experienced management.

Mr. Pearson has conducted it to general satisfaction.

His re-appointment was asked for by business men irrespective of party.

Although a Republican, Mr. Pearson is not and has not been an obnoxious partisan.

The Blaine men were furious against him last November because he refused to close the Post Office on election day and convert his employees into an electioneering horde.

He has discharged duty faithfully.

The Independent Republicans, who contributed so largely to Democratic success, while not asking for it, naturally desired his retention.

Republican charges looking to the removal of Mr. Pearson were framed and laid before the Arthur Administration.

Those President Cleveland carefully examined and found them utterly devoid of truth.

To vindicate character and efficiency he nominated Mr. Pearson.

Time will prove his action sound.
Keep sedate, friends!
Pearson is half Democrat now.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

A Democratic Administration has been in authority at Washington for a little over a month, and, we think, every impartial and just minded citizen will join with us in declaring that it has done well—more than well.

President Cleveland was not elected to recklessly overturn, but to prudently and permanently reform.

That he is slowly, but surely accomplishing.

He did not go into office like a tricky politician who treats promises made before election to be afterwards as empty as soap bubbles, but he went there as he ever had been an honest man, loyal to convictions of right, faithful to his pledged word, a sound Jeffersonian Democrat, determined to discharge public duty for the general public good.

That he is fearlessly doing and we honor and thank him for it.

Spoilsmen may growl, corrupt lobbyists rave, land grabbers demur, and extreme partisans of every hue utter harsh invectives, yet the policy of President Cleveland will ultimately remove a mass of festering rubbish, benefit all the people by giving them honest government, and confer lasting credit upon the Democratic party.

Mark our words.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST has time and again, with no uncertain language, advocated

Integrity and practical ability in official positions.

The ousting of all sinecurists, imbeciles and political corruptionists.

Economy and rigid accountability in every department of the public service.

The discharge of public duties in a plain business like manner, for the welfare of the people, and not for sordid gain of any name or kind.

The prompt and faithful execution of all laws.

Those are the sure ingredients of HONEST GOVERNMENT, to inaugurate and carry forward which the people commissioned GROVER CLEVELAND to be their President.

With him public duty is a sacred trust, and to quote General Jackson, "no human power can drive him from the position."

There is a good time coming.

The Governor has appointed Charles Baker to be Harbor Master at Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Mrs. Gen. Tom Thumb was married on Monday last to another midget, Count Primo Magri.

Gov. Abbett has designated Friday, April 24th, as Arbor Day. Let every individual plant a tree on that day.

Hightstown elected a Mayor and Council favorable to license on Monday last, for the first time in many years.

American steel rails, statistics show, wear as long as English, and they are now produced for a very moderate price.

The late Legislature passed a bill exempting firemen who do not receive more than $100 per annum from performing jury duty.

Ex-Secretary of State, Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, lies seriously ill at his residence in Newark. It is not expected for him to recover.

If people would pay more attention to the cleansing of the gutters in front of their houses, the harsh wind would not make so many dirty faces.

Neither President Cleveland nor Mrs. Garfield, both of whom have been announced as "engaged," can be married off by impudent gossips without their own consent.

Charges have been preferred against General William Ward, Postmaster of Newark, accusing him of employment of carriers for political purposes at the last general election.

Ex-Speaker Randall, who has been very sick, is reported as much better. We are glad to hear this. The country needs the retainment of such able men as Mr. Randall, on this earthly sphere.

According to the latest intelligence received, President Barrios, of Guatemala, is dead. No particulars have been received. The gold-hilted sword of President Barrios was found on the battlefield of Chalchuapa, broken.

There were Democratic victories in many parts of the country on Tuesday last. Michigan gave a great Democratic majority. Democratic Mayors were elected in St. Louis, Chicago, Princeton, N. J., and other places.

The Iron Era raises a howl over the appointments to office by President Cleveland, of ex-Confederate soldiers. Of course it has escaped the memory of Bro. Gibson, that Mosby, the guerilla, and a host of other "rebels" that went unhung, were appointed to lucrative offices under a Republican Administration. Brush up your memory a little, Bro. Gib., and don't take it so much to heart because you are "licked."

A bill prohibiting the attendance at school of children who live where there is contagious disease unless they have a certificate allowing them to do so, has very properly been passed at the late session. There has been some unnecessary excitement about this matter on some occasions because the laws are not explicit enough but it is clear that the convenience of a few pupils must not endanger the health of many. There is no better nest to breed contagious disease and transmit it through an entire community, unless proper safeguards are taken, than the public schools.

A company has been organized in Elizabeth, to provide electric lights for that city. A tower is to be erected one hundred and fifty feet high, which will be supplied with four lights, which, it is claimed, will throw a brilliant light two thousand feet. The following named have been chosen directors: Hon. Robert S. Green, F. M. Waterbury, F. W. Stillman, W. H. Gillett, of Elizabeth; Dr. H. A. Johnson, of Easton, Pa., and Hon. George S. Bowen, of Chicago. Recently, at a meeting, the following officers were elected: President, Hon. Robert S. Green; vice president, Henry A. Johnson; treasurer, F. M. Waterbury; secretary, James McGrath; superintendent of construction, W. H. Gillett.

RIGHT YOU ARE.

"The Republican party will regret the action of its legislators before many months have elapsed."—Trenton Times.

THE NEWARK SAVINGS INSTITUTION.

Receiver Wilkinson, of the Newark Savings Institution, has filed his quarterly report showing the following items: Old account, receipts $97,747 70, disbursements $97,747 70, assets $758,281 61, liabilities $540 496 32; new account, disbursements $189 598 16, assets $401,117 90, liabilities $1,628,681.19; other assets on hand not valued, consisting of bonds and stocks, are of the par value of $3,097,500.

FAREWELL, OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

The people of New Jersey must breathe freer now that the Republican Legislature of the State has come to a final adjournment. Such a body of representatives have not been gathered together in years, as that which has just adjourned. Composed principally of youthful brains, it has done but little else than to thwart the will of the chief executive of the State, unmindful of urgent and important measures coming before them. Any measure that the Governor advocated they were opposed to. Of the twenty-two vetoes that he affixed his signature to, the Legislature passed twenty of them over his head. Let us hope that the next Legislature will be composed of different material.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

An examination of the bills in Gov. Abbett's hands after the Legislature had adjourned revealed one for the making of Constitutional Amendments. All efforts to call a Constitutional Convention have been resisted by the South Jersey members who fear a disturbance of the basis of representation in the Senate. The bill that has passed is the most harmless of all the school of Constitutional Amendment bills proposed. It provides for a Commission to draft amendments, which are to be reported to the Legislature in a Special Session to be held in October. Amendments to the Constitution proposed by a Commission need the approval of two successive Legislatures and of the people, to become a part of the State Organic Law. If the Commission provided for in this bill should propose amendments unsatisfactory to the South Jersey sentiment, they can be defeated in the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Legislature adjourned sine die on Saturday at noon. The session has been twelve weeks long, during which 688 bills and about 40 joint and current resolutions were introduced altogether. Of these about 230 have been passed by both Houses and will become laws. The Governor sent in 21 veto messages, mostly of Republican partisan bills, all but a few having been passed, notwithstanding his objections. The proposition to remove the State Capitol to Newark resulted in a compromise offered by Mr. Parker on the part of the Essex delegation. It is that the Governor, Secretary of State, Comptroller and Treasurer be appointed a commission to repair the old building at a cost not to exceed $50,000, and that they report plans to the next Legislature for the erection of a new Capitol, either in Trenton or Newark. This was agreed to by both Houses and a bill was passed to that effect.

General Grant is still alive as we go to press, but his death is momentarily looked for.

NEW MARKET NOTES.

On Sunday morning last about three o'clock the sleepy inhabitants of this sleepy village were aroused by the cry of fire. It was found that the basement, or cellar, under the store occupied by Mr. Rogers the grocer, was the scene of trouble, and the density of the smoke prevented an entrance to the store so not a single item of stock was saved. On the second floor Dunham's [illegible] establishment, and on the west a small building was also occupied for the same purpose and the contents of both, with the exception of one machine, were totally destroyed. So rapid was the progress of the flames that the two buildings were consumed in an incredibly short space of time and the wind blowing briskly from the west it was not a matter of conjecture to decide that H. V. Dunham's residence must also succumb. Strenuous efforts were made to save his household effects, but, notwithstanding the energy displayed there was not help enough to accomplish it, for before the house could be emptied it took fire and besides an alarm was given that the building occupied by Ward the grocer had caught, demanded superhuman efforts to save that from destruction, also added to this was the extreme danger to the Dunham barns, Seaman's Hotel, Kitchen's dwelling and shops. The Kitchen dwelling took fire twice and the house occupied by Larsen once. The losses are considerable. Rogers claims a loss of $3,500, insured for $2,500; Dunham's loss is estimated upon real and personal at about $10,000 and the insurance is about half that amount. Considerable discussion has been indulged in about the origin of the fire. Of one thing it may be certain, the fire started in the basement in which there was no stove and no fire kept, and the goods in the cellar were not of that combustible nature as to cause a fire of their own accord. It is stated that one of the basement sashes was either out or raised and the shutters unfastened at the discovery of the fire and if this is so it may be a robbery had either been contemplated or committed and the fire started to cover the crime, or it may have been caused by accident during its commission. There are ample grounds for an inquiry and we hope it will be made. BROAD BRIM.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 6th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on Central avenue and Front street.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The owners of lands fronting on the North side of Central avenue between Third and Fourth streets, and of lands fronting on the East side of Front street, between Washington street, and a point two hundred feet North of Washington street, are hereby required to flag the sidewalks in front of said lands, for a width of at least four feet, except where they are now already flagged with stone flagging. Said flagging shall consist of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on surface and shall be properly laid in one course under the direction of the Street Commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than two inches thick in the thinnest part.

SECTION 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within twenty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then the Street Committee are authorized and directed to cause said flagging to be laid, and the costs and expense thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the City Charter.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 6, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

To establish the office of Health Inspector, and to prescribe the duties thereof.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council immediately after this ordinance shall become a law to hold office during the pleasure of the Common Council a suitable and competent person to be called the Health Inspector of the City of Plainfield, who shall be entitled to receive such compensation for the performance of the duties of his office as the Common Council may from time to time determine.

It shall be the duty of the Health Inspector to devote all necessary time to the duties of his office, to make diligent inquiry with respect to all matters existing in the city which are or may be injurious to the public health, and to report the same forthwith to the Mayor or City Physician, and during the existence or anticipation of any contagious or infectious disease in the city, he shall have power, whenever in his opinion, the public health demands it to order and cause anything injurious to the public health to be forthwith cleansed, disinfected or removed at the expense of the owner or occupant of the premises in which the same may be, to be recovered by action of debt against such owner or occupant in any court of competent jurisdiction; and for the proper discharge of such duties, he may at all proper times and seasons enter upon the premises and into the house of every person in the City of Plainfield as often as he shall deem necessary or the Board of Health or City Physician may order, and examine into the health, cleanliness and number of persons inhabiting such house, and shall inspect cellars, vaults, privies, sewers and all other places in such premises. He shall obey and execute all orders to him of the City Physician or orders or resolutions of the Board of Health in such manner as they may direct. He shall report in writing to the Board of Health at least once in each month, and also whenever required by the Board in relation to all duties performed by him and to any other matter within his knowledge affecting the public health.

SECTION 2. Any person who shall resist or oppose said Health Inspector in the performance of any of the duties of his office shall upon conviction thereof in the City Court be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

AN ORDINANCE

To Repeal certain Ordinances.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

That the following Ordinances be and the same are hereby repealed:

"An Ordinance designating a council chamber and a city court room," approved November 16, 1874.

And

"An Ordinance regulating the sale of goods, wares and merchandise at auction," approved January 8, 1874.

Adopted April 6, 1885.
Approved April 7, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

For the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield for the year 1885.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be assessed, levied and collected by tax for the current expenses of this city for the year 1885 the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars [$10,000.]

Sec. 2. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the support of the City Poor for the year 1885 the sum of Thirty-five Hundred Dollars [$3500] at the same time and in the same manner as the said sum of Ten Thousand Dollars mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance is assessed, levied and collected.

Sec. 3. There shall be still further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the purposes of the Library Fund of the City of Plainfield a sum equal to one-fifth of one mill on the dollar on all the taxable property in said city, such tax to be levied and collected at the same time and in like manner with the amount mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance, and the moneys when collected shall be held as provided in Chapter CLXIII Laws of New Jersey for 1879.

Sec. 4. That in addition to the taxes to be assessed, levied and collected by the first section of this Ordinance, there shall be assessed, levied and collected for the uses of the City of Plainfield for the year 1885, an extra tax to wit, the sum of Five Thousand Dollars, [$5,000] pursuant to Section Twenty-six of the City Charter and the vote for "Money" at the city election thereunder held on the second day of December, 1884, said sum of Five Thousand Dollars to be assessed, levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner, and the commissioners of appeals on said extra tax to meet at the same time as directed by law in the case of the annual city taxes.

Adopted April 6, 1885.
Approved April 7, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Gentlemen:
Ayer's Hair Vigor
Has been used in my household for three reasons:—
1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.
It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,
WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.

AN interesting pigeon shooting match will come off at Campbell's Club House, Saturday, April 18th., between Harry Campbell and Ed. Campbell on the one side and Dan. Terry and Douglas Darby on the other, for $20 a side, ten birds each.

MISS JESSIE LAFONE who is to skate at the Casino this evening, is considered one of the most graceful and finished artists in the profession. Some of her admirers claim that in ease of execution she surpasses even Miss Houghton, her only rival.

THE Hon. Wm. P. Burr of Norwich, Conn., represents Mr. Edwin Maynard as the manager of the branch of the latter's North avenue hair cutting and shaving parlor, recently located on Somerset St. Mr. Burr is a tonsorial artist of much culture and ability.

AT a recent election the following were chosen as officers of the Saengerbund for the present year: President—Fred Casper; Vice President—Jacob Keller; Treasurer—George Bremer; Financial Secretary—Chas. Dressel; Recording Secretary—Charles Mass.

THE grand triplex-exhibition of bicycling feats and features, that has been arranged by the Plainfield Club of wheelmen, is postponed indefinitely by reason of the absence of one of the most graceful members of the drill squad. We hope to give the date in our next issue.

A SMALL flight of English snipe arrived on the meadows in this section the first of this week. There was as usual two gunners to every bird. We hear of one party, Messrs. E. Shepherd, W. Gaddis and John TenEyck, killing thirteen of these birds one morning when the flight was on.

> A prominent New York firm asks through its agent for two-thirds of a page of the Times to secure trade from Plainfield. But the bother with these large advertisements is that they want too much for too little money.—Central Times.

Our contemporary is unfortunate. THE CONSTITUTIONALIST receives full rates for the same advertisement. Circulation will tell, however.

THE Third Annual Convention of the N. J. Sunday School Association for the 3d District, will be held in Jersey City, Monday and Tuesday evenings, the 20th and 21st insts. The Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., is President, and the Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., is one of the workers who will address the convention.

A WORTHY family is in need of a bedstead, mattress and household furnishings. Any benevolent person willing to do a kind act where it will be gratefully appreciated, can do so by donating any of the above articles, and leaving name and address at Relief Association on Second street, corner Madison avenue, when they will be sent for.

THE Rahway Democrat has been enlarged a column to each page. We are glad to note this evidence of prosperity in our contemporary. The Democrat, under the editorship of Judge L. A. Hyer, has always been a sound advocate of Democracy and the exponent of honest government—municipal, state and national. Shake, per "Lew."

THE entertainment to be given at Music Hall, Thursday evening the 23d inst., for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital, is both novel and enjoyable, Miss Medora Henson the vocalist and Mme. Alberti the elocutionist, are the principal attractions, but there are other entertaining features of the programme that we will speak of next week.

ON our third page of this issue appears the advertisement of Mr. Harold Serrell, the President of the Plainfield Bicycle Club and State Representative to the League of American Wheelmen. He has been appointed sole agent in this city of the "Victor," the "Rudge," the "American Club," and the "Royal Mail" bicycles and tricycles. Mr. Serrell's knowledge of wheels and experience as a wheelman, excellently fits him to advise those desiring to purchase.

THE annual Parish meeting of Grace church was held on Easter Monday, at which the following persons were elected wardens and vestrymen: John B. Dumont and E. E. Clark wardens and Messrs. W. E. Lowe, O. T. Waring, E. L. Finch, E. N. Erickson, O. H. Fleming, W. R. Cock and C. J. Ames, vestrymen. Delegates to Convention—Messrs. J. B. Dumont, W. E. Lowe and O. B. Clark. Alternates—O. H. Fleming, C. J. Ames and E. L. Finch. Delegate to Convocation—E. E. Clark.

THE American Mutual Assurance Company of Plainfield had $1,800 insurance on the buildings burned at New Market, Sunday morning.

AT the recent election of trustees in the Methodist Episcopal church the following were chosen: Messrs. P. M. French, I. W. Pangborn, G. H. Burgess, J. W. Jackson, D. H. Mulford, H. K. Carroll and H. A. McGee.

"ALERT" HOSE COMPANY have purchased a "jumper" of the Newark Fire Department, which will be run to fires by horse. The apparatus is now in the repair shops and will arrive at "Alerts" house the latter part of this month.

PROF. SAM FRAZEE was the recipient of a ten-pound salmon from his son-in-law, Mr. Charles Stillwell, Ontario, Canada, last week. Although we failed to be remembered by "Sam" in his distribution of fish, we are assured by those who were more fortunate that "de eatin' was fine."

WHEN you see Officer Lynch escorting a peripatetic peddler along our streets, you can safely wager that Judge Good wants to see him in reference to a small fee exacted for the privilege of disposing of his wares on the public highway. "Pat" keeps his eyes open for this class of people.

Oh! Where's The Gun.

[From the Elizabeth Herald, April 6th.]

Plainfield wants a poor farm. There are lots of poor farms in that vicinity.

Let The Good Work Go On.

Councilman Dumont's macadamized streets have stood the late severe frosts, admirably. The public have reason for their satisfaction with the work, and justly hope it will be extended during the Summer.

Build Both at One Time.

If we are to have waterworks and a sewerage system (and we are to have them some day), the City should build and control them. Then the public could have a voice in the management. But not one without the other, in any case.

Go Away From Home For News.

[From the Elizabeth Herald, April 6th.]

Early last evening a small barn belonging to Augustus Frazee, in Plainfield, was destroyed by fire. A horse, owned by John H. Stevens, was rescued with some difficulty, after his blanket had ignited.

Who Is This?

The New York World of Wednesday last, says:—"Maria Louisa Feyen, who worked as a servant in Plainfield in January, is being searched for by the authorities of Antwerp, Denmark. Her aunt recently died, and Miss Feyen becomes one of the heirs to her property."

It Was A Carp!

Last Thursday at the Dam Thos. Pendergrass caught in a scoop net a curious fish. It weighed five pounds, was about twenty inches long and had three rows of scales on each side. The scales were about as large as a silver quarter. Its mouth was the shape of that of a sea sucker.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

Opportunity to Prove His Ability.

We Democrats are assured of Postmaster Pearson's fitness because he was reappointed by President Cleveland. But our Republican friends would be better convinced of his ability should he arrange the arrival of the New York mail in this city at an earlier hour. Those who now wait for the opening of the morning mail cannot reach New York before eleven o'clock.

Nipped In The Bud.

A bunch of "waste," saturated with some inflammable chemical, loaded with a chunk of iron, wrapped in paper, and thrown on the roof of an extension to the Casino Rink building, became ignited during Tuesday morning last; but being discovered as it began to blaze about eleven o'clock, it was quenched just as the tarred roof began to melt and the building thereby saved.

For The Public's Good.

Councilman Goddard has made a study of the subject of water works and sewerage, and the adaptability of the various systems to the needs of this city. It is probable that during the continuance of his term of office, the first if not the final steps in the direction of the introduction of water and sewers in Plainfield, will be taken. Therefore the community is most fortunate—its interests alone control the action of such Councilman as Mr. Goddard.

Holy Cross Parish Meeting.

On Tuesday the annual parish meeting of Holy Cross church took place. The result of the election was as follows: Wardens—W. Rockhill Potts, George P. Dupee. Vestrymen—Mason W. Tyler, Isaac C. Yawger, Judson A. Brown, J. J. Henderson, Walter Scott, C. J. Taggart, E. A. C. Woltman. Delegates to Diocesan Convention—W. J. Leonard, A. E. Faber, Jr., P. B. Matthews. Alternates—William Mooney, Frank S. Browne, Charles Wann. Delegate to Convocation—W. J. Leonard.

Fifty-Five Years Married.

Doctor S. N. Marsh and wife, father and mother of Mrs. E. L. Morris, and of Dr. Seymour Marsh of Third place, celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, at the residences of their children in this city, on Wednesday of this week. The venerable couple are in good health. The doctor is in the 79th year of his age, and his estimable wife is in her 76th year. They reside on a beautiful little farm at Jamaica, L. I., surrounded by all the comforts of life. May they have many happy returns of the day, is the wish of their loving children, and all who know them.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The attendance at the reading room during March was 2,158, an average of 83. This is the largest number of visitors the associations has ever had.

At the meeting of the Senior Society held last Tuesday evening, an impromptu debate took place, subject "Resolved that the printing press is more useful than the steam engine." This proved a very interesting subject and was warmly debated, all the members taking part. Next Tuesday evening the meeting will take the form of a "Legislative Body," "Passing a Bill," etc. This will be the most interesting meeting the Society has ever had.

Why We Feel Proud.

A few weeks ago when the circulation of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST reached 2 360, our readers pardoned our natural expressions of self-satisfaction over such achievement. This continued growth of circulation brings with it increased advertising patronage, and to-day our issue contains 668 inches of legitimate advertisements—not a line that is not paid for and at our own rates. We are justly proud that our circulation and advertising patronage is greater than any other paper in Union county. Our receipts for advertising alone in one week, are more than any other paper in the city receives in a month.

Personals.

Mr. Bennet Brittin, of Scotch Plains, is recovering from severe illness which has confined him to his bed for three weeks past.

Mr. Sylvester Titsworth, a former resident of Plainfield, died suddenly at Akron, Ohio, April 4th. Mr. Titsworth was 1st Lieut. of Co. C., 88th Reg. Illinois Vol. Inft., and a member of Custer Post, No. 5, G. A. R. Dept. of Michigan.

The death of Mrs. Washington Lithgow at her residence on Crescent avenue, during last Tuesday, has called forth the sincerest sympathy of the public. The deceased was in private and public life, in her home and church, the noblest work of God—a true woman.

Fire.

About half-past seven o'clock Sunday evening last, a small barn, belonging to Miss Mary Boll, in the rear of her residence on Peace street, was discovered to be in flames. The department responded promptly to the alarm, and soon quenched the fire. The building was occupied by Mr. Isaiah McVoy, as a stable. His horse was with difficulty rescued from the barn. The animal was considerably scorched, the blanket covering him being burned in two places. Sparks set fire to Miss Boll's house, but the flames were soon extinguished by the truckmen. Mr. McVoy lost a sett of harness and a small quantity of hay. He was insured. The barn was not insured. Incendiarism is alleged to have been the cause of the fire.

An Easter Card.

TO FRIENDS OF CHILDREN'S HOME:—The lady managers of the Home, wishing to secure funds to meet their expenses during the Summer, when so many of their friends are out of town, and also to avoid the trouble and expense of a Fair, have arranged with the Jubilee Singers of Fisk University to give a concert at Music Hall on Friday evening, April 10th. The ladies urge all their friends to buy tickets for this concert, in full confidence that they will not only aid us financially in our work but secure for themselves a rich musical treat. These people are not "traveling negro minstrels," but intelligent and Christian men and women, who have sung their way into the hearts and homes of some of the noblest families in Europe and America. Kind friends, will you not heed the injunction—"Help those women who labored with me."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Mean Enough.

It is reported that the Philadelphia & Reading Co., who pay very high salaries to the head officials, now insist on the baggage men of their trains making returns for the dogs carried on the cars.

A Duty.

The nominees for election as members of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department, in the places of Commissioners Jones and Van Winkle, whose terms will have expired, are: Messrs. J. Van Winkle and W. E. Jones, the present incumbents, and Messrs. V. W. Nash and F. Knowland. Every legal voter who resides within the fire limits is entitled to vote, and should exercise his power to secure the election of the best men. The time and place are next Monday between the hours of two and seven p. m., at Laing's Hall, Front street.

Doctors Agreeing.

The regular quarterly meeting of the "Plainfield Physician's Union," was held at Force's Hotel, Monday evening last, all but two of the members being in attendance. After an enjoyable evening in the discussion of matters pertaining to their calling, they sat down to a bountiful repast, in the enjoyment of which, all professional cares were forgotten. The "Union" for a long time past, have been in the habit of holding their quarterly meetings at the residence of members, but desiring to relieve their households of the necessary care and trouble of such gatherings, they decided to meet hereafter at Force's Hotel.

The Y. M. C. A.'s New Rooms.

The new rooms of the association will be ready for occupancy May 1st, and will be quite an improvement on the present quarters. There will be a large reading room and office accommodating double the number of readers the present one will. A large parlor to be used for a conversation room, reception room, etc., and also for a committee room and small meetings. An amusement room to be supplied with checkers, chess, dominoes, and other games. A good sized library, and hall seating two hundred or more to be used for meetings, requiring more seats than our hall now accommodates. There is also to be a kitchen and lavatory. The rooms will be heated by steam, well lighted, and with good ventilation; the location is central, with a fine entrance.

The Private Secretary.

One of the Music Hall's largest audiences filled its auditorium and gallery, Tuesday evening, and displayed more real pleasure and sincere approval than we ever before observed. Of course no one can resist the humorous situations that crowd to overflowing the three acts of C. H. Hawtrey's "Private Secretary," and Plainfield's higher and lower grades of society joined together, that evening, in intense enjoyment of George Kyle's imitation of Frank Thornton and the irritability of Leonard Grover's liver. With but one exception the company was decidedly good. That exception, however, was most disappointing. Why Miss Ida Bowdoin May should be sent here in the part of "Edith" when her superior was obtainable, it is impossible to understand.

Whose Bones Are They?

On the property of Mr. Jeremiah Manning at Dunellen and Albert avenues, there stood, until it fell recently, an elegant white wood tree about 100 years old. The stump was allowed to remain until the past Winter's frost began to loosen its hold on the roots, and last week Mr. Manning's men began the work of removing it. Directly under the tree, about four feet below the surface of the ground, were found a lot of human bones and skulls. None of the old residents seem able to decide whose remains they constitute. They surely were buried before the tree commenced to grow, and may be all that is left of some of the soldiers that General Washington viewed from the Rock. Or they may be the skeletons of the owners of numerous Indian relics that have frequently been found in the same vicinity.

A Great Entertainment.

Next Tuesday evening at the Reform Hall, the public is to be given an opportunity of hearing that bright new star in the elocutionary firmament, Miss Alice R. Fischer. This young lady's character is endorsed by such high authorities as Senator Voorhees of Indiana, and the Hon. Samuel J. Randall, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives; while her talent and ability is recognized as far above the average by the Professors of the New York Lyceum School of acting. Miss Fischer's future is bound to be a brilliant one, and we confidently expect to hear nothing but the most commendable praise of her continued career as an elocutionist, or, if she so chooses, as an actress of unusual skill and the highest rank. The programme is to be made additionally attractive by the vocal abilities of a quartette composed of Mrs. Collier, Miss Smillie and Messrs. Elmer Runyon and Hedges. General admission is 25 cents, with a reserved seat 50 cents.

Fire Commissioner Election.

Next Tuesday, April 14th, there will be an election held in this city for two members of the Board of Fire Commissioners, to serve for three years each. The fire companies, as usual, have made nominations for the offices, in the persons of two of the present incumbents, Wm. E. Jones and Jeremiah Van Winkle, ex-Councilman Fred. Knowland and Justice of the Peace, V. W. Nash. Any two of these gentlemen would make good officials. Of course, there are various objections made by individuals, against each and every candidate. The charge has been made by those opposed to Mr. Knowland, that he is in favor of Water Works, and this argument is used against his election by friends of other candidates. In an interview with Mr. K., he assures us that the subject of Water Works has never been broached to him or alluded to by him in his candidacy. He has not sought the office, and will leave the matter of his election or defeat with his friends. This bugabo of Water Works should not influence any voter in his choice of candidate for Fire Commissioner. Every legal voter within the fire limits has a right to vote at the election next Tuesday.

Another Ornament to Washington Park.

Mr. Charles Gill is to do the carpentry and Mr. Isaac Pangborn the masonry for the new residence that Mr. Charles W. McCutchen intends erecting at Rockview and Washington avenues. The plans by Architect Smith provide for the building of one of the most strikingly handsome homes in this vicinity. It will be 75 feet front on Rockview avenue, with a depth of 54 feet in the extreme. The entrance hall 21½ feet wide running through the entire house, contains a large open fire place, its ceiling is panelled, and a six-foot wainscotting runs all around. Opening off the reception room at the right is a drawing room, also connecting with the hall, 17 by 24 feet in extent. Upstairs are beautifully arranged suites with separate bath-room, and many fine sleeping rooms. Nursery and other desirable apartments are arranged in a most suitable and skillful manner. The exterior will be constructed of brick with brownstone trimmings to the floor of the second story. Above that the elevation will be carried up in red-wood tiling, and other tasteful uses of timber in architectural ways. Dormer and bay windows, an open gallery from a sitting room, hooded doorways, a 17 foot wide piazza and other exterior embellishments, are grouped together as a most graceful and charming whole.

The Latest Rinkies.

Adam is supposed to have been the first roller skater because he had the first fall.

The costumes of Miss Lafone, who exhibits at the Casino this evening, are described as extravagantly costly. The dress she will wear here is said to have cost $600.

The bicycle wizards, the Aldens, astonished those who attended the Rink, Tuesday evening, with an exhibition of acrobatic riding that has never been equalled by others in the same line. We trust they will appear again when other attractions do not claim the attention of the public.

Mr. Chas. R. Frace who has recently been advanced to the position of floor manager at the Casino Rink, received last week another proof of the esteem in which he is held by the rink's patrons. An elegant gold medal, appropriately inscribed, was presented Mr. Frace by a number of his friends.

Roller skates are not a new invention. They were originally called parlor skates and were a French invention, being largely used in carpet parties. We remember having on a pair eighteen years ago, and managing within a very few minutes' time to sit down on a what-not of old china, climbing into an exotic fernery and finally subsiding, feet first, under the canopy of a grand piano. Oh, yes, we know all about the roller skate.—Fall River Advance.

The Somerville Messenger says:—"The game of polo announced for Tuesday evening did not take place, the Casinos of Plainfield failing to put in an appearance. The following note was received from them: 'On account of an entertainment at our Opera House, which most of our team will attend, we will be unable to play you.' As the Casinos have failed to meet their engagements on other occasions we are inclined to believe they are afraid of the Somerville boys."

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, April 6th.

The Council met in regular meeting. Present—President Coriell and Messrs. Beguelin, Dumont, Gallup, Goddard, Marsh, Simpson, Wadsworth, West—9. Absent—Messrs. Livingston, Love—2.

The minutes of last regular meeting, approved as read.

Dr. Edward Rossmore asked for permission to add a second story to his carriage house on Park avenue. Ref'd with power.

The residents in that direction asked for the location of six lamps on West Front street, between the city and Evona. Ref'd.

Geo. W. Moore asked the removal of a boot and shoe sign at 24 E. Front street. Ref'd.

The majority of the property owners on Park place asked for its acceptance as a public street and requested that it be put in proper order. Ref'd.

A communication was received from Mr. L. W. Serrell in relation to a proposed sewer at Plainfield avenue and Front street. Ref'd with power.

The following claims were presented and referred to the proper committees: Charles Dodd, $58.34; Geo. W. Grant, $30; P. Lynch, $30; T. McCue, $50; M. Bird, $62.50; G. M. Angleman, $22.92; P. P. Good, $85; O. B. Leonard, $87.50; J. Van Winkle, $87.50; W. V. Mundy, $20.50; Times Printing and Publishing Co., $114.15, Cortlies, Macy & Co., $51.75; M. Keid, $16.85; Berry & Thorn, $22.65; G. M. Angleman, $361.50, and $31.25; Jno. Wilson, $759.95; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gas Co., $1[illegible].50; Plainfield Gas Light Co., $[illegible].50; John Johnson, $22.01 and $3.50, P. A. Dunham, $145.24 and $34.81; Dr. Fritts, $18.80; C. A. Marsh, $24.30; M. Thompson, $4; A. Runyon, $6; F. Hallenbeck, $12; D. Conway, $12; W. C. T. U., $12.50; M. Van Nest, $14.25, A. Winitt, $17.50; F. Conehay, $18; M. Cooper, $22; Ford & Stiles, $30; P. Relief Asso., $62; M. Moran, $4. The bill of R. W. Mahaffee for license fee of $15 paid by him but since "abrogated" by a State law, was, on motion, returned to the claimant.

The Mayor nominated as a member of the Board of Directors of the Library in the place of Mr. Jno. H. Evans, resigned, Mr. J. E. Tracy, who was unanimously confirmed.

Also, nominating certain special police, whose names were laid on the table.

The Street Commissioner's bond was presented, referred to the Laws Committee, and subsequently returned to the Council as approved.

The quarterly statement of the City Treasurer and the monthly report of the Collector, were received and filed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On rooms—Reported progress, and the Committee was authorized to procure the carpets and furniture necessary to furnish the new rooms.

Alms—Recommending the surrender of the premises at present rented in Pruden's alley. Adopted. A warrant was ordered drawn for the April rent of the same.

Finance—In relation to the petition of Mrs. Tingley for a credit of taxes, she claims to have paid amounting to $65.14, but which are not shown as paid on the books, the Committee merely stated the facts in connection without any recommendation. Rec'd and filed. A communication from the City Collector waiving all right to fees on delinquent taxes, was presented and filed.

Lamps—Recommending the continuance of the present contract for lighting the streets, and the adoption of a contract in the same matter with the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Co. Recommending that the proposed Ordinance in relation to the protection of public buildings from fire be not adopted. Recommending that no lamp be located at LaGrande and Kensington avenues as petitioned. Providing for uniform styles of lamps and approving of the location of a lamp on East Front street. All the above recommendations of the Committee were adopted.

The Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, Your Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, believing, as they do, that the time has arrived when the matter of Water Works and sewerage should receive the intelligent attention of the citizens and Common Council of the city of Plainfield, and

WHEREAS, For self-evident reasons, your committee feel themselves incapable of deciding. 1st. What system is best suited to the city's need. 2d. Whether the work had best be done by the city or the franchise granted to a private corporation. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, be hereby authorized to employ a competent hydraulic engineer at a cost not exceeding five hundred dollars to make a survey of the city of Plainfield as to a system of Water and Sewerage Works, and to prepare plans and specifications for the same, to end that the Committee may report and the citizens and Council act intelligently and satisfactorily in relation to this matter of vital importance to all concerned.

On motion of Mr. Dumont, action laid over until the regular May meeting.

License—The applications for hack and peddler's licenses were reported correct, and granted.

The Committees on Alms, Finance, Lamps, Laws, Police, Printing, Salaries and Streets reported as correct sundry claims in their hands. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Dumont offered for adoption an Ordinance to establish the office of Health Inspector. Read the first and second times and ordered engrossed preparatory to its final passage.

By the same an Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulating of scavengers. Laid on the table during its second reading, and fifty slips ordered printed.

Mr. Marsh offered for adoption an Ordinance directing the flagging of certain sidewalks. Read, the first and second times, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its final passage.

Also by the same, a resolution requesting the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co., to return any telephone removed from any fire apparatus house in the city, without the consent of the Council or the Fire Board. Adopted.

The Ordinance for the assessment of taxes, and the Ordinance repealing certain Ordinances, were put on their third reading and adopted.

A resolution designating the new rooms in the Ryder building as the Council room and City Court room after May 1st, was adopted.

On motion it was ordered that a regular meeting of the Council be held on Monday evening the 27th inst.

It was resolved that the Police Board be authorized to select and appoint special police for regular duty at half pay. Also relieving certain parties and estates of interest on delinquent taxes, provided the Mayor approve of such action.

The Aud. Com. approved the claims referred which were ordered paid.

The Council then adjourned.

W. C. T. U. No. 2.

The effort of Mrs. Price, that we recorded in our last issue, have born the intended fruit to a certain degree. The Reform Club No. 2 and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, No. 2, have been created; so that the colored people of Plainfield are at last to experience the pleasures and trials of "organizing in the cause of temperance, just like white folks." The officers of the No. 2 Reform Club are:

President—Rev. John Cary.
Vice President—Edward Maynard.
Secretary—Benjamin Sutton.
Treasurer—Price Yetman.

Those of the No. 2 W. C. T. U., are:

President—Mrs. Georgiana Wilson.
Vice President—Mrs. Chrissy Johnson.
Secretary—Mrs. Annie Perry.
Treasurer—Mrs. Rose Venable.

This gives an equal representation to the Mount Olive Baptist church and the Bethel Mission. The women's meetings will be held on first and third Wednesday evenings of each month at 8 p. m., alternately at Bethel Mission and Mount Olive church. The first mission will be at Bethel Mission, April 15, at 8 p. m. Men's meetings each alternate Tuesday, at 8 p. m., at same places. First meeting on Tuesday, April 14, at Bethel Mission, 8 p. m.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Please allow me to state, that the Fire Board has submitted to the people, the proposition to pay fixed salaries to the officials of the Fire Department, for assessing and collecting taxes, in lieu of fees as heretofore paid for like services, because the salaries would be less than the fees, and the people would be the gainers by the change.

E. L. MORRIS.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Fallen Asleep.

A lamb of God has fallen asleep—gone to her rest—been borne to life. On many of the tombs of the early christians was inscribed "Born"—followed by the date of the putting off of the human tabernacle of clay. As life on earth is but the preparatory school for higher service, no other words could so suitably indicate the true birth. On the day of death the mortal puts on immortality and death is swallowed up in victory. When a soul during its residence in time has every hour shone forth its purity, truth and holiness, we know that it has been prepared for the great change and has at last secured its reward in eternity. Such an one left us March 28th—Mrs. William H. Sebring—one who from childhood's hour had walked with Jesus; whose life had been spent in His service, with the love of God filling every thought and governing every act of her brief life on earth. As wife, mother, friend, she endeared every heart that came near her. A tender, loving and inborn cheerfulness adorned and beautified her home, while her holy example taught others the way of life. She was always anxious for others, and even the last visit she paid on earth was to a loved sister with the object of eliciting joint prayers for others who were near and dear to both. When informed of the near approach of death she still wore a smile, and although desirous to live for her husband and her children, expressed a perfect readiness to go if such were the Master's will. While friends wept over her cold form, those who knew her—and they are many—had the great and comforting assurance that her tomb might in full hope and trust be inscribed—CARRIE SEBRING, born March 28, 1885.

Plainfielders On A Lark.

[Halifax Journal, Daytona, Florida.]

Monday the steamer May carried a jolly party to the Tomoka to see the scenery of that beautiful little river and to shoot alligators. The party was composed, firstly, of three dominies, to wit: Rev. A. H. Lewis, Plainfield, N. J., Rev. O. D. Sherman, Mystic Bridge, Conn., and Rev. C. M. Bingham of Daytona. There were also in the party L. T. Clawson, Westerly, R. I.—who is becoming absolutely irreclaimable in his attachment to the May and our Halifax coast—J. F. Hubbard, Plainfield, N. J., and several Daytonians for ballast. Soon after entering the Tomoka an alligator was espied by Mr. Lewis sleeping in the edge of a marsh nearly opposite the Snow landing and without giving the reptile a chance to awaken to a sense of its danger he fired a load of buckshot at it, one of which actually upset it by penetrating the cranium through the eye. They say the minister, as bad as a boy shooting his first rabbit, swung his hat, shouting "I've got him Dave! can't we stop!" and while the steamer was rounding to nearly suffocated his companions with the extra garments he divested himself of as he jumped into the row boat. Mr. Hubbard further reports that the 'gator was pined to death with a boat hook, run over by the steamer, choked by hanging and finally poisoned with arsenic, but the final result is, Mr. Lewis has as a trophy the hide of an eight foot 'gator with which to illustrate vividly to his congregation at home the one class of Floridians who only will not be pleased to have him locate upon a lot having an alligator front. A still larger one was discovered sleeping in the sun who received the fire of the entire party excepting the Rev. Mr. Bingham and finding that the latter had no shot gun, disappeared in disgust, determined that if the Congregational church did not desire a representative of his order the Seventh Day Baptist church must be content with the specimen secured.

The marriage of Mr. Ainsworth J. Hague of Roseville, N. J., and Miss Susie E. Baker of Westfield, N. J., daughter of F. R. Baker, took place Thursday evening, at the residence of the bride's parents. They were joined with a ring, by the Rev. W. Steelman of Roseville, N. J., in the presence of the families and intimate friends of the contracting parties. They were stationed at the south end of the parlor, where an arch was suspended over the bride, and the flowers formed a back ground. The ushers were Mr. John A. Baker, brother of the bride, and Mr. Leonard Melick of Plainfield, N. J. The bridesmaids were Miss Josie M. Baker, sister of the bride, and Miss Mamie F. Chedister of Newark, N. J., who were in full dress. The bride was attired in dream satin radamah trimmed with pearls and lace. The front was trimmed with arsene and white plush roses, the veil being attached with lillies of the valley. After the marriage followed a bountiful supper. The music was rendered very tastefully for the occasion by Miss Jessie H. Lowndes of N. Y. The bride and groom departed during the festivities, and left en route to Washington, D. C.; from thence to New Orleans Exposition. The presents were handsome and useful, including diamond ear-rings from the groom, two silver tea sets, a French clock, oil paintings, placques, ice pitcher, castor, colored glass ware, and many more useful articles.

On Wednesday morning at 1:30 a. m., the building occupied by Griffith & Co. for the manufacture of brewers' chips, was totally destroyed by fire. When first discovered the whole inside of the building was ablaze. The members of the several fire companies quickly responded to the alarm, but could be of little service, except in the saving of adjoining property. The building a number of years ago was occupied by Sandford & Moffett as a carpenter shop, for from ten to twelve years; then the Gardner Plate Manufacturing Company leased it, for the making of wooden butter plates. For the past year it has been occupied by Griffith & Co., who had put into the building a large lot of machinery for the manufacture of brewers' chips from beach logs. They had been running night and day for some time past, having large orders ahead, but shut down on Monday last awaiting the arrival of more timber. Mr. Foster, who had charge of the factory, says there was no fire in or around the building since Monday. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. There was no insurance on building. Griffith & Co. had insurance on the machinery, but not enough to cover their loss. Joel Moffett, carpenter and builder, who occupied one of the wings of the building, loses on tools, window frames, and lumber. Amos B. Allen and Zachariah Moffett, two of his workmen, lose nearly all of their tools, having no insurance. Edward G. Sandford, engineer in factory, loses a chest of tools.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

The Truth as an answer to the Bombastic Advertising of the Royal Baking Powder Co.

We are analyzing all the Cream of Tartar used in the manufacture of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, and we hereby certify that it is practically chemically pure—testing as high as 99.95 per cent and not less than 99.50 per cent.

From a hygienic point of view we regard Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder as the ideal baking powder, composed as it is of pure Grape Cream of Tartar and pure Bicarbonate of Soda.

THE MODERN RUTH.

Dr. Alexander Andover threw himself into the big leather-covered chair before his office fire with a weary sigh. He was a fine-looking man of thirty, not handsome, but noble and manly-looking—one to be trusted forever, with his broad, white brow and grave clear gray eyes. His lips, too, under the full brown beard, were as fine as a woman's, without lacking in strength and firmness.

Dr. Andover's patients—especially the poorer class and children—turned to him instinctively for advice and sympathy. He was one of those grand, kingly natures which seem made for leaders and comforters. Poor old Betty Cary, a bed-ridden paralytic, could not speak of him without shedding tears of gratitude. Little Jane Ellis, suffering with an incurable hip disease, looked upon him as a sort of god upon earth. There were a score more who thought of him not only as their physician, but as a kind and generous friend, who delighted to brighten the lives which would otherwise be poor and barren enough.

But fate had lately frowned upon him. In the first place, the bank in which the greater part of his snug little fortune was deposited had failed, and directly upon this came the news that some mining stock in which he had invested was worthless, or nearly so. The doctor did not fear poverty himself—the practice brought him a comfortable income, for the rich appreciated him as well as the poor—but miles away in a distant city there was a lovely girl whom he had hoped to call wife by Christmas time. A girl who, though not wealthy herself, had been extravagantly educated by her uncle, in whose luxurious home she lived. He knew that not the slightest privation had ever come to her; she was a petted darling, with hands like a baby's.

Lovely, dainty, useless, as she seemed, Dr. Andover had poured the whole passion of his great heart upon her; and you are not to think him weak because just at first, when the news of his great fortune came to him, he shrank and trembled under it, thinking of the girl he loved; for he must give her up. There was no doubt in his mind about that. He could not ask her to share the fate of a poor physician who depended upon his fees for a living.

So Dr. Andover had written her a brave farewell letter just a month before the time set for the wedding, informing her of his altered fortune and releasing her from her engagement to him, and he had received no answer, although it was now Christmas week.

The doctor was worn out with exposure to rough weather and many sleepless nights. The demand upon his time and strength had been greater than usual.

It was Christmas week, and Maud was to have been his own next Friday night. This thought tortured him unceasingly, together with some words in a letter which had reached him a few days before—a letter from an acquaintance who was visiting in the city where Maud lived.

"I met your 'fiancee' at a party last evening," he had written. "I admire your choice. She was the brightest, loveliest there, and the most graceful dancer."

Dr. Andover experienced a cruel sense of desolation as he turned that sentence over and over in his mind. Maud had not loved him after all. She could be gay and bright when they were forever separated.

The office fire smouldered to ashes, and still he sat there, still and sad, until from sheer exhaustion he fell into an easy slumber. About midnight he awoke, alternately burning and shivering, while a dull pain throbbed in his temples.

He was his own patient now, so he hastened to bed, and when his landlady came in the morning to call him she found him unable to rise from his pillow, feverish and half delirious.

Christmas morning came bright and frosty—a day after St. Nicholas's own heart—and the doctor, a trifle better, although weak and languid, opened his eyes to close them again with a little pang. This was to be his wedding day. He could hear the merry salutations on the street, the clash of sleigh bells and the pealing organ from St. Paul's church over the way, and the sunlight and mirth and gladness made his own pain seem the keener.

The landlady, who had been like a mother to him, came in presently with a very smiling expression upon her broad face.

Many of his grateful patients had remembered him with some little Christmas token, and Mrs. Derby had placed them upon a stand at his bedside, but now she held in her hands a small packet addressed to him in a familiar lady's hand and registered in a distant city.

Maud had returned the engagement ring. Dr. Andover received the package in silence, and Mrs. Derby looked at him with a crestfallen expression.

"I thought you would be pleased, doctor. I've come to know Miss Everleth's handwriting, you see, and I supposed she had sent you a Christmas present. This package came two days ago when you were delirious, and I signed the registry card and made bold to send the lady a telegram notifying her of your illness. And, Dr. Andover, can you bear some pleasant news? I received a telegram in return saying that Miss Everleth would start at once to come to you. Now that is the kind of a girl to make a man a good wife. She will probably be here to-day."

To-day! Dr. Andover listened to kind Mrs. Derby in bewilderment. What did it all mean?

With trembling fingers he tore the wrapper of the tiny package and opened a jeweler's case. There upon its bed of purple lay a wide gold finger-ring, extraordinary wide, the inside of which was completely covered with fine lettering. And Dr. Andover read slowly, through blind, rapturous tears, the words which the jeweler's instrument had traced there—the grand old scriptural words which had arisen in the heart of the girl, who thus proved herself worthy of him, when his letter had come to her after many weary days of delay:

"Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following thee; for whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest I will die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me and more also, if aught but death part me and thee."

Mrs. Derby slipped out of the room, crying herself, at the sight of Dr. Andover, usually so calm and strong and self-possessed, crying like a two-year-old baby over Maud's Christmas token.

It was nearly noon when Maud herself came. She had removed her wraps in Mrs. Derby's room and, after a light tap on the sick man's door, she entered.

Alexander Andover had thought her lovely in her exquisite party and carriage and home toilets; but never had she seemed so sweet and gracious and womanly as now, when in her plain gray traveling costume her lovely face, a little pale with weariness and excitement, her mouth tremulous and her dark eyes glowing with a solemn light, she glided in her swift, noiseless way across the room to his side.

"My darling! My own sweet, true-hearted darling!" cried the doctor, clasping both arms about her and drawing her face down to his own.

And presently, after the first greeting was over, Maud explained:

"Your letter was delayed in some way. I did not get it until a week ago. You remember the great piece of gold you sent me from California two years ago? Well, when I got your letter I took that gold to a jeweler and had it made into a ring. And, then, after I received Mrs. Derby's telegram, I made uncle promise to bring me to you at once. I would have come alone if he had not come with me, horrible and unconventional as my fashionable friends would have called me. Why, Alexander, what a silly butterfly you must have thought me! Do you think I would care for riches without you? And do you think I am good for nothing but to dance the german and play the piano? I assure you, sir"—and here she doubled one small white hand in a threatening manner under his very nose—"this hand which you consider so weak and useless can make most delicious bread and cakes; can even make beds and sweep and wash dishes. Aunt Alice never neglected the most important part of my education, and I am sure I shall make a most excellent wife for a poor man. That is, Alexander," and here she flushed up gloriously, "if you will have me."

Dr. Andover smothered the last words against his shoulder, and as soon as she could free herself from his unceremonious embrace she began anew to coax and wheedle him into some new plan of her own, to which he at first objected, but finally yielded. The result was that at 5 o'clock that afternoon Maud Everleth was made Dr. Alexander Andover's wife and at once asserted her authority by taking upon her the duties of nurse.

Of course, under such treatment he recovered rapidly, and every day grew to appreciate more and more the loyalty and worth of the sweet little woman who had not failed him in his dark hour.

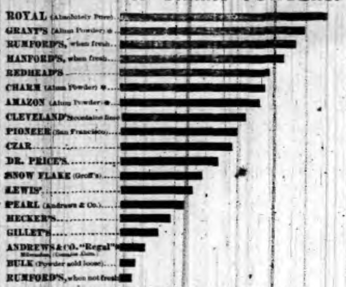
COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.



REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS
As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum, or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D.

It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. H. A. MOTT, Ph.D.

The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and these practical test, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, have proved it perfectly healthful, of uniform, excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance. WM. MCMURTRIE, E.M., Ph.D.

I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or other injurious substance.

HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal indorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and boards of health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders as shown by the chemical analyses and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, besides affording the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the Diagram shows some of the Alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

for Infants and Children

What gives our Children rosy cheeks,
What cures their fevers, makes them sleep;
Castoria.
When Babies fret, and cry by turns,
What cures their colic, kills their worms,
Castoria.
What quickly cures Constipation,
Sour Stomach, Colds, Indigestion;
Castoria.
Farewell then to Morphine Syrups,
Castor Oil and Paregoric, and Hail Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to Children that I recommend it as superior to any medicine known to me."—H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

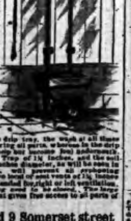
The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.



WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Cistern Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make itself apparent to all users, in doing away with drip tray, the wash at all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray it cannot help but become foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1¾ inches, and the soil-pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two local or seat vents of 1¼ inches diameter are intended for right or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Aaron P. Blanck, complainant, and Michael Gallagher et ux., et als., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth N. J., on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-SECOND DAY OF APRIL, A. D., 1885,

At 2 o'clock, p. m., of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the township of Plainfield, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a stone in the road leading to Plainfield, and running from thence with the middle of said road north fifty-five degrees east six chains and forty links to a corner in the middle of said road, where it is connected with the Samptown road and also corner of Sedam Vermeule's land; thence north forty-eight and a half degrees west six chains and twenty-eight links along said Vermeule's line to another corner in said line and corner of Samuel Pound; thence with Samuel Pound's line south forty-five degrees west six chains and twenty-four links to a stone and corner of Nicholas Mundy's land; thence with said Mundy's line south forty-eight and a half degrees east five chains and twenty-eight links to the place of beginning, containing three acres, two rods and twelve perches of land, be the same more or less, and is the same lot of land conveyed by Andrew McLain and wife to Asa Pound, by deed dated April 4, 1865.

Excepting and reserving therefrom all that certain lot, tract or parcel of land and premises situate, lying and being in the township, county and state aforesaid:—Beginning at a stone in the road leading to Plainfield being a corner of lands belonging to the estate of Nicholas Mundy, deceased; thence with the middle of said road northeasterly four chains and seventy-three links more or less to a course of a lot belonging to the estate of Mary L. Wallace, deceased; thence northwesterly along line of that lot six chains and four links, more or less, to line of Samuel Pound's land (formerly); thence southwesterly along his line (formerly) four chains and sixty links, more or less, to a stone and corner of lands of said Nicholas Mundy, deceased; thence southeasterly along said Mundy's line five chains and twenty-eight links to the place of beginning.

To be sold in two parcels.

AYER'S
Sarsaparilla
Is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier that can be used. It invariably expels all blood poisons from the system, enriches and renews the blood, and restores its vitalizing power. It is the best known remedy for Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin, as also for all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and Scrofulous Catarrh.
Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.
"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years.

POETRY

ROLLICKING ROLLERS.

On the rollers,
See them fly,
Ah! the skater,
Hear him sigh.

How they shake him,
How they rock;
See his feet move
Like a clock.

See him sail off
Like a bird!
What's that sound, that
Sound we heard?

Was it not that Skater tall
Running up a-Gainst the wall

[illegible] rollers
On his back;
Nevermore his
Head he'll crack.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

UNCLE TOM'S LETTER.

BY J. K. LUDLAM.

A late winter's day, and a fine one at that. The earth was wrapped in a robe of snow, while the clear, crisp air resounded with the silvery tinkle-ting tingle of the sleigh bells as many a cozy cutter dashed past Uncle Tom's window, and many a laugh—sweeter far than the music of bells—floated softly into the great solemn house where the master reigned in solitary state, alone and lonely.

Perhaps it was the music of those bells; perhaps—who knows?—it may have been the faint sound of youth's heartfelt laughter drifting, like far-off waves on the dreamy shore of memory, through the library window near which he sat, that awakened old scenes of the long ago—though, maybe, not so very long ago, for Uncle Tom was barely forty—when he, too, enjoyed the music of silver bells, the crisp, mischievous winter winds whirling past as he and some bright eyed lassie went dashing over the snow behind a spirited horse, tucked up to the chin in great furry robes! Strange, that his companion at such times somehow always happened to be the same little lass, with big brown eyes overflowing with mirth and high spirits; and curly nut-brown hair that would persist in straying from under her cap, in a most bewitching manner! How anxious he was that she should be well wrapped up! And her laughter! Aye, the sweetest bells could never rival that; and do what he would he could never quite forget it! His dear little playmate—his schoolmate—his more than friend! yet—and the lines deepened around the stern mouth—they were strangers now! For years and years he had heard no word, seen never a sign of brown-eyed Dot! She was married, of course, and why should he care?

"Pest take the bells!" he muttered, rising to give the unoffending logs blazing away on the hearth a most energetic poke with the great brass tongs. "What business have young fools to go sleighing? Oh, you brazen bells! I'd like to throw you all into the midst of the sea—you hollow-sounding idiots!" as a clash of music rang out beneath his window, and then died far in the distance.

"If you please, sir," began a voice at his side; and he turned to see the housekeeper standing there with a letter in her hand, which she held toward him.

"What is it?" Uncle Tom demanded, fiercely, his eyebrows meeting in a terrible frown. "A letter! who's it from, eh? If it's a begging letter you can throw it to the dogs, or burn it up, but don't venture to give it to me!" and he looked fully equal to tossing her in the fire if such a thought but entered his head.

"I don't know what it is, sir, but the postman left it," answered the woman, calmly, well knowing that the master's "bark" was far worse than his "bite."

"Well, great Cæsar! Why don't you give it to me, then, and not stand there arguing for an hour? Tell James to bring in more wood. It's cold as Hades in this room!" And without stopping to consider the absurdity of this speech, Uncle Thomas tore off the envelope and walked to the window to read his unexpected letter.

When he had finished his face was a mixture of anger and amazement, and he turned the white missive over and over, picked up the envelope only to find that it was all a mistake, for there, in a full round hand, was the address—"J. & C. Cartwell, publishers."

The letter was most pathetic, asking the publishers if they would not accept the story which she sent with the note, as she was in sore need of the money it should bring; and down at the end, in rather a trembling fashion was written the pretty, homelike name—"Dora Browning."

How on earth did such a mistake occur? His name wasn't Cartwell, and most decidedly neither was he a publisher.

Uncle Tom pondered over it a long time. Then he came to a decision. He was alone in the world, without a relative to whom he would be expected to turn for advice—who just as certainly could not question his actions, so he would do as he pleased.

A strange proceeding, truly, but Uncle Tom sat down, wrote a short, crisp letter, inclosed two—as crisp, perhaps not as "short"—banknotes, placed the whole in an envelope directed to "Miss Dora Browning, Greenfields, Pa.," and sent it off in the next mail.

* * * * * * * *

Two days later a little lady with wide brown eyes, and hair that would insist on curling in mischievous rings around her forehead, sat in front of a slowly dying fire, her small, white hands clasped together on her knees as she watched the last fading embers in the grate.

This same little woman was very poor, and this dying fire was all she had to keep herself from freezing, that cold winter day; but for all that—the poor room, her plain dress—one could not fail to know she was a lady. Slowly the coals died down, then, like a last, faint effort, a tiny tongue of flame shot up and out, and at the same instant a loud knock sounded on the outer door. The lady arose and opened the door to see the postman standing without in the snow, and the faint lights of dying day touching his strong, rugged face. (Pretty Dora Browning never remembered that day, afterward, without thinking of that face.) A letter for her!

With cold, trembling fingers she took it, not forgetting to bow her thanks to the postman, who went away on his rounds, hoping vaguely that the large business-like envelope contained good news for the sad-faced little woman.

Dora sat down quite weak and faint. What did it bring her? Was her poor little story really accepted, or—oh, terrible and yet more natural fact—was it not "available!"

The slender tongue of flame on the hearth flashed up brightly for a moment. Dora opened the envelope, unfolded the sheet of paper, and lo! most blessed sight! there lay two crisp ten-dollar bills! The hot, blinding tears of thankfulness rushed to her great brown eyes, and for a little while she could not see to read the letter. Then, calming herself, she went to the window to catch the fading light and read the few concise words. "Yes, her story was accepted. Would she call at No. 29 Rose Terrace as soon as possible, and arrange more fully as to any future stories she would be willing to write?"

Would she? Ah, would she not most gladly?

29 Rose Terrace; she must not forget the number.

How kind that editor was, and she had always thought editors such terrible creatures! She laughed—just her clear, old-time laugh—and hastened out to buy some necessary things that evening.

* * * * * * *

"Miss Browning, sir," announced the servant, opening the library door. Uncle Tom, sitting in front of the blazing fire, did not move.

The servant went out, closing the door, and Dora stood rather shyly, wondering why the gentleman did not notice her.

"If you please, Mr. Cartwell," she began at last, her sweet voice sounding like a note of music in the big room.

Then with an abruptness that startled her, "Mr. Cartwell" arose and confronted her, his face full in the strong light from the western window.

"Dora!" he said.

She gave a little frightened cry, then stood staring at him with wistful brown eyes.

"Dora," he repeated, gently, crossing the room to her side, "don't you remember Tom?"

He held out his hands, and she, very white and trembling, laid her own within them.

"After all these years," he said, "I have found you at last!"

"But, Mr. Cartwell," Dora faltered. "Where is he? I came to see about——"

"About your stories?" he said. "Yes; I received the one you sent. You may write all you please, Dot, at any price you like, if you'll but be mine as my wife! Will you?"

While she, not understanding then—although she did afterward—answered very low and softly, though her brown eyes were full of old time mirth:

"Yes, Tom."

And outside, beneath the window, the silvery sleigh bells rang out their song of youth and love and music:

"Tinkle-ting, tinkle-ting, tinkle-tinkle-tinkle."

A JAPANESE VILLAGE.

SHOPS, HOUSES AND ARTISANS.

On entering the hall the visitor finds himself in a broad street, as it were, of shops and houses, from which rows of smaller shops, forming narrow lanes, are laid out to the right. These are not merely painted fronts, but well built apartments of varied appearance each with its own characteristic ornamentation of parti-colored bamboo and solid panels, with shingled or thatched roof, and with sliding trellis shutters and translucent paper screens to serve as a substitute for glass in cold weather. For the rows placed against the sides of the hall, effective landscapes, in which the world known Fusi-yama appears now and again, have been painted by native artists, whose clever manipulation of two brushes, one in each hand, will be seen with astonishment by many. Groups of the artisans, who are of all ages, from mere boys to men of fifty or sixty apparently, were to be seen yesterday in front of the shops, or in some cases squatting on the thickly-stuffed and scrupulously clean mats, six feet by three and one-half feet in dimensions, of which the number packed on the floor space denotes the size of the house and the unwary stumbled over the thick-set pattens of sandals left in front of the shop by the inmates. A tow of the European visitors, accommodating themselves to the ways of the natives except in the matter of removing the shoes, sat cross-legged as best they could, on mats, waiting to be served with tiny cups of tea by a smiling and most polite little maiden, whose chevelure of jetty black could only be matched by one of her sisters of the East. Disappointment will surely be felt by some of the lady visitors when they see the quaint and fanciful productions of the hairpin makers and other articles of pretty trifles, by the determination of the management not to permit anything to be sold.

INDUSTRIAL PROCESSES IN OPERATION.

The most important industrial processes to be shown in operation include the lacquering of wood, pottery making and decoration, cloisonne work on copper foundations, carving of ivory and wood, the inlaying of ivory, mother of pearl and metal, the carving of hardened clay, lantern making and painting, fan making, and the not less useful trade of umbrella making. Then in textile and allied manufactures there will be shown spinning and handloom weaving and embroidery of large and small pieces of silk, satin and crepe. Among the trades to be followed are sandal-making, pipe-making, letter-block making and coopering. It may please students of music to know that a teacher of that art has hung out his sign at one house, and this seemed to be a favorite meeting place with the cheerful Japanese, who for the most part taking holiday yesterday. The shops were filled with very ingeniously imitated and brightly-colored fish and bird-form pin-cushions. In the long house on the left of the entrance are two extraordinary pieces of carving in wood, with ivory and metal additions, one representing the god of lightning shooting forth into the clouds in zigzag lines the contents of several discs which are set at intervals round a hoop, and the other, more diabolic in expression if possible, and with a double row of pointed teeth, a Japanese Boreas. Here, too, are lacquered hats worn by followers of daimios, a ceremonial sceptre of carved wood; decorative pieces of carved, sun baked clay, of fine texture, and ringing when struck almost like metal; agricultural implements; a two-handled sword of which the scabbard forms the lower part and the long handle the top; a crutch to rest the pole of a litter on in the hands of the servant of a great man. At different points in the hall are handsomely comparisoned and spiritedly modeled so called sacred horse, from a temple, and an allegorical piece of carving from Yeddo of a dragon attempting to swallow the Sword of Justice. There is one house, like the others slightly reduced in scale, in design, furnishing and decoration, similar to those in which well-to-do people of the middle class live. The most elaborately decorated interior, however, is that of a Buddhist temple, in which the two priests who accompany the travelers will perform their devotions at suitable hours, but it is satisfactory to know that there is no intention of making a show of their religious ceremonies. There are some good specimens of bronze altar vessels, gift boxes for pious remembrances of the deceased, carved lanterns, images of Buddha and sacred personages, and on the outer walls several remarkable paintings suggested by the older beliefs of the people. Near the temple are two houses in which a concession has been made to European prejudices by the supply of chairs and table stands for the lacquered trays, on which Japanese tea will be served by Japanese waitresses in loose-sleeved and highly-becoming robes of unobtrusive colors.

WRESTLING AND FENCING.

Another view of Japanese life will be presented in a second hall fitted up with a stage or platform on which fencing and wrestling and other performances will take place. The latter of these sports proved exceedingly amusing, the intense earnestness of the contestants scarcely impressing the spectators as much as it would have done, perhaps, if the preparation and refreshment of the wrestlers in the frequent intervals between the bouts had been less strange. A bucket of water was placed at each corner of the stage, and to these the men went before beginning, and whenever, as often happened, they were stopped by the umpire for failing to get hold of one another according to the rules of the game. The water was taken up with a little wooden dipper and every time each man, after drinking, tore a piece of paper from a bundle hung to the bucket and wiped his mouth; then took a few grains of salt from a box and threw the salt on the carpet of the stage before squatting or kneeling down again to try for another fall. While wrestling one or the other would shout, the cries being interpreted as derisive taunts, "No, you don't," and so forth. Mingled with these yells every now and then were the calls of the umpire, who, fan in hand, stopped or approved a bout. The men were barefoot, and wore tight-fitting jersey-like shirts and drawers coming down to the ankles. To enable them to get a good grip, a waist-cloth of thickly-folded black satin, and nine yards in length, is wound as tightly as possible round the middle. The fencing, as those who saw the display of masks, padded gloves and bamboo swords sent from the Tokio gymnasium to the Health Exposition will suppose, was quite unlike anything to be seen in Europe. The long bamboo rods are held in both hands and the combatants, who are protected by a mask for the face of wire bars, with quilted cloth over the head, a sort of breast plate of lacquered leather and padded gloves, strike and thrust freely. So well did the two performers warm to their work yesterday, that the umpire had to interpose himself and [illegible] between them two or three times. The entertainment concluded with a dance, or rather the fantastic posturing of two or three girls in slow measured time to a tinkling accompaniment kept up by some of the women on small stringed instruments played with a broad pecten, two of the number chanting in a high key.—London News.

A TELEPHONE WAR.

The Morristown people have had more luck than the Plainfield public, in resisting the advance of rates by the Telephone Company after assurances from the start that only a certain sum per month would be enacted. The Morristown merchants have sent the company the following notice:

MORRISTOWN, N. J., March 25, 1885.
[illegible] the New York and New Jersey Telephone Exchange at Morristown:
[illegible]—We the undersigned patrons of your Telephone Exchange in this city do hereby give notice to you, in accordance with the terms of our contracts, that the said contracts shall expire and instruments now in use by us shall be removed at the expiration of thirty days from the [illegible] day of April, 1885.

NOT A RELIABLE FIRM.

A man brought home some rat poison one evening. His mother-in-law mistook it for something else and ate a quantity of it. They had a terrible time that night, but the old lady's life was saved.

"It was a close call," said the doctor the next morning, "she ate enough of it to kill a dozen persons, but fortunately the poison had been in stock a long time, and most of its strength had evaporated."

Some months afterward the son-in-law was asked if Messrs. Poultice & Co. were reliable druggists to deal with.

"I wouldn't recommend them," he said. "They swindled me once on some rat poison."

A SNORE CURE.

A Boston inventor has perfected a snore cure. It is a piece of wire bent in the shape of a double hair pin. On one end is a small wheel, something like a child's pin-wheel, made of silk. The wire is fastened over the upper teeth when retiring, bringing the pin-wheel in close proximity to the nose and mouth. When the sleeper snores it starts the wheels to revolving, and the points of the wheel's rays, which have fine, sharp, steel needle ends, whirling around, rapidly, tickle the snorer's nose and cause him to desist. The inventor has large orders from the numerous sleeping-car companies, and has been made a Past Grand Mojuk in the East Side Society for the Suppression of Profanity.

NO BUTTON.

"As I was walking down the street this morning," observed Jones, "I saw a man drop a brass suspender button in a blind beggar's hat. He detected the fraud at once."

"I don't see anything strange about that," replied Mrs Jones. "Why shouldn't he tell the difference between a button and a coin?"

"He has considerable experience in coins, I know, but I can't see how he knew it was a button."

"By the way it felt, of course. Why shouldn't he tell it?"

"I don't think he had felt a button before for twenty years."

"Why not?"

"He has been married about that long, I believe."

NONE FOR SALE.

"My son," said the old man as he wiped his spectacles on his coat-tail, "start right when you start in. If you have any money to begin on, you must plan to be appointed an assignee or receiver. If you have money, be careful how you invest it. Telegraph and railroad stocks are good enough to trade in, and old mines and silver diggings give a man a certain standing in the commercial world, but—"

"But what?"

"If you want fat dividends, and want 'em regularly, and want 'em in clean cash, put your money into gas stock, the treasurer never runs away, the stock never falls below par, and though consumers however kick, they always come down with their cash."

VETERINARY SURGERY.

Some days ago Elias Corbet, of Dover, had a sorrel mare injured by getting fast in the stable. She in some way displaced three of the joints of the neck bone, her head being held down to the ground. In this condition she was brought to Morristown and successfully operated upon by Stephen D. Lorec, in the stables of William B. McKay. "Stephen" invented an apparatus to bring the dislocated bones back in place that worked like a charm, but caused the poor brute some terrible suffering. The surgical instrument was simply a clamp or "grip," worked by a thumb screw, that drew the bones back toward their place and grasped the neck more tightly the further they were drawn back. The poor animal fainted [illegible] under the pain of the operation and sweat terrifically, but suddenly the bones went to their places, and the neck was in good working order again. The mare has since been driven freely and is in as good order as ever.—Morristown Banner.

CURING A BAD MEMORY.

Your memory is bad, perhaps, but I can tell you two secrets that will cure the worst memory. One—to read a subject when strongly interested. The other is to not only read, but think. When you have read a paragraph or a page, stop, close the book and try to remember the ideas on that page, and not only recall them vaguely in your mind, but put them into words and speak them out. Faithfully follow these two rules and you have the golden keys of knowledge. Besides inattentive reading, there are other things injurious to memory. One is the habit of skimming over newspapers, all in a confused jumble, never to be thought of again, thus diligently cultivating a habit of careless reading hard to break. Another is the reading of trashy novels. Nothing is so fatal to reading with profit as the habit of running through story after story and forgetting them as soon as read. I know a gray-haired woman, a life-long lover of books, who sadly declares that her mind has been ruined by such reading.—St. Nicholas.

HOW ETHEL TAUGHT GERMAN.

"Der, die, das," said little Ethel to herself. "Ain't I glad! I'm studying German now. I know what a Hund is, and what [illegible] is, and what a Tisch is." And she looked in the glass, to see whether she had grown since she began German.

"Do you know what, Bertha Bounce?" she said to her dearest friend that afternoon. "I think German is as easy as anything. Why, it is just like English; only you have to speak as if something was scratching your throat. My brother says that I must first cough before I speak and then the words will come out beautifully."

"I wish I studied German," said Bertha sadly. "Won't you teach me, Ethel, dear?"

"Of course, I will. Come, we shall begin now. You are to repeat the words after me. So—Der, die, das."

"Der, die, das," repeated Bertha.

"You speak lovely, Bertha. You will soon know as much German as I do."

"Oh, I don't think I shall ever speak with your beautiful accent, Ethel."

"Come, now, let us go further. Say now after me dum, dim, dum."

"Dum, dim, dum," rejoined Bertha. "Why, that's easy enough."

"Dum, dum, dim," continued Ethel.

"Dum, dum, dim," repeated Bertha.

"Der, die, das," said Ethel, "and that is all. Now you know German."

Bertha Bounce repeated this, and then went home and told the girls that she could speak German, and they all resolved to study it, too.

A TEMPERED steel target ball has been recently invented to take the place of glass balls and clay pigeons. When struck with even a single shot it rings so that it can be heard for fifty yards.

PARENTS, do you ever visit your children while they are at school? It is a good plan to see how they are getting along, and if they are never questioned at home in regard to their studies you know very little about their advancement. Visit the schools. It encourages the teacher as well as the scholars. The teachers very often imagine that they are little better than convicts, housed up from month to month, with no new faces inside the room and none outside the schoolroom. We imagine they grow tired and your face might give them some encouragement.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS.

A BATCH OF LIVELY GOSSIPING SELECTIONS.

CORNERS WANTED.

Jones—"I hear that a Western speculator is getting up a corner on roller skates."

Smith (just out of the hospital)—"Humph! What I would like to see is a corner or two on the wheels."

KITCHEN REPARTEE.

Mistress—"There it goes again. Mary, do you see that door?"

Maid—"Yessum."

Mistress—"Well, you have left it open. Were you brought up in a sawmill?"

Maid—"Nome; I have always lived with families as can afford door-springs."

VERY FAITHFUL.

Miss Noble—"I suppose you would be very gay this winter, having inherited all that wealth; but of course I was thoughtful. It is not long since your rich uncle died."

Miss Nobbs—"No; only three months."

"Oh! is that all? Then I suppose you won't go out before next season."

"I fear not. The estate is not settled yet, and we have no clothes."

REASONING BY ANALOGY.

Mr. Winks—"I see they are finding new traces of the mound builders every day."

Mrs. Winks—"What is the latest?"

Mr. Winks—"The paper says: 'An earthen pot discovered by workmen at Egg Harbor, and supposed to be a relic of mound-builders, had grease and finger marks upon its brim.'"

Mrs. Winks—"Why, the mound builders kept servant girls, didn't they?"

SIMPLE ENOUGH.

Eulalia—"Why, Maud, you seem a little lame."

Maud—"Yes, I had my feet frost-bitten."

"Dear me! How?"

"While sleighing."

"With Mabel, I suppose."

"No; with a gentleman."

"Impossible."

"My brother."

"Oh!"

POWER OF MUSIC.

Mrs. DePoultice—"Do play something, my dear."

Miss De Muse—"Oh, I would rather not before so many people, because——"

"Really I hope you won't refuse—I shall be in despair if you do."

"In despair?"

"Yes. My guests are all sitting around as dumb as oysters, and I want you to play a symphony or sonata or something to start their tongues a-going."

WHY IT [illegible]

Young Widow—"Yes, I have just come from New Orleans. The exhibition is worth seeing, but the attendance is not so large as I expected."

Old Bachelor—"So I have heard."

Young Widow—"Yes, and by the way, I discovered that New Orleans is noted for one peculiarity. It has a larger proportion of women to men than any other American city."

Old Bachelor—"No wonder the exhibition is a failure. Men are afraid to go there."

KOCH'S THEORY.

Mr. Winks—"What queer things statistics brings out. I see that the figures gathered by the Paris authorities show that nine-tenths of the male victims of cholera there were unmarried men."

Mr. Winks—"I am not surprised. That proves Koch's theory is correct."

"Indeed! What is his theory?"

"That cholera germs are easily destroyed by boiling."

"Why, what has that to do with immunity of married men, pray?"

"They are generally kept in hot water, you know."

QUITE A DIFFERENCE.

Bank Director—"Stole twenty-five cents, did he? The scoundrel! I'll arrest him and have him sent to the penitentiary this very day. The idea of a cashier of ours doing anything like that is enough to——"

Bank Examiner—"Pardon me, sir, but you seem to have misunderstood me."

"Oh! Well, perhaps I did. I've been a little deaf for a good many years."

"What I said was that your cashier left only twenty-five cents in the safe. He stole all the rest."

"Great Cæsar! I must see him at once and get him to compromise the matter."

A MYSTERIOUS SIGN.

First Reporter—"Hist! [illegible]! This must be a meeting place of anarchists. See that mysterious sign on the door?"

Second Reporter—"Maybe they are laying plans to blow up the city to-night. What does it say? It is in German."

"I can't read German, but most likely it says: 'To arms,' or 'Blood,' or 'Up, guards, and at them,' or something like that."

"Yes, yes, no doubt, but we must get the exact meaning. Ah! here comes a German citizen, we'll ask him."

German (on being asked)—"Dot sign? Oh! Yah. Dot sign it say 'Please shut de door.'"

REASONS ENOUGH.

Employment Agent—"You here again? I gave you two good places to choose between and yet you are back in less than a week. What was the matter with the first one—the Brown family?"

Domestic—"Couldn't stand it, sor. The house was so awfully gloomy."

"Gloomy! What made it so?"

"They ain't got only a few windies, and they keeps the shutters half closed all the time."

"Well, what was the matter with the second place—the Blacks?"

"Sure, sir, their house is so full of windies, I ketched cold every night a-shuttin' the shutters."

ACCIDENTAL EXAGGERATION.

Editor—"Your duty, sir, is to give facts, and you are accused of overstating them in one of your reports yesterday. This won't do, sir, won't do at all."

Reporter—"I cannot think when or where I have overstated facts, unless it was in my report of Mrs. De Fashion's ball, and that was not my fault. It was a typographical error."

"There has been no complaint about that article, which, by the way, was an admirable one throughout, and I can't imagine where you overstated facts in that report. How did it happen?"

"I wrote that the fair guests were 'finely attired,' but the printers got it 'fully attired.'"

HORRIBLE PROSPECT.

Mrs. De Boston—"Oh, dear! I don't see why we should be so afflicted, and just to think our baby was born in Boston, too."

Mr. De Boston—"Why, my love, I don't see what's the matter with the baby. She is as pretty as a picture and as bright as a new dollar."

"Yes, yes, I know; but, oh, how awful it will be when she grows up! Nobody will know where she came from. Just look at her nose!"

"It's the sweetest little nose I ever saw in my life."

"But look at it. It's a pug, and she will never be able to balance a pair of eye-glasses on it in the world."

A WISE PARENT.

Young Algernon (in love with Miss DeBlank)—"I called, sir, at your daughter's suggestion to ask of you a very great, [illegible], the greatest favor a father can grant, and——"

Old Mr. DeBlank—"Ah! my dear boy! Come in. Did not recognize you. By the way, have you a pin about you?"

Young Algernon (with alacrity)—"Oh yes, sir, here is one."

"Thanks; will you be so kind as to pin my collar in place? Buttons all off, you see."

"With pleasure. As I was saying, your daughter and I have——"

"Pardon me; but have you a piece of bent wire, or a nail about you?"

"Why—why, no, sir! I—but perhaps this toothpick will do."

"No, not strong enough. I want it to hold up my suspender. The hairpin I was using has got lost. But never mind—go on."

"I merely called to say I would like to take your daughter to the—the—the concert this evening."

"Oh! certainly."

The Constitutionalist.

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT. The Legislature of this State and adopted on the twenty-first day of February, eighteen hundred and eighty-four I approve the following Joint Resolution:—

"Joint Resolution relative to the Planting of Forest Trees.

"1. It is resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the Governor be and he is hereby authorized to issue a proclamation annually setting apart a day in April for planting of forest trees, and recommending that such day be devoted by the people to that purpose.

"2. And be it resolved, That this resolution take effect immediately.

Now, therefore, pursuant to the foregoing resolution, I do hereby set apart FRIDAY, April twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, for the planting of forest trees, and recommend that the day be devoted by the people to that purpose.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the great seal of the [L. S.] State to be hereunto affixed, at Trenton, this seventh day of April, eighteen hundred and eighty-five.

LEON ABBETT.

By the Governor,
HENRY C. KELSEY, Secretary of State.

PEACE AND PROSPERITY.

Among the many public benefits conferred and to be conferred by the newly inaugurated Democratic Administration, that of National Unity is of paramount importance.

The spirit of sectional enmity kept alive by bitter opponents of Democracy for the ignoble purpose of manufacturing partisan capital, at the expense of truth and justice, has received a merited death blow.

The results of peace secured twenty years ago can no longer be misused by unprincipled politicians for the advancement of sordid schemes, but will henceforth prove an element of national strength and prosperity, because, under Democratic sway, peace means mutual esteem, not hate, to enrich, not despoil.

The country is at peace from centre to circumference. Everywhere the star gemmed flag of the Constitution and Union is loyally hailed and dearly prized as the protecting symbol of a united people. To renew in any manner, or for any purpose, the unhappy internal discord of former times is treason to the best interests of the whole people.

We are all Americans, and as patriots should tolerate neither sectional name nor prejudice.

The men of the North and the South, of the East and the West, have common interests at stake. Their true mission is identical and glorious. It is to cultivate feelings of brotherly love as become the countrymen of Washington, to develop the mighty resources of our magnificent and diversified land, and by preserving free institutions in their full vigor to confer upon the United States, as the great Republic, an ever increasing moral influence, of far more conquering effect than the battalions of war.

The Democratic party thrusts aside everything like sectional animosity or class distinction. It treats all citizens with equal and exact justice, and aims to make perpetual the blessings of Peace and Prosperity.

Mr. J. H. Polhemus, the Postmaster at Hanover Neck, died very suddenly last week. He went to Whippany in the morning on some business, apparently feeling as well as usual, but on arriving home he was taken with a sharp pain in his breast and died in a few moments. He was about seventy-five years of age.

A novel match took place lately between Charles Muntz and Charles Korn at 9 Springfield avenue, Newark, N. J. The money deposited was to be given to the man who could skin and cut the tongues out of thirty calve's heads in the shortest time. Korn won by skinning thirty heads in twenty-seven minutes. Muntz accomplishing his task in thirty-six minutes.

As a sequel to the conflagration of January 7, at New Brunswick, after unsuccessful negotiations for a compromise, Janeway & Co. have brought suit for $300,000 damages against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. The amount involved, the peculiar circumstances of the fire, and the question as to the railroad company's liability, will make the case an important one.

* * *

Farmers complain that the severe weather of the past Winter has, through the repeated freezes and thaws, raised the young clover out of the ground. In many instances all the side roots are above the surface, only the top roots having a hold in the earth. In many cases these have also been broken off, causing the plants to die. The same may be said of wheat to a limited extent, though it has not suffered so much as the grass.

TO REBUILD THE STATE CAPITOL.

The State House Commission met Tuesday afternoon and decided to rebuild the burned portion of the State Capitol as far as possible, placing the vaults in the cellar, however, instead of on the first floor. Nothing was said respecting the calling of an extra session to secure a large appropriation, but it is believed that the Governor contemplates such action.

TOO MANY VOTES RECORDED.

Governor Abbett conferred Tuesday morning with Assemblymen Hughes, of Elizabeth, representing 1st district, O'Connor, and Harrigan, and with brewers from Newark and Elizabeth respecting the high license measure. Mr. Hughes made an affidavit that he did not vote for the bill, although so recorded. Assemblyman O'Connor showed that while the total given in the minutes was 31, only 30 names were mentioned, including Mr. Hughes, as having voted for the measure. The Governor will probably veto the bill.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The President made the following appointments today:

To be Consuls of the United States—Charles T. Russell, of Connecticut, at Liverpool, England; A. Haller Gross, of Pennsylvania, at Athens, Greece; Wm. W. Lang, of Texas, at Hamburg, Germany; Henri Vignaud, of Louisiana, Secretary of the Legation of the United States at Paris; Augustus Jay, of New York, second Secretary of the Legation of the United States at Paris.

The three Consuls named above were nominated during the special session of the Senate, but their nominations were not acted upon.

THE NEWARK POLICE CASE.

Justice Van Syckel, of the Supreme Court, on Monday filed the opinion of the Court in the matter of the Newark police controversy. It will be remembered that 118 Democratic policemen were ousted last month by the Republican Council of Newark. The Democrats had the matter certioraried to the Supreme Court on the ground that the Mayor had the right to veto any such action. The effect of the Court's opinion is that Council has the right by majority vote, at any time, to remove officers without the Mayor's approval. The special act passed by the late Legislature to enable Council to remove by resolution instead of by ordinance, was therefore unnecessary.

DELAWARE'S NEW FISHING LAW.

The Wilmington, Del. News of April 14, says:—"It is now stated by one of the most prominent lawyers of this city that the recent law passed by the Delaware General Assembly in relation to the fishing in the Delaware River of non-residents is null and void, inasmuch as a preliminary injunction issued by the Supreme Court of the United States, at the instance of New Jersey, is still in force, a decision never having been made in the matter. The injunction was issued in March, 1877, and declared that the Delaware authorities had no power whatever to interfere with anyone fishing in the water under dispute until the boundary line between the two States had been settled. The Delaware authorities claim that the State line runs to low-water mark on the New Jersey shore, according to the old grant. During a conference between the Governors of the two States in 1877 it was decided to have the injunction issued, and thus it stands, inasmuch as no one has ever heard of the injunction being dissolved."

NEW JERSEY ELECTIONS.

TRENTON, April 13.—At the city election to-day Donnelly (Dem.) was elected Mayor by 175 majority. The City Council stands 14 Democrats to 7 Republicans. The Democrats elected three out of four Freeholders. T. H. Mackenzie (Rep.) was elected Superintendent of Public Schools over Holt (Dem.).

PATERSON, April 13.—The result of the charter election to-day is the probable election of Beckwith (Rep.) Mayor over Barnett (Dem.), the present incumbent, by an increased Republican vote. The Republicans also gained two Aldermen.

NEW BRUNSWICK, April 14.—The Democrats of this city have elected W. S. Strong as Mayor for the third term by 708 majority. They also elect five out of six Aldermen, giving them control of the city Common Council. The Democrats elect their men in strong Republican wards and there will doubtless be a complete change in police and minor city officials.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Johnston Cornish was re-elected Mayor to-day. For the first time since the city became incorporated there was no opposition whatever, which strongly attests his popularity. He belongs to the firm of Cornish & Company, organ manufacturers.

BORDENTOWN, April 14.—The charter election of Bordentown took place yesterday, resulting in the election of a Democratic Mayor. The Democrats will have a majority of one in the Common Council.

In Passaic, on Monday, John A. Willett, Democrat, was elected Mayor by 195 majority. The new Council will stand 5 Republicans to 4 Democrats.

In Jersey City the Democrats, on Tuesday, elected a majority in the Board of Freeholders. The Board of Aldermen will stand 6 Republicans to 5 Democrats, with Cator, Ind., to vote either way. There are ties in the Police and Works Commissions. The Fire Board is Democratic.

Tinckham, Democrat, was elected Mayor of Hoboken.

Oliver, Democrat, was elected Mayor of Bayonne.

In Rahway, on Tuesday, the Democrats elected their Mayor, Dr. John J. Daly, Water Commissioner, John B. Brown, School Commissioner at-large, James M. Silvers, Coroner, Dr. Walter E. Cladek, Freeholder, John D. Belmer. In each of the Wards the entire Democratic ticket was elected, excepting the Fourth.

Gov. Abbett has appointed Friday, April 24th, as Arbor Day, in accordance with a joint resolution passed in 1884, which set apart one day in the month of April each year when the people of the State were requested to plant forest trees.

On Monday of last week some human remains were found in Redfoot Creek, near Metuchen, by Thomas N. Acken. A Coroner's jury on Friday night returned a verdict that the remains were those of a person unknown. The villagers, however, incline strongly to the belief that the remains are those of a missing woman.

Chas. H. Munson, who was nominated by the Governor and rejected by the Senate as Law Judge of Morris county, was appointed to that position by Gov. Abbett on Tuesday of last week until the next meeting of the Legislature.

J. Henry Shaw, a member of the Illinois House of Representatives was found dead in a hotel at Springfield. His death is the third during the present session. He was a "straight-out" Democrat. His death will probably prevent any action upon the U. S. Senatorship question for twenty more days at least, and it makes the House a tie upon any question which may be construed into a party issue.

Bricklayers are receiving $3 50 per day in Camden with nine hours' work on Saturday. On Monday morning of last week the hod carriers at work for Louis Buzine at Messrs. Cohn & Roberts' operation, at Penn and Point streets, struck for $2 50 per day, and it was at once allowed and no time was lost. Heretofore hod carriers have been receiving but two dollars per diem; they also work but nine hours on Saturdays.

* * *

Six of the Senators who hold over to the next Legislature are favorable to Interest Reduction. The Clinton Democrat thinks that the people of Burlington, Cape May, Hunterdon, Passaic and Sussex, and even of Middlesex county, will send friends of the measure if the issue is fairly placed before them. If this were done, the Five Per Cent. bill would pass next year, even though Gloucester, Morris, Salem and Somerset remain conspicuously misrepresented on the question.

* * *

Secretary Whitney's ordering all clerks in the Navy Department to remain at work until five o'clock is another step in the right direction. For many years it has been the policy of officials to ask for and get as many clerks as possible. The result is they have secured so many that they have not known what to do with them, and the hours of work have, of necessity, been reduced until the clerks begin work and waste their time only to leave the department buildings at three or four o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Mary Packer, the only surviving child of the late Judge Asa Packer, projector of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, has married Charles H. Cummings, of New York. The ceremony took place at the bride's palatial residence in Mauch Chunk on Tuesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Cummings has, probably, the largest income of any lady in the United States, it being estimated at about $1,000 per day, to say nothing of the income from the accumulations of interest on the amount received since the death of her father and her two brothers, Robert and Harry Packer. Mr. Cummings, the lucky bridegroom, is, like Miss Packer's father, a self-made man. Starting as a conductor on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, he has worked his way up until he has become the head of the New York end of the enormous business of the Lehigh Valley.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

William A. Clark has removed from Bird's corner to North avenue.

A number of our residents purchased tickets for 7-20-8 at Music Hall, on last evening.

Welch Bros., painters, have the contract for painting Grace Episcopal church on Broad street.

N. A. Barnett started on Wednesday last for California. He expects to be gone about two years.

Frank Miller, son of James L. Miller, has been seriously sick for some time at his father's residence on Elm street.

Mr. Joseph A. Fairbairn has been quite sick from pneumonia at his residence on Prospect street, during the past week.

Mr. Wm. H. Cosney sailed on the "City of Rome" on Wednesday, April 8th, for England. He goes on a business trip.

John Peiffer is again driving Koester's express from the depot. He has given up the idea of starting an intelligence office.

Lewis C. Thiese is meeting with great success among our farmers, in the sale of the Syracuse plows. Lou. is always around.

Mr. Sturtevant, of Jersey City, has rented the residence of Mr. Matthias Townley, on Elmer street, and expects to occupy the same the coming week.

William M. Long started on Wednesday last for the interior of Michigan on a trapping expedition. He expects to ship loads of wild pigeons to New York city.

Mrs. Hannah Schoonmaker, who has been away from our town for the past two years, has returned and occupies her residence, corner of Elm and Orchard streets.

The B. & E. Co. No. 1, at their adjourned meeting on Tuesday evening, placed in nomination Erastus M. Dolbier for Chief and Benj. H. Woodruff for 2d Assistant.

Mr. Jos. B. Rogers, of our town, has associated himself with Messrs. Headley & Faith, of New York city, as carpenters and builders. They are located at 90 Fulton street, N. Y. City.

Mr. Patrick Traynor is engaged in filling in the vacant lot on Elm street, adjoining his store, which he recently purchased of Mrs. Fanny L. Hammar, of San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. John S. Irving has located and is about erecting a new dwelling house on the lot of land he recently purchased from Joseph G. Hanson, on corner of South avenue and Cumberland street.

Mr. James E. Bartis who recently purchased the building, corner of North avenue and Elm street, has set out a fine row of shade trees around the lot, and is about erecting a stable to accommodate his livery business.

Miss Jessie Young, daughter of Mr. Wm. Young, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Dallas at the residence of the bride's parents, on Westfield avenue, on Tuesday afternoon last. The bridal couple left on the 5.42 p. m. train on their wedding tour. They go to Montreal, Canada.

At the last annual parish meeting held last week at the Presbyterian church, Mr. Alex. S. Clark and George E. Condit were re-elected trustees for three years each, and Dr. Wm. Gale, Isaac F. Scudder and Joseph W. Cory.

The wife and children of Mr. Charles E. Taylor who has resided in our town for the past two years, started for Denver, Colorado, on Saturday last. Mr. Taylor expects to meet his family at Chicago. He has a large mining interest in Colorado.

Empire Engine Co. No. 2 held an adjourned meeting on Tuesday evening last and endorsed the nominations for officers of the fire department made by H. & Co. No. 1, on Monday evening: Jas. Moffett for Chief and Eb. Hart for Second Assistant.

The sale of tickets for Chaplain McCabe's lecture on the evening of April 23d, is very brisk. Those wishing good seats should not wait until the day of the lecture. From present appearances it looks as if the church would be crowded.

Mr. Joseph G. Hanson, who has resided in our town for the past twenty years, and held several offices in our town, has sold his residence corner of Westfield avenue and Park street, to a Mr. Thompson of New York city, who will move into the same on or before May 1st next.

At the earnest solicitation of several leading citizens, Dr. W. H. Morse of New York will receive patients at his residence on Manning avenue, every afternoon. Dr. Morse, who was a pupil of Cazeaux of Paris, is well-known as a gynæcologist and medical journalist.

At the third election for officers of the Westfield Fire Department, the following was the result of the election: For Chief, James Moffett, 44 votes; Erastus M. Dolbier, 40 votes. For 2nd Asst., Benj. H. Woodruff, 40 votes; Eb. Hart, 32 votes. Total number of votes cast by the three companies, 84. The agony is now over. Our Fire Department has at last elected its officers. James Moffett of Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1 is Chief; Howard P. Manning, 1st Asst., and Benjamin H. Woodruff, 2d Asst.

For "The Constitutionalist."

How it Works.

The late legislature passed an act increasing the Board of Chosen Freeholders eight members, giving to Plainfield four members, instead of two as at present, and the same to Rahway, and increasing the number from Elizabeth to eight, and this is the way it works:

The present Board numbers 17, making the majority 9; Plainfield having two members. You add seven and you have the majority of 9.

The new Board would be twenty-five members, making the majority thirteen; Plainfield having four members. You have to add nine to have a majority of thirteen; the same with Rahway.

Elizabeth now has four members; you add five and you have the majority of nine. Elizabeth under the new Board has eight members; you add five and you have the majority of thirteen. Certainly a useless change.

A HOME DRUGGIST
TESTIFIES.
Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—
RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.
SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY
By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.
The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.
THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE
Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.
The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.
THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE
Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.
Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette, and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.
For detailed information see Maps and Folders, obtainable, as well as Tickets, at all principal Ticket Offices in the United States and Canada; or by addressing

THE April term of the Somerset County Courts begins next Tuesday. There are six prisoners in jail awaiting trial.

THERE will be an auction sale of fine furniture, kitchen utensils, etc., at Laing's Hall, this afternoon, at one o'clock.

THE regular May meeting of the Council will be held in its new rooms in the Ryder building, next to Music Hall.

GRACE church and the church of the Holy Cross, will be visited by Bishop Scarborough on Sunday, the 26th inst.

EVENING services will be resumed in the Congregational church, next Sunday, and continue thereafter, at 7 30 o'clock.

THE active firemen will elect a Chief and assistants, and the companies will elect officers, Monday evening, May 4th.

ONE hundred horses and thirty mules of all sizes and kinds, are offered at Morris' New Brunswick sale stables. He can suit anybody in style and price.

THIS (Thursday) evening, 7 29.8 will be repeated at Music Hall, without Mrs. Russell's reading of "Hypathia's" part. And—we are promised—a better Flora.

ALL persons having claims against Engine Co. No. 2, are requested to send the same to the Chairman of the Auditing Committee, Box 871, Plainfield post-office.

A CAR-LOAD of lumber that "Thirty" was switching, jumped the track on the Madison avenue bridge, Thursday morning, and slightly delayed travel to New York.

INSURANCE companies are threatening to increase rates of insurance on barns in Plainfield, in consequence of the frequent incendiary fires, if the rascals are not hunted down.

IN the front windows of Mr. E. P. Thorn's liquor saloon on Park avenue, may be seen a calamus plant growing finely, with the cheeses sprouting that the boys so love to eat.

IT is illegal to kill any song or insectivorous bird in the State of New Jersey, for any purpose whatever, under a penalty of $50 for each and every bird so killed. Boys, do you hear this?

THE Saengerbund Fair that commenced Monday evening in the rooms at North and Park Avenues, has been most successful, and will undoubtedly continue so for the rest of the week.

THE Madison Eagle came to us this week printed on rose tinted paper, in commemoration of that journal's removal to new and more commodious quarters. The Eagle is a newsy and enterprising journal.

AT the regular meeting of the Amateur Musical Association, last Monday evening, W. Rockhill Potts, Esq., was elected President. It is proposed to repeat the Cantata of Esther, in Music Hall, Saturday evening, May 30th.

THE Elizabeth Journal says that Plainfield seems likely to share the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, and be destroyed by fires. It seems so, unless efforts are made to detect and punish the scoundrels at work firing premises about us.

A FINE stock of carriages of all kinds is kept constantly on hand by L. M. French, the manufacturer, at No. 18 Somerset street. Those intending to purchase should first inspect the elegant assortment offered at that establishment.

THE annual reunion of the survivors of the 11th Reg. N. J. Vols., will be held at Dover, N. J., May 4th. The survivors from this vicinity are—Dr. Abel Titsworth, Dunellen; Capt. Wm. Hand, Isaac Randolph, John Goodman, T. O. Doane, John Burke, Henry Mollison, this city.

IF the P. & R. Railroad Company wishes to accommodate the traveling public, they will either resume advertising their time schedule or furnish printed cards at their stations in sufficient number, so that passengers may once in a while obtain one.

IN Assembly Hall, this afternoon at 4 o'clock, Prof. Bernard Bigsby, of Rugby and Oxford Universities, will lecture on "Arnold and Rugby." This instructive and interesting event is arranged by the young men of the Junior class of the High School. Admission will be twenty-five cents.

THE Morristown Banner tells us where the game is in the following lines: "Both black duck and snipe were found on the meadows last week and have been more or less numerous every day since. The ducks fly in from the coast in the afternoon to roost and feed, and go back early in the morning."

ALFRED C. NIECE, of Kingwood township, caught three hawks on Thursday last, by placing a trap on the top of a tree, where they were accustomed to alight. He has trapped over forty hawks on the same tree, and the hawks do not think very Niece of Alfred, so to do, either.—Hunterdon Democrat.

LAST Tuesday a notice, printed with a pen in Roman letters, warning the P. & R. railroad company that unless they restored employees the 8, 10 and 15 per cent. reduction of wages, the round-house and car shops would be blown up with dynamite, was found posted on a fence near the shop-yard, Elizabeth Port.

THANKS are extended Weston Jenkins, Superintendent of the New Jersey school for deaf mutes, for a copy of the report of the Trustees of that institution for 1884. From its pages we glean that the total number of pupils in attendance for the year ending Oct. 31st, 1884, has been 110, of whom 62 were males and 48 females. Union county is credited with six of these and our sister county Somerset, with two.

THAT celebrated Rock beer of Ballantine & Co., with sauerkraut and buckwurst, is on tap at Casper's, No. 5 East Second street.

MR. EDWARD WALLING, an employee of the Potter Press Works, was severely scalded Wednesday from his knees down, by walking into a tank of boiling water.

AT the city election in Fargo, Dakota, last week, Mr. A. T. Shotwell, formerly of this city, was elected Treasurer. There were four candidates in the field, and Mr. Shotwell beat them all.

A FLEA, one-sixteenth of an inch in length, can jump a distance of twenty inches. This is 320 times its length. The common gray rabbit jumps about nine feet clear on the level ground. In proportion to length a horse, to jump as far as a rabbit, would have to clear 64 feet at a jump. There is no quadruped that has such powerful muscles of his loins and back.

FLOCKS of small birds have lately been seen in the vicinity of Trenton which have much the appearance of the English Sparrow, except in regard to color. The head is of a crimson red and the body generally splashed and streaked with red, becoming rosy some portions. It is thought to be the Red-poll Linnet, a migratory bird visiting our fields and woods from its more northern home in winter.

New Rules At The Casino.

Hereafter the price of admission to gentlemen will be fifteen cents at all times. "Attaches" henceforth are not permitted to skate with patrons of the rink unless invited by them.

Morgue Keepers.

The Union County Court, last Wednesday, appointed the following as morgue keepers: Plainfield—George C. Ford; Elizabeth—Michael Durning; Rahway—Daniel K. Byno.

The "Times" Thinks So, Too.

We heard it remarked for the nine-hundredth time, recently, "there ought to be a stop put to barn burning." The incendiaries can be caught if a price is offered for them—dead or alive.

A Stricture On Talmage.

Dr. Talmage last Sunday preached on Wheels. He managed to make the subject applicable to skating rinks and announced himself as in favor of them, with restrictions. This may be said of almost anything, including Mr. Talmage.

But, Is It Fair?

The young ladies of the Park avenue Baptist church are very busy, just now, in getting together a quantity of useful and ornamental articles, with which to drain the pockets of the young men of the church, during a proposed fair in May.

Another Vocal Society.

The Eureka Glee Club contributed its vocal talents towards the evening services in the rooms of the Scarlet Knights, last Sunday. The young men that form the Club have quite some ability as singers, and with continued practice will eventually command more or less praise.

The Crescent Rink.

Mr. J. P. Johnson the builder, put a large force of men on the carpenter work of the new rink, Monday, and they with the masons are making rapid progress. The brick walls are now up above the window frames, and Mr. Evans' intention of finishing and opening the building as soon as possible, is being carried out.

No Standing Room Then.

Desiring that only the best of the kind should be offered the public, the management of Music Hall cancelled the Callender minstrel contract and made one with Thatcher, Primrose & West. Their company, the greatest we ever saw—and we have seen them all—is now filling an engagement in New York city, but will be engaged in filling Music Hall, Tuesday evening, May 5th.

He'll Execute "The Shepherd Boy."

A surprise is being prepared for the lovers of music that visit the Casino and are fascinated with the efforts of the band. Prof. Hermann is practicing a solo—and in the near future "The Shepherd Boy" executed on that $100 silver-cornet, will delight our ears and charm our sense of harmony. By these presents we warn our readers of the coming treat, and give them an opportunity for vaccination.

Work, the Best Medicine.

Only about 300 of the 800 prisoners at the State Prison are at work. The remaining are in idleness and in misery and are suffering the torture of the unemployed. Cases of insanity are becoming more frequent, and the sick rate increases steadily with the number of idle men. The authorities are endeavoring to adopt the piece plan system, but months must elapse before anything is done to remedy the evil.

A Fancy Programme.

At the sociable of the Young People's Association to be held in the parlors of the Crescent avenue church this evening, Miss Sadie Hunter will favor those present with instrumental solos and Mr. Shiebler will likewise charm them with his vocal powers. The great attraction (besides the refreshments) will be a "Fan Drill," in which exhibition frequent rehearsals have perfected a bevy of the most attractive ladies of the church.

Ignorant of Good Taste.

The Amateur Vocal Association that had once a reasonable chance of organization and progression, finds that the publication in a deranged medium of irresponsible articles regarding the "Association's membership and its intentions, has resulted disastrously. People of good taste, judgment and breeding, neither desire their names dragged into publicity without truth or authority, nor coupled with a description of borrowed finery.

Such Is Fame.

A young lady who a few years ago was graduated from high society circles of this city, and was frequently a leading soprano soloist in the Crescent avenue choir, died recently in Jersey City after an ambitious struggle for fame on the operatic stage. She had been the heroine of a touching romance in which a bank president played a paternal part, and—a post mortem publication of her picture graces a New York sensational weekly.

The Only Chance.

Those who witnessed the graceful and difficult skating of Jessie Lafone, last Friday evening, must see little Jennie Houghton to-day or to-morrow at the Casino. By some the young ladies are considered rivals, but in our opinion no one equals the latter. Miss Houghton has been engaged at great expense for the three performances advertised, and a part of the contract is that she will not appear again in this city, at any other rink.

But Not Us.

A Plainfield young lady tells us she only wishes the law permitted, and she would marry two husbands, one a plumber and the other an ice man. She was desirous of rolling in wealth during all seasons of the year. Yet such purpose could be accomplished and the law respected at the same time, by her marriage to an editor. P. S. We, however, must decline sacrificing, so far as we are personally concerned, the happiness of scores to gratify the desire of one.

Covered By Insurance.

The dwelling of Mr. Michael Murphy on Green Brook road, North Plainfield, caught fire around the chimney, at six o'clock Monday morning. Both steamers of the department quickly got to work, and quenched the flames after the upper story had been burned away. Both the house and furniture were fully insured to cover all loss.

He Didn't Risk It Himself.

The agent of a fire escape gave an exhibition of its workings from the third story of the post-office building, last Saturday evening. He tried it on a boy, however, who had not weight enough to slide the pulley along the rope. During the time spent in trying to shake him down, the building might have been consumed, the rope burned off and the lad's neck broke.

$20,000 Waiting for Him.

In 1881, John J. P. Fleming, of Neuagh, County Tipperary, Ireland, was in this city, but all trace of him thereafter is lost. A fortune of £4,000, about $20,000, awaits him, regarding which further particulars may be obtained of Mr. James Usher, No. 9 Murray street, New York city, who makes a specialty of searching for missing heirs and publishes a register of over 5,000 that have been advertised for.

Numbers But Not Dollars.

The Fiske Jubilee Singers sang in Music Hall, last Friday evening, for the benefit of the Children's Home, with good effect but poor results. There were enough of our best people present to make the affair a financial success, but they occupied the cheaper seats and contributed barely sufficient funds to meet expenses. The vocalists rendered their own peculiar music in their own peculiar way, which is one manner of saying they sang sweet harmony with much sweetness.

A Friendly Tip.

Our brother editor who works the shears in the sanctum of the Madison Eagle, states in his ignorance of fashion's dictum that "the backwardness of spring weather was the cause" of the noticeable absence of spring bonnets on Easter. The poor bachelor—for he must be a bachelor to be so inexperienced regarding woman's proper and reasonable adornment—will hereafter know that it is considered wretched taste and extremely bad "form," to wear new spring hats, bonnets (or overcoats) before the Sunday following Easter.

Fourteenth Annual Meeting.

The Woman's Presbyterial Society for Foreign Missions in the Presbytery at Elizabeth, will hold its 14th annual meeting at the lecture room of the Crescent avenue church, on Tuesday the 21st inst. The morning session beginning at eleven o'clock, will be devoted to the presentation of the yearly reports of the work accomplished by the society. The afternoon session will begin at 2:30. Addresses will be made by Mr. J. T. Gracey, recently of India, and the Rev. Dr. Ellenwood. The women of Plainfield are cordially invited to attend both sessions.

Angels Keep Watch.

Two young lady members of the higher classes of Plainfield's Public School, have charmed (besides many mortals) two little mice that daily venture into the school room to be fed with crumbs from the hands of their fair enchantresses. This proves the fallacy of that thoroughly masculine claim that the gentler sex fear a mouse more than they fear a real live man. The only thing these particular maidens are afraid of in relation to these mice, is that Prof. Miller will catch them some day and pump out their oxygen. We are not referring, of course, to the young ladies' oxygen.

Relief for the Relief Association.

The treasury of the Relief Association is empty, and as this Association has never gone into debt, it will be obliged to stop all its work until funds are received. There are some sick who will be in great distress without this aid. The receipts up to this date have been in advance of last year, but the long Winter of unusual severity, and the difficulty of obtaining employment by those willing and able to work, has increased the number of beneficiaries. Any donations sent to the treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Myers, will be thankfully received.

BY ORDER OF EXECUTIVE COM.

April 15, 1885.

Plainfield Talent in the Far West.

Away out in Mandan, D. T., where the thermometer ranges from 60 below to 120 above, Plainfield talent added to the grand success of the Mandan Troubadours, in their second appearance recently, before the aristocracy and cow-boys of that territory. Mr. O. T. Roberts sang "Down in the Deep," a bass solo that was one of the ingredients of a musical potpourri, and filled the part of "The Mysterious" in a thrilling drama. Mr. Chas. Van Slyck sang "Call Me Back Again," and accomplished half of a double song and dance. Both these gentlemen are still remembered in social circles with regret—regret at their absence.

Songs and Stories.

At the literary and musical entertainment, held in Reform Hall, Tuesday evening, a small but completely gratified audience enjoyed throughout a varied programme of unusual interest. Miss Alice J. Fischer proved herself to be a finished elocutionist of most remarkable versatility. Although her selections were all old, they presented new and attractive features as rendered by her. The vocal efforts of Mrs. Collier, Miss Jessie Smillie, Mr. E. Runyon and Dr. R. W. Anderson, were, of course, exceedingly pleasing. Mr. A. Everitt was the accompanist. We congratulate the public upon the promise of a reappearance of Miss Fischer in this city.

The Old and New Boards Meet.

The late Board of Managers of the Fire Department met in regular meeting, Tuesday evening, at which were present—President Van Winkle and Commissioners Livingston, Cutter and Jones. Messrs. Morris and Depew were absent. After some routine business the old Board retired from its duties, and the new Board consisting of Commissioners Jones, Livingston, Cutter, Knowland, Morris and Depew, stepped into power. The latter two were not present, and the Board organized with Mr. Jones as its President and Mr. Cutter as its Treasurer—both chosen unanimously. Mr. Livingston was appointed Secretary pro tem. The meeting then adjourned.

To Help the Hospital.

That grand entertainment so long looked forward to for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital, is to be given in Music Hall next Thursday evening, April 23rd. Upon that occasion Miss Medora Henson will make her last appearance prior to her departure for Europe; Mr. Adolph F. Glose, the well-known and greatly admired pianist of New York, will furnish the instrumental features of the programme; and that popular tenor, Mr. C. W. Clark, will add his voice to the evening's attractions. Besides all this, Mme. Alberti's charming readings will gratify us, and a score of young ladies, especially trained by her, will illustrate emotive gestures.

LILIENTHAL'S new clothing store on the Bowery, New York, will be opened on May 1st.

A Way To Reduce Rents.

The residents around and about Franklin Square may quiet their fears now that it seems assured the East End public school is not to be built at the junction of Putnam and LaGrande avenues. The location finally selected is on Sixth street between Richmond and Franklin place. A tenant in the vicinity of the Square, however, remarks with wisdom born of experience, that it would be a righteous judgment upon the landlords thereabouts if a public building was erected in their midst. It is evident by the rental value upon dwellings in the neighborhood, that their owners consider it the garden spot of the universe.

Roller Skating For the Church.

The following is from a Dakota paper and is said to be authentic: "Rev. F. M. Shaw, trick bicycle rider and fancy trick skater, will be at the rink on Saturday evening, Feb. 14. He performs over fifty of the most difficult feats on the bicycle. This exhibition should be seen to be admired. Come everybody and see the finest exhibition before the public. Mr. Shaw, although perhaps the finest skater in America, does not follow the business for his own personal benefit, but is desirious of raising enough money to pay off a mortgage on his church, which falls due in the near future. Admission 25 cents." It may be added that Rev. F. M. Shaw is said to be a preacher in the church and is an able man.

Dividing The Reserve Fund.

One-tenth of the school tax of the State is kept as a reserve fund which the State Board of Education are required on or before the 15th of April, each year to apportion among the counties as deemed best for their respective interests. The amount of the reserve fund is $142,424.40. The State Board met April 7th, and made the following apportionment of the fund: Atlantic, $9,230.98; Bergen, $3,957 56; Burlington, $6,488 80; Camden, $7,833 54; Cape May, $2,658.85; Cumberland, $8,883.85; Essex $6,230 73; Gloucester, $2,506 25; Hudson, $28,674 02; Hunterdon, $863.95; Mercer, $7,171 49; Middlesex, $9,502 86; Monmouth, $8,043 44; Morris, $5,245.09; Ocean, $8,213.62; Passaic, $7,733.73; Salem, $916.40; Sussex, $6,981.12; Union, $6,333.84; Warren, $4,945.28.

Possible To Human Honesty.

The General Solicitor of the Illinois Central R. R., Judge Fentress, in a personal letter to ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, pays the following tribute to human honesty, in an earnest and emphatic way peculiarly his own: "I am extremely sorry you have left the office of Treasurer. Your course has been so singularly un-speculative and honest that you deserve the honor which every right minded man accords to you. I trust you will succeed in whatever you undertake. Your life of 21 years refusing to speculate or use your knowledge of company affairs to grow rich, settles one thing and that is that it is a feat possible to human honesty, and I am glad to know it is possible—for my observation of others had led me to suppose that such honesty was hardly possible. I for one, honor you."

Fire Board Election.

The election for two members of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department, held on Monday, resulted in the largest total vote ever cast, and the election of Mr. Wm. E. Jones to succeed himself, and of Mr. Frederick Knowland to succeed Mr. Jeremiah Van Winkle. Mr. Jones was endorsed for re-election by all the companies, Mr. Knowland was nominated by No. 2 and No. 3 Engine Co's, Zephyr H. & L. Co. and Alert Hose Co., Mr. V. W. Nash was nominated by Engine Co. No. 1, and Mr. J. Van Winkle was a candidate "at large," running independently at the request of a number of citizens. The result was as follows—the total number of votes cast being 949:

William E. Jones....	919	J. Van Winkle......	599
Fred. Knowland....	684	V. W. Nash........	141

Mr. Joseph A. Hubbard was re-elected Assessor, and the Board was voted to authority to pay him $150 in lieu of all fees. Authority was also given by the vote of the people, to pay the Treasurer of the Board $250 in lieu of all fees, and the Secretary $50. Eighty-five ballots were cast to pay the late Secretary, Mr. T. J. Gillies, $30 for his past three years of service. Also power to raise $7,000 by taxation was voted.

Who Lighted This?

At about two o'clock of Tuesday morning, just after the Election Board had finished counting the votes for Fire Commissioners, Officer Grant and Watchman Wright were surprised by the appearance of No. 2 Engine and Cart, behind their horses, rushing through Front street and down Park avenue. No fire could be seen reflected on the sky, but in a few minutes news reached the other houses by telephone of a barn burning on Broadway above Ninth Street, and the alarm bell was loudly rung. The quick response of No. 2 to the alarm is accounted for by the fact that some of the members were awake and about the house when the telephone bell rang, and in consequence the horses were hooked up and the apparatus on its way to the fire, before the alarm could be rung.

Mr. Isaac Brown, who resides on Broadway near Ninth street, was awakened Tuesday morning just after two o'clock by the noise of many voices outside, but supposing it caused by a party of night-hawks out for a roam, he did not immediately get up. The noise continuing, and his dog barking loudly, he subsequently looked out the window to discover his barn all in flames. Mr. Brown burned his hands severely in opening the barn door, but he thereby saved his poor horse that walked out with tail and mane burning. A wagon, sleigh, set of harness, and a small quantity of grain was burned with the barn. The loss is about $400. There was only an insurance of $50 on the barn.

The World's Exposition.

Mr. C. Schepflin, of the firm of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., of this city, has recently returned from a visit to the World's Exposition at New Orleans, and expresses himself as delighted with the magnitude of the exhibit, and the manner in which it is conducted. He justly complains that our Northern press do not give the favorable comment on the Exposition that they should do. It far exceeds in size and display the famed Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia. Our own State has one of the finest exhibits in the Exposition, and March 25th, "Jersey Day," was made one of most successful days designated by States to be specially observed. The remarks of Gen. C. H. Barney, Commissioner for New Jersey, on that day, were eulogistic of the fine display made by this State and the large attendance. During his remarks Gen. Barney said:

"A New Jersey enterprise filters all the water that is used in this Exposition; the invention of another Jerseyman supplies it with electric light, while still another resident of our State harnesses the electric iron horse, which stands ready to convey you from this to the Main Building. On the further bank of yonder lake stands the Bankers' Pavilion, the idea of which originated in the fertile brain of a Jerseyman, who satisfied with originating the idea, set to work to carry it out, and in its completed state presides over it to-day, ready to extend to you a hospitable welcome. And if by any mischance, on your way to call upon him, you should tumble into the pellucid and bituminous waters of the lake, a life-saving crew of native Jerseymen will be on hand with their apparatus to fish you out. And think for a moment of the vacant spaces which would be left in the Main Building by the withdrawal of all the silk-weaving looms from Paterson, the pottery exhibits from Trenton, the fine displays of the Clark Thread Company of Newark, the Singer Manufacturing Company of Elizabeth, the H. B. Smith Machine Company's wood-working machinery and the other New Jersey exhibits too numerous to mention."

The Washington Rock Hotel.

We have on exhibition in the offices of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, photographs of "The Somerset"—the proposed hotel on Washington Rock—as well as the plans in detail of its interior on each floor, and the arrangement of the grounds. Numbers of our citizens have already examined these outlines of intended achievements, and unanimously expressed sincere admiration and entire approval. Everybody—for the whole city is interested in that which is to prove of the greatest benefit to Plainfield, its merchants, its property owners and its residents—is welcome to inspect the plans on paper of the building we very thoroughly described in these columns some weeks ago. Until the whole amount, about a quarter of a million of dollars, necessary to completely finish the Hotel, is ready, work will not be commenced. Consequently, when begun, it will certainly be finished. During this Summer, however, a force of men will clear away the underbrush and obstructing trees upon the site.

Bouncing a Tenant.

For some months past Mr. Charles De La Montanye has occupied part of a one-story frame building on North avenue, as a cigar store and repair shop. Saturday morning last, between one and three o'clock, the premises were entered and all his goods and chattels were thrown out on the sidewalk in the rain, with nobody to watch them save a hard-hearted wooden Indian. The building was, during the following days, torn down preparatory to the erection of brick stores on its site.

There being no visible intent to steal or commit any other crime, a charge of burglary could not be sustained, but Mr. C. D. L. M., swore that Mr. Theodore Mullen—husband of the owner of the building—his brother John Mullen and a companion, did maliciously break into his premises and damage his personal property to the extent of $150. The accused waived examination and were held in bail—Mr. Frank McIntyre giving his bond for their appearance before the court in its May term, to answer the charge.

Bass Fly Fishing.

The portion of the day for fly casting is from four in the afternoon until an hour after dark, during which time the flies are out and the bass swim in from deeper waters to feed on them. The places of assembly for these flies are usually the eastern shores of the islands, within little coves, having some five feet of water. The angler is to lie outside and cast in toward shore. If on the western shore at sunset, he casts towards the sun in the gloaming. Let the flies sink in a few inches, retrieve them slowly; the bass seldom leaps for the fly; he slides up under and sucks it in, the water boils in his swirl, and then comes his vaults and plunges. If the line is taut, it is not imperative to strike; he presses the abdomen between his lips, and the point of the hook must do the rest of fall.

It is of no advantage to stand in the boat. A cast of forty feet when seated is better than one of sixty feet standing. If it is late and we have had some rises it is useless to move the boat to a new spot. Rest a few minutes from casting; get out the file and hone and touch up the fly hook until it tingles like a cambric needle. If the hackle is soggy, take out the scissors and trim it as one would his goatee. Cut off a little of the tag, so that it does not extend beyond the bend of the hook. Now we try again. Bass are great rovers, and more will come to us if we sit quite in a favorable spot than we can reach with a pair of oars. The black gnat and Ferguson are best early in the day and as its grows later the coachman and the white miller. We use only two flies. Two may not be better than three, but two are enough, and in a word, we never give up until a well-filled fly book is exhausted.—American Angler.

The Hambletonian Family.

To those of our readers who are interested in that noble animal, the horse, and who prefer good, to common blood, we present some facts for their consideration.

That Rysdyk's Hambletonian has given to the world the greatest trotting family, no one can deny. On that memorable May day in 1849, at Chester, Orange county, N. Y., a bay colt was foaled subsequently called Rysdyk's Hambletonian. He was sired by Tredwell's Abdallah, by Mambrino, a son of imported Messenger, his dam was the celebrated Charles Kent mare by imported Bellfounder, and his second and third dams were also direct descendants of imported Messenger, thus possessing three distinct strains of the blood of that great horse.

His natural cost was $12, and with his dam was sold to Wm. M. Rysdyk, when not a year old, for $125.

Abdallah, his sire, was then unappreciated, and afterwards, finding his way to a remote hamlet on Long Island, where he was sold, when 22 years old, to a fisherman for $35. He refused to work in front of a fish wagon and was therefore turned out upon a beach, devoid of vegetation, to die of starvation. He was buried in the sand on a dreary day in November, 1854, which ended his checkered and romantic life.

Hambletonian was mated with 1,926 mares and got 1,330 colts. The largest number of foals got in any one year, was 148 from 217 mares.

Not only have his get achieved the greatest victories in speed, which remain unexcelled, but they have added millions of dollars to the wealth of our country. To Mr. Rysdyk's bank account Old Hambletonian alone put the snug little sum of $205,750, in stud fees. He has 39 sons and daughters with technical records of 2:30 and better, and the aggregate sum for which they were sold is $368,000.

This list does not include his numerous sons and daughters, that have been sold, without records, nor those that have never changed ownership since becoming famous.

Of the former class—without records—we give a few of the more prominent, and the prices paid for them: Dictator, $25,000; Happy Medium, $25,000; Startle, $20,000; Cuyler, $15,000; Electioneer, $12,500; Aberdeen, $5,000, and those of the latter class, that could have been sold for large prices, which were refused, are Volunteer, $40,000; Alexander's Abdallah, $35,000; George Wilkes, $30,000; Messenger Duroc, $30,000; Leland, $20,000; Sweepstakes, $25,000; Harold, $40,000; Edward Everitt, $25,000; Artillery, $20,000; Knickerbocker, $15,000; Middletown, $10,000; Rysdyk, $20,000; Strathmore, $18,000; Peacemaker, $15,000. In addition to these there is a large number of his get that are valued high in the thousands, but we have not room to mention them all. We have referred to enough to open the eyes of all thinking men to the fact that the profit lies in breeding to none but those whose veins are coursed by the winning blood, which is so marked in the case of Goldsmith Maid, whose turf winnings amount to $350,000 and she an in-bred Abdallah. Not only do we find the trotting element predominating in Hambletonian and his get, but we also find that his sons and daughters are transmitting it to their descendants as well, and that the Hambletonian family has, in addition to all its other merits, the essential requisite of being able to "breed on"—that is, the speed producing qualities do not run out, but are handed down from one generation to another in a marked degree.

It is wonderful to think of a horse whose original cost was but $12, whose sire was permitted to die of starvation on a desolate beach, and who, with his dam, was purchased for $125, rising to such eminence, and bringing a fortune to a plain man like William M. Rysdyk, of Orange county.—Sussex Herald.

What The Milliners Say.

Small knots and bows of velvet will again be worn in the hair.

New summer bonnets will be of drawn net, close at the sides, with trimmings very high in front.

A black net bonnet, with soft pink roses, is very attractive, this combination of colors being always admired.

A glove intended for evening wear reaches to the wrist, and has a long lace sleeve of the color of the glove extending nearly to the shoulder.

A beautiful little jacket of black net, embroidered all over with gold, with a deep flounce of gathered lace and moire sash fastened about the hips is very becoming to youthful figures.

In the latest bonnet styles is one of medium size, faced with gold tinsel tricotine, the brim finished with a fringe of gilt and straw beads, having a soft crown of Egyptian embroidery in a design of tinsel and straw. The trimming was of chartreuse green velvet ribbons, crossing the top and forming the strings, and on the left of the top a monture of green marabout tips and oats, upon which rests a grasshopper.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

The Chemist of the New York State Agricultural Society Finds Ammonia in the Royal Baking Powder, and Says:

"Ammonia is used in a baking powder to make the powder cost less. I have always been opposed to its employment, considering that it is not a constituent of pure baking powders. I would not use such an article nor recommend it."

And adds: "The results of a complete analysis of several packages of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, purchased by myself of grocers, confirm the fact that it is made of pure and healthful materials, well manufactured, and is in every particular reliable and, most wholesome. Having had the examination of the materials used in manufacturing the Cleveland Powder for many years, it affords me pleasure to recommend it without reserve."

DESTROY THAT SIGN.

One may feel that he's getting old, but he naturally dislikes that anything about his appearance should advise others of the fact. Yet nothing does this so effectually as thin and failing hair. No woman wants to marry a man, and business firms hesitate to employ a man, who shows this fatal sign. Parker's Hair Balsam is worth to you, in this regard, more than its weight in diamonds. Use it, and have plentiful and glossy hair. Many have had every trace of grayness removed and bald spots covered by using a single bottle.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A SWEET APOLOGY.

BY PEARL ETTINGE.

"I wish you wouldn't fidget so, Harry. How do you expect we can get these pictures arranged when you joggle the table in that outrageous manner?"

"Well, I'm sure, Nell," answered the accused, deprecatingly, "it's rather rough on a fellow to be compelled to sit the best part of an evening handing the paste-pot and sorting fancy cards. I thought you had outgrown that sort of thing when you put away your school-books."

"That shows all you know," was the contemptuous rejoinder. "As if these albums were not all the rage, and Alice, so good and thoughtful, bringing all the newest and loveliest cards from Paris. Why, my dear boy (this in a triumphant tone), my book will be a long way the most beautiful one in town."

"Yes, I know," muttered the young man, with a reprehensible lack of interest. "But you promised to let me row you across Silver Lake this evening. The moonlight nights are nearly gone and we haven't settled anything yet, Nellie."

"Can't you talk before Alice? I'm sure we needn't mind her."

Here I, being the Alice referred to, hastily rose and offered to resign my position as "paster-in-chief."

"No, no," Nell exclaimed.

"I'm going to get some more paste," I answered.

"Why don't you use mucilage?" queried Mr. Harry, in a conciliatory tone, resigning himself to the inevitable.

"Because we haven't any, and they are out of it at the stationer's, so we thought a little home-made material would do as well."

"Oh, no, it won't," ejaculated Harry, with alacrity. "I wouldn't do any more just now. It would be far better to wait and finish your work with the proper stuff. Come (this very pleadingly), a little row will do you good, and Miss Alice will perhaps join us," continued our hero, with a suspicious lack of warmth.

Gracefully declining the invitation, I watched the young lovers slowly treading Miller's lane.

About an hour had elapsed, and I was comfortably doing my hair preparatory to seeking my downy couch, when Nell rushed in my room with blazing eyes and heightened color, and flinging herself on a chair, exclaimed, "Harry and I have had such a row."

"Indeed," I replied, unmoved by a statement whose recurrence could be estimated as happening about once every twenty-four hours.

"Yes," said Nell, somewhat crushed by my lack of sympathy, "and, Allie, it was all about a miserable box of bonbons which Fred Clarke, that clever young lawyer, brought me from the city. Harry said he wished I would get over my childish love of sweets, that it was ruinous to the digestion, to say nothing of my lovely teeth. I told him he only made my health an excuse, that the truth of the matter was jealousy. Jealousy about poor Fred, and he needn't think because he has just taken his doctor's diploma that he could commence practice with me as first patient. Well, you can readily understand, dear, how one word led to another, but when Harry wound up in his conceited way by declaring medicine to be a noble profession and law a despicable one, I tell you I couldn't stand it, and I informed his highness that I would never speak to him again unless he made me an apology, and what do you think? The wretch laughed and walked off saying: 'Oh, certainly, Miss Nicolle, I'll make a sweet apology,'" and with a burst of tears sweet Nell, who after all was little more than a child, relapsed into despair on a macrame tidy, thereby reducing the red ribbons to irretrievable dampness. I with my five years seniority hardly knew what consolation would prove most efficacious in soothing indignant seventeen.

It was useless to indicate that it was a mere boy and girl spat about a stick of candy, or that it was quite proper for the incipient physician to object to an undue indulgence in sweets, or to hint at the flattery which is always conveyed by the demon of jealousy.

All these suggestions were received with scorn, from the indisputable fact that Harry had made himself disagreeable "from the first," objecting to the harmless amusement of "making an album," giving vent to sarcasms regarding the pictures, the paste and various other things connected with the artistic employment.

"Nell, Nell!" yelled the musical Tommy, as my cousin's brother was called. "Here's a package for you."

We were most comfortably disposed on an old shawl, with books and work, in the grove, just to the left of the old-fashioned farmhouse.

No reference had been made to the last night, but my Nell had lost that buoyancy of spirits which rendered us all her willing subjects. Full of curiosity we awaited the coming of the dreadful boy, who burst upon us breathless but grinning, bearing aloft a heavy parcel about the size of a large cocoanut.

He dropped it into her lap and gasped: "With Harry Blessing's compliments. The colored man brought it, and he said there was no answer. Hurry up; let's see what it is. I'll open it. I'll cut the string. Here's a knife," volunteered the voluble and obliging Tommy.

The removal of sundry rolls of the thick brown paper disclosed to our gaze a round glass jar, securely sealed, filled with some thick, golden fluid.

"What can it be?" we exclaimed simultaneously.

"What a lovely color," added Nell. "There's no label on it. I wonder what —" she paused and turned the pretty jar slowly round and round.

"Why, you two gooses," politely remarked Tom; "why, it's honey—strained honey. Old man Blessing is crazy about bees, and your beau knows how 'gone' you are on sweets, and of course he'd be sure to send you some of the first crop."

"But isn't it a little early in the season for honey, Tom?" I ventured.

"Early! Of course not. Why, I see'd a whole row of jars just like them in Killer's grocery yesterday."

This decided all doubts on the matter, and with a happy laugh and brimming over with importance, Nell dispatched Tom to ask auntie if we might have hot biscuits for tea, "and Tommy dear," added our heroine insinuatingly, "you'll run over to Willow Farm, won't you, with a note, and I'll finish your reins before you get back?"

"All right; see that you do," was the patronizing response, as he rushed off to execute his mission. As soon as he was well out of sight and sound, Nell exclaimed: "Why, Alice, don't you see? Why, it's as clear as day. Poor Harry; how clever of him."

Perceiving that I did not comprehend, she continued: "Don't you remember how provoked I was because Harry declared emphatically that of course he would make the an apology—'a sweet apology'—and—here it is"—holding it up against the sunlight, triumphantly. "I shall send him a dear little note, say the apology is accepted, and ask him to tea," and, clasping the sweet treasure in both small hands, she hastened to the house, and lost no time in penning the few words which would pardon and recall the erring one. Aunt Mary gave us carte blanche, and much delight was expressed at the prospect of light biscuits, fresh butter and golden honey.

Prompt to the moment came the repentant swain. Greeted with smiles was he by a lovely little maiden, dressed in an exquisitely fitting pale blue cashmere robe, particularly becoming to my fair cousin.

Not a word was said in reference to the past.

As for Harry, he looked a picture of puzzled delight at his dove's magnanimity. We seated ourselves about Aunt Mary's bountiful board, and after each had been served with cold chicken, jelly and light snowy biscuits almost too hot to touch, conversation began. "Nellie, what in the world have you got that thing there for?" inquired Mr. Blessing, indicating the jar.

"Just wait and you'll see," nodded our pretty hostess, as with dexterous fingers she quickly loosened the top. At this moment I noticed a peculiar smile pass over Mr. Blessing's countenance.

Expectant Tommy, who could no longer restrain his feelings, demanded liberal and immediate distribution.

"Tom, keep quiet!" cried Nell. "It's my turn first."

"Of course, that's only fair," echoed the chorus at the table.

"But hadn't you better wait till——"

"I don't see the reason why," stammered the bewildered Harry.

The chorus united in a full cry of "Oh, hush!" "That'll do!" "Give us some!" etc., etc., until our friend Harry was rendered quite audible.

Nell poured a generous quantity of honey over her deliciously buttered biscuit.

"Ah!" murmured she, raising it to her lips.

"Ah!" echoed the sympathetic chorus. The lovely mouth closed quickly over a goodly bite.

"Nell!" shrieked Harry, "what are you doing?" and grasping her arm he sprang from his chair, overturning the jar and ruining the blue cashmere forever.

My cousin covered her face with a napkin and fled from the room. I followed her. Mr. Blessing did not wait further developments. Tom rolled on the floor in an ecstacy of merriment, while poor aunt Mary and Uncle James were left solitary and surprised at the tea-table.

Is it necessary to tell our readers how vainly poor Harry tried to explain that in the humility of his spirit he had purchased a large jar of the very finest liquid glue at Killer's grocery, and how he contemplated helping with heart and hand to complete the album which had occasioned so much disturbance. He had brought a charming collection of peace offerings, and was naturally confused to find his mucilage placed upon the supper-table.

I am sure you will readily see that nothing short of unceasing devotion to fancy picture albums, albums large and small, of all sorts and shapes and sizes, together with a collection of character cards from all corners of the civilized world, and, in addition, an humble submission to the inevitable in the form of cream-chocolate bonbons—then, and not till then, did our fair Nell accept "a sweet apology."—Sunday Mercury.

TWO-MILE BRIDGES.

Notices have been sent to the trainmen on the Jersey Central railroad that the extensive repairs to the long bridge which spans Newark bay, from Bergen Point to Elizabethport, this city, were completed and that hereafter trains crossing the structure could travel at an increased rate of speed. Heretofore trains have been slowed up as a precaution against accident. An officer of the railroad company said to-day: All of the decayed timber in the bridge has been removed and replaced by sound wood. The structure is now perfectly safe even for the passage of the heaviest freight trains. The bridge, which is about two miles in length, was constructed fifteen years ago, and when built was intended as a temporary structure, to be replaced by a more substantial one; but the time passed and the same old bridge is still in existence. First and last, a large amount of money has been expended for repairs.—Elizabeth Herald.

CHURCH MANNERS.

The Music Herald says:—"We wish to call attention to two matters in which the majority of congregations might easily improve their manners and add to the impressiveness of the services. It is a common habit, when the audience are to stand during the singing of a hymn, to wait until the first line is begun, and then ruin the verse by the confusion of rising. Again, during the later part of the last verse the clattering of books into the pew-racks before the close of the song is a serious interference with all devotional effect, and especially so when that opportunity is seized for the putting on of rubbers, etc., etc. No one would do this during the closing sentences of prayer; why should it be done in the ascription of praises to God? Hundreds, yes, thousands of Christian people thus thoughtlessly mar the song-worship in the sanctuary."

PETIT JURORS.

Tuesday, April 7th, in the presence of the Court of Common Pleas Sheriff Stiles drew the petit jurors for the May term of court. The following were drawn and accepted:—

Elizabeth—First ward, Henry C. Stout; Second ward, John Barry; Third ward, John Grad, William Zimmerman, Christian Peters, Thomas E. Walker; Fourth ward, James E. Butler, Benjamin O. Horton, Elias W. C. Vandervert, Adam Moreheart, Charles B. Kissam; Fifth ward, Patrick Hagerty, John Dowd, William M. Whitehead, Cox W. Smith; Sixth ward, Elias B. Crane; Seventh ward, John C. Ross, John Gregg, John M. Clark; Eighth ward, Thomas H. Seymour, Samuel Murray, George Brush.

COUNTY BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

The Union County Board of Agriculture at its regular meeting April 21, discussed co-operation among farmers, but could make little of it. The farmers could unite in keeping down weeds, wild carrots, daisies, Canada thistles, etc., but could not control the prices of their products. It was suggested that a market might be established in the county, but this was deemed impracticable. Farmers in some parts of the county are co-operating to make good roads, as in Westfield. N. W. Parcell, E. F. Beebe, Frank Hollinger, D. C. Crane, Robert Woodruff and several others took part in the discussion. At the next meeting, April 16, at 2:30 p. m., the subject "spring work, and the best ways of doing it" will be considered. It is probable that copies of the report of State Agricultural Society will then be distributed; and as spring work is coming on fast the next meeting may be the last until the fall work is over. Four new members have been elected and others are proposed.

POSTAL POINTS.

The following changes in the rates of postage will be made the first of July, which postmasters should take notice of:

First—The weight of all single-rate letters is increased from one-half of an ounce to an ounce, and the rate thereof to two cents each ounce or fraction thereof. The same increase of weight is allowed for drop letters, whether mailed at stations where there is a free delivery or where carrier service is not established.

Second—All newspapers sent from the office of publication, including sample copies, or when sent from a news agency to actual subscribers thereto, or to other news agents, shall be entitled to transmission at rates of one cent per pound or fraction thereof, the postage to be prepaid. This is a reduction of one-half from existing rates.

Third—Any article in a newspaper or other publication may be marked for observation except by written or printed words without increase of postage.

Fourth—A special stamp of the value of ten cents may be issued which, when attached to a letter in addition to the lawful postage thereon, shall entitle the letter to immediate delivery at any place containing 4,000 population or over, according to the Federal census, within the carrier limit of any free delivery office, or within one mile of the post-office of any other post office coming within the provisions of this law which may, in like manner, be designated as a special delivery office, that such specially stamped letters shall be delivered between seven o'clock a. m. and midnight; that a book shall be provided in which the person to whom the letter is addressed shall acknowledge its receipt; that messengers for this special delivery are to be paid eighty per cent. of the face value of all the stamps received and recorded in a month, provided that the aggregate compensation paid to any one person for such service shall not exceed thirty dollars per month, and provided further that the regulations for the delivery of these especially stamped letters shall in no way interfere with the prompt delivery of letters as provided by existing law or regulation.

"Connecticut boasts of a woman who wears a No. 9 shoe," says a Chicago paper, which evidently considers a No. 9 phenomenally small.

The most fashionable bridal necklace just now is a string of pearls. Pearls have an unchanging value and can always be pawned at fair rates.

Nadyezhda Stepanovna Sokhansky was the name of a popular Russian novelist recently deceased, but she called herself "Kokhanovskaya" for short.

It is said that the death rate of Texas has decreased during the past ten years. This would seem to corroborate the report that there is a good deal of adulteration in the manufacture of cartridges.

The Waverly and Mutual Driving clubs have arranged for the use of Waverly Park for their races the coming season. The Waverly club will have the grounds on Wednesdays of each week, and Mutual club on Saturdays. The latter club will probably open the season on Decoration day.—Elizabeth Herald.

A LINGUIST IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

It is said that at the reception on the 17th, when the whole Diplomatic Corps was present, Miss Cleveland spoke to the French, German and Italian Minister each in his native tongue, and kept up an animated conversation with each, which is an accomplishment none of her predecessors have had to the same degree, if at all.—Washington Letter in Boston Courier.

THOSE TROUBLESOME FELONS.

"I wish to tell those who may suffer from that terrible scourge, felons, of a remedy that will effect a cure in twenty-four hours, as I had occasion to prove within the last three days," says a writer in Farm and Fireside. "A lady came here who had been suffering over two weeks with a felon on the end of her middle finger. I saturated a bit of grated wild turnip the size of a bean with spirits of turpentine and applied it to the affected part. It relieved the pain at once. In twelve hours there was a hole in the bone, and the felon was destroyed. I removed the turnip and applied healing salves, and the finger is well." The writer of the above has seen this remedy tried for felons with success in one or two cases. Spirits of turpentine is a useful remedy in several complaints. The writer used it last Fall in a very bad case of sore throat by applying to a red flannel rag and then put it on the throat, which gave relief in a few hours and a cure in a few days.

Burchard has resigned and his church society has been dissolved. So much for dragging church organizations into politics, especially when they are used to bolster up bad personal reputations.

A Brooklyn man gave a ferry ticket agent a $5 gold piece, thinking it a penny. Several days afterward he discovered the error and asked the agent about it. The latter in giving it to him said that the day after he took it in he had given it out in change to a man who next day brought it back, threw it on the counter and departed without waiting for any change. The piece had a mark on the rim and had thus for over ten days been masquerading as a penny.

The Holstein heifer, "Greenwood Girl," twenty-three months old, owned by Dr. D. M. Furman, of Monmouth county, has just made a milk record that surpasses any ever known. During the seven days ending March ninth, she gave two hundred and ninety-two and a quarter pounds of milk. Her feed was eight quarts wheat bran, four quarts corn meal, half bushel sugar beets with corn stalks twice, and clover hay once per day. After the third day the bran was increased to ten quarts and the corn meal to five quarts per day, with beets, stalks and hay as before.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SCIENTIFIC FACT.

"Royal" the only Baking Powder free from Lime and Absolutely Pure.

Lime is the serious defect found in most of the cream of tartar baking powders. As a matter of fact, chemical analysis has found it in all such powders except the "Royal." Its presence is caused by the use of adulterated cream of tartar in the effort to reduce their cost of production.

Lime adds to the weight, while it detracts from the strength of the baking powder. It also renders the food less wholesome, giving rise to dyspepsia and kindred ailments. Baking powders containing lime produce less leavening gas, and therefore in use are more expensive than a first-class, pure article.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar that is first specially refined and made chemically pure. No tartrate of lime or other impurity can find its way into the "Royal," and to this fact its great superiority in strength, wholesomeness, and keeping quality is due.

All this adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing the Royal Baking Powder, but as all its ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is free from every extraneous substance—"absolutely pure." Nor does it contain any ingredients except those necessary to make a pure, wholesome, and perfect baking powder.

Professor McMurtrie, late chemist in chief to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after analyzing the various baking powders of the market, testifies to the absolute purity of that used in the Royal Baking Powder as follows:

"I have examined the cream of tartar manufactured by the New York Tartar Company and used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in the manufacture of their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure, and free from lime in any form.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AN ORDINANCE

To Repeal certain Ordinances.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

That the following Ordinances be and the same are hereby repealed:

"An Ordinance designating a council chamber and a city court room," approved November 16, 1875. And,

"An Ordinance regulating the sale of goods, wares and merchandise at auction," approved January 8, 1874.

Adopted April 6, 1885.
Approved April 7, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 6th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on Central avenue and Front street.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The owners of lands fronting on the North side of Central avenue between Third and Fourth streets, and of lands fronting on the East side of Front street, between Washington street, and a point two hundred feet North of Washington street, are hereby required to flag the sidewalks in front of said lands, or a width of at least four feet, except where they are now already flagged with good flagging. Said flagging shall consist of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on surface, and shall be properly laid in one course under the direction of the Street Commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than two inches thick in the thinnest part.

SECTION 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within twenty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then the Street Committee are authorized and directed to cause said flagging to be laid, and the costs and expenses thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the City Charter.

AN ORDINANCE

For the assessment of property and the collection of taxes within the City of Plainfield for the year 1885.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be assessed, levied and collected by tax for the current expenses of this city for the year 1885 the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.)

SEC. 2. There shall be further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the support of the City [illegible] the sum of Thirty-five Hundred [illegible] same manner as the said sum of [illegible] Dollars mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance is assessed, levied and collected.

SEC. 3. There shall be still further assessed, levied and collected by tax for the purposes of the Library Fund of the City of Plainfield a sum equal to one-fifth of one mill on the dollar on all the taxable property in said city, such tax to be levied and collected at the same time and in like manner with the amount mentioned in Section One of this Ordinance, and the moneys when collected shall be held as provided in Chapter CLXIII Laws of New Jersey for 1879.

SEC. 4. That in addition to the taxes to be assessed, levied and collected by the first section of this Ordinance, there shall be assessed, levied and collected for the use of the City of Plainfield for the year 1885, an extra tax, to wit, the sum of Five Thousand Dollars, [illegible] pursuant to Section Twenty-six of the City Charter and the vote for "Money" at the city election thereunder held on the second day of December, 1884, said sum of Five Thousand Dollars to be assessed, levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner, and the commissioners of appeals on said extra tax to meet at the same time as directed by law in the case of the annual city taxes.

Adopted April 6, 1885.
Approved April 7, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., April 6, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

To establish the office of Health Inspector, and to prescribe the duties thereof.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council immediately after this ordinance shall become a law to hold office during the pleasure of the Common Council a suitable and competent person to be called the Health Inspector of the City of Plainfield, who shall be entitled to receive such compensation for the performance of the duties of his office as the Common Council may from time to time determine.

It shall be the duty of the Health Inspector to devote all necessary time to the duties of his office, to make diligent inquiry with respect to all matters existing in the city which are or may be injurious to the public health, and to report the same forthwith to the Mayor or City Physician, and during the existence or anticipation of any contagious or infectious disease in the city, he shall have power, whenever in his opinion the public health demands it, to order and cause any thing injurious to the public health to be forthwith cleansed, disinfected or removed at the expense of the owner or occupant of the premises in which the same may be, to be recovered by action of debt against such owner or occupant in any court of competent jurisdiction; and for the proper discharge of such duties, he may at all proper times and seasons enter upon the premises and into the houses of every person in the City of Plainfield as often as he shall deem necessary or the Board of Health or City Physician may order, and examine into the health, cleanliness and number of persons inhabiting each house, and shall inspect cellars, vaults, privies, sewers and all other places in such premises. He shall obey and execute all orders to him of the City Physician or orders or resolutions of the Board of Health, in such manner as they may direct. He shall report in writing to the Board of Health at least once in each month, and also whenever required by the Board in relation to all duties performed by him and to any other matter within his knowledge affecting the public health.

SECTION 2. Any person who shall resist or oppose said Health Inspector in the performance of any of the duties of his office shall upon conviction thereof in the City Court be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

EXECUTRIX'S SETTLEMENT.—Notice is hereby given that the account of the subscriber, executrix of Cornelia L. Allen, deceased, will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union on Wednesday the third day of June next.

POETRY.

WAIT!

BY WARD STEELE.

When a thought comes to your brain
That would place on life a stain,
Crush it out from heart and mind;
For a purer thought to find,
Wait!

When your lips in haste would speak
Words that show a judgment weak,
Through a passion that would blind,
Or an impulse yet unkind,
Wait!

When a deed you fain would do,
That you might have cause to rue,
Till the shadows flee your mind,
Hands withhold; to calm your mind,
Wait!

Wait in passion all subdue;
Wait for loving thought and true;
Wait till lips breathe tender word,
For deeds by gentle hope are stirred,
Wait!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

CASEY'S GHOST.

It was not a comedy, but a tragedy of errors all around, a mixture of joking and revenge, with the latter element strongly predominating.

The cause was jealousy, that master passion that underlies so much of human misery.

Thomas Casey and Wilbur Hall were rival suitors for the favor of pretty Maggie Leigh, and her father, the richest man in Pendleton, favored Thomas Casey.

For he was not only a man of standing and wealth, but he was a connection of the Leigh family, and they were all clannish.

But, with the usual perversity of love matters since the days of Adam, Maggie had given the whole treasure of her loving heart to Wilbur, who was only a clerk in the Pendleton bank, though he had hopes of one day being the heir of his great uncle, Gordon Hall, whose wealth was rumored to be something enormous.

But, as Mr. Leigh wisely remarked, Gordon Hall if he was nearly eighty, might marry any day while Thomas Casey had clear undisputed possession of his large estate and handsome income.

Maggie, however, only laughed cheerily at this view of the matter, and stroking her father's soft gray hair, whispered:

"I don't care if Tom is a millionaire, papa; I love Wilbur."

And the old man sighed, but loved his golden-haired darling too well to insist upon his own desire in the matter.

Wilbur Hall, in the meantime, being of a jealous disposition, suffered intensely. Every day he saw his rival enter the house of Mr. Leigh and remain for hours, for the old gentleman was house-bound with a chronic disease, and he found great comfort in the society of his young friend.

Had Wilbur known that the hours were passed in the invalid's bed-room, playing chess, backgammon or checkers, or reading the newspapers; had he known how persistently Maggie made Tom's presence her excuse for a thousand matters to call her from the room he might have suffered less. As it was, one moment with his lady-love would scatter all his jealous fears, and make him happy, while her blue eyes were lifted so lovingly to his face.

Matters were in this state, when a certain October day brought two events into the life of Wilbur Hall.

One was a letter from New York informing him that his great uncle was dead, and had left him heir to his property; the other was a letter from Maggie, bidding him come to a family tea-party in the evening, to celebrate her nineteenth birthday.

With some certainty that the change in his worldly affairs would entirely alter the mind of Mr. Leigh, Wilbur wrote an acceptance of the invitation, sent a dispatch to the lawyer in New York, promising to appear in his office the following week, and resigned his clerkship in the bank.

Then he started to the only jewelry store in Pendleton to purchase a present for Maggie.

In the window of the store there had been exposed for sale a pair of bracelets of a new and pretty pattern, that Maggie had greatly admired, and which Wilbur intended she should possess.

Upon inquiry, the polite jeweler informed him that:

"I am very sorry, Mr. Hall, but the bracelets were purchased this morning by Mr. Casey. They were so expensive that I only had one pair, fearing they would hang on my hands. I can order you a pair."

"No—no! never mind. I'll call again," and Wilbur Hall left the store his mind in a tumult of jealous rage.

Thomas Casey had but a female relative, and the bracelets could have but one destination.

He had purchased them for the same slender wrists Wilbur himself had intended they should clasp.

And yet, if he told Maggie his news, won her promise to be his wife, surely she would not accept the costly gift from his rival.

Full of fear and hope, strangely struggling in his heart, Wilbur went to Mr. Leigh's.

There was no one in the drawing-room as he entered, but a moment later Maggie came in, her eyes dancing, her face beaming with pleasure, and upon her wrists the bracelets Wilbur knew only too well.

"See my beautiful birthday gift," she cried, extending her arms.

And before she could say more Wilbur broke forth in a torrent of angry reproach, accusing her of coquetry, perfidy and trifling, telling his own hope and fortune, and congratulating her ironically upon her supposed choice of a lover, whose riches after all were not so great as she might have had an hour later.

Without giving Maggie a chance to speak he dashed from the house.

She stood amazed, grieved, indignant. Then she went to her father's room, her face pale, her eyes flashing.

She did not tell her story, and so was left in the dark as to the cause of Wilbur's wrath.

Had she known her father's gift to her of the bracelets which had been purchased at his request by Thomas Casey she would have understood the mistake that was to lead to such disastrous results.

She busied herself about her father, superintended the arrangements for her company, and hoped still that Wilbur would come and explain his strange conduct.

In the meantime Wilbur Hall smarting under his sense of wrong, was hastily walking up and down upon the cliffs that skirted Pendleton, and against which the sea dashed with angry force.

Sometimes he was tempted to throw himself over the edge of the precipitous descent to the hungry waves, and so still his agony of misery and despair.

And while he raged up and down, half mad with his own thoughts, fate sent Thomas Casey to the same spot, with his heart full of bitterness, having offered his love to Maggie Leigh, and had it gently but firmly refused.

He knew only too well the love that would not be rejected, and was as willing as Wilbur could be for a quarrel.

One word led to another, and the two men rushed upon each other and wrestled with a fury that was born of jealousy and disappointment in the hearts of both.

Neither thought of the result of the encounter, until in their blind passion they drew nearer and nearer the edge of the cliff, and Thomas Casey disappeared over the fearful descent, as his opponent, horror stricken, reeled back clutching the empty air.

* * * * * * *

June roses were blooming when Wilbur Hall returned to Pendleton, after spending a winter and spring in New York, arranging the affairs of his uncle's estate.

Cautious inquiry revealed the fact that Thomas Casey had disappeared on the day of Maggie Leigh's birthday, and was supposed to be recovering from the disappointment of his rejected suit in foreign travel.

Hall had suffered agonies of remorse in his absence, but was drawn irresistibly to Maggie Leigh.

Even if she was false, even if she mourned her murdered lover, he must see her once more.

And when she welcomed him with all her old affection, when she gently reproached him for his long absence and silence, when she told him at last, how the bracelets came to be purchased by Thomas Casey, for her father, love became once again the ruling power of Wilbur's life, and he left the house Maggie's accepted lover.

It would be simply impossible to describe the mental torture the wretched man endured through the beautiful summer that followed his return to his old home.

With the conscience of a murderer, he avoided the cliffs; and every waking hour was haunted by the memory of the fatal quarrel with Thomas Casey.

His only rest was in Maggie's presence.

Her soft blue eyes alone could drive back the torturing memories that were sapping away health and happiness.

People shook their heads when Wilbur's pale face and stooping form were seen, and the ill-natured whispered that his newly acquired wealth had led him to dissipation, while the more charitable spoke of an early decline and a consumptive mother's legacy of disease.

The wedding was fixed for September, and preparations went forward rapidly, while every day the bridegroom's health seemed to weaken. Mr. Leigh talked of a winter in Florida, and talked of sending the young couple there, to regain his own strength, and Maggie wondered sadly if she was to lose her lover, as he grew every day more feeble.

No one suspected a mental cause for the physical suffering; no one seemed to suspect Thomas Casey back. He had been eccentric always, often absent for months together, and he had no near relatives to question his movements. Mr. Leigh and Maggie accounted for his absence to them by the fact that his offer of marriage had been refused.

The wedding day dawned bright and mild the September air balmy, without great health. All day Maggie was busy with the preparations for the evening reception and the departure, by the midnight train to New York, where they were to take a steamer for Florida.

It was twilight when she stepped out upon the balcony at the back of the house to meet Wilbur.

He had pleaded for a few moments alone with her, before they had met the wedding guests, and she had consented.

"Only a few minutes, dear," she said, as he came to meet her, "for I must dress very soon. And you, too, have to change your dress."

"Yes! But, oh, my love, my darling we shall soon be one for life, with no more fear of separation."

"I forbid the banns!"

The words came in a hollow voice from the end of the balcony, and, turning in the end from which they proceeded, Wilbur and Maggie saw standing in the fast fading light, the form of Thomas Casey, a ghastly cut upon his face, his garments blood-stained, his eyes staring and set!

With an unearthly cry, Wilbur Hall sprang into the air, and fell at Maggie's feet, the life blood pouring from his lips.

In a moment, as she knelt beside him, screaming for help, the ghost of Thomas Casey came forward, wiping the red paint from his face, and saying in a natural, but terrified voice:

"Gracious! I've killed him!"

"What do you mean?" Maggie cried sharply. "Why have you dressed your face, and made yourself look like a perfect ghost. What is it all? Wilbur, look up. Speak to me."

"It means," said Thomas Casey, kneeling down to gently raise the head of his rival, "that my joke seems likely to prove a sorry one. We, Wilbur and I, quarreled, Maggie, last fall and he pitched me over the cliff. I don't think he meant it, but I got slightly fast in the weeks down at Mike Hearney's nearly dead with bruises. When I recovered I heard of Wilbur Hall's legacy and I knew he would come back. So I kept snug, meaning to give him a good scare, to pay for my broken head and sore bones. I paid Hearney well to hold his tongue, and I waited until to-night to ghost. I knew it was your wedding night, and I was hiding there in the corner of the balcony, to peep in at the window, when Wilbur stood up to be married. But when I saw you together, I thought it was a good time to appear."

All this explanation was poured forth in rapid words, while Thomas Casey chafed the hands of the unconscious man, loosened his collar, and Maggie wrung her hands and sobbed.

"Call somebody!" Casey said at last looking up from his task. "Get some water; don't stop to cry now, Maggie!"

She screamed then for help, and the servants ran out. One was sent for a physician, while the others assisted Wilbur Hall into the house.

He was still breathing when the doctor came, but unconscious; and although every effort was made to revive him, just as the clock struck eight, the hour that was to have made him Maggie's husband, he opened his eyes wildly, gave one staring look about him, and without recognizing his sobbing bride, sighed deeply once, and died.

There had been no thought of murder in Wilbur's heart when he grappled Thomas Casey upon the cliff, yet after months of a murderer's remorse, he gave his life for his supposed crime.

There was no thought of murder in Thomas Casey's heart when he planned his revengeful hoax, yet his whole life has been and will be shadowed by the fatal effect of his appearance as his own ghost.

And Maggie, with a widow's heart devotes her life to her invalid father, and with her pale face and gentle manner is a ministering angel to the poor around her, providing that in a life to come, where all errors are righted, she will meet the only man she ever loved.

TOO MUCH STYLE.

As a nation we of to-day are suffering from too much style. It is a sort of Juggernaut car, and before its wheels women of all classes prostrate themselves willing victims. This is an age of artificiality and pretensions, where every one is striving to seem to be other than they are. The woman with one servant must live in as much style, forsooth, as the woman with two; the shop girl and the servant-maid struggle to dress like the lady, and the mechanic's wife must have as many ruffles and feathers as the rich man's wife, while the millionaire's better-half turns up her nose at Republican simplicity and pines for royal surroundings, and provides herself with gowns and jewels [illegible] bold appointments fit for a queen.

Increase of style always means increase of labor. A servant's duties are infinitely harder than they were twenty years ago. Contrast the single item of laundry work in a modern family with the laundry washing of the preceding generation. Then there were ten children to one ruffle; now we have ten ruffles to each child. "Conveniences have multiplied," it is true, but the work has outstripped them.

Then, too, under the old régime the household affairs were so arranged that Sunday was in reality a day of rest, and the servant came in for her share. Now, in most of our modern families Sunday is the busiest day of the week. Company and more elaborate dinners, make it anything but a day of rest for the cook.

We must do something, and that speedily, to stop the steady ebbing of the current from our kitchens to factory [illegible]. We cannot compete with the mills in the matter of wages. We can cultivate a greater simplicity of living, and thus lessen the amount of household work and the number of steps to be taken in our service; but how shall we counteract these factory girls, shut up six days out of seven amid the close air and the wearing whir and clatter of machinery, of the greater healthfulness and ease of domestic service? It is a problem worth much time and thought, for on its successful solution depends the permanence of the American home.

The custom of wearing ear-rings is so ancient that it is impossible to tell who set the fashion. According to the Moslem creed, every Mohammedan lady considers it her duty to wear them in honor of Hagar, who was held in peculiar veneration as the mother of Ishmael, the founder of the Turkish race. There is a curious legend that Sarah, the wife of Abraham, was so embittered against Hagar that she resolved to disfigure her rival's face. Her better nature triumphed, however, and she only pierced the lobes of her ears. Hagar, wishing to seem comely to Abraham, put rings of gold in her torn ears to cover the marks. Her Turkish descendants to-day feel that a woman dishonors her great ancestor if she fails to wear them. But many sensible girls and women in our own land want a better reason for the fashion.

A FAT BLACK BOTTLE.

[illegible] came to light in Macon, Wednesday, says the Telegraph, a New Year's [illegible] that would fitly adorn a temperance lecture.

A bright little girl gave away what [illegible] as a very pleasant secret: A Telegraph man stumbled into a millinery store one day, and while waiting for the attention of the lady who [illegible] the female population pretty, [illegible] to a conversation between a customer, evidently the wife of a mechanic, and the milliner. The lady was looking at a pretty hat for her little girl who [illegible] at her side with hungry eyes. That [illegible] purchased and the newspaper man mentally thought it looked like extravagance for a mechanic's family to throw away four dollars and a half on a little girl's hat.

As this was the only purchase in which [illegible] seemed interested, she sidled up to where the Telegraph man was [illegible] and artlessly said:

"[illegible] got lots er money now." The reporter mentally cursed himself for [illegible] to buy a ticket for the last lot [illegible].

"Where did you get it, sis?"

"Papa broke th' bottle."

"[illegible] the bottle?"

"[illegible] th' bottle was jus' as fuller [illegible] good be, an' we's rich now."

[illegible] reporter can be idle when such [illegible] this is in speaking distance. [illegible] not more than a few minutes [illegible] child's mother was persuaded [illegible] the following story, and yet [illegible] presumed that every word of it was [illegible] jotted down by the shorthand [illegible] memory upon the thumbworn pages of a mental note book.

"I [illegible] passed through the ordeal of a [illegible] wife, and am too happy to go [illegible] and how much I suffered. My [illegible] drank heavily, and often half [illegible] went for drink. He kept a large [illegible] of whiskey all the time in the house, in addition to what he drank [illegible]. On Christmas Eve nigh five [illegible] he came home drunk, and as [illegible] had gone wrong with him, he [illegible] worst kind of humor. Our [illegible] was in the crib very sick with [illegible] and there was not a cent of [illegible] the house to buy him even the [illegible] toy. My husband had been away [illegible] all day, and being drunk had [illegible] all about his Christmas. I put [illegible] to bed and returned to the [illegible] of my dying boy to watch and [illegible]. It was nearly daybreak when I [illegible] precious son sinking fast. Rushing [illegible] the house I called to a lady [illegible] then aroused my husband. [illegible] had somewhat sobered him, [illegible] loved his boy devotedly, he [illegible] leaning over the little fellow, [illegible] him to say something to him. [illegible] how slowly turned his eyes [illegible] his father and said: 'I am [illegible], papa; please let me see [illegible] Claus put in my stocking.' My husband went to the mantel and took down the little stocking. It was empty! [illegible] still for a moment and God only [illegible] the agony of his heart in that [illegible]. He turned to the bed not [illegible] what to say, but our boy would [illegible] heard him had the poor man's [illegible] heart allowed him to speak. Our [illegible] died.

"[illegible] before New Year's my husband [illegible] for the bottle. May God forgive [illegible] my feelings at that minute, [illegible] wished he, too, were dead. I obeyed [illegible]. To my surprise he [illegible] bottle in his hands and, pouring the whiskey on the ground, said: 'I will drink no more; and the money I would spend for whiskey we will put in this bottle, and at the end of five years we will break it and all enjoy its contents.' You can imagine how happy I was. He had sworn off many times before, but I knew he was in earnest this time. We [illegible] calculation and estimated what whiskey cost him, taking the past year as a basis, on an average of $5 a week. Yes, a great deal of his money went to [illegible] court fines for drunkenness. Well, it [illegible] decided to put $5 a week in the bottle for five years, come what would. [illegible] time was up last New Year's day, and the big black bottle was broken; now figure up how many $5 bills that bottle contained."

"Two hundred and sixty."

"Yes, or $1,300. But this was not all. We saved enough in that time outside of the bottle to buy a little home."

"But are you not afraid that in breaking the bottle your husband will break his resolution?"

"No; because we have started another bottle bank," said the lady with a happy smile.

The husband is a Macon mechanic, well known, and enjoys the respect and esteem of all. He says he never knew how much genuine pleasure there was at home with his loved ones until he got sober enough to appreciate it, and to fill, instead of empty, the fat black bottle.

The lamprey eels builds a stone dam where its spawn may be laid in safety, and the young may hatch unmolested. A writer in Science gives an account of watching some of them at their work in the Saco River. The number engaged was from fifty to one hundred, and their manner of carrying on operations seemed very methodical. The depth of the river at the point in question is from four to five feet, and its bed is made up of bits of granite and fragments of brick. The manner of raising material was in all cases the same. The eel attaches his mouth to a stone, and with many wrigglings lifts it from the bottom. He then floats down stream with the current until he had reached a point directly over the dam. There he dropped it and, swimming around the outer edge of the dam, returns for more material. In many instances heavier stones were lifted by two eels working together. Some of heaviest ones weighed two pounds. This was in June. Later in the season many of the eels were to be seen lying quietly on the up-stream side of the dam, and by the middle of July the ball all disappeared.

The latest invention to control roller skating is described by the New Haven News, and every girl who hears of it will consider it a mean contrivance to abridge her pleasure. It is thus described: The rollometer is a device to be attached to skate rollers for the purpose of registering a number of miles a skater travels in a given time. The idea is taken from the pedometer, which is a little machine to be carried in the vest pocket by which the owner can tell to a nicety how many miles are covered during a day's journey. When a young lady leaves home after supper to visit the rink her mother can set the clock work machinery of the rollometer to as many miles as the prudent parent thinks advisable for the young lady. When that distance has been covered the machinery clamps itself upon the skate rollers in such a way as to make further motion impossible. This clamping [illegible] business is designed to counteract the forgetfulness likely to accompany [illegible] good looking partner and stirring music. If the young wit attempts to outwit the rollometer by skating backward, the rollometer comes into play. It is attached to the rear roller and stops them in the same manner as the rollometer does the front ones.

A correspondent of the Field sends the particulars of a jump performed by a hare, which shows that under pressure these animals are capable of a far greater exertion in this way than has been hitherto supposed. A hare pursued by a pack of harriers took refuge in the walled garden of a vicarage, and was followed into it by the hounds. She concealed herself for a time at the foot of the wall, which was nine feet and a half high, and then took a standing jump clean on the wall. Even this wonderful effort did not put the hare out of danger, for she alighted in a closed stable-yard. For a minute or two she seemed bewildered by the shouts of the whips and the dogs in the garden; then she made another tremendous spring on to the top of a high water-butt—intending, no doubt, to leap from its top over the wall. The butt was, however, uncovered, and the hare would have been drowned had not the writer of the letter lifted her by the ears, opened the door of the yard and sent her on her way rejoicing, although the hounds took up the scent, they were unable to follow it owing to the immersion which the hare had undergone. Hitherto four feet or so had been regarded as the limit of height which a hare, even with the advantage of a run, could accomplish; and this standing jump on to a wall of more than double that elevation shows the hare in an entirely new light, and places her very high in the list of jumping animals.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

HONESTY.

What is Honest Government?

It is not simply to transfer governing power from one political party to another. It goes far deeper than that.

It is to pluck up by the roots and destroy every vestige of official dishonesty, and to thoroughly reform existing abuses.

To place in each and every office an incumbent of known integrity and capability, and who will make personal gain second to public duty.

To conduct all the vast and diversified affairs of Government with zealous regard for economy, accountability, practical utility, and with an aim single for the advancement of the general public good.

To fearlessly execute enacted law, and where faults appear to recommend proper remedy.

That briefly outlines Honest Government.

To raise it into sovereignty is the patriotic endeavor of President Cleveland.

JUSTICE.

The recent conviction of a Bank President in New York, charged with diverting funds of the institution under his control into channels of private gambling speculation, is a move in the right direction.

The financial culprit will no doubt strive hard to escape the penalty of offended law, but all honest citizens must earnestly hope that justice will be sternly vindicated.

Small thieves are sent to prison without merciful consideration, while large ones have too often and most shamefully been permitted to escape punishment.

It is time for a change.

Justice demands her rightful sway.

Make the sure result of respectable stealing high toned financial rascality, lasting disgrace and a felon's cell, and the crop of defaulters will be materially lessened.

It is quite as great criminality for a Bank officer to steal within doors as for a burglar to break through and rob.

State Prisons were built for both.

Securely lock all thieves behind the iron bars.

THE NAVY.

The Government of the United States has squandered for Naval Expenditures during the past twenty years the enormous total of five hundred million dollars.

About one-half of the present national debt for the expenses of a Navy, and that in years of peace.

What have we to show for such profuse outlay of money?

Next to nothing!

Not a first-class ship in the Navy—a flotilla of worthless hulks, about as serviceable as so many antiquated Chinese junks.

Twenty per cent. of the amount so charged for naval expenditures would have been amply sufficient, if honestly and practically handled, to have built and equipped a fleet of efficient naval vessels.

But there comes to light the secret of such prodigal waste. The money, the hundreds of millions, instead of being honestly expended, has been, to a vast extent, wilfully stolen, lavished on corrupt contractors, ring favorites, and in all manner of fraudulent jobs.

Hundreds of political vultures have gorged themselves with plunder at the public expense, while the Navy, once our national pride, has been starved to death.

To correct and put an end to that system of official thieving is one of the herculean tasks imposed upon the Administration of President Cleveland.

It will require time and labor, but it will be done.

An honest Secretary of the Navy is now in command.

Col. Wm. A. Morrell, superintendent of the railroad depot and excursion train platforms for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, has accepted the position of superintendent of the race track of the Monmouth Park association, near Long Branch.

Latest accounts from New York represent General Grant as comfortable and gaining strength. By some it is believed that his trouble is not cancerous, but an aggravated case of ulcerated sore throat. His case certainly is a puzzle to the doctors.

Secretary of War Endicott is after the Quartermasters scattered over the country, and is endeavoring to find out what they are doing and how many assistants they have. It is probable there will be a number of decapitated Quartermasters before long.

There will be two Presidential post offices vacated next month in New Jersey. On May 16th the office at Rutherford, salary $1,600 per annum, and the office at Hackettstown, a few days later, with the same salary attached. There are several applicants for both places.

The bill fixing the price of licenses to retail liquor at from $25 to $500, which passed the recent Legislature, has not yet received the signature of the Governor. It is claimed that the bill did not receive the votes of a majority of the Assembly and was not legally passed.

Attorney General Stockton has given an opinion to Governor Abbett that New Jersey has jurisdiction over the fishing waters in the half of the lower Delaware river, and in half of Delaware bay, so long as the present injunction of the United States Supreme Court continues in force.

The Trenton Rubber Company have just turned out for a Western grain elevator, a rubber belt which they claim is the largest ever made anywhere. It is four hundred and seventy-eight feet in length, thirty-six inches in width, and four-ply thick. John Howell and John Orr were the makers.

A well-dressed man, with flowing, florid side-whiskers, astonished the passengers who were waiting in the New Jersey Central ferry-house, in Jersey City, Monday afternoon, by calmly divesting himself of his clothing, walking to the end of the pier and gazing into the water. Before he could jump overboard he was seized by Policeman Mc Coy, who placed him under arrest. On the way to the station-house he gesticulated and laughed heartily over his escapade. He refused to divulge his name, and insisted upon being booked as John Doe. It is believed that he is insane.

NEVADA'S ANTI-TREATING LAW.

Everybody Forbidden to Treat with Wine, Liquor, Cider, or Beer.

[From the Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.]

The Anti-Treating bill has become a law, and for the benefit of readers who are in the habit of treating or getting treated we give the bill in full, as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to treat or entertain gratuitously any other person or persons to or with any spirituous or malt liquor or liquors, wine or cider, or any beverage whatever; or to or with any other article whatever, whereby any spirituous or malt liquor or liquors, wine or cider, or any other beverage shall be obtained gratuitously, in any public bar-room, saloon, beer hall, or grocery in this State, or in any other public place of resort or amusement in this State.

SECTION 2. It shall be unlawful for any one to attempt to evade the provisions of this act by any chicanery or subterfuge whatever, such as pretending to sell one article and delivering another, or by falsely pretending to buy or sell any such beverage.

SECTION 3. Any person or persons violating the first section of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars nor less than four dollars, or by imprisonment in the County Jail not more than ten days nor less than two days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 4. Any person or persons violating the second section of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars nor less than ten dollars, or by imprisonment in the County Jail not more than twenty-five days nor less than five days, or both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 5. In the event of the failure of any person to pay any fine authorized by this act, the said fine shall be served out in the County Jail at the rate of two dollars a day, and all fines herein specified shall be over and above the costs of court and fees and charges of the trial.

SECTION 6. All moneys collected under the provisions and by the authority of this act shall be paid into the general school fund of the county in which the conviction is had.

A HARD WINTER FOR BEES.

A great deal of honey is produced in the vicinity of Deckertown, and the bee men have lately been busy taking an account of stock. They find that the Winter has been very disastrous, many colonies of bees having succumbed to the unfavorable weather. The months of February and March are always trying periods for bees, which are then preparing their swarms for the coming season. Frequent warm days are essential to perfect development, and in order to allow the old bees an opportunity to move around from one spot to another. They can stand severe, if brief, cold weather, but after consuming all the food in one place they will perish if the cold is so great that they cannot move to another feeding point. The uninterrupted cold of the latter part of last Winter hindered them from making these shifts, and with fatal results. A bee raiser near Deckertown who had ninety colonies last Fall will begin the Spring with between fifty and sixty. He has lately been examining his bees, and he finds that nearly every alternate hive has perished. In all cases there was plenty of honey, and the bees seemed to have perished from cold. The same report comes from all bee raisers in that section, and the loss in this industry has been considerable during the past Winter.

Pierre Lorillard is importing deer from Germany to add to his game preserve at Jobstown.

B. Frank Abbett, brother of Governor Abbett, has been appointed chief of a division in the office of the Sixth Auditor of the Treasury, by Secretary Manning.

The Supreme Court has appointed ex-Judge Pancoast and Surveyor Fowler, of Camden, and Justice Clement, of Haddonfield, a commission to determine the disputed boundary line between Burlington and Atlantic counties.

Secretary Manning has appointed John A. O'Neil, of Hoboken, this State, to be Superintendent of Engraving and Printing with a salary of $3,600, in the place of G. W. Casilier, removed. Mr. O'Neil was formerly Mayor of Hoboken.

Richard Stockton, who was last week appointed by President Cleveland as Consul General to Rotterdam, is a son of Attorney General John P. Stockton of Trenton. He was educated in Italy while his father was Minister to Rome and he is familiar with all the modern languages. He studied law with his father and assisted him as secretary when he was in the United States Senate. Richard is about thirty years of age. The Attorney General had not even known of Richard's application for the position and to him the announcement of the appointment was quite a surprise.

Thirty-six cars laden with iron ore from Port Oram, and other points on the High Bridge branch, fell through the tressel bridge which spans the Rockaway river, about three miles from High Bridge, at eight o'clock Saturday morning. The head breakman, whose home is at Port Oram, was carried down to the river's bottom, a distance of seventy feet, and instantly killed. The locomotive and tender did not go down into the vortex. The scene at the bridge beggared description—the cars, caboose and iron being piled in a promiscuous heap. It will not pay to remove them. A month will be required to build a new bridge. A large force of workmen were at once set to work upon the wreck, which was soon cleared away and travel resumed.

The Somerset Courts.

The April term opened on Tuesday last, Justice Magie presiding, with associate Judges Thompson and Jameson. (Law Judge Bartine refraining from taking his seat on the bench until the suits he has in hand are disposed of.) Judge Magie announced that by order of the Supreme Court the Fall term of the Somerset courts will hereafter open on the 4th Tuesday of September, instead of the 3d, as heretofore. The following gentlemen composed the Grand Jury:

C. B. Moore, (foreman), John Vreeland, Gideon R. Good, James T. Vanderveer, James Doty, John A. Whitenack, John [illegible], Peter L. Kline, John L. VanDoren, Lewis B. [illegible], Peter W. [illegible], Thomas Cooper, Rynear V. N. Quick, John S. Amerman, John Maxwell, Wm. M. Demun, Wm. T. Melick, Wm. W. Tunison, John Vagnia, Frank V. Cruser.

There are eight cases each in the Supreme and Circuit Courts. The following applications for licenses were granted:

Taverns—Jacob A. Fritts, [illegible] & Vanderbeek, Christopher Van Arsdale, Somerville; George Hessler, [illegible]; Lewis B. Doty, Bernardsville; [illegible] D. [illegible], Raritan; Elizabeth O'Kane, [illegible]; George S. Beavers, [illegible]; George [illegible] Brook; John H. Hockenbury, Frederick [illegible], East Millstone; Willard S. [illegible], Millstone; Sarah L. Fisher, [illegible]; Abm. Van Doren, Raritan.

Saloons—Wm. [illegible], John G. Kenner, Somerville, [illegible], Raritan.

NEW MARKET NOTES.

Dr. Titsworth has sold out his medical practice to Dr. Edwards, of Newark, who has removed into the Alberti property.

Mr. Rogers has started up a grocery trade in the brick house by the bridge, and will control his trade by running a wagon on call.

The Rev. J. Beers has resigned the pastoral charge of the Episcopal church, and his farewell sermon will be delivered on Sunday next.

W. Dunham, who for years has successfully carried on the business of manufacturing clothing and who was recently burned out, has sold and disposed of his trade to Mr. Rogers, who promises to put new life and vigor into the enterprise.

On Friday afternoon last about four o'clock an incipient fire was discovered on the premises of Mr. Wm. Rountree, but fortunately some neighbors put it out before it had really obtained a start. An old bombazine dress, saturated with coal oil and to which some coal tar had been applied, had been pushed under the shed and ignited. It was intentional incendiarism, and enquiry should be instituted in the matter.
BROAD BRIM.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Frank Miller, who has been very sick, is again out.

The Welch Bros., have purchased a new business wagon to accommodate their increasing trade.

Mr. Conyles has rented and moved into the house on Cumberland street belonging to Jacob D. French.

The youngest child of Mr. A. Judson Miller has been very sick for a day or two with membranous croup.

Gus. H. Koester, who has carried on the express business for a number of years, sold out the good will of the business to Adam Miller.

James C. Bolton and his son Grey, who were residents of our town several years ago, were here on Monday last attending the funeral of Mrs. Samuel Harris.

Mr. J. G. Hanson has sold his personal property and removed to Bayonne, N. J. His wife has been very sick for the past month at the residence of her daughter in Bayonne.

N. J. Cleary has rented the rooms formerly occupied by John J. Wahl, corner of North avenue and Elm street, and intends opening them the coming week as a first-class restaurant.

Why don't the overseer of road district No. 12 lower the gutters on the south side of First street in his district so that the water will run to the brook instead of lying stagnant along the street.

John J. Willis, overseer of road district No. 3, has been scraping the roads and is now engaged laying a new plank walk on North avenue, from Elmer street to Fourth avenue, which is a much needed improvement.

Martha Anstice Harris, wife of Samuel Harris, of Westfield, died on Friday last, and was buried in Fairview cemetery, Monday, the 20th inst., the Rev. Mr. Heake, rector of Grace P. E. church, officiating. Mrs. Harris was born in Philadelphia and for many years resided with her husband and family in New York city. As long ago as 1860 the family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Harris and two daughters, began spending Summers in Westfield and about 1870 took up their residence in Westfield on North avenue, where Mrs. Harris' death occurred and where the funeral was attended. The death of Mrs. Harris is an irreparable loss to her family and also to the community in which she lived. Mrs. Harris was both domestic and literary, uniting in a remarkable degree devotion to her family and constant application to reading and other literary work. She was all her life, from girlhood to the time of her death, a contributor to the press, and this often when her physical frailty would hardly seem to warrant employment of any kind. She was a reader of books on all subjects, a critic and a scholar. She bestowed time and attention without stint to the education of her daughters; she was foremost among her sex in the literary societies of the neighborhood, and even during the past Winter attended the meetings of "The Pilgrims of the Rhine" and read several essays. She had been for years and was at the time of her death an active, probably the most active member and officer of the Westfield Public Library, attending to the selection, purchase and catalogue of the books, examining and passing upon every volume offered or introduced. Mrs. Harris was a zealous church woman and all her life active in the Protestant Episcopal church. During the last six years of her life her health was most delicate, and her physicians have regarded the prolongation of her life with astonishment. There are few ladies in this community to assume the mantle of Mrs. Samuel Harris, and her death is more than a loss—it is a calamity. She has left the impress upon all who knew her that she was no ordinary woman.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Art Amateur for April contains attractive designs for a dessert plate, (pansies), and a cup and saucer (perennial flax), repousse brass work (peacock), embroidery and jewelry. The frontispiece represents a pleasing group of recent sculpture by Theo. Baur. An article on D. Ridgway Knight is copiously illustrated by clever drawings from his pencil, and there is a page of sketches from the French Water Color Exhibition for fan decoration. "Crayon Portraiture" is an article of especial value to amateurs, and the practical departments are, as usual, richly filled. Price, 35 cents. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square.

The April number of Dorcas is an admirable one. In addition to the usual number of patterns and directions for crocheted and knitted articles, there is an article on "Tile Carving from Colorado Marble," which opens the way for a new industry for women. Dorcas is a periodical which should be in the hands of every lady in the land who has any taste for art-decoration or fancy-work. The illustrations are excellent, and the patterns selected with extreme good taste, and written in so plain and explicit a manner that a novice will find no trouble in following them. Newsdealers and Postmasters will take subscriptions or furnish sample copies. Subscription price, $1.00 per year. Send ten cents for sample copy. Address, Dorcas, 872 Broadway, New York City.

Bryant's "Thanatopsis" was first printed in the North American Review for September, 1817. The May number of the Review, just out, has a poem by Robert Buchanan on "The New Buddha." The critics found fault with Mr. Bryant's poem on the ground that it was un-Christian; it remains to be seen what they will say of Mr. Buchanan's. The question, "Has Christianity Benefited Woman?" is ably discussed in this number by Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Bishop J. L. Spalding. President J. L. Packard writes on "Why Crime is Increasing," and David Dudley Field on "Industrial Co-operation," while Prof. Andrew F. West, of Princeton, contributes an article of great clearness and strength on "What is Academic Freedom?" James Payn, the English novelist, discusses "Success in Fiction," and T. F. Thiselton Dyer "Superstition in English Life." The new department of Comments keeps well up to the standard with which it started.

BAKING POWDER TRAMPS.

The danger to the public health from the indiscriminate use of the many lime and alum baking powders of commerce has been so fully exposed that everybody desires to avoid them. As "forewarned is forearmed," housekeepers will thank us for apprising them of the special efforts at present being made to dispose of such powders in this vicinity.

The proprietors of some of the worst of these powders are now going from house to house, trying by means of a trick, or so-called test, with heat and water, to show that their article is as good as the Royal Baking Powder, making the comparison with this brand because everybody recognizes it to be absolutely pure and wholesome, the object, of course, being to supply their own goods in place of the Royal, which housekeepers have for so many years relied upon to puff up the morning biscuit, and to make the light, palatable, and wholesome roll, cake, and pastry for which it is famous.

The housekeeper will do well to be on her guard against these baking powder tramps. Every intelligent person knows that any goods peddled from house to house in this manner, or that are given away in samples, or sought to be introduced by secretly traducing the characters of other goods well-known to be pure and reliable, have no merits of their own, and have failed to find purchasers through legitimate means.

We are informed, as a matter of fact, that one of these tramps is trying to introduce a powder that has been found by the Government chemist to be 11.85 per cent lime, while the other peddles a powder that is 20 per cent alum—one a powerful caustic, the other a corrosive poison.

No such tricks or jugglery will be apt to deceive any intelligent person. The housekeeper who has used her Royal Baking Powder ever since she discarded cream of tartar and soda, knows more about its qualities than all the tramps in the country can teach her. The crucial test to which she has put the Royal Baking Powder—the test of actual and successful work in the preparation of pure and wholesome food, under which it has never failed—is entirely satisfactory to her. She has always had "good luck" with it in making light, sweet, and delicious bread, biscuit, and cake, and has placed it, to stay, at the head of her housekeeping favorites. She knows that it has been officially approved by the Government chemists as the best, and we imagine that the baking powder tramp who attempts to supplant its place in her confidence will find this a bad year for his business.

For "The Constitutionalist."

RED RIBBON BROTHERS.

BY M. N. THORN.

How dear to my heart, are the social relations
Of all the reformed ones, that lately have turned
Their backs on the wine cup, and costumed potations
And all the allurements, of the rum-shop have spurned
We the pledged bound brothers, the red ribbon brothers
Will stick to our motto, and let others try.
We the pledged bound brothers, the red-ribbon brothers
Will stick to our motto, in the sweet bye and bye.

The wide-spreading gas lights, and fine decorations
Of the festive saloon, where death dealings lie
The song of the syren, and ribald ovations
Have not the allurements, of days past and by.
We the pledged bound brothers, the red ribbon brothers
Will stick to our motto, and others save—try,
We the pledged bound brothers, the red ribbon brothers
Will stick to our motto, in the sweet bye and bye.

Now this iron pledge, we hold as a treasure,
It proves a sheet anchor, when temptations assail,
'Twill serve as a key note, to fill up the measure,
Give strength to our purpose, and weather the gale.
We the pledged bound brothers, the red ribbon brothers
Will stick to our motto, and save others—try,
We the pledged bound brothers, the red ribbon brothers.
Will stick to our motto, in the sweet bye and bye.

WAVERLY Park is now open to roadsters.

O'BRIEN'S circus will be at New Brunswick May 21.

WHAT they all say now—"It's nice morning, isn't it?"

THE May term of Court begins one week from next Tuesday.

CIRCUS managers give Plainfield a wide birth. Cause—price of lots too high.

REV. G. R. ROBBINS will occupy the pulpit of the Park avenue Baptist church next Sunday.

PLANT a tree to-day. Its branches may some day shelter your children from the sun's scorching rays.

THE small boy now watches "Cookie" as he plasters THE CONSTITUTIONALIST bill boards, for circus cuts.

"THEY say" that friend Gaddis, of Bound Brook, and two friends, killed 45 English snipe last Tuesday. Crows.

COMMON salt is recommended by the Medical Journal as a good disinfectant to throw down closets and into wash basins.

SIXTY car-loads of foreigners were at the Jersey City depot of the P. R. R. on Sunday. They were all labeled for the West.

THE firm of Colyer & Co., the leading clothiers of Newark, have secured the contract to uniform the new police force of that city.

THOMAS CLASEY purchased the Frazee property on Orchard place, at the sale of real estate by the Dime Savings Institution recently.

SOME of the prominent bank presidents do not dine on chicken and mushrooms, but take plain food from the mush-rooms at State Prison.

FRANCIS O'BRIEN, of Jackson Hook & Ladder Co., No. 2, was elected Chief of the Elizabeth Fire Department on Tuesday evening last.

IT is rumored that the Hunterdon county Agricultural Society has decided to hold a spring meeting on their grounds the first week in June.

THE street sprinklers are abroad, and the streets are now muddy. Let us hope they will be at least moist when the hot summer sun shines upon them.

WHERE is the philanthropic individual who will present the police force of this city with suitable summer hats, like other officers of their kind wear.

THOSE choice blossoms that have been under cover from thirty to sixty days are now in full bloom on the corners of our principal streets. They need weeding out a little.

BIDDING was slow and but little property sold at the adjourned sale of real estate by the Dime Savings Institution, April 14th. Altogether, but $5,000 worth of property was disposed of.

WHEN a lady is thunder-struck at "the bleah," a shower of words follow, and as soon as the storm is over the son "shines around his ma" to see if she is much shocked or her ardor dampened.

DERBY hats are called in. "Gep" was the first to brave popular opinion by appearing on our streets Wednesday with a straw hat on his head. He says he purchased it of Pope, on Front street.

MISS JENNIE HOUGHTON, by her exhibitions at the Casino, last Friday and Saturday, proved herself the Queen of all skaters. No other that has appeared here is her equal, and to call any one her rival is absurd and unjust.

THE Westfield Fire Department have received and distributed their new badges, which are very neat. The badge is of silver, shield shape, surmounted by an eagle. On the face appears "Westfield Fire Department" with number in the centre. "Johnnie" Marsh has No. 10. He has his receipt for it.

Two parties are now sprinkling our streets, P. M. French and Zephyr H. & L. Co. No. 1. The latter have secured a large number of names on certain streets. When an alarm of fire occurs, the sprinkler is dropped, and "Sam," the driver, rushes them at all speed toward the truck house, where they are attached to the apparatus.

AN agent for Flagg's Hand Grenade, an invention for putting out fires without the aid of the Fire Department, gave a test of the efficiency of the invention in a vacant lot on Second street, near Park avenue, on Tuesday last. The agent, Mr. H. Shepherd, informs us that he has disposed of a large number of the "projectiles" in Plainfield.

THERE was an interesting race at the Casino-Rink Tuesday evening last, the managers offering a silver medal to the fastest skater in a one mile race on rollers. The entries were—J. H. Cook, from No. 2 Engine Co.; Frank Matthews, of Zephyr H. & L. Co., No. 1; Hiram Young and John Utzinger of Warren No. 8 Eng. Co. The race was won by Cook in 4 minutes and 17 seconds. Utzinger came in second, Young dropped out on the third lap.

THE usual spring fires have occurred on the mountain sides in North Plainfield during the past week, and have attracted the attention of the public who wonder at the cause of these annual fires. We are informed from parties residing in the vicinity that young lads have set fire to the leaves and underbrush on the mountain side, thus causing the fires. There is a stringent law against this and the boys interested in the matter should take heed or they may find themselves in the clutches of the law.

A FOOLISH rumor, started by some foolish person, caused a statement to gain currency last Sunday, that Mr. Wm. J. Ryan, a saloon keeper of Elizabeth, had committed suicide by shooting because he had been refused a license from the Common Council of that city. The statement, of course, was copied in journals where scissors are used, and Mr. Ryan was the recipient of many calls to find out whether he was dead or alive. Mr. R. is not the kind of a person to kill himself for the cause assigned.

THE stone crusher of Spotiswood & O'Rourke, at the "Notch," North Plainfield, is again in full operation. This company is turning out a large amount of crushed stone for macadamizing purposes, which they dispose of in various parts of the State. Besides the quarry where the above named "crusher" is located, the company have another at Orange, N. J. Seventh street is now being macadamized by them, Mr. Wallace Vail superintending the contract. It will pay any of our citizens, feeling so inclined, to visit the site of the stone crusher and witness its operations, and become acquainted with the proprietors, who are not only gentlemen, but know how to do a first-class job of work in their line of business.

THE Council meets next Monday night.

THE martin birds appeared at their old haunts on Tuesday.

THE prospects of a foreign war have already caused an advance of one dollar per barrel in the price of flour in New York.

THE Fan Drill at the Crescent avenue sociable of last Friday evening, was perfect in every particular. Even the clergy enjoyed it.

SCHWED BROS. have received a large stock of men's and boys' fine suits. All the latest spring styles. They sell goods very cheap.

THE concert this (Thursday) evening for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, presents an attractive programme by talented artists.

AGAIN we score. This is the first and only paper enterprising enough to secure in full the verdict of the jury in the Kenney murder case.

THE pugilist O'Donnell that so much mystery seems to surround, is said to be known to a number of our citizens. His initials are L. I. Ot.

WE will publish next week the nominations of the different fire companies for Chief, assistants and company officers. Election, Monday, May 4th.

AMONG the Plainfielders enjoying the temperature of Southern climes, are Mrs. J. W. Johnson and son, who are visiting the New Orleans Exposition.

"SEVEN-TWENTY EIGHT" was again given in Music Hall on Thursday evening to a pleased audience. "Virginia Brooks" proved herself a clever "Flora."

AGAIN our readers may find in these columns the time of arrival and departure of Plainfield trains from and to all points reached by the P. & R. R.

THE cheery chirp of the robin enlivens the early morning hours and the birds sing all the sweeter because the law for their protection has been strengthened.

SIGNS of spring increase with bonfires, but the buds of horse chestnut trees have not yet begun to swell, nor has the swamp maple prepared to paint itself red.

AARON WILKES Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary to the G. A. R., will be instituted at Trenton next Wednesday evening by the Department Officers of New Jersey.

PECK takes extra space in this issue to offer the public a line of bargains that will be sure to attract the ladies. His goods are not excelled, although others exceed him in price.

THE members of the Scarlet Knights and their friends held a sociable and dance at the rooms of the organization, last Friday evening. Good music and a pleasant time resulted.

PASSERS-BY note with pleasure the handsome appearance of the grounds about Mr. Warren Ackerman's fine residence, near Scotch Plains. To the skill and care of Mr. Frank Hosinger, who has charge of the premises, is attributed this fact.

MR. J. C. HARTFELDER, JR., formerly of North Plainfield, and recently of Savannah, Ga., was in this city last week as agent of a new telephone company whose instruments are not governed by electricity yet capable of transmitting the least whisper.

A DELEGATION from the Plainfield Reform Club visited Cranford, Monday evening, and took an active and leading part in the anniversary services of the Cranford Reform Club. Messrs. Honeyman, Manson, French and Dodge made addresses, and music interspersed the programme.

MR. SEAMAN WILLIAMS, of Somerville, has taken the contract for the erection of the livery stables and other buildings for D. S. Roberts, on North avenue, next to Force's Hotel, this city. The brick, some 400,000, required to erect the buildings, are furnished by Col. A. L. Ten Eyck, also of Somerville.

Ice!

The ice worm did not destroy the whole crop of the above mentioned commodity the past winter, as the reader will observe by glancing at our advertising columns, John Morton having made his customary summer announcement. Those whom he has served in the past can testify to the fact that the ice he serves to customers is of excellent quality.

A Handsome Store.

Edsall's dry and fancy goods store has been greatly improved and changed inside and presents a very handsome and cheerful appearance. It is well stocked with seasonable goods in an extensive variety, carefully selected, and are offered at such low prices as will insure ready sale. Enterprise has its reward, and this concern seems to be aware of the fact and acts accordingly.

Some Old Voters.

While other vicinities are boasting of numbers of old Democrats who voted for President Jackson, Plainfield should not be overlooked. We have heard of six such patriarchs residing in this city. Councilman John Simpson voted for Jackson in 1828, and the following named in 1832—C. S. A. Davis, D. J. Marshall, Alex. D. Button, Wm. Swaim and Isaac Brown. Refresh your memories, ancient Democrats, and tell us of some more of you who voted the same way.

The Sængerbund Fair.

The fair of the fair Sængerbunders recently closed, after a period of much success. The arrangements were perfect, the attractions pleasing, and the management first-class. Singing societies from other places were present, and added their efforts to entertain all. The Auroras won the silver goblet, and of course to Charley Smith was voted the silver pitcher. Other winners were—Andrew Love, Jr., an inkstand; George Rickert, a clock, and Christian Keller an easy chair.

Pigeon Shooting.

The following is the score of the pigeon match at Campbell's Club House, Park avenue, Saturday last. The match was for $25, ten birds a side, 25 yards rise. Harry and Ed. Campbell were partners:

Harry Campbell	1	1	1	1	1—[illegible]
D. Terry	1	0	1	0	1—[illegible]
Ed. Campbell	0	1	1	0	—[illegible]
D. Darby	0	1	0	1	—[illegible]

After the above match several sweepstakes at pigeons, glass balls and clay pigeons were indulged in by the large number of sportsmen in attendance. Next Saturday there will be interesting sweepstake matches shot on the above grounds, also a pigeon match between two of our local crack shots for 10 a side.

For the Cause.

Two young lads, who are cousins, John L. Force, of this city, and Fred S. Dunn, are contributing their small share towards aiding the Bartholdi Pedestal Fund, if the public will only appreciate their efforts and contribute to this laudable object after an inspection of their genius. Both these lads are enthusiastic on electrical matters, and many novel features in this line may be found in their homes, which are not only a credit to their genius but useful. The latest production of their fertile brains is a fac simile of the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty enlightening the World. The pedestal is a perfect miniature and the Statue of "Liberty" perfect. In her uplifted hand she holds an electric light of six-candle power. "Freddie" has his pedestal on exhibition at his father's news store, Broad street, Elizabeth, (L. A. Dunn & Bros.,) while at Force's Hotel, this city, may be seen the efforts of "Johnny." Subscriptions received at either place for the pedestal.

Something New.

There is on exhibition and for sale at A. Vanderbeek's, 33 Park avenue, Plainfield, N. J., one of Behr Brothers' new grand upright Pianos. Three unison and cylinder top. Style of case and beauty of tone never before equaled, the handsomest piano ever exhibited in Plainfield, and reasonable in price.

For Chief and Assistants.

The respective companies of the Fire Department, with the exception noted below, have nominated for election, Monday, May 4th, the following: Chief, A. D. Jennings; 1st Assistant, Aug. Saltzman; 2d Assistant, J. E. Waters. Gazelle Eng. Co., No. 1, nominate Chas. H. Smith for Chief, Aug. Seltzman for 1st Assistant and J. E. Waters 2d Assistant.

Some New Laws.

Governor Abbett on Tuesday signed the compulsory education act, the bill limiting the terms of Riparian Commissioners to five years, fixing penalties for impostors who wear the Grand Army badge, authorizing the licensing of skating rinks and appropriating $2,500 for the erection on Gettysburg battle field of monuments to mark the stand of Jersey Regiments.

Condemnation From Flemington.

Insurance companies are threatening to increase rates of insurance in barns in Plainfield, in consequence of the frequent incendiary fires; if the rascals are not hunted down. On an average one barn a week is burned in wicked little Plainfield, and it is long past the time when the police should be aroused from their deep sleep and sent out into the dark night to capture the daring youth, or hoary-headed sinner, who goes forth once a week with a blazing torch in his fist.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

What Are We Coming To!

Tuesday noon last the employees in Charles Smith's saloon, corner of Front and Somerset streets, discovered smoke about the building, and upon investigation found that some person had made a dastardly attempt to fire the premises. At some period, known only to the parties interested, waste, saturated with kerosene, had been inserted through a knot hole in a board partition, and there left to await the results of spontaneous combustion. Had the fire started in the night the buildings would have been destroyed and the lives of their inmates endangered. But, fortunately, daylight betrayed the peril.

Reform Club.

Last Sunday evening temperance meeting in Reform Hall evidenced by its large and attentive audience unabated interest in the cause. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. Rodman of Grace Episcopal church, after which, Mr. Graham, Secretary of the Church Temperance Society in New York, delivered an address replete with eloquence, sound argument and profitable advice. Mr. Graham is an English gentleman who has bestowed years of earnest work on behalf of temperance, and the great experience so gained, when narrated in his clear and forcible style, carries with it decided power. The Sunday evening meetings in Reform Hall are well worth attending, as are those held there every Tuesday evening. To, all the public are cordially welcomed.

The "Sun" Libel Suit.

The jury in the case of Jacob W. Gebhardt against Isaac W. England, publisher of the New York Sun, for libel, has rendered a verdict for the plaintiff. J. A. Beecher, of Newark, represented Gebhart, and A. Q. Keasby, of Newark, Mr. Bartlett, of New York, and Messrs. Voorhees and Cotter of Flemington, appeared for England. The trial occupied nearly two days. The jury found a verdict of $300 damages for the plaintiff. The case was begun in the New Jersey Supreme Court; the defendant removed it to the United States Circuit; it was remanded to the New Jersey court for trial; on appeal by the defendant from the order remanding it was taken to the United States Supreme Court at Washington, and from thence sent back to the New Jersey courts, with the result above stated.

In a New Field.

Mr. C. L. Johnson, formerly proprietor of the Park House, will shortly open at Demarest, N. J., the "Hotel Tenakill," a most attractive resort overlooking the Tenakill valley and but a short distance from the Palisades of the Hudson. No suburb of New York is more accessible or charming than that just beyond Englewood on the line of the Northern R. R. of N. J. The hotel is commodious, newly furnished, and contains bowling alleys, billiard rooms and every desirable means of comfort and enjoyment. Mr. Johnson's courtesy and efficiency will win for him in the new field the same popularity he achieved while here, and will bring him, we feel assured, deserved success financially. Many of his guests of the past have already signified their intention of engaging rooms for the summer at the "Tenakill."

Miss Fischer's Reappearance.

The unqualified success achieved by Miss Alice Fischer upon the occasion of her first appearance in this city as an elocutionist, has impelled the Reform Club to listen to the numerous and emphatic requests of many who heard her, and arrange for a reappearance of the talented young lady, at Reform Hall, next Tuesday evening. Miss Fischer has no equal among her sex in her own particular line, and we would urge all to hear her. She will devote the entire evening to the entertainment of her audience, assisted only by orchestral music. The piano accompaniment to "Money Musk" will be played by a gentleman from the Pond Literary Bureau, specially engaged to assist Miss Fischer, who gives the only entirely perfect rendering of this piece we have witnessed. She will also repeat "Poor Joe," and "The Creeds of the Bells," by request.

Personalia.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Newt. Spencer, of North Plainfield, are the recipients of many congratulations. It is another boy.

Everybody congratulates Westfield's popular citizen and official, "Johnnie" Marsh, upon the recent addition to his family circle. It is a boy.

Ex-Sheriff Wm. Wright, of Newark, is one of the most popular "ex's" of that city. "Billy" Brown, the present Sheriff, is ditto in his present position. Both good men.

Senator Livingston has returned from his recent trout fishing trip to Long Island. He claims to have met with grand success. We hope he did. We saw none of the fish.

The many friends of County Clerk Vosseller were gratified to see him out riding on Tuesday last, he having so far recovered from his late sickness as to enjoy that privilege.

Our residents were very much surprised to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. Chas. A. Kimball, on Monday last, the cause being rheumatism of the heart. Mr. Kimball had recently purchased the property of Mr. Crouse and moved into the same on the 1st of April. Mrs. Kimball leaves two infant children.

Abraham Runyon, the aged father of Chancellor Runyon, dropped into our office on Saturday last to renew his subscription to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, of which he has been a subscriber since it was started. Mr. Runyon, although over 80 years of age still seems hale and hearty. We wish he may live many years yet.

Electric Light for Plainfield.

Mr. Chas. Wann of North Plainfield has been appointed representative in Plainfield of the Consolidated Electric Light Co. of New York, which embraces the incandescent lights of the Sawyer-Mann Illuminating Co., and the Thompson-Houston, Arc Lighting Co. An opportunity will shortly be given our citizens to subscribe to a portion of the capital stock to form a local company. The Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York, has selected the Consolidated Electric Light Co's system for the lighting of the offices in their magnificent building, and as the "Mutual" is not obliged to entertain the matter of "price," but more of "quality," they decided on the system of the "Consolidated Co." There is no reason why Plainfield should not have the electric light, as well as Elizabeth, New Brunswick and other places, and we understand the cost to our citizens will not be greater than the present price of gas.

"The Lights O' London."

Shook & Collier's best company will present "The Lights O' London" at Music Hall, to-morrow evening. The company is an excellent one throughout, in several cases an improvement even upon the very strong cast which produced the piece last season. All the leading roles are well sustained, and emotional elements being admirably balanced by the comedy episodes in which Mr. Samuel Hemple and Fanny Denham Rouse figure as "Joseph Jarvis" and "Mrs. Jarvis" of "Jarvis' Temple of the Legitimate." The effect of the really excellent acting is greatly enhanced by the realistic scenery carried by the company, scenes of the park and grounds of Armytage Hall, the road from Chatham to London in the snow and moonlight, and Regent's Park, London, being especially fine. A special car is required to bring this scenery, and the large stage of Music Hall will be taxed to its utmost capacity. Thirty supers are to be added here, to the largest dramatic cast that ever played in this city.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met on Wednesday last, 22d inst., in adjourned meeting. Present—President Jones and Commissioners Cutter, Knowland and Livingston. Absent—Messrs. Morris and Depew. Mr. Knowland presented a resolution to the effect, that as Commissioner Depew had removed from the city and does not reside within the State, his position as a member of the Board be declared vacant. The resolution was seconded by Mr. Livingston, and adopted—all present, voting aye. Mr. Knowland moved that the Board ballot for a successor. Seconded by Mr. Livingston, and carried. Mr. Knowland nominated Mr. Wm. H. Brower. There were no other nominations, and Mr. Brower was chosen to fill the vacancy. Upon his election, he was welcomed into the Board by the President, and sworn in by City Judge Good on the spot. Mr. Knowland offered a resolution that all requests for supplies needed and required, must come to the Committee from the Chief or assistants, and all the apparatus of the different companies be entirely under the charge of the Chief, who must endorse all claims for repairs and supplies purchased. The resolution was subsequently withdrawn. A petition was received for a fire well at the corner of Broadway and Park place. Ref'd to Com. on Wells. President Jones announced the following Committees. On Repairs and Supplies—Messrs. Livingston, Knowland and Cutter. On Wells—Messrs. Brower and Morris.

More Fires!

Since our last issue the incendiary has been very busy. On Sunday night the Department were called out about 7.30 o'clock. The cause of the alarm was found to be Moore Bros. stables, situated on French's race, just off Front street and in the rear of the Alvah Gardner property. Some miscreant had deliberately poured kerosene oil on the weather-boards of the barn, and then set fire to it. Within two feet of his act of incendiarism were two horses, tied by halters to their stalls. Fortunately, Mrs. Vermeule, who resides near by, saw the flames as they were bursting forth. In company with her daughter, she ran to the structure on fire, and catching up a pail scooped it full of water from the race running under the building, and dashed it on the flames. To her belongs the credit she deserves, of putting out an incipient fire that would have caused great destruction of property had it not been discovered in proper time.

Monday afternoon the Department was again called out. This time it was a large barn situated in North Plainfield Township, on what is known as the "Clawson Farm," and owned by Mr. Charles Hyde. The place had been a rendezvous for tramps for some time. The Department promptly turned out and did good execution in saving surrounding property, although the barn and contents were destroyed.

Beecher Down South.

The Morning Star of Wilmington, N. C., has this to say in its issue of March 31st., about Brooklyn's beloved pastor: "It would have been well for Henry Ward Beecher if he had confined his lecturing tour to the Northern States. This remark is not made with reference to dollars but to character. He will coin the "dollars of our daddies" but he will be subjected to such a scrutiny as he has not been accustomed to. His intellectual power is confessedly very great. He is possibly the most gifted man in America. But this said, nearly all is said. He is a man not to be followed or trusted in the discussion of great moral and religious questions. He has got so far away from what the best and purest people in the land hold as orthodox Christianity that to follow him is to follow a theological will-o'-the-wisp that will land you in the quagmire of scepticism if not in the slough of despond. He is not in his teachings quite as bad as Bob Ingersoll is, but he is as to his moral character what the ignorant man said of his physical condition—'he enjoys bad health.' When Beecher was in Richmond, Va., he got the ablest editors of Virginia after him with a very hot poker. Rev. Dr. Lafferty, in the Richmond Christian Advocate, applied an iron that was so warm it fairly "sissed," whilst Dr. James Southall, in the Central Presbyterian, applied a more delicate corrective in the shape of a cayenne pepper poultice. We make room for the following from the Presbyterian:

'Mr. Beecher has a bad face; and as he stood there denouncing the churches and all that Christians have been taught to revere, looking to gather applause from the element that was hostile to the churches, we felt that it was one of the most repulsive exhibitions that we had ever witnessed. Mr. Ingersoll hoists the death's head and the cross-bones of the pirate; Mr. Beecher sails under the Christian flag, and speaks to the people in priestly robes. In the fierce and blasphemous assault on the churches and the evangelical theology there is very little difference between the two men.'

However just and pointed the criticism may be, the South will still go to hear him for even Ingersoll can attract in his disgusting and blasphemous assaults upon the Bible and upon millions of intelligent people who cling to it as the only hope and refuge and consolation. If there was no other reason for believing in future retribution the fact that such a fellow as Ingersoll lives and blaspemes is argument and reason enough."

Mrs. Brooks, the Centennial butter sculptress, says she has abandoned butter and is now doing serious art work. It strikes us that her butter modeling was serious art work.

Murder and Suicide.

The usual quiet of this city's Sundays was broken in upon last Sunday morning by the rumors of a murder and suicide in the vicinity. Back of North Plainfield proper, but not outside of the Township, is what is known as the second mountain, and along a lonely cut through the woods, off from the Dug-way road, is the little farm and house of Alexander Kenney. There is a little or no travel in the neighborhood and the nearest residents are a quarter of a mile distant from the Kenney homestead. Mr. Kenney's occupation compelled him to remain in the city during the week, but it was his custom to return to his residence on Saturday evenings and spend Sunday with his family. At this quiet little farm-house a shocking double crime was perpetrated early on Saturday night. Mrs. Kenney, the venerable wife of Mr. Kenney, was foully murdered in her own home and her probably insane murderer took his own life by hanging himself. Three years ago Mr. Kenney deemed it prudent to hire a man to take care of his farm while he was away, and at Castle Garden found an Englishman named William Jones, and agreed to give him $8 a month and his home and board. It now seems probable that Jones was weak in mind as well as in body. He was treated as one of the family, and soon showed a great liking for their daughter Agnes, a pretty and attractive girl aged eighteen. He received no encouragement from her, and finaly his jealously became so objectionable that Mrs. Kenney found a home for Agnes in the family of A. C. Baldwin, of Park avenue, in this city. It was the duty of Jones to drive to the depot in this city on Saturday evenings to meet Mr. Kenney and accompany him to his home, but on Saturday night he failed to make his appearance and Mr. Kenny started for his home on foot at nine o'clock. On his way through the woods he provided himself with a stick to assist him in climbing the mountain. It was eleven o'clock when he reached his house. He knocked loudly, and, as he knew his wife to be a light sleeper, he was surprised at getting no response to his repeated calls. He tried the door and found it securely bolted. Something made the old man think that there was danger abroad, and without making any further investigations he started to find some of his neighbors a mile away through the woods, leaving the stick he had carried leaning against the door. The nearest neighbor was Edward Mercier, a farmer living on Berkeley Heights. Kenney woke him from his slumbers and told him that he was afraid there was trouble at his home, and asked him to come over with him. Mercier lighted a lantern, called his "hired man," John Simmons, and all three went over to the Kenney cottage. When they got there the stick that Kenney had left against the door had been removed. The men knocked upon the door, but, as when Kenney had knocked before, there was no reply. Then Simmons pried open a window and climbed into the sitting room, and the lantern was handed in to him. To his horror he discovered a pool of blood upon the floor and he opened the door and let the other two men in. The pool of blood was beside the stove, and a woolen rug lay partly in it. A broken kerosene lamp was lying near, and the rug had been partly burned, though from its appearance the fire had evidently been stamped out. A white curtain over the window five feet from the stove was spattered with blood, and a track of blood led from the sitting room into the little parlor. The men followed this ghastly trail through the parlor and out into a little four-feet square hall, where a horrible sight met their gaze. The body of Mrs. Kenney, frightfully cut and gashed, was lying face downward on the floor in a pool of blood. A terrible gash was across the top of the head, there was another cut on the forehead, and a third over the left ear. All over the four walls of the little room were the marks of bloody fingers where the unfortunate woman had groped blindly for the door in her death struggles. The man Jones could not be found in the house, and three boys at once proceeded to Plainfield and notified Chief of Police Charles Dodd. At daylight the boys came back to the house accompanied by Undertaker Stiles with an ice box for the murdered woman, the Chief of Police, and several others. They visited the barn to look for Jones, and found him dead, hanging to a rafter, with Kenney's old horse placidly munching hay before him. The body of the man was still warm, and had evidently not been hanging for more than an hour. It was evident that Mrs. Kenney was murdered after the lamp had been lighted. It looked as if she had been sitting by the table sewing, when Jones had come in behind her and struck her upon the head with the axe, making the first deep cut, and then struck her twice more as she rose and struggled. The lamp had evidently been knocked over, and the murderer had put out the fire that had been communicated to the rug. He had evidently not followed her afterward, as there was no indications of further violence. The poor woman had groped her way into the parlor and then out into the hall, where she made an effort to open the door, but died before she had accomplished it. Coroner A. P. Sutphen and Prosecutor William V. Steele, of Somerville, subsequently visited the place. Constable P. V. Weaver summoned a jury and the Coroner took the testimony of Kenney, Mercier and Simmons. The bereaved old man was very much affected. He said that he hired Jones, who was an Englishman, at Castle Garden, three years ago. Jones was simple and silly, and was considered a simple and harmless idiot. He was very much averse to the music of the organ, and whenever Agnes played upon it he would leave the room. He had never quarreled with any of the family nor shown any indications of homicidal traits. The dead woman was sixty years of age and the mother of eleven children, eight of whom are living. David, Robert and William with two sisters live at 110 East 113th street, New York, Agnes, and a Mrs. Neal, who lives at Chatham, N. J. Also a son James, a sailor, whom they have not heard from in a long time and think dead. Agnes had lived at home until she went out to service last week. No one expresses any doubt that Jones committed the crime in a fit of insanity and then killed himself. The result of the inquest was as follows:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, }
COUNTY OF SOMERSET. } s.s.

An Inquisition indented and taken at North Plainfield in county aforesaid, the 19th day of April, A. D. 1885, before me, Arthur P Sutphen, one of the Coroners of said county, upon view of the body of Margery Kenney, there and then lying dead, upon the oaths of Messrs. George Bessler, Harrison Coddington, Elias Allen, F. Manager, S. Wilson, Daniel Acker, J. Kock, T. Rogers and H. Bennett, good and lawful men of the county aforesaid, who being sworn and charged to inquire, on the part of the state of New Jersey, when, where, and how, and after what manner, the said Margery Kenney came to her death, do say upon their oaths aforesaid that the said Margery Kenney came to her death by reason of blows received upon her head by some sharp instrument and by a blunt instrument, at whose hands to them unknown, but that they have reason to believe that the said Margery Kenney came to her death by blows administered and struck by one William Jones, a laborer, late of the township of North Plainfield, in the county of Somerset, in said state, on the 18th day of April, A. D., 1885, and that thereafter the said William Jones committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn upon the premises where the murder aforesaid was done.

ARTHUR P. SUTPHEN, Coroner.

Funeral services were held over the remains of the unfortunate woman at her late residence on the mountains, Tuesday afternoon last, the interment being in the Presbyterian cemetery, North Plainfield. Jones the murderer was buried from the morgue in this city on Monday last in Potter's Field. Mr. Kenney has advertised to sell his farm and personal effects, with the intention of taking up his residence elsewhere.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Injurious to the Public Health.

I have this day made a chemical examination of samples of baking powder purchased by me in the open market and marked Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, and Royal Baking Powder.

These powders contain:

Cleveland's.
Cream of Tartar
Bicarbonate of Soda
Flour

Royal.
Cream of Tartar
Bicarbonate of Soda
Carbonate of Ammonia
Tartaric Acid
Starch

The relative amount of pure Carbonic Acid Gas produced by 10 grams of each of these powders is as follows:

Cleveland's, 658 cubic centimeters.
Royal, 577 cubic centimeters.

In view of these facts I regard Cleveland's as superior to the Royal because:

I. CLEVELAND'S contains only pure and unobjectionable materials, while the ROYAL contains Ammonia, a drug derived from disgusting sources, powerful in its action upon the system. The adulteration of baking powder with Ammonia is in my opinion an injury to the public health. It deserves the severest condemnation, and should be brought to the attention of physicians and boards of health throughout the country.

II. The quantity of pure Carbonic Acid Gas yielded by CLEVELAND'S is greater than that produced under like conditions by the ROYAL.

CLEVELAND'S BAKING POWDER being pure and free from Ammonia, Lime, Alum, Terra Alba, or any adulteration whatever, and having great leavening power, I do not hesitate to recommend as worthy of public confidence for producing light, digestible, and wholesome bread.

HENDERSON, GA., Feb. 10, 1884.

I was down with Rheumatism and so excruciating was the pain that I could not bear the bed covering to touch me, and could not move my body about; indeed it was almost like unto death. Finally I was recommended by a friend to try O. I. C. (Old Indian Cure.) I ordered some and began taking it, and after taking only three days began to improve. I have used eight (8) bottles and am now perfectly well! Your medicine is certainly a blessing to suffering humanity. I only wish I could publish to the world the amount of good it has done me. I am honestly and truthfully a sound and well man again. Yours truly,

THE HOTEL COLFAX.

This Summer resort near the "Old Magnesian Chalybeate" and "Colfax" mineral springs, at Colfax, Iowa, 24 miles east of Des Moines and 333 west of Chicago, on the Rock Island & Pacific R'y, will be opened on May 6, for the season of 1885. This splendid hotel can accommodate 300 guests. All its appointments are first class. Its tables are supplied with all the substantials and delicacies, and its parlors, reading and sleeping rooms with every convenience. Croquet, billiards, bowling alleys and other facilities for recreation. Thayer's orchestra engaged for the season. The grounds include the "Old M. C." and Colfax springs, which are unequaled for their remedial virtues. Thousands certify to their efficacy; they are a powerful alterative and tonic, and an infallible cure for rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion and other ailments. The Hotel Colfax furnishes the water fresh from the original fountains for drinking and bathing, hot or cold. Its charges are moderate, $10 per week and upward. Parties desiring quarters for the Summer should secure them at once.

DESTROY THAT SIGN.

One may feel that he's getting old, but he naturally dislikes that anything about his appearance should advise others of the fact. Yet nothing does this so effectually as thin and falling hair. No woman wants to marry a man, and business firms hesitate to employ a man, who shows this fatal sign. Parker's Hair Balsam is worth to you, in this regard, more than its weight in diamonds. Use it, and have plentiful and glossy hair. Many have had every trace of grayness removed and bald spots covered by using a single bottle.

TIMELY HINTS TO GIRLS.

The girls who have pored over the pages of the little book called "Don't" are now favored by an exchange to accept advice in regard to things that they should do.

Do be natural; a poor diamond is better than a good imitation.

Do try to be accurate, not only for your own sake, but for the sake of your sex; the incapacity of the female mind for accuracy is a standard argument against the equality of the sexes.

Do be exact in money matters; every debt you forget means loss to some one—probably to some one less able than you to bear it.

Do answer your letters soon after they are received and do try to reply to them with some relation to their contents; a rambling, ill-considered letter is a satire upon your education.

[illegible], keep your [illegible] [illegible]

Do observe; the faculty of observation, well cultivated, makes practical men and women.

Do attach as much importance to your mind as your body.

Do try to remember where you put your gloves and card-case; keep the former mended and the latter filled.

Do recollect that your health is more important than your amusement; you can live without one, but you will die early without the other.

Do try to be sensible; it is not a particular sign of superiority to talk like a fool.

Do put your hairpins in so that they will stay; it looks slovenly, to say the least, to see them half-dropping out.

Do be ready in time for church; if you do not respect yourself sufficiently to be punctual, respect the feelings of other people.

Do get up in time for breakfast.

Do avoid causes of irritation in your family circle; do reflect that home is the place in which to be agreeable.

Do be reticent; the world at large has no interest in your private affairs.

Do cultivate the habit of listening to others; it will make you an invaluable member of society, to say nothing of the advantage it will be to you when you marry; every man likes to talk about himself; a good listener makes a delightful wife.

Do be contented; "martyrs" are detestable; a cheerful, happy spirit is infectious; you can carry it about with you like a sunny atmosphere.

Do avoid whispering; it is as bad as giggling; both are to be condemned; there is no excuse for either one of them; if you have anything to say, say it; if you have not, hold your tongue altogether; silence is golden.

Do be truthful; do avoid exaggeration; if you mean a mile say a mile, not a mile and a half; if you mean one say one, and not a dozen.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

IT LEADS ALL.

No other blood-purifying medicine is made, or has ever been prepared, which so completely meets the wants of physicians and the general public as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases. If there is a lurking taint of Scrofula about you, SCROFULA AYER'S SARSAPARILLA will dislodge it and expel it from your system.

For constitutional or scrofulous Catarrh, CATARRH AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

ULCEROUS SORES "Hutto, Tex., Sept. 28, 1882. —At the age of two years one of my children was terribly afflicted with ulcerous running sores on its face and neck. At the same time its eyes were swollen, much inflamed, and very sore. SORE EYES Physicians told us that a powerful alterative medicine must be employed. They united in recommending AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. A few doses produced a perceptible improvement, which, by an adherence to your directions, was continued to a complete and permanent cure. No evidence has since appeared of the existence of any scrofulous tendencies; and no treatment of any disorder was ever attended by more prompt or effectual results.

Yours truly, B. F. JOHNSON."

POETRY

THE PRINTER'S HIAWATHA.

Should you ask us why this dunning?
Why all these complaints and murmurs?
Murmurs loud about delinquents,
Who have read the paper weekly,
Read what they have never paid for,
Read with pleasure and with profit,
Read the church affairs and prospects,
Read the news both home and foreign,
Full of wisdom and instruction;
Read the table of the markets,
Carefully corrected weekly—
Should you ask why all this dunning?

From the printer, from the master,
From the kind old paper-maker,
From the landlord, from the devil,
From the man who taxes letters
With the stamp of Uncle Samuel—
Uncle Sam the rowdies call him:—
From them a I there comes a message,
Message kind but firmly spoken:
"Please to pay the bill you owe me."

Sad it is to hear the message,
When our funds are all exhausted,
When the last greenback has left us,
When the nickels all have vanished;
Gone to pay the toiling printer,
Gone to pay the paper-maker,
Gone to pay the landlord's tribute,
Gone to pay the clerk and devil,
Gone to pay the faithful mailer,
Gone to pay old Uncle Samuel—
Uncle Sam the rowdies call him—
Gone to pay for beef and Bridget,
Gone to pay the faithful parson.

Sad it is to turn our ledger,
Turn the leaves of this old ledger,
Turn and see what sums are due us,
Due for volumes long since ended,
Due for years of pleasant reading,
Due for years of anxious labor,
Due despite of patient waiting,
Due despite of constant dunning,
Due in sums from two to twenty.

Would you lift a burden from us?
Would you drive a spectre from you?
Would you taste a pleasant slumber?
Would you have a quiet conscience?
Would you read a paper paid for?
Send us money! Send us money!
Send us money! Send us money!
Send the money that you owe us.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

MAKING A MINCE PIE.

"My dear" said Mr. Spoopendyke, folding his napkin and pushing his chair back from the table, "My dear, you are a pretty good housekeeper, and once in a while you contrive to cook up a fair meal, but you have no business fooling around a mince pie. There never was but one woman who could make mince pie, and that was my mother."

"I thought this was nice," returned Mrs. Spoopendyke, with just a little quiver resting on her lip. "I got it out of the cook book—"

"And you'd better put it right back in the book as a warning to other amateurs," continued Mr. Spoopendyke. "I don't say that this is especially bad, only it doesn't meet with all the requirements of pie as they were instilled into my young mind. You might work it on foundling hospitals that never had any mother, but it hasn't the soul I used to get out of pie when I lived at home."

"How did your mother make the mince pies, dear?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke. "If I knew what she used, perhaps I could get up one of which you would eat six slices instead of four." And with this purely feminine dig Mrs. Spoopendyke looked modestly downward and began folding knife pleating in the table cloth.

"Done!" exclaimed Mr. Spoopendyke, jumping impetuously from his chair. "This is Sunday afternoon and if you've got the ingredients, I'll show you how to make a pie that will draw howls of envy from the neighbors," and Mr. Spoopendyke led the way to the kitchen. "Where's your chopping tray and the apples? Fetch me the hand guillotine and the beef. Look alive now, my dear, and we'll startle the world with some revelations on the abtruse subject of mince pie!"

"Let me put this big towel around your neck, so you won't grease your clothes," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke, dragging out a huge crash towel.

"What's that for?" demanded her husband, contemplating it with no amount of favor. "Which end of the pie is that thing supposed to have influence with? If I make up my mind when I get through that this pie wants to be shaved, I'll put on this skirt, but in the meantime I want room for all my limbs. Now," he continued, as he dumped the beef and apples into the tray and went at them vigorously with the chopping knife; "now you watch the proceedings and note how this pie begins to assume proportions."

"Didn't your mother peel the apples before she chopped them?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, quietly.

"Eh!" ejaculated Mr. Spoopendyke, slowing up a little and looking into the tray distrustfully. "Of course not," and he resumed his labors with still more energy. "If you did, there's where you made your mistake. I suppose you peeled your beef, too, didn't ye? Though I don't know," and he stopped short and regarded his work attentively. "It strikes me this meat would chop finer if some one had dropped a pile driver on it once or twice. Anyway, you don't want your meat too fine, and I guess this will do," and Mr. Spoopendyke set the tray full of lumps on the table and rolled up his sleeves."

"What will you have now, dear?" inquired his wife, tenderly.

"Some flour and water," replied Mr. Spoopendyke, cheerily. "It's the crust of the pie that is it's genius, and I'm going to turn out a slab of pastry that will be a monument to the artist who is weaving this job. Gimme the flour and water, while I feel as one upon whom the spirit of a successful pie rests visibly!"

Mrs. Spoopendyke brought out the material and once more resumed the relation of pupil to the exercises.

"Anything else, dear?" she asked, as Mr. Spoopendyke wet down his flour and jammed his fists in the paste.

"Nothing but profound silence," retorted her husband. "The chief trouble with the crust of your pie is that you allow your attention to be distracted from it at the critical moment. I, on the contrary, will stop boxing this overcoat for that mince meat just at the second it reaches flakiness," and he slammed in more flour and plunged again into his ambitious effort in the way of crust. "There!" said he, when he had fought it to the consistency of sand and mucilage, and rolled it out into two thick chunks. There is the triumph of pie over puttering! Lead out the pan whom the gods will honor, and let's see how this combination of hereditary intelligence and acquired brains will go when it's cooked!"

Mrs. Spoopendyke handed him a pie-pan, into which he dropped his bottom crust, and then poured the mince meat.

"Got to lift your teeth pretty high to get around some of that meat," he observed, as he tried to poke the lumps into position with a stick. "I'm not sure whether mother used to grate the meat or crack it with a hammer, but it don't make so much difference. It's the crust that talks, when you come to conversation on pie. Now, you do this," and he marked out a sprig on the top crust with his thumb; "and when you get it on, thus, you pinch it around the edges, so! See? My mother used to have an old wheel out of a wooden clock, and she printed landscapes in holes all over the pie. But that isn't necessary. It adds lustre, but no dignity to the performance. Now, we put it in the oven, this wise, and in a short time we will have accomplished results in the immediate line of pie."

"It is really wonderful how well you remember how your mother made them," smiled Mrs. Spoopendyke.

"You won't feel badly because it beats yours?" said Mr. Spoopendyke, kindly, "You won't cry?" and he chucked her under the chin, and opened the stove door cautiously to see how affairs were progressing.

"I'll try not to," replied Mrs. Spoopendyke, casting her eyes down, and suppressing something like a sob.

"Let's see. You stick in a broom splint, don't you, when you want to know if the pie is done? Where's the broom? Show me the happy broom that is to be immortalized by testing this grand apotheosis of pie!"

Mrs. Spoopendyke produced the broom, and her husband, carefully selecting one of the splints, jabbed away at the upper crust.

"It don't go in," he remarked, rather dolefully, selecting another with similar results. "The trouble is with the broom. Haven't you got a broom that knows something about its business, or is this one of those pious brooms that won't work Sundays?" and he broke up several more splints in a vain endeavor to penetrate the pie.

"Hadn't you better try the hand-axe, dear," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke.

"No, I hadn't better try the hand-axe, dear!" mimicked Mr. Spoopendyke. "Come out here, and let's see what's the occasion of this uncalled-for resistance," and Mr. Spoopendyke hauled his pie out of the oven and fired it down on the table. "Got an idea you're going to be assassinated with a broom splint, haven't ye? Think you're a sort of bulwark of American liberties and bound to resist foreign intervention, don't ye? Well you ain't; you're only a measly pie, and you're going to have some stuck in ye, if it takes a cold chisel and a cannon!" and Mr. Spoopendyke stabbed it with a fork, and then with a chopping-knife, without producing the slightest impression. "You're up in pie, what do you s'pose is the matter with the thing?" he asked, turning on his wife.

"If I'd been your mother, I should have put some lard in the crust," returned Mrs. Spoopendyke, complacently.

"I don't know how you are going to get lard into a crust that you can't penetrate with a bayonet!" retorted Mr. Spoopendyke, upon whom it began to dawn that there was a hitch somewhere. "I've almost forgotten how mother did try pies to see if they were done."

"Did she ever try a cleaver?" inquired Mrs. Spoopendyke, timidly.

"No, she didn't try a cleaver!" roared Mr. Spoopendyke. "Come hither, my gentle pie!" he howled, planting his fist in the middle of the aparatus. "Listen to the voice of the siren inquiring within!" and he dropped it on the floor and planted his heel on it. "Front door closed for repairs; entrance at the back!" and he kicked the whole business to the ceiling.

"Your mother must have been very vigorous for her age," observed Mrs. Spoopendyke, calmly.

"It's those dod gasted lumps of meat," snarled Mr. Spoopendyke, picking up the pie, and examining its knobs and bumps attentively. "I thought they'd melt when subjected to intense heat. Anyway, the inside of that pie is all right, if I could get the lid off. Got anything I can get under the edge and lift the roof off this business? Gimme that can-opener! Give way, now! Whoop! Once more! So! Yah! All together, now! Whee-e-e! There she comes!" And the crust gave way revealing chunks of beef and apple parings, half-cooked, and still steaming.

"I suppose your mother put in the spices and cider after the head man had wrenched the pie open," remarked Mrs. Spoopendyke, solemnly.

"You do, do ye?" squealed Mr. Spoopendyke, squatting down and resting his hands on his knees, while he grinned in his wife's face. "That lump of quick silver you call your mind, has got around to where it transacts the surpassing business, has it? P'raps you don't like the pie! I s'pose you've got some fashionable notion that you don't care to associate with this pie! Well, you needn't. I don't force unpleasant acquaintances on my wife! I believe in making home a dod gasted paradise, I do? Go forth, pie!" and he shied it through the window, glass, sash, and all. "That suit you?" he yelled. "Does your measly moral nature feel relieved by the absence of the pie you have been instrumental in casting upon the chilled charities of an unsympathetic world?"

"I guess that pie can take care of itself," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly. "The next time I make one I'll try and have it just as your mother used to."

"You'll fetch it!" roared Mr. Spoopendyke, stamping up and down the kitchen and slapping the flour off his coat. "You never have any trouble with things, after I have shown you how! Some day I'll pour lard in your ear, and spice in your eye, and leave you in the oven to reflect on how you'd like to be cut off from intellectual social intercourse just because you ain't baked!" and Mrs. Spoopendyke slammed the door after him and mounted the staircase with heavy tread.

"I don't care," murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, as she swept up the debris, "I don't care. If that is the way his mother made pie, I don't wonder it left a strong impression on his mind."

And with this charitable view of the situation, Mrs. Spoopendyke sat down to the pious consideration of her sins, and whether she'd better make a false train for her new black silk.

STEERAGE TO ENGLAND.

The evidently intelligent and impartial, not to say philosophical, account in Lippincott's Magazine of a steerage passage to England and return shows that the hardships of such a trip have been heretofore overrated. Other than a slight sacrifice of pride, there are comparatively few discomforts, if one philosophically resolves to do a little roughing for the trip. The cost is a trifle—seventeen dollars-paying passage and outfit. The company, while not select, is better than would be expected. Many fully able to go in first cabin, so far as expense is concerned, went in the steerage as a matter of choice. The food is plain but wholesome and abundant. The privileges are quite as many, but different from the cabin. The comforts are relatively many, and the discomforts few and easily supportable for the few days of the passage. All this is to most persons a revelation. No doubt much as to this depends on the line and on the number of steerage passengers. Yet where the vessel is new and swift, and the steerage list is small, we do not doubt the statements of the writer are correct. Our people, accustomed to roughing it at seaside and mountain-top resorts, could no doubt make a steerage passage without serious discomfort. It would not be so pleasant to meet cabin passengers included in the list of home acquaintance. But the fact that the trip can be cheaply and uncomfortably made will prove very possibly an inducement in cases of small supplies of money. A gentleman, now prominent in his profession, made a steerage trip to Europe when a young man and a foot trip over Europe because of lack of means. He declared he gained health and experience through it all.

THE MODEL WIFE.

Scripture and history and poetry vie with one another in sounding the praises of the model wife. The man who is blessed with a companion worthy the name of a model wife can snap his finger in the faces of all the old bachelors that ever breathed and give them points each day in every exalted pleasure that makes life worth living. There is no danger of his applying for a divorce.

Unfortunately for the married men of this generation, the model wives are most all dead. The struggle for existence was too much for them. The ceaseless, silent self-sacrifice needed to build up a model domestic character could only be met and borne as long as there was a living appreciation of the personal laws of duty that underlie all sorts of ideal existence. The men who appreciated model wives and were in return willing to be model husbands were so few that the good wives—that is, the model wives—grew discouraged and took to their graves or some more congenial occupation.

The few model wives that are left are cherished by their husbands beyond even their cigars or their horses. The model wife of the workingman, clerk or business man has some appreciation of the ten thousand little labors, petty cares and annoyances that her husband has to go through each day in his workshop or office. She considers that such worrying cares a part of the duties by which her husband makes a living for himself, for her and the children, if there are any. And when the husband comes home from his work tired, perhaps cross and hungry and out of sorts, she is always ready to meet him with some quiet and gentle good cheer. Her own person is attractive and restful to him.

She always has some pleasant scheme in mind to make his home hours delightful to him, and so make herself indispensable and a constant joy. The model wife does not see how many poor and silly or exacting things she can say to her tired husband. If she has anything to ask she waits until he is rested and fed. She invites pleasant people to her home, not to show how many rich things she has, but to make her husband's home hours pass cheerfully. She knows that if she is half a woman no other can displace her in her husband's affections. She is always more attractive in her manners to her husband than to other men. She is the genius of the household. But, unfortunately, most of them are dead.

THE BEAUTIFUL OCTOROON.

An old citizen of New Orleans had been very rich before the war in lands and negroes, but who was stripped completely by the occupation of his plantation by Federal troops, told a story of an octoroon girl since the war.

The girl was one of the most beautiful of her race, and of course had been trained by her mother to be as wise as a serpent, if not as harmless as a dove. She knew just how beautiful she was.

A very rich young man—that is, a young man with a very rich father, saw her and fell in love with her. A great many young men had done the same thing, but she put a very high price upon herself. A house furnished never so well was all very well for common girls, but she held herself far above that sort of thing. She was perfectly willing that the young man should have her, but marriage was her price, nothing less. When he told her how much he loved her, she assured him that love was not worth a whit to a woman unless it was legalized, and that if he loved her as he said he did, he ought to be willing to make the sacrifice she required that he might possess her. He begged, stormed, swore, entreated, wept, wailed, and howled, but to no avail. She was as cool as a cucumber. She loved him and he loved her; why not marry?

The young man was so infatuated that he mustered up courage and went to his father.

The old man was very stern with him. His son marry an octoroon! Never!

"Do it, sir," said he, in the regular irate father style, "and you will never look me in the face again."

In vain the young man appealed. In vain he remarked to the old gentleman that he had been young once, and ought to know how it was himself. The old man did not see it in that light.

"But, father," pleaded the young man, "she is no common woman."

"I don't suppose she is. Were she, you would not so rave over her."

"All I ask is that you go to see Marie. Go and see her, and I know you will welcome her as a daughter. Go and see her."

The young man was confident that the charms that had enslaved him would capture his father.

"I will go and see her," said the father, "to please you, but it will not alter my decision. But I will go and see her."

The old gentleman did go and see her, and he found that his son had not exaggerated her qualities. She was exceedingly beautiful, exceedingly bright, exceedingly accomplished, and as keen as a razor. She was the wisest young octoroon there was in New Orleans, and she took good care to put her best foot forward. She talked the old gentleman out of his prejudices, she made him interested in her, and when he left her presence he went out in a sort of a dazed way.

He did not return to his son at all, but avoided him. The young lady said to her mother, after the old gentleman had gone, "I don't think, mamma, I shall marry Edward. I don't like him as much as I thought I did, and marriage without absolute love would be, to a nature like mine, a hell upon earth."

"Don't talk rubbish to me," remarked the mother. "You won't throw over so excellent a man with such brilliant prospects, will you?"

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. My shrinking soul is frightened at the thought of trusting my future with a young and changeable man. I require love. I require the entire devotion of a heart as true as my own. And besides, mamma, suppose the cruel father should disinherit the son! That would be terrible. I think my duty to myself and to you requires me to shake the young man. I shall consult my heart."

The next day the old gentleman called again, and enjoyed an hour or two of the delightful girl's society, and when Edward came again he was not permitted to see her.

"She loves you," said the mother, who did see him, "with a love furious in its intensity; but she will never be the means of making you unhappy. When your respected father gives his consent, and is willing to receive her as a daughter, she will rush gladly to your arms, but not till then. Marie is full of passion, but duty keeps it in check. Her very love for you prevents her from making you miserable."

"But I must see her."

"Impossible!" was the heartless reply, and the door was slammed in his face.

It was impossible that he should see Marie, for a very good reason, viz.: his father was with her trying to persuade her to accept his "protection," which the astute young woman rejected, as she had a similar offer from his son.

The young Edward found himself in a very singular position. He could not see his love without the consent of his father, and he could not see his father at all to get his consent. He could make nothing at all of it.

About a week thereafter the mystery was cleared up. He received the following from his father, dated New York:

> MY DEAR SON:—All you said to me of Marie is true. She is indeed everything that is lovely in person and mind. She is at once the most beautiful and the wisest of her sex. I should be perfectly willing for you to marry her but for one other fact. I have found it essential to my happiness that I should marry her myself, which I have done. I have provided for you amply, and shall probably never see you again. My wife and I propose to live hereafter in Paris. I hope to hear from you occasionally. PAPA.

LITERARY NOTE.

The May number of The Eclectic, just received, gives an excellent selection from the best articles in the late foreign magazines. "The Political Situation of Europe" by F. Nobili Vitelleschi, an Italian Senator, is an admirable survey of the European situation as it appeared prior to the Anglo-Russian complications. Goldwin Smith has a capital article on the "Organization of Democracy," and from the Marquis of Lorne we find a suggestive paper on the "Unity of the Empire." One of the most suggestive papers is, "A Russian Philosopher on European Politics," and among scientific papers of interest may be noted, "A Very Old Master," "Organic Nature's Riddle" by St. George Mivart, and "Sir William Siemens" by William [illegible] Carpenter. The other articles, all of which are good, fill up a very readable number.

CUNNING SQUIRRELS.

Squirrels, with all their fun, are wise animals; they look ahead and prepare for the future. When autumn comes, and even before, many a little fellow may be seen running as fast as he can, with his mouth crammed full of grain, corn, seeds, acorns, nuts, or some other food that he means to store away for winter. They gather great quantities of good food and hide it in hollow trees, under rocks or in holes under the ground. When the weather grows too cold they spend most of the time in their holes in trees or in the ground, eating when hungry and sleeping a great deal. Sometimes, if not always, when they sleep they wrap their bushy tails close about them for a covering. The fact that they use their tails so much as a covering has probably given them their name; this is from two Greek words—skia, "a shadow," and oura, "a tail." The Greek name skiouros for "squirrel" means "the tail-shadower," or the animal that hides himself with its tail.

AN ENTERPRISING SCHEME.

Mr. J. H. Hume, a large builder and contractor, of New York city, is the owner of ninety acres of land between Roselle and Linden, formerly the Clark estate, located about half a mile west of Wheatsheaf. On this property Mr. Hume intends to build forty good sized dwellings. The plans have been placed in the hands of an architect, and their construction will be commenced at once. In the meantime surveyors have been surveying the streets leading to the Roselle depot a mile and a half distant, with the view of laying a horse car track from a point near the Wheatsheaf hotel to the depot, the probable cost of which will be $5,000. The object of this is to populate that section of the county and enhance the value of the property. It is believed that if the scheme is put to successful operation that all the property now lying untenanted on the line of the road will find ready purchasers or occupants, and that many houses will be built in the neighborhood. The route of the line will be from the depot through Chestnut and Ninth streets to Wood avenue, to terminate near hotel.—Elizabeth Herald.

HARD TO BE BAD.

My son, you say it is "so hard to be good?" You say it is easier to break all of the Ten Commandments than it is to keep one of them. Well, you mistake. It isn't hard to be good. It's hard to be bad. Ah, yes, my boy, it's hard to be bad. Not right at the time? oh, no! The wine is sparkling, the songs are stirring, the stories are brimming with humor and the air is full of laughter. You are just as bad as you know how to be, and it's lots of fun to be bad, and you never want to be good—oh, yes, it seems to be very easy and very delightful to be bad at night. But the next morning, my boy? Where is the difficulty, then? Who is serious in the morning? Whose head can't be covered with a hat? Who is afraid and ashamed to go out on the street and meet people? Who doesn't want to see anybody? Who wants to hide? Who wonders where he was last night, and whom he met, and what he said, and what he did, and how he did? Not the boy who went to the sociable and ate cake and drank lemonade and washed it down with [illegible]. Not the young man who passed the evening in the company of the good, goody at the debating society. He didn't hear the rollicking songs that you heard, my boy; and he didn't hear the racy stories that "broke you all up." But he is feeling much better than you are this morning. He finds it easy to be "good;" very easy indeed. But to be bad, to have the headache, to have a sour, rebellious stomach, to have a feverish brow, to have a treacherous memory, to have a sense of shame, to have a dread of sunshine and a horror of daylight, to have a set of quivering nerves and a faltering speech, to have a raging thirst that water cannot appease and a gnawing hunger that loathes food, to have a dread of meeting your mother, my boy, and a fear of seeing your sister, and a sense of speaking to your good old father—this is hard, my son. This is being "bad." And look me in the eye, Telemachus, look me in the eye—[illegible]—do you think this is easier than being good? My dear boy you may call your "good" friend a milksop and a mammy boy if you will, but you may in your better moments sometimes say you would like to be "good," but it's so hard, but just weigh the "good" and the "bad," weigh them honestly, and tell me, tell me honestly, which is the harder, to be "good" or to be "bad." Ah, my boy, it is the easier to be good. The way of the transgressor is hard.—R. J. Burdette.

THEY WENT TO THE RINK TOGETHER.

And there came a day when the young man with the lead pencil pants and the high water pants betook him to the skating rink. So he went out, and when he came nigh unto his girl he spake, saying: "Come, Mary, let us gird ourselves up and go hence to the rink, for behold I have been diligent in my [illegible] and embezzled two coupons." And they went, one with the other, for they loved each the other with a love [illegible] which was like unto death. And when the youth and the maiden were come unto the rink they saw there other young men and maidens walking hither and thither, and stepping upon their necks, and spreading themselves upon the floor to the four quarters of the place. And Mary saw the other maidens [illegible] escort closer than their rivers. And she longed for [illegible] she prevailed upon her [illegible] so likewise. And he went with a light heart, for he loved the sport, because he had been there before and [illegible] upon his lap and fastened the skates thereon. And in like manner he did upon his own feet. Then they swelled one unto the other and went upon their slippery way. And [illegible] Mary forgot herself and looked back. Now this is a grievous thing to do, for it was written on the wall "Thou shalt not look back when thou art skating, nor forsake thee [illegible]." But Mary was full of joy and chocolate caramels and [illegible] things. [illegible]

CLEVELAND AND REFORM.

The same system of close application, watchful care, and rigid accountability a correct merchant observes in his business affairs, should be maintained throughout every department and subdivision of Government.

That such has not been the rule of action is a lamentable and, to the people, a costly fact.

There is no justifiable reason why an office-holder, large or small, should not guard with equal or even greater fidelity the public interests committed to his keeping than those of a private character.

Never did a more truthful utterance fall from mortal lips than that of President Cleveland when he declared—"Official duty is a sacred trust."

Had such been practically carried out during the past twenty years, millions of money and a vast amount of honorable repute would have been saved to the country.

Yet the truth cannot be obscured, that over and again the very reverse has flourished in official life. Men in high position have prostituted place and power, not alone for the advancement of partisan ends, but for the enrichment of themselves and fellow corruptionists at the public expense.

To make the spoils system a mine of personal wealth, the most atrocious schemes of public plunder have either received official sanction, or been aided and abetted by rogues clad in the garb of official authority.

It is proper to call things by their right names, to style a spade a spade, and we are therefore warranted in asserting that a man who, either directly or indirectly, whether as Congressman, Cabinet Minister, Mail Contractor, Postmaster, or aught else, converts official place into an agency for securing private or corporate plunder, is a thief and a robber, and ought to be behind prison bars for the remainder of his natural life.

To abolish an infamous system of spoils corruption, so long in vogue, is the zealous and honest endeavor of the present Democratic National Administration, and if successful, the blessings thereby conferred upon the people of the United States, irrespective of political name, will be incalculable.

The President has appointed James G. Chenoweth, of Texas, to be First Auditor of the Treasury, vice R. M. Reynolds, of Alabama, resigned by request.

President Cleveland has removed Postmaster Bailey, of Camden, whose commission has yet two years to run, and has appointed to the vacancy Charles Janney.

Woodstown has raised some $16,000 toward the building fund for a large shoe factory. Several thousand dollars more are required, and an effort will be made to secure it.

The President has appointed Richard Stockton, of New Jersey, as one of the Naval Cadets at large. Mr. Stockton is a younger brother of Mr. Bayard Stockton, of Princeton.

The Secretary of the Treasury has appointed George P. Tingle, of Montana, and Charles Ryan, of Indiana, special agents for the Seal Islands in Alaska, vice H. A. Glidden and J. H. Moulton, suspended.

James H. Wardell, of New York, has been designated to act as Chief of the Census Division of the Interior Department. Mr. Wardell will be assisted by four clerks in the completion of the work of compiling the unfinished census reports.

John H. Grimes, a Republican, was removed from the office of assistant custodian of the federal building at New York, on Saturday last, by order of Secretary Manning, and Charles Connelly, County Democrat, appointed in his place.

Chief Clerk Joseph McDonald, of the Bureau of Military Justice, has been dismissed, by Secretary Endicott for cause, and the former Chief Clerk, Thomas Duke, who was removed by Judge Advocate General Swaim, has been reinstated.

One can almost hear the chattering of the office holders' teeth, at the action of the President in the case of the Camden postmaster. There is many a man who has been holding on to his office in this State, in the belief that he would by the interference of the Senator, retain it, who now finds himself in great danger.

Secretary Endicott has issued an order which will bring some of the employees of his department up with a short turn. It is to the effect that any employee who uses official position, and the immunity of his salary from seizure, to avoid the payment of his debts, will be recommended for discharge.

THE PRESIDENT'S GOOD BEGINNING.

President Cleveland has now been in office hardly two months, but he has made a beginning and a good beginning. "All is well that ends well" is the utterance of a great genius in human affairs; and this utterance is generally accepted respecting an enterprise that ends satisfactorily. Often, however, when we repeat that saying of the great master of the English language, there is present in our mind a thought, which we do not express, that beginning well and continuing well from such good beginning to the end is better than simply a good ending. We assume, notwithstanding Shakespeare, that a thing simply ending well, for that reason, if for no other, is yet not quite so well as if it were well from beginning to end. So, we shall predicate of the Cleveland administration, if so be that it ends well, that it had a good beginning also. If, at the end, we can say he began well, it will be an additional satisfaction. As long, too, as it continues to merit approval, it will be a constant satisfaction, and will help to round out the final popular verdict, namely, that it was a good administration unqualifiedly from the beginning to the end. More may be said even now, of Grover Cleveland, than that he has begun his administration as President, well. He did well before he began it. He was a good Sheriff of Erie county, fifteen years ago; the best Sheriff ever known in that county. It is not saying too much, that the Sheriff's office in Buffalo was a model office for honesty and efficiency. It was doubtless the best conducted Sheriff's office in the State of New York. Lawyers whose business brought them in contact with that office during Mr. Cleveland's term observed it at the time and remarked it, too. A Sheriff's office, honestly and efficiently conducted, is almost as rare as a white blackbird in the State of New York, and the man who conducts such an office well, is a remarkable man. Mr. Cleveland was subsequently a good Mayor. In the administration of that office in Buffalo, he so distinguished himself that his course attracted public attention and was the subject of favorable comment not only in his own party but by the friends of honest and efficient government throughout the great State of New York. He so distinguished himself as Mayor of this Western city, three hundred and fifty miles from New York and two hundred miles from Albany, that he was supported as the people's candidate for Governor and elected by a majority of votes greater than any candidate ever before received for that high office in the State of New York. Moreover, the majority was thus great because of the support of citizens who voted independently of party and for good government; for honesty and efficiency as exemplified by the administration of the Mayor's office in the city of Buffalo and the Sheriff's office of Erie county. After Mr. Cleveland was elected Governor, he said, with characteristic modesty, that he regarded himself the servant of the people; that he intended to execute the laws and administer the office honestly and efficiently; that if errors were committed by him they would be errors of the head and not of heart. There was no brag, no bluster, no high sounding pretension. Governor Cleveland did the things, while Governor, that he said he would do, and so justified the confidence reposed in him by those who cast their votes for his election. His political opponents said of him disparaging things: "That though he administered the offices of Erie county and Mayor of Buffalo acceptably and even performed the duties of Governor satisfactorily, yet he lacked the experience and ability to administer national affairs as President; that the opposing candidate had a larger experience and was smart." It was also said of Mr. Cleveland respecting the Presidency: "That he would, however well disposed, be the easy victim of bad Democratic politicians and quite unable to resist the influences of strong men, whose methods and practices are obnoxious to the good people who supported the Cleveland ticket." President Cleveland has thus early shown that he is independent of undue party influence; that he has good judgment with boldness to declare it and force of mind and character to exercise it. His independence, his sound views, his quiet firmness are already the admiration of those who opposed him. He has been honest and consistent with his views and principles as heretofore declared. He declared in favor of reform in civil service and he has verified all that he had previously said. His Cabinet, his political friends and advisers, the strong men of his party have yielded to him, the President indeed, who has already shown himself to be master of the situation; who has demonstrated in two months' time that he is able to resist the influence of the stalwarts of his own party; that he has a mind of his own and that he can firmly lead while others follow. As to how far the new President may come short because of inexperience, we cannot speak of the future. Step by step, as his administration continues, he must be judged by his acts. So far his course has been very embarrassing to croakers and malcontents. The chief difficulty with such has been, that they have held up two courses for the President to pursue; then apparently determined in their own minds which he would elect to do, blamed him for being about to do the wrong thing, and, while praising and commending the other, to wit, the right thing, lo, to their confusion and dismay, he has done the very thing his adversaries claimed ought to be done. The New York Tribune said after the re-appointment of Postmaster Pearson: "Now you will hear the Rebel yell"—and here it is: A leading Southern Democratic paper has the following: "The re-appointment of Postmaster Pearson of New York city is eminently wise and proper. It is enough to know that the best sentiment of the country will endorse the policy which takes the Democratic party out of the ruts of that ruder partisanship which maintained that the government should be managed in the interests of the party in power, instead of the interests of the whole people. President Cleveland is strong enough to introduce this reform in part policy, and his acts in that direction will not only be endorsed by the Democrats themselves, but by all good men. It is a policy that is calculated to materially strengthen the Democratic party. Doubtless we shall hear strenuous protests from some of the office-seeking class, but even the office-seeking class, in the Democratic party, is not as hungry and as short-sighted as the Republican organs have represented it to be. The criticisms that are made on the appointment of Mr. Pearson by Democrats, or by Republicans, will not amount to anything. President Cleveland has demonstrated that he is an exceptionally strong man, and his Administration will strengthen the Democratic party and make it all-powerful in carrying out the work of reform that the people have committed to its hands."

This is the year for taking the State decennial census. The Legislature, therefore, passed an act authorizing the assessors in the cities and townships to make an enumeration of all the inhabitants. In addition to the census as formerly taken, the foreign inhabitants are to be classified as to nationality, and the ages of all from 5 to 20, from 20 to 60, and over 60 years; the number of families and dwellings are also to be taken. For this work the assessors will receive $2 per each 100 inhabitants enumerated, to be paid by order of the Board of Freeholders.

THE RESULT OF UNCLEANLINESS.

The town of Plymouth, Pennsylvania, is being devastated by an attack of typhoid fever, which the people have brought on themselves by personal and municipal carelessness. Garbage and refuse heaps lay unattended in the public streets and alleys, and the first few days of warm weather set them festering and rotting, poisoning the air with their exhalations. This was a preventible evil, and all that it needed to avoid it was a little cleanliness on the part of the people and a little supervision on the part of the authorities. Since last Friday there have been some thirty deaths from the scourge. After the disease had gained a foothold, the authorities began an investigation as to the cause. The gutters and back alleys were thoroughly cleaned. The amount of filth collected was astounding, consisting of rotten cabbage, ashes, and kitchen refuse. There are no sewers in the town and everything is thrown in the streets. In dragging a small stream which runs through the upper part of the town six dead goats, five dogs, and three dead rats were found. With low water in the stream last week before the recent rain, the carcasses of these animals were exposed to the sun, sending a stench into the atmosphere which was of itself sufficient to create pestilence.

A CONTRAST.

On Wednesday of last week, in Vermont, extreme heat prevailed in all parts of the State. It was so intense as to expand the rails and throw the track out of alignment on the Rutland road, near Chester. The hot wave has dried up the maples and caused a total cessation of sugar making, the buds on the trees having burst.

On the same day, Denver, Colorado, was visited by the heaviest snow storm ever known there. Fully twenty inches of snow fell, as much in the aggregate as the previous falls of the whole winter, crushing in roofs and impeding railroad travel. The 29th of April will also be remembered in this section for its high, cold winds, rain and snow.

Gen. Grant's 63d birthday was generally observed and celebrated all over the country last Monday.

There now seems a possibility of war between England and Russia.

Gen. Grant still continues to improve in health.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on Central avenue and Front street.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The owners of lands fronting on the North side of Central avenue between Third and Fourth streets, and of lands fronting on the East side of Front street, between Washington street, and a point two hundred feet North of Washington street, are hereby required to flag the sidewalks in front of said lands for a width of at least four feet, except where they are now already flagged with stone flagging. Said flagging shall consist of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on surface, and shall be properly laid in one course under the direction of the Street Commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than two inches thick in the thinnest part.

SECTION 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within twenty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then the Street Committee are authorized and directed to cause said flagging to be laid, and the costs and expense thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the City Charter.

Adopted April 27, 1885.
Approved April 28, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

To establish the office of Health Inspector, and to prescribe the duties thereof.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council immediately after this ordinance shall become a law to hold office during the pleasure of the Common Council a suitable and competent person to be called the Health Inspector of the City of Plainfield, who shall be entitled to receive such compensation for the performance of the duties of his office as the Common Council may from time to time determine.

It shall be the duty of the Health Inspector to devote all necessary time to the duties of his office, to make diligent inquiry with respect to all matters affecting in the city which are or may be injurious to the public health, and to report the same forthwith to the Mayor or City Physician, and [illegible] the existence or anticipation of any contagious or infectious disease in the city, he shall have power, whenever in his opinion, the public health demands it to order and cause anything injurious to the public health to be forthwith removed, disinfected or removed at the expense of the owner or occupant of the premises in which the same may be, to be recovered by action of debt against such owner or occupant in any court of competent jurisdiction; and for the proper discharge of such duties, he may at all proper times and seasons enter upon the premises and into the house of every person in the City of Plainfield as often as he shall deem necessary or the Board of Health or City Physician may order, and examine into the health, cleanliness and number of persons inhabiting such house, and shall inspect cellars, vaults, privies, sewers and all other places in such premises. He shall obey and execute all orders to him of the City Physician or orders or resolutions of the Board of Health in such manner as they may direct. He shall report in writing to the Board of Health at least once in each month, and also whenever required by the Board in relation to all duties performed by him and to any other matter within his knowledge affecting the public health.

SECTION 2. Any person who shall resist or oppose said Health Inspector in the performance of any of the duties of his office shall upon conviction thereof in the City Court be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Adopted April 27, 1885.
Approved April 28, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

FIRST thunder of the season Tuesday.

ED. THORN'S calamus is growing finely.

COUNCIL meeting next Monday evening.

How the grass grew on Sunday and Monday last.

FRONT street, below Grove, is being macadamized.

WHAT has become of the "Union and Middlesex Fair Association."

TWENTY ONE were confirmed at the church of the Holy Cross, last Sunday.

DESPITE the heavy rains on Sunday the streets of our city were dry and dusty on Monday.

AND now the patronage of Plainfield's Music Hall is to be damaged by ticket speculators.

SPEARING suckers along the streams is now a favorite pastime at night with those who love that sort of fun.

NEXT Sunday at the Trinity church, will be inaugurated a chorus choir under the leadership of Tom Brown, jr.

AT the Park avenue Baptist church, next Sunday, at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. John Miller, of Philadelphia, will preach.

MANY strange faces along our streets evidences the fact that new families have taken up their residence here this Spring.

REV. DR. LEWIS will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church, next Sunday morning, May 3d, in place of regular pastor.

THE "Stranglers of Paris" have strangled their date with the Music Hall, and Plainfield thus escapes the infliction of the performance.

BLACK bass cannot legally be caught with hook and line until June first. The penalty for violation of this law is fifteen dollars for each fish so taken.

THE voting for Chief and Assistants of the Fire Department will take place in parlors of Alert Hose Co., Monday, between the hours of seven and nine p. m.

THE Somerset County Teacher's Association will meet in the Somerville public school building to-morrow. The programme arranged is an interesting one.

THE law prohibits the drawing of seines or nets in streams of this State stocked with or inhabited by black bass, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every offence.

CHLORIDE of lime will drive away rats and mice. Mix it with water and pour it down the holes where the rats pass. The mixture is harmless, does not kill the rats, but drives them away.

OUR painters are busy. So are our masons, our carpenters, our merchants, and mechanics of all trades. Our city is prosperous and healthy, and we have no debt to worry over. Selah!

THE Century company has recognized the folly of dating magazines ten or fifteen days in advance, and will hereafter issue the Century on the first day of the month, beginning with the May number.

MR. DANIEL F. RANDOLPH, will in a few days open a fish, vegetable and meat market on the corner of Madison avenue and Second street. "Danny" has many friends in Plainfield who wish him success.

HIS HONOR Mayor Rockfellow zealously looks after the city's interests. Complaints made to him of any violation of ordinances or anything affecting the good of the community, receive prompt attention.

ON a most attractive site out Park ave., just beyond the residence of Gilford Mayer, esq., Mrs. U. Fraley intends soon to begin the erection of a handsome cottage for his son. Mr. Oscar Teale is the architect.

THE managers of summer excursion resorts are getting ready for business, and have already commenced sending out their circulars and pamphlets, which give a highly colored description of the inland and seaside resorts.

THE coming issue is between cholera and cleanliness. Every citizen of Plainfield should co-operate heartily with the Board of Health in the effort to remove from the town all uncleanliness that will assist to breed disease.

WE should all remember that Messrs. Heath, Hermann, Frace and Foster of the Casino, are to have a benefit at the Rink, next Wednesday. The many whom they have faithfully served, should attend and swell the receipts.

AN assortment of very handsome favors was a feature of the German, Tuesday evening, at the residence of John W. Murray, Esq. Mr. Wilkinson led with Miss Murray, and about a dozen couple took part in the evening's enjoyments.

COUNCILMAN JOHN SIMPSON has determined to put a stop to the practice of certain parties sleeping at nights in his barn on Washington street, and has consequently given notice that all such parties will hereafter be dealt with according to law.

MR. LEO DAVIS of Putnam avenue, it is said, will shortly commence building himself an elegant residence on Franklin square. The house is to be lighted throughout with electricity, and furnished with all the comforts and conveniences known to science and art.

MR. JOHN O. CAMPBELL has opened a retail boot and shoe store in connection with his manufactory, on Front street, in the store formerly occupied by Love, the groceryman. As he manufactures his own goods he is enabled to sell very low for cash. His store is very neatly fitted up and his stock to select from large.

TAKE a slip of paper and place thereon in figures your age in years, dropping months, weeks and days. Multiply the sum by two; then add to the result obtained the figures 3,768; add two and then divide by two. Subtract from the result obtained the number of your years on earth and see if you will not obtain figures you will not be likely to forget.

NEXT Saturday afternoon there will be an interesting shooting match at Campbell's Club House on Park avenue, between Harry Campbell and Peter Homer, of Perth Amboy. The match is for fifteen live pigeons each, twenty-five yards rise, single barrel, for twenty-five dollars a side. Other interesting shooting at glass balls and clay pigeons will occur during the day.

THE Secretary of State has begun to issue the blank sheets for the collection of the census returns. Under the law of last winter the facts to be reported are simply those of population, and whether it be of native or foreign birth, white or colored, and of what age. The United States law provides for partly compensating the State for the census taken this year if it contains certain facts, but these facts are not asked for by the State law, and will not therefore be furnished.

A REPORTER of the Rahway Democrat sends to that journal the following Westfield item:

> "The stone used in Plainfield and taken from the Orange Mountains, is quite inferior to that supplied by the Central R. R. in Westfield."

The item is entirely wrong. The stone used for macadamizing purposes in Plainfield is taken from the mountain sides on the west of this city and not from Orange. Also, it is better material for the purpose than either the Orange stone or that supplied by the Central Railroad.

THE barn burners made another attempt Friday night last to destroy property. This time it was the barn on the Clark Rogers property, Madison avenue, occupied by Alex. Runyon & Son, undertakers. The miscreant stuffed a quantity of hay and paper under the barn and set fire to it. Fortunately the fire went out of its own accord. In the morning the evidences of the attempt of the incendiary was discovered. Had the flames gained headway much property might have been destroyed, as several barns and stables are clustered together in the vicinity.

BOCK BEER is now ripe, and there will be many to wrestle with the rampant goat for the next few days, the majority to be "floored" in the tussel. Bock beer is stronger than ordinary lager beer, and is made by a slightly different process of pure Bohemian hops (stronger than the other brands) and Canada malt. It is in great favor among beer drinkers at this season of the year, when it is only to be procured. Charley Smith will dispense to his customers two kinds of bock, and other delicacies at his saloon, corner of Front and Somerset streets, on Monday and Tuesday next, as will be seen by his advertisement in another column. Customers are sure of commodious quarters and attentive waiters at his establishment.

MUSIC HALL will be crowded to its "utmost capacity," next Tuesday evening.

OF all street parades that of Thatcher, Primrose & West's, next Tuesday, is the "immensest."

CARL RANKIN has left English Opera and is now with Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels.

THEY change wardrobes three times during the opening part of Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels.

MABEE and English have been doing good work in the temperance cause at Somerville and Raritan the past week.

BERRY & THORN are closing out their entire stock of hardware goods, etc., to close up business. See advertisement.

THE Rev. Dr. Lowry has returned from his Southern tour of pleasure, and has been heartily welcomed back by his late congregation and friends.

POPE BROS. announce a large stock of handsome styles of new carpets, which they sell at extremely low prices. They have the largest stock in the city.

GRIFFIN, the hardware merchant, on Front street, is doing an extensive business in steam fitting and sanitary plumbing. He has competent workmen.

THOSE who have the enterprise to advertise so extensively as Edsall are those who have the enterprise to secure the greatest bargains for their patrons.

JUST this time of the year, if you are undecided where to go for wall paper, window fixtures and materials for interior decoration, go to Swain's at No. 6 North avenue.

MR. GEORGE HUGG, a former resident of this city and a prominent member at the time of Dr. Smith's congregation on Second street, died at his home in Brooklyn, during Wednesday last.

THE Right Rev. Mgr. Preston, of St Ann's church, New York city, will lecture in St. Mary's church, Sunday evening next, at 8 p. m. Subject of the lecture, "Reason and Faith." Admission free.

AT St. Patrick Cathedral, N. Y. city, Monday last, Mr. James Connealy of this city and Miss Mary Verschoyle, niece of the Rev. T. J. O'Hanlon, pastor of the North Plainfield parish, were united in marriage by Mgr. Quinn, V. G.

NOW that the Casino intends closing next week for the summer, the public are beginning to suffer a relapse and the skating fever is visibly breaking out again in spots. This week's attendance has shown an increase in size and style.

THATCHER, PRIMROSE & WEST'S minstrels, that appear at Music Hall, Tuesday evening, are the same as scored so great a success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, recently, except they have secured three additional stars for their appearance here.

THE new Council rooms will be ready for occupancy the latter part of the present month. They will be convenient and spacious. The main room is much wider than the present chamber, and will be lighted by a large chandelier swinging in a dome fourteen feet in circumference.

GERSHAM DUNN, Esq., a well-known resident of Middlesex county, died Thursday of last week of appoplexy. Mr. Dunn was at the time of his death more than eighty years of age. He was formerly connected with the hotels at Metuchen and New Market, and afterward became one of the Justices of the Peace of Middlesex county, a position in which he was well and favorably known. Mr. Dunn also kept a hotel at Millstone some years ago.

ELIZABETH EMMONS, a resident of Readington, Hunterdon county, N. J., died April 23rd, aged 100 years, four months and fourteen days. It is stated that when she was about ninety she made a silk bed quilt containing over 2,000 pieces for the county fair. When nearly ninety-nine she worked with worsted on Bristol board lines on Autumn, to be hung up at Washington's Headquarters at Morristown, N. J. She also continued to read and write till, at least, 100 years of age.

ALEXANDER R. SPENCER, better known as "Sandy" Spencer, and well known to many Plainfield citizens, died on Tuesday last at the International Hotel, New York, of pneumonia. He was born at Old Bridge, N. J., February, 1837. For many years he has been in the saloon and theatre business in New York, and of late years proprietor of the "Live and Let Live" restaurant, corner of Fulton and Broadway. In life "Sandy" Spencer was liberal and generous hearted. Many will bless his memory for his generosity to them in time of their need. He was a member of Cyrus Lodge, No. 208, F. & A. M. He was buried from the "Little Church Around the Corner," N. Y. city, on Thursday.

We Waive All Claim.

As the Crescents will not organize a ball nine for this season, the Elizabeth Athletic Club are welcome to the championship of Union county. We promise not to molest them.

More Jackson Democrats.

We have heard of three more old-time Democrats of this city who voted for Jackson in 1832: "Uncle" David Smith, Furman Campbell and John Berry; the latter also voted for him in 1828.

First of the Season.

We are ahead again, this time in announcing the first of the usual score of summer excursions. Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will excurt up the Sound to Oriental Grove, Wednesday, July 8th, and don't you forget it.

A Good Business Chance.

The hardware business of Berry & Thorn, in this city, is advertised to be sold to close up the estate of the late A. Berry. This is one of the finest chances offered in a long time to persons interested in such business. It is one of the finest business stands in the city. Read the advertisement.

An Early Mail.

Postmaster Pope has succeeded in arranging for Plainfield the arrival of an early morning mail. Just what will be its hour of distribution we will announce next week. Suffice it to say, the new addition to our post office conveniences begins to-day, and the New York mail will probably hereafter be ready to deliver as soon as the office opens.

Interesting to Fishermen.

The Philadelphia Record says that a very large shad was caught Monday morning in the Delaware, opposite Bristol. It weighed fully nine pounds, and measured 7½ inches across the middle of the body, 5 inches across the head, 7 inches across the tail, 25 inches long, and was 3½ inches thick. It was purchased for $5. In 1884, at the same place, a shad weighing 8½ pounds was caught, which was regarded as an unusually large one.

Reform Club.

The Temperance Reform Club meeting last Sunday evening was one of the most interesting ever held within its beautiful hall. Rev. Dr. Ketcham conducted the devotional exercises and several stirring addresses were delivered. A marked feature of the occasion was Mr. Vanderbeek's singing of the poetical contribution to last week's issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST by our friend M. M. Thorn. It elicited warm approval. Reform Club meetings are held every Sunday and Thursday evenings.

License for Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., has been agitated for some weeks on the question of granting licenses for the sale of liquor. Public meetings have been held by the people in favor of and against the scheme. Last week a large meeting of citizens opposed to license was held in the town, which was addressed by ex-Mayor Maxson and President of the Reform Club, John H. French of this city, and others. By a resolution of the Borough Council, a vote of the people was taken on Tuesday last on the question, which resulted in favor of "license." The vote stood—"license," 338; "no license," 230; scattering, 29.

Planked Shad.

Now that the toothsome, yet bony shad has come to us, there is a rush to the celebrated fisheries at Gloucester City, to witness the drawing of the mammoth seine, and to partake of planked shad, which can be procured there in proper shape. "Billy" Thompson, who has a fine hotel there, knows exactly how to prepare this delicious dish. Partake of planked shad once and you will have it served up in no other style. "Billy" is one of the most genial landlords to be met with, an out-and-out Democrat, and a good fellow in every way. The people of that city appreciate him so much that they have made him President of their Common Council.

A Big Curiosity.

Elizabeth city lays claim to other curiosities besides its celebrated enormous debt. The papers of that city now claim that a resident, a Mr. Frome, is the father of a most wonderful child, which was born on December 30th, last. The child, at the time of its birth, weighed three pounds and two ounces, and to-day its weight is four pounds and twelve ounces. The child is seventeen inches in length and is perfectly formed and well proportioned. The waist of the infant is about the size of an ordinary man's little finger. The mother told the reporter that one yard of twenty-two inch flannel would make three sacques for the little one. Mr. Frome says he has had visitors from New York, Newark, Plainfield and various other places, call and introduce themselves in order to see the little wonder.

And Perhaps They Aint.

A distressing rumor comes from New Hampton that some of the young men there go fishing on Sundays. They ought to be ashamed of themselves—and perhaps they are.—Flemington Democrat.

A Poor Farm Probable.

By the resignation of Councilman West, the Alms Committee loses its only member that was opposed to a Poor Farm. The new committee to be named, will undoubtedly approve of Mayor Rockfellow's desire to create such an institution.

Burning Threats.

Some of the timid of the Park House guests were last week frightened out of their night's rest by the vows of a tramp who claimed that the proprietor refused him pay for work done. He swore there "would be no more Park House," but he is now safely locked within the walls of the county jail.

Knickerbockers Next.

A fashion article for gentlemen says lawn tennis shirts are to be seen on everybody the coming season. White with green, blue or red facing, greens, drabs, scarlet and wood colors are being manufactured. The bicycle, or tennis shirt, has come to stay. All this is hard on the laundries.

Change Of Hair.

Little Berty Johnson sorter got tired of his pony's monotonous tinge, and kinder hankered for a change of hue. So upon a recent date Berty very effectually spoiled the pony's complexion with olive paint and clothed its body with a coat of green. A circus company would give many a dollar for Berty's verdigris tinted pet, as it stands.

She's Very Charming.

Those who were pleased with the tenor voice of Mr. C. H. Clark, at the Muhlenberg Benefit, Tuesday evening of last week, may again enjoy it at the last of the Vocal Society's private concerts, Thursday, the 21st inst. Remmertz will also sing, but the great treat in preparation for us is an introduction to the beautiful mademoiselle, Zelie de Lussan. She's a charming little lady with a charming little voice.

Kind Words.

The Plainfield CONSTITUTIONALIST justly takes pride in having established a permanent circulation of some 7,000, and to show that it is appreciated by business people it points to 988 inches of advertising in its last issue. We congratulate our friends, the Messrs. Force, on the success which has crowned their able efforts.—Clinton Democrat.

Thank you, Senator. Admiring the neat appearance and general get-up of the Democrat in its present form, we may some day change THE CONSTITUTIONALIST to the same shape.

Fine Lagers and Ales.

E. P. Thorn, No. 17 Park avenue, is the agent for P. Ballantine & Sons Newark lager; Burton ale, porter, stout, India pale ale and xxx sparkling ale; Schlitz's Milwaukee lager, Anheuser Busch's St Louis lager, imported pilsner, culmbacher and erlanger. Parties desiring any of the above in larger quantities than one dozen can obtain direct from the bottler's by addressing William Wirtz & Co., No. 25 William street, Newark, N. J.

A College Joke.

The sophomores of Rutgers college were to have had a grand class supper last Friday night. The meal had been ordered from a prominent caterer of New Brunswick. During the evening a student visited the latter with a note purporting to order the supper delivered at a different place from that originally intended and an hour earlier. The supper was duly delivered in accordance with this note, and the juniors, after devouring it, sallied out and told the sophomores what they had done.

Personals.

Mrs. George Thomas of Scotch Plains, formerly a resident of Netherwood, died during Sunday night last, of pneumonia, after but a week's sickness.

Miss Phenie Frazee has returned from her visit to her friend, Miss Runkle, daughter of the popular local editor of the Hunterdon Democrat, Flemington, N. J.

The many friends of Mr. Robert Miller are glad to see him once more upon our streets, after his severe illness which has confined him to his home for weeks past.

Mr. Fred. A. Wann, Assistant General Freight Agent, Chicago & Alton R. R. Co., St. Louis, Mo., was in town yesterday on a visit to his brother on Willow avenue, North Plainfield.

A Visit of Sir Knights.

St. John's Commandery, No. 9 K. T. of Elizabeth, and Damascus Commandery, No. 5 K. T. of Newark, will visit Plainfield, May 14th, Ascension Day, as guests of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M. and Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M. of this city. They will attend divine service at Grace church in the morning, in accordance with the usual custom of all Sir Knight organizations to so do on Ascension Day and St. John's Day in each year, making their pilgrimages to such places as their masonic brethren may invite them. This year the honor falls to Plainfield's masonic fraternity to entertain their distinguished brethren. The Knights will visit in full uniform, which is very imposing, accompanied by a band of music. During the day they will parade through some of our principal streets, and give an exhibition drill. Previous to their departure they will be entertained at Force's Hotel, North avenue, by their masonic brethren of Jerusalem and Anchor lodges.

Big Fire in Rahway.

About 12 o'clock Tuesday night last, a fire was discovered in the drying room of John I. Freeman's Carriage Factory, corner of Irving street and Elizabeth avenue, which eventually destroyed that building, together with Gordon's Opera House adjoining and a saw mill, barn and house. The firemen responded quickly to the alarm, but in consequence of a water main bursting, their efforts to stay the progress of the fire was futile. Telephone dispatches were sent to this city, Elizabeth, Newark and Jersey City for assistance, but were afterwards countermanded, as the fire was gotten under control. The water system in use there is the Holly, which gives a constant and very heavy pressure. When the roof of the Opera House fell in the side wall fell outwards, great quantities of the brick striking on the roof and piazza of Mr. John I. Freeman's dwelling house, which was closely adjacent. The bricks fell with such weight and force as to go through the roof and down through the floors and ceilings to the cellar. Fortunately the family and contents of the house had all by this time been removed. The pipes of Rahway's water mains are made of sheet iron, lined inside and out with cement. "Storm Beaten" was to have been played in the Opera House Wednesday night. It is not likely the Opera House will be rebuilt. The entire loss is at least $150,000. There was but $10,000 insurance on the Opera House, which originally cost $40,000. The Freemans had $22,000 insurance.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The young men's meeting next Monday evening, May 4th, will be held in the Warren Mission, commencing at 8 o'clock, and will be led by Mr. A. A. Andrews.

The following named ladies have been elected from the Auxiliary as Rooms Committee, to have charge of the furnishing of the new association rooms: Chairman, Mrs. Wm. Taylor, Mrs. L. W. Serrell, Mrs. Fred. Miller, Mrs. W. H. Van Slyck, Miss Florence Potter, Miss Carrie Lowrie, Miss Carrie Dewey. All that can assist in this work are earnestly requested to do so, either by donations of money or bric-a-brac.

Through its general Secretary, Mr. C. H. Yatman, and Chairman of the Reception Committee, Mr. Geo. H. Miller, the Newark Y. M. C. A. have kindly invited our members to be present at a big reception to be given at their rooms, Wednesday evening, May 6th. Our Newark friends are noted for their hospitality and a good time is assured all that go. Mr. H. O. Williams, with a number of New Haven fellows, will be there. We hope to have a large delegation from Plainfield. Remember the date.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of the State of New Jersey, began Wednesday afternoon, April 22d, in the parlors of the Bordentown Association. There were twenty-seven associations represented, with a large active membership. There are now 11 paid Secretaries, 17 reading rooms, 16 libraries, containing 13,408 volumes, and valued at $8,500. The furniture in the various rooms is valued at $10,365. The yearly expenses have been $17,676. Four associations own real estate valued at $108,500. Total value of property, $132,085. 79 lectures have been given, 9 associations hold evening classes, 29 weekly prayer meetings are held for young men only, also mixed meetings, neighborhood meetings, etc. Through the work of the associations, situations have been obtained for 129 men, and 500 have been brought into the churches. There are 192,000 young men in N. J., and taking this fact into consideration, it will be seen how great is the need of live, active, Christian men; and this is the work the association of to-day are striving to do.

A Successful Season Assured.

Frescoers are tinting the ceiling and side walls of "The Netherwood's" charming parlors, and hundreds of dollars are being expended elsewhere about the hotel, in preparing it for the reception of the house full of guests that already begin to apply for accommodations. In but a few weeks, more rooms will be permanently engaged and occupied than was the case last year by the first of July. The result of Mr. S. V. Woodruff's courage in keeping open house during the past winter, is his just reward.

Only Money Runs That.

In charge of that young and rising electrician, Mr. George Moore of Peace street, is a fifty-horse power dynamo, way down in the bowels of the earth under the sidewalks and cellars of Spruce street, New York. The machine is one of many that will soon be at work for the Daft Electric Power Co., whose President is a resident of this city. The one we speak of is at present furnishing power to run two elevators in the neighborhood and the presses of the Scientific American. As the company rapidly increases its facilities, it will soon have power enough for sale to run everything—but an election.

This Time They'll Get It.

The citizens of North Plainfield are again to hold an election to again decide whether they shall have a borough government or not. The circular as published in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST of Jan. 30th, is being distributed, setting forth the boundaries and benefits of the system. Gentlemen who have made a study of the workings of such a form of government will be in attendance at the new school house, on Somerset street, Tuesday evening, May 19th, to answer questions and give such information as citizens may desire. An election is to be called for Thursday the 21st inst., at the Warren Engine House.

A Big Advertisement.

Edsall encroaches upon our advertising space in this issue to the extent of about four columns to set forth the numerous bargains he has to offer at his annual May "opening" which occurs next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is the largest advertisement we have ever published for a Plainfield merchant, and is another proof of the great value the enterprising and considerate business man put upon our large circulating medium. We refer our readers to it with pleasure and bespeak for our stirring neighbor the same success that has always attended his "special" efforts in this line. Our readers will benefit themselves by encouraging home enterprise on this occasion.

April Snows.

April snows are nothing unusual, and the records show many heavy ones, but the greatest of all occurred thirty-one years ago, when it snowed for three days, and made traveling impossible for some time. The storm began April 15, 1854, and continued Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The snow was between three and four feet deep on the level, and a high wind drifted it into huge banks. Previously the weather had been pleasant and Spring-like, and most of the birds, which had become settled in their new homes, were frozen to death. Other later records show a heavy snow fall on April 25, 1874. May 1, 1876, was very cold, and April 19, 1879, there was a heavy snow storm.—Iron Era.

Good Scenery.

The scenery of the "Lights O' London," as presented on Music Hall stage, last Saturday evening, was a credit to the proprietors of the play and a source of gratification to the audience. In speaking of the caste, however, less commendation is called for. Ed. Lamb as "Seth Preene" was not so much at home as in his own particular line of low comedy. "Harold Armytage" was very poor, and "Clifford" only a little less so. But Sam'l Hemple as "Jarvis," and Wm. R. Murray in a small part, were quite satisfactory. In speaking of the women parts, let us give Miss Millie Sackett as "Eliza Jarvis" a word of praise, and then join in silent prayer that Music Hall may never contain for us again such distressing artists as "Bess Marks" and "Hettie Preene."

The New Councilmen.

The Council at its meeting of last Monday received with regret and accepted with alacrity the resignations of Messrs. West and Love—the former because of ill health, and the latter on account of his removal from the city. The loss of two such excellent members, however, was overcome by the election as their successors of Messrs. Whiton and Cutter.

Mr. John M. Whiton, who succeeds Mr. Charles West as a member from the Third Ward, is to fill a term that expires January, 1887. He was Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Council of 1880, and President of the Council of 1881. During those years of service he proved himself to be one of the most active and efficient of officers.

Mr. Joseph S. Cutter succeeds Mr. Love, whose term expires January, 1886. Mr. Cutter is at present a member of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department and its Treasurer. As a merchant of this city he is honored for his fair dealing, and as a gentleman admired for his good nature and courtesy.

Another Triumph.

Miss Fischer's second appearance in Reform Hall, Tuesday evening, would have filled the house if an April storm had not kept away a large portion of her audience. A soliloquy of Owen Meredith's that opened the programme, proved how ably Miss Fischer could interpret romantic sentiment; "Pat's Panorama" was a clever bit of dialect; "The Creeds of the Bells" displayed her powers of intonation; in "The Polish Boy" she combined oratory and tragic climax; in the "Kentucky Belle" she pictured womanly sympathy and pathos; in "Our Folks" she effectively told a hero's heart sufferings; in "Songs of the Night" she was entirely original and authentic; while in "Money Musk" she eclipsed all who have before attempted its reading. Miss Fischer's versatility is marvellous, and as an elocutionist she has no equal among her sex.

Included in the programme were a number of musical selections, which Prof. Guttman's orchestra played with consummate effect. Additions to this organization have recently been made that greatly increase the orchestra's combined talent. In time, there seems every reason to suspect, these musicians will become better known in public, and appreciated as they merit.

At the close of the entertainment, while those present were insisting upon another of Miss Fischer's pieces, she was presented with a large basket of flowers from the gentlemen, and others, of the Reform Club.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Love was filled by the election of Mr. J. S. Cutter. All present voting aye.

Mr. James Armstrong asked for exemption from a part of his taxes, as a member of the Fire Department. Ref'd to Finance Com.

The Aud. Com. reported as correct the claims referred. Warrants were ordered drawn therefore.

The Council then adjourned.

The Muhlenberg Benefit.

Mr. Adolph F. Glose, a modest gentleman of much ability, opened a diversified programme, at Music Hall, last Thursday evening, with a rendition of Chopin's "Nocturne" in E flat. The occasion was the giving of an entertainment, arranged by the skill and kind labors of Mme. Alberti, for the benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital, and the pleasure of a large—but select—audience. Mr. Glose achieved a success of which he should be proud—for Plainfield is so particular. He is both unassuming and brilliant, and received the only deserved encore of the evening.

Miss Medora (nee Dora) Henson, who was to appear in "Redemption" if given by the Vocal Society, appeared in a pale blue skirt, a bouquet corsage and a pair of gloves. She is an old favorite—we mean, a young favorite of many Plainfielders, and their recall was repaid with "Pretty Polly Oliver." Her second number, which closed the programme, was short but very sweet.

Mr. C. H. Clark, the tenor, created a favorable impression, which one unsatisfactory high note did not succeed in marring. His second appearance, a few weeks later, will, we trust, be honored with an encore.

Since last November, Mme. Alberti had not indulged her fellow citizens with a public exhibition of her talents. In consequence, Thursday evening, her reception was hearty and sincere. In "The Life Boat," her reading of the lines was, at times, strong and true. In "Straw Hat's Christmas Party," a style of composition Mme. Alberti too often selects, she was not so effective. Her "Money Musk" with piano accompaniment, was, however, more pleasing than her "Spinning Wheel" accompanied by the pump in the cellar.

Almost a year ago at the Park avenue church, the public was charmed by a diversion called, for no just reason, "counterpoint," that was part of the closing exercises of the North Plainfield Seminary. Under the more fitting title of "Emotive Gestures," the same feature was the attraction of last Thursday evening, and the young lady who in June last excelled all others in grace and beauty, again far surpassed her companions in the poetry of motion.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Rev. Mr. Cadwell of this place, has been chosen moderator of the Presbytery of Elizabeth for the coming year.

Henry J. Worcester and family, who have resided in our place for several years past, are about to remove West.

It has been said that the Baptist church here have in view a son of Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, of Plainfield, for the vacant pulpit.

Mr. DeLacey, of New York city, has rented the dwelling of C. B. Ripley, Esq., corner of Park street and Summit ave., and moved into the same.

The best macadam carriage roads on the line of the Jersey Central are claimed for Westfield, and the best on the Morris & Essex are claimed for Summit.

Mr. Chauncey B. Ripley was admitted to practice in the U. S. Supreme Court in Washington, this April term, on motion of Hon. E. J. Phelps, Minister to England.

James E. Bortis is engaged in taking down the fences around the building on the corner of Elm street and North ave., preparatory to erecting stables and sheds for his livery business.

Mrs. Mapes has rented her dwelling house on Prospect street, lately occupied by Mr. William Young, to a Mr. Seymour, of Jersey City, who will occupy the same the present month.

Gus. H. Koester, who had been baggage master at our depot for the past nine years, has resigned his position and is about to engage in business at his trade of mason. Arthur M. Foster is now acting as baggage master in place of Mr. Koester.

The Board of Health met at town rooms on Tuesday evening, April 29. Considerable business of importance in regard to matters of public health was transacted. If our residents would report all nuisances and help to abate the same, it might be the means of saving our town from an epidemic the present Summer. The suggestion and the sanitary code adopted by the Board, which has been mailed to everyone residing in our town, should be read carefully.

On Saturday afternoon last the lots on the north side of Hillside avenue were set on fire to burn some underbrush. It finally spread until the residents were alarmed for the safety of their buildings. Word was sent to the town by Mr. Peckham and he, fearing a conflagration, telegraphed for assistance to the Fanwood Fire Department, who quickly responded, and with the aid of the members of the Westfield Department it was kept from doing any damage except to the growth of wood-land. After the fire was extinguished the Westfield fire laddies entertained the Fanwood Department at the Hotel.

The sudden death of Mrs. Eliza Tiger, of Elizabeth, on last Saturday, was a great surprise to our residents. Mrs. Tiger was a native of our town. She lived for a number of years with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller, at what is now the junction of South avenue and Broad street, and which place she owned at the time of her death. A large number of our residents attended the funeral at her late residence on Jersey st., on Wednesday afternoon last. The interment was in the family plot in the Presbyterian churchyard, Westfield. The deceased buried her husband, Jesse Tiger, last June. Mrs. Tiger was aged sixty-nine years. She had enjoyed good health all Winter and was at Westfield about two weeks ago visiting among her friends and relatives. On Saturday last she went to Linden to visit some of her relatives residing in that town, and at six o'clock was preparing to return home when she was suddenly attacked with heart disease and died in about ten minutes.

MR. JAS. HOUSE, who has been confined to his home for the past thirteen weeks, with typhoid pneumonia, is again seen on our streets.

SOME people are born cheeky, some achieve cheek and some have cheek thrust upon them; but when you come to a whole face it is found in the fellow who will let his girl go to the rink alone, pay her own admission and the rental for skates, and a half hour later he comes up, skates all the evening with her and then takes her home and wants her to kiss him at the gate.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., April 14th, 1885.

The O. I. C. Co.—GENTLEMEN—About a month ago, feeling badly and thinking I needed to take some medicine for a Spring cleansing of my system, but undecided what remedy to take, I chanced one day to run up with your advertisement of "Old Indian Cure" in one of our city papers. Upon the spur of the moment I went and purchased a bottle. I have now used two bottles, and take pleasure in saying I have derived great benefit from it. Yours truly,

T. E. CANTERBURY.

HIS LOSS WAS HER GAIN.

"Well, madam," said a fashionable physician to a wealthy lady patient, "if you don't like my prescriptions, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic, or some other quack stuff." "You don't mean it, doctor," she answered, "but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call 'quack stuff' is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of neuralgia arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends, and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE." Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

BETTER THAN SHE EXPECTED.

"Your letter received. In reply I am happy to say that Parker's Hair Balsam did much more for me than you said it would, or than I expected. My hair has not only stopped falling out, but the bald spots are all covered; and all my hair has grown thicker, softer and more lively than it was before my sickness a year ago. Thank you again and again." Extract from letters of Mr. E. W. F., West Fifty-third street, New York.

THE BABY.

Two ladies were overheard talking over the fence as follows:

"What is the matter with your baby? I don't hear it cry any more."

"I have cured it of bawling."

"Do you give it soothing syrup with opium in it?"

"No, I don't give it any medicine at all. I have adopted an entirely new plan."

"What is it?"

"When it begins to cry I smear the tips of its little fingers with molasses, and give it a few feathers to hold in one hand. Its attention becomes aroused and it picks off the feathers with the other hand. The feathers stick to the other hand, of course, and the little darling picks them off again. The little angel's mind is thus so completely absorbed with the feathers that it forgets to cry."

TO MOTHERS.

Bear in mind that you are largely responsible for your children's inherited character, and have patience with faults and failings.

If you have lost a child, remember that for the one that is gone there is no more to do; for those remaining, everything.

Make your boys and girls study physiology; when they are ill try and make them understand why, how the complaint arose, and the remedy, as far as you know it.

Impress upon them from early infancy that actions have results, and that they cannot escape consequences even by being sorry when they have acted wrongly.

Respect their little secrets; if they have concealments, worrying them will never make them tell, and time and patience will probably do their work.

Allow them, as they grow older, to have opinions of their own; make them individuals and not mere echoes.

Find out what their special tastes are and develop them, instead of spending time, money and patience in forcing them into studies that are repugnant to them.

Take your children yourself, if you can, to places of amusements; let them associate you with their enjoyments; when they are parents themselves the memory of it will influence them in their treatment of their children. For their sakes, enjoy life with them if possible; clouds will come soon enough.

If you say no, mean no. Unless you have a good reason for changing a given command, hold to it.

Take an interest in your children's pleasure; mother's participation is a great delight.

Remember that trifles to you are mountains to them; respect their feelings.

Keep up a standard of principles; your children will be your keenest judges in the future.

Be honest with them in small things as well as in great. If you cannot tell what they wish to know, say so rather than to deceive them.

WASHINGTON AT HOME.

It is one hundred and fifty-three years since George Washington was born, on the 22d of February, 1732, and a little more than eighty-five years since he died, a retired Virginia farmer, at Mount Vernon, on the 14th of December, 1799.

It is pleasant to look at him as he appeared in ordinary occupations of his life at home, and as a Virginia planter.

It is said that when at Mount Vernon, it was his habit to rise before the dawn of day in the dark mornings of Winter.

He struck a light in his tinder-box and kindled his own fire when the morning was cold, and lighted also the tallow candles, made, under Mrs. Washington's superintendence.

Contrary to the custom of the wealthy planters of Virginia, he dressed and shaved himself, except that a servant combed his hair and tied his queue.

His shaving apparatus has been preserved to this day by the descendants of his step-son, Mr. Curtis.

As soon as he was dressed, he usually wrote some of his business correspondence, made entries in his diary, and wrote out directions for his overseers.

Desk work he disliked, but he performed it with care and exactness.

This irksome labor done, he went to the stable near the mansion house, and enjoyed a long inspection of his horses, of which he was extremely fond.

He usually had about twenty carriage and saddle horses in the home stable, beside fifty or sixty draught horses on the farms which composed his estate.

A love of the horse was hereditary in the Washington family.

His own mother, it is said, was as good a judge of a horse as any man in Virginia.

Upon returning from the stable, Washington sat down to an old fashioned Virginia breakfast, which consisted chiefly of the four "h's": hominy, ham, hoecake and honey, with a cup or two of tea or coffee.

He was a good eater, but preferred honest, plain food; and almost everything he ate was produced on his own estate.

Breakfast over, he entered upon the business of the day.

Generally in fine weather, his horse was ready saddled for him as soon as he had left the table, and on most days he had business which required attention at some distant farm.

His estate consisted of three thousand two hundred and sixty acres, divided into five farms, each having its own overseer, its own barns, stables and negro quarter.

His slaves usually numbered between four hundred and fifty and five hundred, who were like so many children in having to be clothed, fed, doctored, housed and directed by their master.

Under Mrs. Washington's own eye all their clothes were cut and made, and if sickness broke out in one of the quarters, it was the general himself who commonly visited and prescribed for them, often giving them their medicine with his own hands.

Sometimes in periods of epidemic, he would spend many hours of the night in their huts.

All good planters did so, and indeed we may justly boast that no slaves were ever so well cared for as those of the Southern States.

That is not saying much, but so much we can say.

We may imagine, therefore, that General Washington had a great deal of hard riding to do when he was at home.

Mr. Curtis, his adopted son, records that he rode about his farms unattended by a servant, although he often had to dismount to let down the bars.

His morning ride on farm business averaged twelve to fifteen miles; but he frequently stopped on the way, and did not usually return much before dinner time, which was two o'clock.

A gentleman once rode out in search of him, and asked Mr. Curtis how he should know the general when he met him. The young man replied:

"You will meet, sir, an old gentleman riding alone, in plain drab clothes, a broad-brimmed white hat, a hickory switch in his hand, and carrying an umbrella with a long staff which is attached to his saddle bow. That person, sir, is General Washington."

Mr. Curtis explains that the general's skin was tender, and he carried the umbrella as a protection against the sun.

Upon the whole he was an excellent farmer.

To be sure he complained on one occasion that, although he had a hundred and one cows, he was obliged to buy butter for his own table.

On the other hand, he produced such excellent wheat and put up his flour so carefully, that a barrel of flour bearing the brand of George Washington, Mount Vernon, was admitted into West India ports without inspection.—Youth's Companion.

In Great Britain 10,100 landlords, for doing nothing, receive from the soil more than twice as much as the total wages paid to 850,000 laborers for working twelve hours through the seven days in every week.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

NEVER YET QUESTIONED:

The Absolute Purity and Wholesomeness of Royal Baking Powder.

It is a noticeable fact that in the numerous battles between the rival baking powder makers the absolute purity and wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder has never yet been questioned.

Hundreds of baking powders have been placed upon the market with great flourish of trumpets, and have strutted their brief hour in imaginary contention with Royal for the patronage of the public, but their impurities and imperfections were soon exposed by the chemist's skill and they speedily passed away, the victims of their own mephitic gases, or are awaiting the fate that sooner or later overtakes the fraud and the charlatan.

But the thousands of analyses, many of them by the most celebrated chemists of the world, the most searching scrutiny by scientific bodies in this country and Europe, the exhaustive tests before the juries of competitive and industrial exhibitions, and all the minute and prejudiced investigations by rivals and their chemists in the endeavor to find something upon which to base the shadow of a fault, have had but one result, to more fully determine and establish the fact that the Royal Baking Powder and all its ingredients are absolutely pure and wholesome. All reputable chemists, and all but the most ignorant makers of the low test, short weight, lime, alum, and other impure powders, long since ceased to examine the Royal Baking Powder to find anything impure or unwholesome in it.

While the Royal is proud of these unimpeachable indorsements, and highly gratified at the perfect result which it has, by the aid of the most competent chemists, the adoption of every available invention, and the expenditure of great sums of money, been able to accomplish, its greatest pleasure arises from the fact that its labors have been parallel with those great interests of the public sought in the protection of the lives and health of the people.

The gravity of the danger to the consumer from the many impure and unwholesome baking powders of the market is but faintly appreciated. The small amount of injurious substance imparted to the system at one time in the use of such powders is unnoticeable. They are therefore continued by the consumer in ignorance of the serious results sure to follow from the accumulated effects. This slow, insidious poisoning, because unapparent, is more dangerous than a larger dose at once. All the baking powders upon the market, except Royal, have been found to contain lime, alum, terra alba, or other ingredients that injuriously affect the health of the consumer.

The great advantage to the public of a baking powder like the Royal, whose purity and wholesomeness have never been questioned, and whose practical worth has stood the test of cooking for so many years, will be apparent to every consumer.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN
Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

THE IRON FRONT!

For the coming season we are showing a very large and select assortment of

Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing

embracing all the Staple and Fancy Styles of Cassimeres, Worsteds and Coatings, at the lowest prices that can be named. We invite your especial attention to our

Sawver Cassimeres,

of which we have a greater variety than ever before, there being over fifty different styles to select from cut in all the leading shapes—Sacks and Frocks. These goods we have the sole control of in this city, and we unhesitatingly recommend them as being the best value ever given. A splendid assortment of

SPRING OVERSACKS!

In all shades and at all prices. A large line of PANTS, in both heavy and light-weight cassimeres, "perfect fitting" in every respect. We guarantee every garment to be exactly as represented, and in case any dissatisfaction occurs we will cheerfully make any exchange or refund the money. We would be pleased to have you inspect our stock and compare our prices, feeling assured that an examination will be to your interest.

The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.

WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make itself apparent to all users, in doing away with the tray, the wash at all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray it cannot be kept clean, becomes foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1½ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two outlets of vent vents of 1½ inches diameter are intended for tight or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

POETRY

HOW THEY MAKE LOVE IN TEXAS.

BY BESSIE SMITH.

I am waiting in the meadow
While the evening shadows fall;
While the sunset's golden splendors
Fade away beyond recall.
O'er the earth a dewy fragrance
Flings a mantle, sparkling, bright,
Quivering with an untold beauty,
Flashing back the waning light.

Meet me, darling, I am waiting
'Neath the sighing aspen tree;
Round me winds of eve are sweeping,
Whispering to my heart of thee.
Hasten! On my lips are burning
Words I would to thee impart;
Truest love and hope are beating
In my restless, throbbing heart.

Now the dark'ning world is sleeping,
Resting from all grief and care;
Now the silent stars are gleaming
On her tranquil bosom fair;
But my heart is growing weary,
And a pang akin to woe
Steals upon me in the gloaming,
While the shadows come and go.

But I know you will be faithful,
Well I know you will be true;
In your heart a kindred feeling,
Like the love I bear to you.
So I'll cease from all repining,
Banish every doubt and fear,
For through the fragrant gloaming
I can feel your presence near.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE MYSTERIOUS PORTRAIT.

In a small but handsomely furnished room in a New York hotel a young lady was sitting in an easy chair before a blazing fire one dreary November afternoon.

At last the door opened and a tall, aristocratic young man entered the room.

"Harry, what a long time you have been!" she cried, springing up from her seat. "What news have you brought? What does your father say about our—our marriage?" hesitating at the last word.

"Read for yourself, Helen," replied her husband, handing her an open letter, and leaning opposite to her against the mantelpiece, he watched her as she read:

"In marrying as you have done you have acted in direct opposition to my wishes. From this day you are no longer my son, and I wash my hands of you forever."

"Harry, why did you not tell me of this before?" exclaimed Helen, as she read the cold, cruel words, looking through her tears into her husband's face.

"My darling, what was there to tell? How could I know my father would act in this hard-hearted manner? But, my love," he continued more seriously, "there is an end of our shopping excursion into Broadway. You will have to do without diamonds, now that your husband is a penniless outcast instead of the heir to twenty thousand a year."

"Hush, Harry; don't talk like that," she said, worried at his bitter tone. "You know that it was not of diamonds or dresses that I was thinking. But what are you going to do?" laying her hand on his arm and looking up sadly into his pale, sad face. "You cannot work for a living."

"And why not work for a living," he exclaimed in a determined voice. "Because I happen to be a millionaire's son, brought up without any knowledge of business? But I will work for my living and show my wife that I am not unworthy of the confidence she placed in me," and he stooped and kissed her softly.

It was while pursuing his studies in oil painting that Harry Marston wooed and won Helen Tracy, a governess in an English family, and the orphan daughter of an officer in the army.

Their new home, consisting of three rooms in a dirty East Side street, was very different from the grand old mansion where he had hoped to take his bride, but he set to work cheerfully at his favorite art and tried to earn a living by painting portraits. This he found very soon was by no means an easy matter.

At last one dreary afternoon when Harry was sitting in the little room he called his studio, trying to devise some scheme to replenish his slender purse, the servant ushered in a white-haired old man.

Placing a chair by the fire for his visitor, Harry inquired his business.

"You are a portrait painter, I believe, sir?" said the old gentleman, looking at him through his gold-rimmed spectacles.

"That is my profession, sir," said Harry, delighted at the thought of having found a commission at last.

"Well, sir, I want you to paint the portrait of my daughter."

"With pleasure, sir," said Harry, eagerly. "When can the lady give me the first sitting?"

"Alas, sir, she is dead—dead to me these twenty years, and I killed her. I broke her heart with my selfishness and cruelty," exclaimed the old man in a trembling, excited voice.

A strange chill came over Harry as the idea that his visitor might be an escaped lunatic crossed his mind.

Mastering his emotion at last the old man said:

"Pardon me, young sir. This is of no interest to you. My daughter is dead and I want you to paint her portrait from my description, as I perfectly well remember her twenty years ago."

"I will do my best, sir, but it is by no means an easy task, and you must be prepared for many disappointments," said Harry, when having given a minute description of his long-lost daughter the old man rose to depart.

For weeks Harry worked incessantly on the portrait of the dead girl, making sketch after sketch, each of which was rejected by the remorse stricken father, until the work began to possess a singular fascination to him, and he sketched face after face as if under a spell.

At last, one evening, wearied with a day of fruitless exertion, he was sitting over the fire watching his wife, who was busy with some dainty needlework, when an idea suddenly flashed upon him.

"Tall, fair, with golden hair and dark blue eyes! Why, Helen, it is the very picture of yourself," he cried, starting to his feet and taking his wife's sweet face between his two hands. Without losing a moment he sat down and commenced to sketch Helen's face, and when his patron called the next morning he was so busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to the portrait that he did not hear him enter the room, and worked on for some moments unconscious of his presence until with a cry of "Helen, my daughter!" the old man hurried him aside and stood entranced before the picture.

After gazing some moments in silence only broken by his suppressed sobs, the old man turned to Harry and asked him in an eager voice where he had obtained the original of the picture.

"It is the portrait of my wife," said he.

"Your wife, sir! Who was she? Pardon me for asking the question," he added; "but I have heard lately that my poor Helen left an orphan daughter and for a year I have been searching for her, hoping to atone for the wrong I did her mother."

Harry was beginning to tell him the story of how he met Helen, when the door opened and his wife entered the room.

Perceiving that her husband was engaged she was about to retire when the old man stopped her respectfully.

"Pardon me, madam," he said, "but would you tell me your mother's maiden name?"

"Helen Treherne," said Harry's wife, wonderingly.

"I knew it—I knew it!" exclaimed the old man in an excited voice. "At last I have found the child of my long lost daughter."

In a few words he explained how he had cast off his daughter twenty years ago for having married a poor officer, and refused even to open her letters in which she begged forgiveness.

"But, thank heaven!" he said, when he had finished his sad story, "I can in some way atone for my harshness to my Helen by taking her Helen to my heart and making her my daughter."

It is needless to add that when the millionaire heard that his son had married the heiress of one of the finest estates in the country he at once wrote a letter of reconciliation to Harry.

So, after all, Helen became the mistress of Marston Hall, in the picture gallery of which there is no painting so highly valued as "The Mysterious Portrait."

* * *

The best cement for mending broken dishes is white lead. It is better than all the advertised cements. With a bit of stick spread the paint, which must have plenty of oil in it, smoothly on each piece, press them tightly together, and, if necessary, tie them in place, wiping away all paint which comes out. They must stand for months or a year to harden, but at the end of that time they are as hard as if they had never been broken.

A JEALOUS BRIDEGROOM.

I am, if you will allow me to introduce myself, your humble servant, Mr. Pelham Palmer. I am perhaps of a jealous disposition by nature, but who can help his nature? I deeply sympathize with Othello whenever I read the play of that name which Shakespeare has given to the world.

I say I am jealous by nature, but I have conquered myself. I deeply sympathize, as I said, with Othello, but I am quite sure that if that most unhappy colored gentleman had partly smothered Desdemona, and she had been brought to and had been able to explain about the suspicious circumstances connected with her pocket-handkerchief, everything might have been well, and Othello very happy.

However, this is growing into quite a preface; let me continue my story.

I was forty when I made up my mind to marry. I had never thought myself handsome, but having amassed a fortune, and having decided to settle down as a married man, I was lucky enough to gain the affection of the fairest of her sex, Miss Phœbe Pearl, and having offered myself to her, was accepted.

I had previously interviewed her father, who approved of our union, and I had gone through the courting process and was really married.

The carriages were rolling up one by one to Mr. Pearl's door, while the crowd of little girls, boys, nursery-maids and beggars collected on the pavement, uttered loud Ohs! and Ahs! whenever a more than usually gorgeous train swept the dust from the striped carpet spread upon the front door step and vanished under the fringe of the awning.

I was uncomfortable, as bridegrooms always are when making part of their wedding show; but I expected to be very happy when I got my wife to myself; and after the lunch, or dinner, or breakfast—I really don't know what my respected mother-in-law called the feast—we were going off to spend a month at Paris and get acquainted.

Even in that Halcyon hour I was aware that we were not well acquainted yet. However, I knew I was a good sort of fellow and had the greatest confidence in Phœbe. In fact, I had just repeated this to myself, when a postman's knock sounded on the door, and I saw Phœbe's own maid exchange a glance with my wife as she slipped a pink envelope into her pocket.

It was a very foolish idea, I know, but I took it into my head that the letter had something in it that my newly-wedded Phœbe wished to keep from me. I flatter myself that I am a good reader of the expression of the human countenance, and that is what I thought I saw in the glances those girls exchanged. However, I really wanted to kick myself for harboring the thought.

But afterwards, when the congratulations were over and we were going down to dinner, I saw Jane, under pretense of adjusting her mistress' dress, slip the pink envelope into the white satin trimmed pocket that was pinned by a bunch of orange blossoms to her waist. And I saw Phœbe dart a warning look at me. This time I was sure, and a memory of a certain beaux who had caused me pain in their time did creep into my mind.

To be sure, Phœbe was mine, but—she should not have any secrets from me. I was older than she was, not handsome, and very well off, and—well, I felt that some of those younger men had been young, and fascinating, and poor—and girls had married for money before now.

And so in a few moments, to drive my doubts away, I said, in an airy manner, that seemed to me just the thing for:

"Got a letter, my dear?"

She blushed scarlet.

"No; only a little note," she answered.

"Who from?" I asked.

"Oh, I'm not a clairvoyant, Pelham," she replied. "I can't read through sealed envelopes."

"Open it, then," said I.

"I couldn't; it would be bad manners," said she.

"Whom do you think it is from?" said I.

"Some belated bridesmaid, perhaps," said she.

"Miss Smith, Miss Brown, and Miss Robinson are all here."

"Oh, well, it's from my grand-aunt Pendleton, to say she can't come, but wishes me joy, and sends a soup-ladle. She always sends a soup-ladle to brides in the family," said Phœbe.

"Then I think you ought to read it once out of respect to the old lady," said I.

"What a tease you are?" she cried, and pulled her handkerchief from her pocket.

The letter came with it and fell to the floor. I stooped to catch it up. So did she. Our heads crashed furiously together. I got the letter.

"Hope I've not hurt you, my dear," said I.

"You have, horribly," said she, and snatched the letter, but not before I had glanced at it.

"Your aunt writes a very fine masculine hand," said I. "Is she a strong-minded lady?"

"Very," she answered, and crammed the pink envelope into her pocket, and began to talk to a matron who had known her from a child.

There are always such old ladies at wedding-parties, and it is more agreeable to meet them when you are young than when you are not. I feared she might have known me also, and I had clipped four years off the tag end of my age.

Somehow, thirty-six sounds so much better and younger than forty.

I hurried away and began to play with somebody's little girl—I think it was a cousin's—who had brought with her a hideous staring doll, dressed up like a bride. I told falsehoods, and said I loved little girls; and that the mannikin was "pretty!" and I boiled inwardly with rage and jealousy; and my head ached only less than my heart. I suppose hers did also. This was a state of things for a wedding day!

But we went down to dinner together, and I responded to the proper toasts, and forced myself to seem happy.

Champagne helped me. After awhile I said to myself:

"Idiot! It is some little bill she wants to hide. A shoemaker's perhaps. Her father lives up to his income; and no doubt she has had hard work to get her things ready. Poor child! I've been cruel to her."

So when she had gone away to get ready for the journey, and it was time for me also to go, I hurried to the room appointed for me, and knowing it was next to hers, softly opened the door and peeped in, meaning to kiss her, and tell her she should always have everything she wanted after this. The room, however, was empty.

Her wedding dress lay on the bed, and a ghostly vail and wreath floated from a gas fixture: but paper, pens and ink were on a desk, and I saw that even in this hurried moment she had taken time to write a letter.

It lay finished, but not folded, beside an unaddressed envelope, and I tiptoed eagerly across the room, hoping to read that she would settle that little account as soon as possible, and read this:

"Indeed, sir, you are right. I shall suffer miserably through all my honeymoon, and it is your fault, not mine.

"I could hardly keep my tears back at the altar for the pain. My husband must not know, but I shall be a martyr until I get back. On the very day of my return I shall see you; but as for giving you—never!

"I relied on you so implicitly. How could you? How could you? PHŒBE PALMER."

I glared about the room, looking wildly for the letter to which this was a reply.

I saw a wisp of pink paper on the floor and caught it up. The patter of little boot heels was on the floor of the hall and I closed the door behind me just in time.

Trembling with wrath—had I not reason for it?—I unfolded the paper. It was only a small piece of the note; but I read what it contained over and over. It was this:

"I did not think it would give you pain; but I can scarcely expect you to forgive me for breaking my engagement with you. I am so sorry I cannot see you before you go; but your husband——"

There the fragment ended and left me in a state of mind that threatened congestion of the brain, to put myself into traveling-suit and start on my wedding journey with a bride I believed already false to me.

Yet what could I do? Make a scene before the wedding party? Get into the papers, perhaps?

"No," I said to myself, "I'll have revenge, but I won't disgrace myself publicly." I put the fragments into my pocket-book.

Jane had been the children's nursery maid. I had promoted her to Phœbe's own waiting-maid, and she was to live with us. There she was already, and I thought of all the diabolical maids in French books as I looked at her.

We got into a carriage and rattled furiously away toward the station, for we were late. Phœbe was in tears—"at leaving home," she said. I made no attempt to console her. I sat stiffly on my seat, with a hand on each knee, Jane's round little bullets of eyes staring hard at me, as though she saw something was the matter.

My heart burst and my head ached; I wonder I was not seized with apoplexy, being of such a full habit. We got into the train at last, and Phœbe looked at me in her dove-like way, as I stood beside her, looking Heaven only knows how.

"You mustn't be angry with me. It's so hard to leave mamma," she said pleadingly. "I won't cry any more."

"You are at liberty to cry as much as you like, madame," I said. "I should think that you would feel like shedding many bitter tears."

With this I strode away into the smoking-carriage.

All through that wretched bridal journey I never gave my wife a civil word or kindly look.

When she called to me, "Don't you feel well, Pelham?" I replied: "Very; you'll not be a rich widow just yet, my dear." And after that we did not speak again.

So we reached the hotel at Paris, and after I had engaged rooms I had an interview with Jane alone.

"Young woman," I said sternly, "I am going to give you a month's wages and discharge you. I will also pay your passage home."

"My goodness!" cried Jane. "Don't missus want me? Is she so double-dealing as that?"

"It is I who don't want you," I said; "you have helped to deceive me."

"About what?" asked Jane.

"You gave your mistress a letter to-day," said I.

"Well," said Jane, "do you think I'd orter keep a letter directed to missus?"

"You prevaricate," said I.

"If that's French for steal, I don't," said Jane.

"You gave it to her slyly," said I.

"Well, she said I was not to let you see it," said Jane.

"I know the contents of that letter," said I.

"There now," said Jane, "I told her you'd find out. But you don't mind, do you? It's a great deal commoner than you'd think, and she's only got two. Some young ladies has a whole lot."

"Two!" I gasped. "Unhappy girl! I only know of one."

"Why, I've got four," said Jane; "and I'd tell anybody."

"Hardened young woman!" said I. "But I am no longer deceived—that is one comfort. I will send that woman back to her parents with you."

Jane stared at me.

"I think you're crazy, Mr. Palmer," she said. "So much better-looking and younger as she is than you, now. And you've got a whole upper set, I believe. So there now!" She stopped and laughed. "I believe you're misled somehow," she said. "You don't think that letter was from missus' old beaux?"

"I have read a portion of the letter," I said fiercely. "I have it here."

"Oh," said Jane, "I've got the other two bits in my pocket. I tucked them out of your way in a hurry. I'll show you the whole together here."

She took from her pocket two pieces of pink paper.

"You'll feel better when you've pieced that out," she said, with a malicious grin. "Old bachelors do beat all."

I sat down at a table with an empty inkstand and a water cooler upon it, and pieced the letter together, and read this:

"MY DEAR MISS PEARL:—I was called away to extract a tooth from the mouth of a gentleman too ill to leave his house. I thought I should be back in time. I am sorry the plate does not fit, and did not think it would give you pain, but I can hardly expect you to forgive me for breaking my engagement with you. I am sorry that I cannot see you before you go; but your husband can certainly find some good dentist that will do the little things necessary. Why need you make two false teeth a secret? Everybody has them nowadays. Yours regretfully,"

The epistle ended with the name of the old family dentist.

"You thought it was beaux, didn't you?" asked Jane. It only shows what fools gentlemen is. Well, shall I pack up and go? 'Twasn't my advice not to tell you. I said: 'Tell and over with it. They'll come out some day, like enough, at breakfast.'"

"Jane," said I, "I retain your services. Here is a little present." And I handed her a sovereign. "Don't mention this to Mrs. Palmer."

Then I went away to make peace with my poor, snubbed, heart-broken little wife, who was crying her heart out; and as I said before, I have never been jealous since.

P. S.—I think Jane played me false, after all, and told the story.

THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.

To scale fish easily dip them in boiling water.

It rests you in sewing to change your position frequently.

Rusty flat-irons should be rubbed over with beeswax and lard.

Tough meat may be made tender by laying a few minutes in vinegar water.

A fever patient is cooled and comforted by frequent sponging off with soda water.

Cold tea should be saved for your vinegar barrel. It sours easily and gives color and flavor.

A piece of lemon bound upon a corn will cure it. The lemon must be renewed night and morning.

To beat the white of eggs quickly add a pinch of salt. Salt cools, and cold eggs froth rapidly.

The hair may be kept from falling out after illness by a frequent application to the scalp of sage tea.

When acid has been dropped on any article of clothing, liquid ammonia will kill the acid, and then by applying chloroform you will restore the color in most cases.

Labels may be fixed upon tin boxes, etc., exposed to damp by the following method: White of an egg is diluted with one-half part water, and applied with a brush to the surface to be united. A hot iron is then passed over the paper, so as to coagulate the albumen. By means of successive layers of paper and albumen, waterproof boxes, etc., may be formed.

Nothing is better to clean silver than alcohol and ammonia, finishing with a little whiting on soft cloth. When putting away the silver tea or coffee pot which is not in use every day, lay a little stick across the top under the cover. This will allow fresh air to get in, and prevent the mustiness of the contents familiar to hotel and boarding-house sufferers.

If a person would bathe the face night and morning with hot water, wrinkles would entirely disappear. In that case youthful faces would be the order of the day, and a body would be puzzled to tell the grandmother from the grandchild. At present wrinkles are about the only landmark we have to steer by, the attire of a child of six and a dame of sixty differing so very slightly.

If flannel dresses of the children are soiled and at all greasy, add borax to the water in which they are washed. Dissolve a large teaspoonful of borax in a pint of boiling water, put about a third of it in the first suds in which the garment is to be washed, another third in the next water, and the rest of it in the rinsing water; shake the garments thoroughly before hanging them up to dry.

Cracks in floors, around the mold-board or other parts of a room, may be neatly or permanently filled by thoroughly soaking newspapers in paste made of one pound of flour, three quarts of water and a teaspoonful of alum, thoroughly boiled and mixed. The mixture will be about as thick as putty, and may be forced into the cracks with case-knife. It will harden like papier mache. After getting it into good shape let it dry thoroughly, and then color it to conform to the woodwork around it.

Professor De Chaumont says, with regard to disinfectants, that there is but one true disinfectant—viz, fire. The majority of so-called disinfectants are simply deodorants. The idea that tobacco smoke or the odor of camphor is destructive of contagion is still extensively held, though it is simply absurd. A true disinfectant is a substance that will kill the germ of living particles in which the contagious principle resides, or through which it is conveyed. Of true disinfectants, heat is the most reliable, though others are not to be despised, such as carbolic acid, chlorine and sulphurous acid gas.

THE HOME LIFE.

One of the surest and safest tests of a man's character is the life he leads at home. We care not how great he may be in the world's eye, how high his position, how widespread his fame, if he fails in the exercise of those virtues that most adorn private life, if he is faithless to those to whom he should be most faithful, if he is false to the obligation which spring from the holiest and most tender relations, then he fails in the essential things if he is not at heart a base hypocrite, the most despicable of men. Not unfrequently men parade before the world as generous and philanthropic, while at home they act the part of miserly, petty tyrants. They are generous where they think their gifts are likely to return measure for measure through popular favors, but niggardly where they find it safe to be so without detriment to their purses. Others are courteous and affable in their business intercourse through the day, but carry home at night their frowns and sighs and peevish faultfinding to chase away what little happiness their absence left behind. The home life is the real life, the life in which men act out their true natures. It is within the privacy of home where the great [illegible] men exhibit those weaknesses and tendencies which motives of policy or social restraints cause them to hide or controlled elsewhere. It is also within the sacred precincts of the home that the rarest virtues and graces that ennoble human character are seen in their freest exercise. The really good or great man contributes to the home life the best things that are in his nature. It has his deepest sympathy, his tenderest regard, his most loyal and unselfish affection. In its care and protection his manhood asserts itself most strongly, and for its peace and happiness he counts nothing too dear for sacrifice.

BILL'S WIFE.

"Well, Bill, by Jingo—[illegible]

"Why, Joe, bless my heart—[illegible]

The curtain had fallen on [illegible] of the acts of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Haverly Theatre. There was a movement of many dress suits to the lobby. Bill wore one of these suits. To look at him one would suspect [illegible] accustomed to the conventional attire. The clothes fitted him well [illegible], and to his credit he seemed at home in them until he met Joe. Joe had on the same time-worn overcoat in which he had slept on the mountains in the West. His boots just as heavy and just as clumsy as he had always wore them. He had on an immaculate collar of [illegible] city cut and a flashy scarf, which was tied as roughly as if it had been [illegible] by a whirlwind in the gorges. [illegible] had a "glistener" in its folds that was pure and bright as the skies which [illegible] spread over the home of its honest owner. They met in this scene of splendor after long years.

"I wouldn't have knowed you," said Joe.

"Don't put it that way, Joe. Why I'd a knowed you et I had seed you in China. Why, Joe, you are just the same Joe to me now as you was when we was whackin' together in the [illegible] Peak fever."

"That's cause I ain't got [illegible] spike coat," said Joe, "an' a [illegible] collar, an' an westcoat with only [illegible] button. That's 'cause my har ain't been [illegible] and papered, Bill, an' 'cause [illegible] ain't no white choker on my neck. [illegible] you do loom? Come on and let's [illegible] whole keg."

"No, Joe, not now." And [illegible] pointed to a bright face in one of the [illegible]—to a fashion plate at which [illegible] opera glass had been leveled during the evening.

"Her?" asked Joe.

"You bet. Finer than's [illegible] Reg'lar Chicago belle. Got her on [illegible] avenue. Eddycated till you'd [illegible] war at the head ov some school [illegible] greased lightnin', Joe, an' [illegible] on the [illegible] from Playerville [illegible] make you stan' on your head [illegible] word she got off. Thar ain't nothin' too good for her, an' she gits a box [illegible] she comes to the theatre. [illegible] ought to hear her talk about this play [illegible], she could go on that stage and [illegible] all by herself. Why, she knows [illegible] writ it an' whar it was writ, and [illegible] playin' it. It beats me how she got [illegible] her head."

"Your wife?"

"Every bit ov her, an' I [illegible] on the squar. She know'd I was [illegible] an' [illegible] like a bar, but she tuk me [illegible] living in a house that's [illegible] the taverns whar we [illegible] ought to see her keep that [illegible] say, Joe, it beats me how one of these city gals can take the kinks out of fellows like you an' me. The fust time I come in here I let my boots hang over the rail; but only onct. I war chawin' nigger heel tobaker the same night, but never chaw'd since. An' this spike coat you see—well, the fust night they put me in it I war the unessiest white man you ever see. But now I war it all the time—every day. Thar ain't nothin' too good for her. Calls me her hubby. Joe—[illegible] say, Joe, I've bin in love for nigh four years and it's growin' yit. An' I ain't a bit like I used to be. Sometimes I go out nights in this here city, an' I git turned round, an' I have to hire a police to show me the way back, an' when I hear the waves on the lake breakin' on the pier, that thar it makes me shiver all over. I'm just as chicken-hearted as I can be. Why, you know'd me when I ust to stand at the foot of Pike Peak an' tell the snowstorm to crawl back in its hole, an' you know, Joe, that it crawled. You've know'd me when I tuk a mustang by the heels an' tamed him. None ov that now. Tain't that she is boss. I ain't the man to be pecked by any woman. But when a man like me gits a woman like her—why, man alive, that's when the lion lays right down an' takes comfort to let the lamb run all over him. Come on an' I'll show you to her."

"No, Bill; not to-night. Good-bye, Bill. I ain't good enough for that; not yit. This has kind o' broke me all up. I know I'd put my foot in it if I was to meet her, an' that would make you feel bad. I'll step outside of the buildin' as you come out, an' as you go by I'll just let one ov them Comanche yells for your honor and her'n, an' then I'm off. I'll go back to the old ranch whar we used to sot in the evenin', when we'd worked all day in the mines; an' whar you used to say when you heerd the winds playin' in the tree tops that they was somebody's voice that was callin' you. You allus said you was comin' into the States to git an eddycated wife. Tain't for me to understan' how you done it, Bill. Tain't none ov my business. I'm goin' back, Bill, to the ranch. It'll be awful lonesome out thar without you, but I'll set down by the ole cabin door agin whar we use to sot, when we was tired, an' when the winds git to dancin' in the trees in the evenin' I'll jest know that she's talkin' to god, an' that you're a happy man, an' that's all I want to know in this world, Bill, for I raised you, boy, an' now that you're settled I'm willin' to go back whar thar ain't but one kind ov people, an' but one kind ov a life, an' only one time an' only one place to die."

He never saw the other acts of that play.

And when Bill went into the box his face was wet about the eyes, and his voice was not louder than a whisper.

It is said that it costs more to print a newspaper in Arkansas than in any other State in the Union, and this notwithstanding the present low price of revolvers.

"Do you think the cholera will reach here next Summer, Mr. Boothby?" she murmured, as she brushed a sample of dandruff off his shoulder, where her head had lately rested.

"I don't know, I'm sure; doctors seem to think so."

"It's awful, ain't it?"

"Terrible."

"A great many die with it?"

"So I've heard."

"Don't you feel alarmed?"

"Why should I?"

"I read somewhere the other day that married men seldom take it, whereas single gentlemen are almost sure to."

"Is that so?" said Mr. Boothby.

"Yes, and it's almost certainly fatal."

"Horrible, ain't it?" said Boothby with a shudder.

"I do so hope you won't take it, Mr. Boothby," she whispered, tears starting to her eyes.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

DEMOCRACY.

The present position of the Democratic party before our own country and the world is exceedingly gratifying to those who have stood by that political organization, through good and through evil report, beneath cheering sunshine and lowering storm clouds, and never swerved from allegiance to its time honored principles.

The party of Democracy has been for long years most wantonly misrepresented by its opponents for political effect, and so persistingly, that thousands of honest, but misled voters really believed that the public welfare would be imperiled by the election of a Democratic President.

They have lived to see the triumph of truth over error, of patriotism over partisanship, and now freely and justly rebuke the deception so artfully imposed upon them.

It is a glorious vindication of Democratic truth.

A Democratic National Administration is in power. The chiefs of departments are all Democrats of proved character and ability.

Distrust has given way to popular confidence.

The great fact has been practically demonstrated, that the party of Jefferson, Madison, Munroe and Jackson, remains as of yore fully competent and determined to carry on the Government with strict loyalty to the Constitution in its every part, with zealous devotion to national integrity, and the best interests of all the people regardless of section, creed, condition or color.

Long live Democracy!

THE EARTH REVOLVES.

A few of the prominent campaign followers of Mr. Blaine have publicly ventured the opinion that President Cleveland will give the country a good and sound administration of public affairs, but that he will impair the strength of the Democratic party by not wildly rushing ahead and filling all the offices with applicants who have little or nothing to recommend them other than claims for mere partisan services.

To secure a good and sound administration the right kind of men must be selected for official duty.

That is the elixir of Reform, gentlemen?

Not what formerly was, but what is now. Mark ye the difference?

And that is just what our Democratic President is carefully endeavoring to bring about, and has, in the main, so far admirably accomplished.

He was elected to give the country an Honest Government, not a carnival of spoilsmen, and to suppose that the Democratic party, whose immediate nominee he was, can be weakened or injured by such a result is laughably absurd.

Every true-hearted Democrat in the land, be he an office-seeker or the reverse, will glory in the advancement of President Cleveland's administration toward the long desired goal of Honesty, Economy and Efficiency, while tens of thousands of right thinking Republicans and Independents will gladly accord approval and practical aid.

Honest Government is the Democratic watchword.

No party can prosper on a corrupt spoils system.

Happily, the day for that has passed away.

The Jeffersonian star brightly shines. The Earth revolves.

Mme. Patti sailed for Europe on Saturday.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has declared a 3 per cent. cash dividend, payable on and after May 29.

The United States contains 5,000,000 colonies of bees, which annually yield 120,000,000 pounds of honey.

Ex-Governor Waller, the new Consul General at London, sailed from New York on Saturday, and Minister Pendleton sailed for Germany from Hoboken.

Commodore C. K. Garrison, the well known millionaire, died in New York, on Friday, of paralysis of the heart. He was reported to be worth from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The Coroner's jury in New York, have in their verdict, presented Buddensock and two building inspectors as responsible for the death of the person who was killed in the falling tenement house.

The Governor had until May 4th to sign any or all bills in his hands passed by the last Legislature. He has signed them all and the newspapers have been designated which will publish them for the benefit of the public.

A committee of turf men from New York visited Monmouth Park a few days ago to ascertain the extent of the accommodations for horses, etc., with a view to transfer to that place the races usually held at Coney Island and Sheepshead Bay.

Senator John Carpenter, in the last issue of his journal, the Clinton Democrat, announces that he is not a candidate for re-election next Fall, from his district. The Senator has been an able representative of the people, and we doubt if his constituents can do better than to again re-elect him, despite his assertion. Such champions of the people's rights as Senator Carpenter, are scarce.

An exchange gives this warning to farmers: "Those who use common fertiliser phosphates should handle them carefully. Nearly all these commercial fertilizers are partly composed of blood, flesh and bones of dead animals which have come to their death by disease. If by accident the fertiliser comes in contact with a flesh wound or chapped hands, it may result in absorption and severe blood poisoning."

The people who predicted that the immense body of ice on Lake Hopatcong would not go out till the end of April were mistaken in their calculations. The warm weather recently rotted it so rapidly that it began to go out on Friday, the 17th, and by Saturday evening, the 18th, it had entirely disappeared. Morris Decker, the veteran fisherman, who keeps posted on such things, says the latest the ice ever went out before in any year within his memory was April 8th, so that this season it was ten days later than it had been in many years before, giving us a pretty good idea of the severity of last winter.

MILES TAKES THE PLUM.

The riparian commission at a recent meeting, in accordance with the new law making their terms of office five years, so arranged that Bennington F. Randolph will serve one year, Amzi Dodd, two years; Arthur G. Ogilby, three years, and Miles Ross, four years. And thus Miles again carries his point.

BIG HAULS OF SHAD.

Shad are plentiful and at reasonable prices in the markets. The largest quantity caught in the Delaware for the past ten years was hauled in at high water on Saturday last at Howell & Hunt's Gloucester City fishery. The first haul made brought to shore 2,250 shad, besides bushels of herring and other fish. At the first haul in the afternoon 1,000 shad were caught, and on the second haul they were in the seine in such quantities that the proprietors did not stop to count them, but shipped them immediately to Trenton. An old fisherman said that the catch of shad has not been so great for fifteen years and prices they bring are good. Gilled shad were selling at Philadelphia Saturday at from $9 to $12 a hundred and seine fish from $15 to $20 a hundred.

THE NEW JERSEY CENTRAL.

A number of the stockholders of the New Jersey Central Railroad, representing 20,000 shares, have addressed a letter to the Secretary of the company, declining to give their proxies for the re-election of the present directors. They say that while having no objection to the present directors on the ground of fitness, yet that the opportunities which the road has to have a large suburban and seaside traffic, should be fostered and encouraged. The Reading Railroad management, they say, is not conversant with the needs of the property to manage it, as is evidenced by the constant loss of business which naturally belongs to the road and which once lost can never be regained. In view of these facts and that the property of the road may revert to its owners at any time, it is important to have a board of directors in existence who will insist in protecting the property from the encroachment of rivals. On these grounds the shareholders ask their associates to abstain from giving their proxies until they are satisfied that "the policy at present existing will be changed, and the enormous earning capacity of the property be developed by persons whose familiarity with the business make them competent to conduct its affairs, and whose powers shall not be so circumscribed that the property will continue to suffer for lack of intelligent and enterprising management."

The advice thus given seems to have in it the elements of prudence and wisdom. It will be a happy day for the New Jersey Central when it can rid itself of the incubus of the Reading lease, and be managed as a local road, with home connections which ensure it an enormous and profitable business.—Trenton True American.

The country was startled on Tuesday by a report that the car in which the President was riding, on his visit to the Gettysburg battle fields, had been fired upon by an unknown person. Later reports, however, tend to show that the firing off of a revolver by some enthusiast of the President in his honor as the train sped by, was the cause of the sensational rumor.

Wheeling is no longer the capital of West Virginia. The State archives, Government property and the officers and their families left on the steamer Belle Prince and Chesapeake Saturday morning last for Charleston, which, under the provisions of an act passed in 1879 by the Legislature, became the permanent seat of government for the State on and after Saturday.

Alice La Favre, a performer on midair rings in O'Brien's circus, fell one night last week at Trenton while doing her daring act in the presence of 5,000 spectators. She was swinging by the heels, and, feeling that the rigging was giving way, she uttered a scream and came down a distance of 35 feet. She fell on the edge of the ring, breaking three ribs as well as her nose and injuring herself otherwise internally. In conformity to her own wishes there was no net spread beneath her while performing her difficult feat.

Failed to Become Laws.

Fifty bills, thirteen from the Senate and thirty-seven from the House, which have lain in the Governor's hands since the session closed, have failed to become laws, owing to the Governor's objections. Among them are the following: Assembly No. 172, Corbin's High License bill; Senate bills—No. 154, relative to the killing of turtle doves; No. 170, exempting firemen from jury duty; No. 332, Parker's railroad foreclosure act; No. 290, Harrison's milk dealers protection bill; No. 416, allowing telegraph and telephone wires to bury under ground; No. 93, giving volunteer firemen the same rights as paid fire departments; No. 261, Doremus' dynamite bill; No. 398, relative to school children living in houses with contagious diseases; No. 278, Dickinson's firemen retirement bill; No. 114, Haines' hotel fire escape bill.

Remedy the Evil.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I desire to call the attention of the Street Committee to the condition of South avenue, near Berckman street. What Each County Will Pay.

The following are the amounts of school tax which each county will have to pay this year: Atlantic, $12,809 75; Bergen, $36,575 60; Burlington, $64,887.99; Camden, $92,335.40; Cape May, $8,838 47; Cumberland, $31,838 51; Essex, $297,397.27; Gloucester, $36,793.48; Hudson, $254,748.24; Hunterdon, $53,639.48; Mercer, $81,714.94; Middlesex, $48,028 58; Monmouth, $80,434.39; Morris, $52,459 94; Ocean, $11,136 20; Passaic, $77,337.26; Salem, $35,863.98; Somerset, $41,919; Sussex, $25,811 23; Union, $63,338 43; Warren, $49,452 85; total, $1,424,244. The number of children of school age in the State is $356,061, and the tax per child is $4.

THE postal laws make the taking of a newspaper and the refusal to pay for the same, theft, and any person guilty of such an action is liable to criminal proceedings, the same as if he had stolen goods to the amount of his subscription.

NEW MARKET NOTES.

A fire occurred on the road from Dunellen to New Market, on Tuesday evening, at 8 p. m. It broke out in the printing office of Ransom's Dye Works, and was burning right under one of the presses on the floor where the oil accumulates. The entire establishment, also a barn on the same property, were totally destroyed. The building in which the printing office is located was vacated as usual about 6 o'clock, being closed and locked up by Mr. Chas. S. Day, whose fidelity to a trust and careful habits are unquestioned. But, as no fire was used in the stove on that day, no lamps in use on the premises, no matches kept in the office and no smoking allowed, how this fire originated is an enigma hard to solve. Mr. Ransom had been away during the day and had returned home but a short time before discovering the conflagration, which could have been extinguished by half a dozen pails of water had they been on the spot.

BROAD BRIM.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

An itinerant corn doctor attracted a large crowd on Tuesday evening, corner of Broad and Elm street. He was a very wity talker and reaped a number of dollars.

We committed an error in last week's Wisps in stating that Mrs. Mapes had rented her house on Prospect street. It has not as yet been rented. It is nicely located on a fine street, and only a short walk from our depot.

The booth corner of Broad and Elm streets, for the sale of soft drinks, is getting to be a nuisance, from the number of our young boys who loaf around that corner, passing offensive remarks about the passers-by. Onis, look out.

Over thirty of our residents went to Plainfield on Tuesday evening to attend the show at Music Hall, of Thatcher, Primrose & West. All were well satisfied with the evening's entertainment, and hope soon again to witness a repetition of the same.

The young men who congregated in the depot park on South side of railroad on Sunday afternoon last, ought to be ashamed of their conduct on that afternoon, as it was a disgrace to our town. There is no doubt if we had had a lock-up some of the party would have got into it.

The Health Board have been in receipt of a number of complaints of nuisance, and have called the attention of the several parties to the fact, and hope that the cause of complaints will be removed without their using or having to enforce the law upon the subject, which is very stringent.

Our community was severely shocked on Friday last when they heard the news of the sudden death of Dr. Wm. T. Peek, who was stricken down with heart disease in the ferry house, foot of Liberty street, New York, when on his way home from business. The deceased had been a resident of our town for over twenty years and was very much interested in its welfare and growth, owning a considerable amount of real estate in and around the town. He was one of the originators and was appointed one of the commission to build the present handsome school edifice, which beautifies one of our principal streets. He also has held the office of school trustee ever since the erection of the new school house, and was President of the Board of Trustees at the time of his decease. The funeral of the deceased took place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were held at Grace Episcopal church and were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hicks, rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. William R. Earl. He was buried with masonic rites by Atlas Lodge, F. and A. M., of which he was a charter member, which were conducted at the grave by W. M., Joseph R. Connoly, assisted by P. M., A. S. Clark and Frank R. Pennington. The members of the fire department turned out in large numbers. The deceased was one of the first members of H. & L Co. No. 1. His funeral was also attended by the teachers and scholars of the public school. The truck house of H. & L. Co. No. 1 and the public school building were draped in mourning in memory of the deceased. Dr. Peek was senior member of the firm of Peek & Velsor, botanical and herb dealers in New York city. He was a devoted husband and parent, a kind and true friend and one of our public spirited citizens, who will be very much missed from our midst.

PLAINFIELD, New Jersey,
OFFICE OF CITY CLERK.

Corporation Notice.
Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to pass the same.

Further notice is given that the Common Council will consider said ordinance at their next regular meeting, to be held in the Council chamber, Monday, June 1, 1885, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place interested parties may be heard, if they desire.

O. S. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 4th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE,
appointing commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh St., and prescribing their duties.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That John W. Murray, Nathan Harper and Jos. A. Hubbard are constituted and appointed commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, macadamized under ordinances entitled respectively "An Ordinance to macadamize Crescent avenue from the middle of Park avenue to the middle of Sixth street," and "An Ordinance to macadamize Seventh street from the middle of Broadway to the easterly side of Park avenue and from the middle of Central avenue to the easterly side of Plainfield avenue," which said Ordinances were approved October 7th, A. D., 1884, and "An Ordinance to provide for part of the expense of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street," approved December 2d, 1884.

SECTION 2. Within ten days after this Ordinance goes into effect under the charter of the City, said Commissioners shall take and subscribe before the City Judge or other magistrate of the City of Plainfield, an oath or affirmation that they will justly, fairly and faithfully make said assessments and execute and discharge the duties imposed upon them by virtue of their appointment as such Commissioners according to the best of their skill, judgment and understanding without favor or partiality. Thereupon said Commissioners shall give at least five days notice by advertisement in the official papers of the City, and by mailing written or printed copies of said notice to the post office address of each of the persons owning land along the line of said macadamizing, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, stating when and where said Commissioners will meet for the purpose of making said assessment, and of hearing whatever any person interested in said assessments may have to say or offer relative to said assessments. Said hearing may be from time to time adjourned by said commissioners. Said commissioners shall give all persons interested full and fair opportunity to be heard before them, shall carefully go over the entire line of said macadamizing, and review every tract of land and premises affected thereby, shall estimate the benefit as well as the damage (if any) sustained by each tract and having first carefully considered the premises and all that may be produced or offered relative thereto, they shall make the said assessment according to the statutes and ordinances in such case made and provided, and report the same in writing to the Common Council for ratification. Said commissioners are hereby empowered to employ a competent surveyor to make necessary maps and surveys and also to employ such clerical assistance as may be necessary.

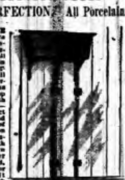
The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.



WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Cistern Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make itself apparent to all users, in doing away with drip tray. The wash at all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray it cannot help but become foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1¾ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two local or vents of 1½ inches diameter are intended for [illegible] ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

DECORATION day is next in order.

THE picnic season of the festive mosquito, draweth nigh.

THE Casino was full and almost overflowing, Monday evening.

THE grass is a beautiful shade of green, but our base ball club cometh not.

THE morning mail from New York is now ready for distribution at 7.30 o'clock.

DENTON is offering 20,000 roses and bedding plants, also trees and vines in large variety.

REGULAR meeting of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department, next Tuesday evening.

OLD residents declare that the seventeen year locusts are due here again this year about May 20th.

THE Hotel Netherwood is gradually filling, and applications for rooms by the score are received daily.

EVENING services the second Sunday in each month, will begin at Grace church next Sunday at 7.45 p. m.

THE reporter has to hustle to secure the usual amount of local matter these days. Items are few and fly high.

WE are not altogether sure whether the Casino rink is closed for good—or bad—or whether it will open again, some more.

NEXT Monday evening the stockholders of the Music Hall Association elect a Board of Directors for the coming year.

AS Councilman Goddard is with wisdom convinced—"better sewers without water works, than water works without sewers."

THE Reform Club seems to have no influence in this city. Even the Council recently elected is opposed to water by a large majority.

A DOLLAR of 1804 is said to be worth $600 while a dollar of 1884 is valued at only eighty-five cents. We seem to be getting along, backwards.

THE public will again fill Music Hall as it was Tuesday evening, when Harrigan and Hart appear with their company in one of the "Mulligan" series.

MR. A. E. LOVELL, the new manager of the Plainfield Beef Co., occupied the same position until recently, at the Brooklyn branch. He is an affable and able young gentleman.

THE Governor and Comptroller have designated 116 newspapers throughout the State, one of which number is THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, to publish the laws enacted by the last Legislature.

THE proprietors of the Elizabeth skating rinks do not feel particularly kind towards the nine members of that city council who voted to make them pay a license of two hundred and fifty dollars a year.

A NEW law provides that where taxes have been unassessed by the Assessor, the full amount of arrears becomes a lien on the property. This will make some fun for men who have been cheating their brother taxpayers.

THERE has been a let-up in the flood of water works and sewerage petitions, and now the Council can give the District Messenger and the Electric Light Companies, a chance to apply for monopolies and valuable franchises.

THE strawberry festival season will soon be here, when three berries and a teaspoonful of cream will bring fifteen cents, and the average young man will be almost bankrupt when he and his girl's appetites have been satisfied.

HUNDREDS of people admired the handsome appearance of the apricot trees on the premises of Major Eugene Gross, on Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, last Sunday, the trees being in full bloom. They are a sight worth seeing.

THE grounds of the various lawn tennis clubs in Plainfield are now being put in condition preparatory to the summer season of play. It is expected that an unusual number of tournaments will take place during the coming season.

A CRANFORD young lady left her best gloves home when she went shopping last week, being afraid that heavy bundles would stretch them out of shape. She subsequently found the dog had chewed up all but the buttons, in her absence.

MR. ED. HARRIGAN as "Dan Mulligan," Mrs. Yeamans as "Cordelia," Johnny Wild as "Simpson Primrose," and all the rest of the New York company, will appear in "Cordelia's Aspirations" at Music Hall, next Thursday evening. And Dave Braham will lead his own orchestra.

THE procession of decrepit little boys who smoke cigarettes has begun to deposit its victims in the insane asylum in New Jersey. If it goes on increasing there will have to be more prisons, poor houses and pauper insane asylums than all other buildings put together in New Jersey.

THE stage hands and attaches of Music Hall have formed themselves into a fire patrol. Their duties are to go direct to the Hall whenever any fire alarm is sounded, and at any hour of the day or night. There the roll is called, and the members of the patrol remain in the building as long as there is the slightest need.

THE handsome shoe store of John O. Campbell, on Front street, has been thronged with customers since opening night, who find that there is the place to purchase a fine article at low prices. Mr. Campbell manufactures all his goods in the same building. A perfect fit is always guaranteed. His advertisement appears in another column, and the public are invited to inspect his goods and prices.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Dover Index protests against the re-erection of the Forcite Powder Works on their late site, near Lake Hopatcong, in consequence of the bad results accruing to the waters of the Lake by the discharge of acids therein from the works. The ground is well taken in this case. Lake Hopatcong is too beautiful a sheet of water, and growing popular resort, to be contaminated and injured in reputation by the cause assigned.

THE work of macadamizing Seventh street from Central avenue to Plainfield avenue, has been completed under the contract awarded to Messrs. Spotiswood & O'Rourke, who may well feel proud of the completeness of the job, through the supervision of Manager Wallace Vail, who has had long experience in such work. It is to be regretted, however, that the street was not macadamized its full width the entire length just completed, the same as that in front of the premises of Messrs. Jas. Clark, Tilsworth, Potter and Tyler. When that portion of Seventh street, between Central and Park avenues, shall be treated to the same kind of road bed, there will be no handsomer avenue to drive over than it in the city.

THE Music Hall held 1,271 people, last Tuesday evening.

NEAL DOW will speak in Reform Hall, Sunday evening of next week.

LAWN mowers sharpened and repaired at Garney Bros., 7 and 9 Somerset street.

MR. B T. MULFORD is another old Plainfield Democrat, who voted for Jackson in 1828 and 1832. Next.

THE Brandon, Vt. Union tells of a new invention in door checks, by Mr. J. W. Symons, formerly of this city.

REV. W. W. GILES, of New York, will occupy the pulpit of the Park avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning.

WE are under obligations to the State Comptroller for a copy of the annual statements of railroad and canal companies, just issued.

THE Casino employees had a grand benefit, Wednesday evening, attended by about five hundred of the many friends they have secured.

THE philanthropists (?) who offer themselves publicly to watch for barn burners, merely warn the incendiaries to watch the philanthropists (?).

A HANDSOME silver-plated napkin ring will be presented with each plate of ice cream, at the Park avenue church Fair, next Wednesday and Thursday.

NEXT Wednesday evening, and the following afternoon and evening, the ladies of the Park avenue church will have a sale of fancy and useful articles, in the chapel.

"CORDELIA'S ASPIRATIONS" is the best of the celebrated "Mulligan" series that has so endeared Messrs. Harrigan & Hart to the hearts of all classes of New York society.

CHRIS, who won the free-for-all race at the rink, Wednesday evening, is one of the fastest skaters in the city. In fact, we doubt whether he can be beaten by anyone of his age.

POST Department Commander Burroughs, of Rutherford, N., is to deliver an address before the Plainfield Post, G. A. R., at Reform Hall, Decoration Day, Saturday, the 30th inst.

JUST this time of the year, you should send for Charles Schlitz, of 25 Somerset street, and have your furniture recovered, lambrequins made over, or anything done that you desire in the way of artistic upholstering.

INCENDIARIES were in New Market, Tuesday evening, and as far down as Scotch Plains, the next night. They set fire to the shed of the Episcopal church, in the latter place, and the Chemical Engine put it out.

OUR office windows are the admiration of the public, and the envy of other establishments in the city. Cause—the rich lettering with which J. Q. Miles, the artist, has decorated the glass front. They are called "adamantine" and are indestructible.

ON account of the absence from the city of Mr. P. Rickert's team, Monday evening, Gazelle's Steamer would have been without horses, but Warren's team was kindly loaned by the boys over the brook, and stood hooked up in One's house all that night.

CLEAN away every nook and corner where any decayed or unsightly rubbish has accumulated and sprinkle disinfectants around the sinks and vaults, and you need have no fear of the cholera, or fever either. Disinfectants cost but a little and do large amount of good.

THE public that enjoys unlimited fun without coarse humor, are promised a treat in the presentation of "Cordelia's Aspirations," at Music Hall, next Thursday evening, with the author, Mr. Edw. Harrigan, in the part of "Dan Mulligan," and Dave Braham's orchestra.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to organize a gun club, whose members will constitute sportsmen from Union, Middlesex, Somerset, and other counties, to be known as the "Middlesex Gun Club." The shooting grounds will be at Dunellen. Next Monday there will be some interesting sweepstake matches on the above mentioned grounds, at crows, pigeons, clay pigeons and glass balls.

SOME weeks ago we announced the organization of the Winfield Scott Post Drum and Fife Corps, and complimented its young members on their talents and their uniforms. The Corps will give an exhibition rehearsal before the Post, at its rooms, next Wednesday evening, before opening. Drum and Fife Major T. W. McKeever, of 8th Reg't, N. Y. S. M., has been the Corps' instructor.

"PRINCE," a pet of the dog species, owned by D. W. Littell, on North avenue, met with an untimely end one day last week. The animal had a great habit of running after the steam fire engines when an alarm of fire was given. On this particular occasion he went too near the horses of No. 1 Eng. Co., and was sent sprawling into the gutter, where he breathed his last in a few moments.

THERE was a large attendance at Campbell's Club House last Saturday to witness the pigeon match between Harry Campbell, of this city, and Mr. Homer, of Perth Amboy. Campbell won the match easily, killing five out of ten birds to his opponent's four. A return match is to be shot between the same parties. Interesting sweepstake matches at clay pigeons and glass balls ended the day's sport.

MR. RICHARD QUILTER, acknowledged as one of the best negro comedians in female parts, will take Tony Hart's place in "Cordelia's Aspirations," next Thursday evening. Mr. Quilter has been playing the part some time in a manner unexcelled. The rest of the company is the same as has enjoyed so many years of success in New York. The original scenery is brought from the city theatre.

THE perfection which the Casino Band has reached under the leadership of Prof. Guy M. Herman, has been thoroughly recognized by the public. Consequently, offers of engagements to play upon various occasions have been so numerous, that the Band has decided to keep up its organization, and may hereafter be engaged for excursions, picnics or other entertainments where its services may be in demand.

Rahway.

The new Common Council of Rahway was organized on Monday evening. Willett Denike was chosen President, Franklin Marsh was re-elected City Clerk, and Garrett Berry, City Attorney. Edmund Crowe was again unanimously cho en tax receiver.

Fire At Cranford.

About half-past nine last Friday morning fire was discovered at Cranford in the house of Mrs. Foster, mother-in-law of Sylvester Cahill, warden of the county jail. Mr. Cahill was telegraphed for and immediately went to the scene of the conflagration. The house and contents were totally destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Elizabethan Sense.

We regard all the newspaper talk about the advent of the cholera this year as very bad policy. The cholera may not come, and if it does a general fright of timid people will make the disaster worse. Our sanitary regulations should always be such as to be antagonistic to the spread of such a malady. That is all that can be done anyhow.—Elizabeth Herald.

Trotting Match.

On Decoration day there will be a contest of speed at Waverly park for a purse of $500, between the two greatest horses in the state, Billy Button and Helene. The former has a record of 2 20½ and the latter 2.21. Button is owned by Mr. John O. Stearns, of Elizabeth, and Helene by Mr. W. F. Kidder of East Orange. This is a pure trial of speed, without any gambling accompaniments.

Closing Business.

The American Mutual Insurance Co., of this city being now on a solid financial basis, the Board of Directors think that just at present when so many fires are occurring, would be a good time to retire from business. The company's charter anyway expires in March next, and it can now close up its matters with ease—allowing each policy holder whatever rebate is just, and giving them time to reinsure elsewhere.

The Casino to Open Again.

Messrs. Charles Heath and Edward Foster have leased the Casino, and will reopen it Monday evening next with, probably, some great attraction. These young gentlemen intend to keep this pleasant resort open during the Summer, every Monday and Friday evening, with the same fine music and frequent exhibitions of special performers. If the patronage demands, music will be furnished and the rink opened, other evenings.

Worse, and More of It.

Wednesday night about 9 o'clock, a large pile of boxes and barrels in the rear of Seeley Ensall's store, on Front street, was fired. The employees of Carey Bros. discovered it just in time to prevent a large conflagration. Very little damage was done. Had it been later in the evening, the fire would have made a clean sweep of a dozen or so of old buildings. It was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, as in one of the barrels was found a large quantity of waste, which was saturated with kerosene.

More Water Than Fire.

A smouldering fire in the lower story of the building on East Front street, occupied by Prof. Leal as a boy's school, filled the rooms with smoke, Tuesday afternoon and the steam engines filled them with water. When discovered, the fire that was caused, no one knows how, could have been quenched with a few pails full of water, but the Department turned out and drowned it. Mr. Leal desires to express very cordially his thanks to the Fire Department for the efficient manner in which they subdued the fire.

Doesn't Think Much Of Elizabeth.

Some greenhorn at Florence, New York, recently came across a paragraph in a paper, stating that the Singer company contemplated removing its works from Elizabeth. With an eye to business, the Florence man wrote to Mr. Mackenzie, who replied: "We have not lately thought of removing, although we have often wished we were out of the place. Our factory there is too large to sell without heavy loss. If we could dispose of it advantageously, we would leave that city (Elizabeth) without an hour's delay."

Who She Is.

The many who are so interested or so curious about the following item from our issue of April 17th, are referred for information to the New York World of Thursday the 7th inst:

> "A young lady who a few years ago was graduated from high society circles of this city, and was irregularly a leading soprano soloist in the Crescent Avenue choir, died recently in Jersey City after an ambitious struggle for fame on the operatic stage. She had been the heroine of a touching romance in which a bank president played a paternal part, and—a post mortem publication of her picture graces a New York sensational weekly."

Chief Jennings and Assistants.

The election of Monday evening last for Chief Engineer of the Fire Department and assistants, resulted in the choice of men especially worthy and fit for the positions. There was no opposition to the First and Second Assistants, but for the position of Chief there was a friendly contest. The following is the result:

Whole number of votes 204, cast as follows—No. 1 Engine Co., 55; No. 2 Engine Co., 51; No. 3 Engine Co., 41; Zephyr H. & L. Co., 40; Alert Hose Co., 16.

Chief, A. D. Jennings, 171, maj. 28.
Charles Smith, 14.
First Assistant, Auguste Saltzman.
Second Assistant, J. Erwin Waters.

Not Fit To Consolidate With Plainfield.

Curiously enough, all of the recent murders in Somerset county have been committed in North Plainfield township. In 1877 a man named Koehler killed his wife in that township and fled to Europe. Wm. S. Potter was sent after him, but on the arrival of the pursuer he found the pursued had taken his own life in Plymouth jail. About May 1, 1882, David Hirsch, a peddler, was murdered by a supposed fellow traveler. In this instance the murderer escaped by flight, and was never afterward heard of. And now Jones has murdered the aged Mrs. Kenney and put justice at a discount by hanging himself. Unfortunate Somerset county!

The Last Private Concert.

The third and last of the subscription concerts of the Plainfield Vocal Society, will be given in Music Hall, Thursday evening, the 21st inst. The full chorus with orchestra will unite in a programme of interest and gratification, including some old favorites. The selections are as follows:

Inflammatus, from Rossini's Stabat Mater, as sung years ago by the Plainfield Choral Union. "Now by Day's Retiring Lamp," given four years ago by the Society, and these three sung more recently—Gounod's Messe Solennelle, Mendelssohn's 98th Psalm, and "The Stars are Shining in Heaven," by Rheinberger. "You Stole My Heart Away," W. MacFarren and Hero and Leander, C. H. Lloyd, are the other numbers.

T. P. & W's Minstrels.

George Thatcher, George Primrose and William Henry West, with their company of minstrel stars, gave Plainfield the best entertainment in its line the city ever experienced. "Standing Room Only" was obtainable a half hour before the curtain rose—every seat having been sold two days before the performance.

In spite of a few "chestnuts," most of the end-men's fun was fresh and entertaining, while the music of the first part—and, in fact, throughout the entire programme—was of a much higher character than usual. Mr. Frank McNish's own personal specialty was new and very effective; Billy Rice was as irresistibly funny as when twenty years younger; Thatcher in his peculiar way, was as ludicrous as a savage boil on his neck would permit, and Carl Rankin was as comical in manner as his voice was deep. The clog dancing was perfect.

Costly Incendiarism.

Burning himself is not too severe a fate for the boy or man that fired the barn of Mr. Manning Stelle, last Friday morning, and besides destroying hundreds of dollars worth of property, consumed alive five horses, four cows and a number of chickens. The fire was first discovered by Mr. Stelle, who awoke his son. So rapidly did it progress, however, that before the latter could dress himself and the fire department be summoned by telephone, the barn and sheds were so enveloped in flames that almost nothing could be saved. No. 1 and No. 2 steamers arrived too late for any effective service, but the Truck boys with their apparatus deserve the credit of saving the house. The barn, carriage house and sheds were totally destroyed, and of their contents only a cow that rescued herself, escaped, besides the carriages that were rolled out of doors. The loss could not be replaced at an expense of $9,000. The following is the insurance: Plainfield Mutual Assurance Co., $1,525; Aetna Co., $500, on barn and contents; the London, and Liverpool and Globe had $500 on Mr. R. M. Stelle's valuable roadster.

Thank You!

The Plainfield CONSTITUTIONALIST under the pleasing management of the Messrs. Force, has reached a circulation of 2400. It is not only one of the very ablest newspapers in the State—vigorous in editorial speech and entertaining and lively in general news and comment—but is neatly set up and clearly printed. Mr. J. A. Demarest, the city editor, does his part well in making THE CONSTITUTIONALIST a credit to the pretty city of Plainfield.—Flemington Democrat.

District Messenger Service.

The Plainfield District Messenger Co., of which Mr. Chas. Wann is President, has for some time contemplated building two wires between this city and Bound Brook, so as to enable them to connect with the main lines of the Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Co., but owing to the financial difficulties of the latter Co., the District Co. have been fearful that a contract would not hold in law. They still hope, however, to be able to make some arrangements by which our citizens will be benefited by a fifteen cent tariff between this city, Philadelphia, Boston, Trenton, Newark, Jersey City, etc. With this hope in view, they have applied to our Council for permission to erect poles to enable them to connect with the wires of the Bankers and Merchants, and also their call boxes in this city. A proposal will also be made to the Fire Department for alarm stations in various parts of the city, and to connect with residences of the firemen if desired.

The New Rink.

The large shipments of timber for the Crescent Rink are beginning to arrive, and soon the premises at the corner of Broadway and Fourth street will become one of the biggest lumber yards in the State. Messrs. Rheume & Morrison are the contractors for the material.

Although involving an increased cost, Mr. Evans has decided to cover the building with an iron roof. Mr. J. J. Henderson of Rockview avenue, a Civil Engineer of high reputation, has drawn the plans for a most serviceable, but at the same time light and graceful roof, that has been accepted for the purpose.

The carpenters are almost through the framing necessary for the window and door openings. One frame constructed is 22 feet across, and will be the largest window in Plainfield. It is to be directly over the arched entrance.

The high posts that support the roof trusses are all mortised and ready to be raised. They are so large and heavy that it will be necessary to raise them by horse power. Before many days progress will be noticeable.

May Term of Court.

The May term of court opened Tuesday morning, with Judges Van Syckle, McCormick, Hyer and Harper on the bench. Crier Keron called the court to order at 10:20. Clerk Crowell called the list of grand jurors as follows, they all responding:

Rahway—Foreman, John H. Lufberry, Charles H. Lambert, John Durand, William R. Frazee.

Plainfield—Joseph G. Miller, James C. Pope, Levi Hetfield, Vincent W. Nash.

Elizabeth—John H. Wolff, First ward; Frederick L. Heidritter, Second ward; Austin F. Knowles, Third ward; Hugh Rehill, Fourth ward; Cornelius H. Clark, Fifth ward; Chauncey Harris, Sixth ward; John E. Voorhees, Seventh ward, and George H. Plumb, Eighth ward.

Westfield—Daniel G. Finck.

Fanwood—Joseph A. Patterson.

Cranford—Emmor K. Adams.

Union—Aaron M. Baker.

Linden—Melton C. Lowden.

Springfield—Lewis F. Ferry.

New Providence—Meline M. Bonnell.

Summit—Stephen H. Conger.

Constables Moffet and Dixon were chosen and they escorted the jurors to their room for deliberation. The court room was pretty well filled with loungers and counsel for the several cases on the calendar. The term this year will most probably be a brief one. Judge Van Syckle's charge to the jurors was brief. He said that there had been no crime committed in the county of sufficient magnitude to necessitate a lengthy charge. Hardly any of the cases were ready for trial and his honor censured the lawyers for being thus tardy and said the court could not be kept waiting. Several of the cases were then given a date. In the list of causes there are five cases in the Supreme Court. The Circuit Court list comprises fifteen causes: Arguments, 1; General Quarter Session, 1; Jury Appeal, 4; Justice Appeal, 5. The jail list comprises five allegations as follows: Assault and battery, 3; malicious mischief, 3; grand larceny, 2; assault with intent to kill, 1; false pretense, 1; petit larceny, 1; highway robbery, 1; entering and stealing, 1; receiving stolen goods, 1. The constables selected by the Sheriff to attend the Court for this term are as follows: Amos Moffett, John M. C. Marsh, Hezekiah Hand, W. E. Samson, Ed M. Barber, Jacob Renner, John Dixon, Jabez Marsh, Henry J. Schoppe, William H. Sault.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, May 4th.

The Council met in regular meeting.

Present—President Coriell and Messrs. Dumont, Gallup, Goddard, Livingston, Marsh, Simpson, Wadsworth, Whiton—9.

Absent—Messrs. Beguelin, Cutter—2.

Minutes of previous adjourned meeting approved as read.

The President announced the appointment of Mr. Whiton to the same position on the several committees as previously occupied by Mr. West.

PETITIONS.

From the Eastern Electric Co., of Elizabeth, for permission to erect towers, wires, etc., for furnishing light and power. Ref'd to a special committee consisting of the Chairman of the Lamps, Streets and Police Committees.

For licenses by Barry & Clark, and A. F. Huff, as hackmen and peddler. Ref'd to License Com.

From John Ross and others, requesting an ordinance requiring property owners to flag sidewalk and front of their premises on LaGrande avenue, between Washington street and Franklin place. Ref'd to Laws Com.

From the Plainfield Messenger Service Co., for permission to erect poles, wires, etc. Ref'd to Special Com.

A remonstrance against the water works survey appropriation was presented, signed by Jos Male and others, Ref'd to Lamps Com.

CLAIMS.

The following were presented and referred to the proper committees: The regular police claims; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Co., $136.50; Plainfield Gas Light Co., $222.30; G. M. Angleman, $22.92; Jno. Wilson $414.98; Geo. M. Angleman, $530.20; F. A. Dunham, $75.83; C. A. Marsh, $112; Jos. S. Cutter, $154.22, W. C. Boone, $62.50; J. O. Nodyne, $62.65; Claims for support of the poor.

The City Treasurer's monthly statement, City Physician's quarterly statement, and Collector's report, were received and placed on file.

COMMITTEES REPORTS.

Finance—Mr. Wadsworth reported on claim of Jas. Armstrong that it be referred to the Corporation Counsel. So ordered. As correct claims of Messrs. Dunham and Cutter. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Alms—Mr. Whiton reported as correct salary claim of City Physician and Overseer of the Poor. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Lamps—Mr. Goddard reported as correct claims for street lighting for April. Ref'd to Aud. Com. Also recommending the locating of five lamps on Front street between Plainfield avenue and Evona. Adopted.

Police—As correct, police claims. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

License—Referring back claim of R. W. Mahaffee. Ref'd to Laws Com.

Salaries—As correct claims of Corporation Counsel and Street Commissioner. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

Streets—As correct claims of Messrs. Wilson and Angleman. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The following resolution offered at a previous meeting, was taken from the table, and after much discussion was tabled again on motion of Mr. Marsh.

> WHEREAS, Your Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, believing, as they do, that the time has arrived when the matter of Water Works and sewerage should receive the intelligent attention of the citizens and Common Council of the city of Plainfield, and
>
> WHEREAS, For self-evident reasons, your committee feel themselves incapable of deciding. 1st. What system is best suited to the city's need. 2d. Whether the work had best be done by the city or the franchise granted to a private corporation. Therefore be it
>
> Resolved, That the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps, be hereby authorized to employ a competent hydraulic engineer at a cost not exceeding five hundred dollars to make a survey of the city of Plainfield as to a system of Water and Sewerage Works, and to prepare plans and specifications for the same, to end that the Committee may report and the citizens and Council act intelligently and satisfactorily in relation to this matter of vital importance to all concerned.

Mr. Marsh offered a resolution that "the introduction of water works in the city at the present time, is inexpedient." Seconded by Mr. Livingston.

Mr. Whiton declined to put himself on record, as he confessed he did not know whether the scheme was or was not expedient, and he doubted whether any other member of the Council knew anything regarding the matter. They could only vote according to their prejudice and not according to reason.

On motion of Mr. Dumont, seconded by Mr. Marsh, the resolution was tabled.

A motion to take up the previous resolution of the Lamps Com., as printed above, was lost.

A petition was presented asking permission by the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Company, to use the streets for the stretching of its wires. Ref'd to Special Com.

Mr. Dumont moved that $150 be appropriated for the purchase of a road machine. Carried.

The petition for the acceptance of Park place by the city was, taken from the table, and it was ordered that it be accepted from Broadway to Putnam avenue now, and from Putnam avenue to Berckman street when properly graded to the satisfaction of the Streets Com.

Mr. Dumont presented an ordinance for the appointment of Commissioners to assess the cost of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street. Read and ordered engrossed and advertised.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Clerk to notify those interested in above matter to appear in relation thereto.

The Aud. Com. reported its approval of the claims. Warrants ordered drawn.

The Council then adjourned to Monday evening, May 18th.

Personals.

Miss Carrie Pike of Front street, East, has returned from a Winter visit at Savannah.

Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Bachman will sail for Breman, on the 20th inst., by steamer "Eems," to be absent about three months.

After a short but very serious illness, Mr. M. M. Thorn is again able to be out. He had a "close call" last Friday night, but Dr. South's skill and careful nursing, saved his life.

Dr. J. H. Cooley having entirely recovered his good health of the past, is again hard at work tending his numerous patients, relieving their complaints, and restoring them to strength and vigor.

Mr. F. V. D. Skillman, Superintendent of the Mutual District Messenger Company of New York was in this city on Monday with Mr. C. Wann looking after the interests of the Plainfield District Messenger Company.

Mr. John Roberts, one of the most prominent citizens of Dunellen, N. J., died very suddenly during last Monday night. A number of friends and acquaintances in this city remember meeting him the morning of the same day on his way to business in New York city, in the best of spirits.

The near relatives and most intimate friends of Mr. George W. Clark and Miss Maggie Shangle assembled at the residence of the latter corner Fifth and Sycamore streets, Thursday evening, April 30th, to witness the tying of the one and inseparable matrimonial knot, which was solemnized by Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, in his most agreeable and pleasing style. The wedding presents were numerous and fine. The groom and bride departed, amid a shower of old shoes and rice, on the 9.15 train, leaving those assembled to enjoy themselves further to their heart's content, without their agreeable presence.

Analyzing the Baking Powder.

Under the direction of the New York State Board of Health, eighty-four different kinds of baking powders, embracing all the brands that could be found for sale in the State, were submitted to examination and analysis, by Prof. C. F. Chandler, a member of the State Board, and President of the New York City Board of Health, assisted by Prof. Edward G. Love, the well-known late United States Government chemist.

The official report shows that a large number of the powders examined were found to contain alum or lime; many of them to such an extent as to render them seriously objectionable for use in the preparation of human food.

Alum was found in twenty-nine samples. This drug is employed in baking powders, to cheapen their cost. The presence of lime is attributed to the impure cream of tartar of commerce used in their manufacture. Such cream of tartar was also analyzed and found to contain lime and other impurities, in some samples to the extent of 93 per cent of their entire weight.

All the baking powders of the market, with the single exception of "Royal" (not including the alum and phosphate powders, which were long since discarded as unsafe or inefficient by prudent housekeepers) are made from the impure cream of tartar of commerce, and consequently contain lime to a corresponding extent.

The only baking powder yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely free from lime and absolutely pure is the "Royal." This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes of the N. Y. Tartar Co., which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and on account of this greater cost is used in no baking powder but the "Royal."

Prof. Love, who made the analyses of baking powders for the New York State Board of Health, as well as for the Government, says for the purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal":

> "I have tested a package of 'Royal Baking Powder' which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or any injurious substances.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 16th, 1884. The O. I. C. Co.—GENTLEMEN—In reply to your favor of April 15th, I will state that I have been afflicted with Salt Rheum and Skin Eruptions for seven or eight years. Have tried several remedies, but none that I have taken has given me so much satisfaction as "O. I. C." I am now on my third bottle. If I continue to improve as I have since I commenced taking it, I feel assured six bottles will cure me entirely. I recommend "O. I. C. Indian Cure" to all my friends who have any disease caused by impurity of the blood. EDWARD H. ANAND.

HIS LOSS WAS HER GAIN.

"Well, madam," said a fashionable physician to a wealthy lady patient, "if you don't like my prescriptions, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic, or some other quack stuff." "I don't mean it Doctor," she answered, "but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call 'quack stuff' is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of neuralgia arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends, and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable — a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS

A BATCH OF LIVELY GOSSIPING SELECTIONS.

BLUE COAT HUMOR.

First Policeman—"Arranged any plans for next summer?"

Second Policeman—"Oh, yes; I shall spend the entire season among the breakers."

First policeman—"The entire season! You don't say so?"

Second Policeman—"Yes, among the law-breakers."

EASILY EXPLAINED.

Jones—"It would seem that medical journals would try to keep close to facts, but here is a statement I can't swallow. It says a woman was changed from a perfect blonde to a very dark brunette in one year.

Smith—"Foreigner?"

Jones—"No, an American."

Smith—"Ah! I see. Moved to Pittsburg, probably."

THE FOUNDATION READY.

Smith—"Hello, Jones! What are you at now?"

Jones—"I am going to start a daily paper to fill a long-felt want."

Smith—"But, you know nothing about journalism, and besides you have not the capital to employ those who do."

"Jones—"True, but I've got about half a ton of wood-cuts."

EFFECTS OF NICOTINE.

Jones—"I am not smoking so much as I was. My physician says that smoking shortens the memory."

Smith—"So I have noticed."

Jones—"In my case?"

Smith—"Yes."

Jones—"You surprise me. What have you observed?"

Smith—"I have observed that no matter how often I pay for the cigars you always forget to treat back."

IT'S DISADVANTAGES.

Mr. Gotham—"Philadelphia! Pooh! I wouldn't live in such a city—unhandiest place I ever was in."

Mr. Penn—"Unhandy! Why, my dear sir, there are cars on every street and the city plan is as plain as a checker-board. You certainly would not have it all cut up, like the lower part of New York."

Mr. Gotham—"I certainly would. The idea of living in a city where you have got to tramp around a whole square every time you see your tailor coming."

MODERN ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Father—"My dear, I am very much surprised at your receiving the attentions of that young man Jinks; he hasn't the least bit of education, and is a most illiterate fellow."

Daughter—"That is so, father, but he possesses the greatest of all modern accomplishments, and I am the envy of all the girls in town on account of his preference for my company."

Father—"What is this great modern accomplishment?"

Daughter—"He is such a splendid roller-skater."

HARD LINES.

Iceman—"No, my dear, we can't go to Europe next summer as we intended."

Loving Wife—"Well, no matter: I dreaded the sea voyage anyhow and Saratoga will do as well. By the way, that diamond necklace you promised me——"

Iceman—"Don't speak of it. I can't buy it; we can't go to Saratoga or anywhere else, and we must leave this house and get a cheaper one."

Loving Wife—"Mercy on me! Has the ice crop failed?"

Iceman—"No; that's just the trouble. It hasn't failed."

GLAD TO ACCOMMODATE.

Mrs. Slimdiet—"Will you please let me have that paper when you are through with it?"

Thin Boarder—"Certainly. Take it now. I have another in my pocket."

"Mrs. Slimdiet—"Oh, no! I do not want to read it. I happened to pick it up while you were at tea, and noticed something I would like to cut out of the paper when you are through with it. It is a recipe for canned currant pies."

Thin Boarder—"Good idea. I have often thought the best thing to do with currant pies is to can them."

GOING TO TRY IT.

Chicago Actress—"Oh, Mr. Bootman, I just heard the sweetest thing about Miss DeSoda, the New York actress. She wears in one play a pair of slippers made of hair from her own head. Could you make me a pair like that?"

Mr. Bootman (fashionable shoemaker)—"I never tried it, but I believe I can do it."

Chicago Actress—"I am so glad. I have the combings at my room. Make them in any style you choose. Remember, I give you carte blanche."

Mr. Bootman—"Oh, any kind of a cart will do. Send one load around this morning to commence on."

HE TOOK THE CAKE.

Spirit of Herod—"It is I who can claim to be the most bloodthirsty of fiends while on earth—the greatest of all murderers. I slew innocent babes by thousands."

Unknown Spirit—"Not so, vain Herod; for, though thou mayest have slain a multitude of innocents, thy bloody deeds have ceased forever, while my work of devastation still goes on. I therefore claim to be the greatest."

"Spirit of Herod—"May I inquire by what means you wreak this dreadful destruction?"

Unknown Spirit—"I am the inventor of the 'drying room,' used in the almshouses, asylums, etc."

HAD TRIED IT.

Mrs. Winks—"I can't see how it is that chickens can sleep on a roost without falling off."

Mr. Winks—"Habit, my dear, nothing else. Chickens, like people, can get used to anything."

"Mrs. Winks—"Oh! nonsense. There is no resemblance between the two. No human being could sleep that way. As soon as one sleeps one loses all consciousness, you know."

Mr. Winks—"Yes; but, all the same, a married man with a new baby soon learns how to sleep on the outside bed rail without falling."

At this point an infantile yell was heard and the meeting adjourned.

FAR TOO SMALL.

Mrs. DeBlank—"My dear, you must get a new filter; the one we have is far too small."

Mr. DeBlank—"Too small! It holds over a gallon."

Mrs. DeBlank—"A gallon, indeed. What does that amount to in a family like this?"

Mr. DeBlank—"Why, my dear, we could not possibly drink that much in a day."

Mrs. DeBlank—"Drink it! Who's talking about drinking it? My gracious, Mr. DeBlank, have you lost all sense of decency?"

Mr. DeBlank—"Goodness me! What is the matter? What do you want, anyhow?"

Mrs. DeBlank—"I want clean water enough to give the children a bath; that's what I want."

FAVORITE SON HONORED.

Squedunk Citizen—"I tell you we've got things fixed now. Squedunk is going to be the cheapest place in the country to live in inside of a year."

Stranger—"Going to have some big factories, I suppose."

Squedunk Citizen—"Well, no; not exactly; but you know old Mr. De Rich, the city millionaire?"

Stranger—"Oh, yes."

Squedunk Citizen—"Well, he was born here, and considerin' that he was a native and favorite son and so on, we folks got together and presented him with a fine piece of park land on condition that he build his country residence out there, and he has accepted."

Stranger—"But he will bring the workmen and materials from the city, and will doubtless buy all his provisions there, too. What good will that do you?"

Squedunk Citizen—"Good Jehosephat! Stranger. We'll tax him enough to pay all the expenses of the township."

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

An Old Soldier's
EXPERIENCE.

"Calvert, Texas,
May 3, 1882.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases.
J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

LEGAL NOTICE.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on Central avenue and Front street.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The owners of lands fronting on the North side of Central avenue between Third and Fourth streets, and of lands fronting on the East side of Front street, between Washington street, and a point two hundred feet North of Washington street, are hereby required to flag the side-walks in front of said lands for a width of at least four feet, except where they are now already flagged with stone flagging. Said flagging shall consist of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on surface, and shall be properly laid in one course under the direction of the Street Commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than two inches thick in the thinnest part.

SECTION 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within twenty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then the Street Committee are authorized and directed to cause said flagging to be laid, and the costs and expense thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the City Charter.

Adopted April 27, 1885.
Approved April 28, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

To establish the office of Health Inspector, and to prescribe the duties thereof.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council immediately after this ordinance shall become a law to hold office during the pleasure of the Common Council a suitable and competent person to be called the Health Inspector of the City of Plainfield, who shall be entitled to receive such compensation for the performance of the duties of his office as the Common Council may from time to time determine.

It shall be the duty of the Health Inspector to devote all necessary time to the duties of his office, to make diligent inquiry with respect to all matters existing in the city which are or may be injurious to the public health, and to report the same forthwith to the Mayor or City Physician, and during the existence or anticipation of any contagious or infectious disease in the city, he shall have power, whenever in his opinion, the public health demands it to order and cause anything injurious to the public health to be forthwith cleansed, disinfected or removed at the expense of the owner or occupant of the premises in which the same may be, to be recovered by action of debt against such owner or occupant in any court of competent jurisdiction; and for the proper discharge of such duties, he may at all proper times and seasons enter upon the premises and into the house of every person in the City of Plainfield as often as he shall deem necessary or the Board of Health or City Physician may order, and examine into the health, cleanliness and number of persons inhabiting such house, and shall inspect cellars, vaults, privies, sewers and all other places in such premises. He shall obey and execute all orders to him of the City Physician or orders or resolutions of the Board of Health in such manner as they may direct. He shall report in writing to the Board of Health at least once in each month, and also whenever required by the Board in relation to all duties performed by him and to any other matter within his knowledge affecting the public health.

SECTION 2. Any person who shall resist or oppose said Health Inspector in the performance of any of the duties of his office shall, upon conviction thereof in the City Court be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Adopted April 27, 1885.
Approved April 28, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

POETRY.

"IF."

"If you were me, and I were you,
And all the world was twisted too,
What do you think that you would do
If you were me and I were you?"

"If I were you and you were me,
I'd be as good as good could be;
I'd never fret, nor tease, you see,
If I were you and you were me."

"If you were me and I were you
You think that you'd be good and true?
—Well, it's as easy a thing to do
When I am I, and you are you."

"Since I'm not you and you're not me,
Suppose we try, each day, to be
So good that nobody can see
Which I is you, and which is me."

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A LONDON MYSTERY.

BY JOSEPH HATTON.

I.—AT THE ZOO.

I was strolling into the Zoological gardens in a lazy mood Friday afternoon to listen to a lecture on "Snakes."

"Congratulate me, old chap!" exclaimed an impulsive voice at the gates, and I turned to find Reggy Gardner at my elbow. "Can't stay now—just off to the lawyer's," he said, as he hailed a passing hansom.

"What is it all about, Reggy?"

"I am going to be married. She's the loveliest woman in the world! Come and lunch with me at the club to-morrow, and then go home to my mother's—you'll see her there."

As his hansom drove off I looked after my bright, cheery, lucky friend, just entering life with a newly inherited fortune. Reggy Gardner was a typical young Englishman, broad-shouldered, fair-haired, gray eyed, and beaming with health.

Snakes, as I suppose you know, decline to accept food which they have not killed themselves. The serpent mind seems to obtain unmixed satisfaction from the terrors of its victims. Neither the anaconda nor the common boa kills its ducks and rabbits, doves and guinea-pigs at once.

They are like wicked lawyers who keep their clients about them, pretending that they never mean to swallow them, estates and all. Now and then, long before the fatal blow is struck, the victims discover their danger, and then it is dreadful to watch their terror develop and grow into madness. The melancholy cry of a couple of fowls could be heard in the serpent house at the Zoo. The crowd of lookers-on were breathless watching the fluttering of a dove which one of the servants had just seized and the death agonies of a rabbit which the rattlesnake, poked up by the keeper, had kindly bitten. Pitiful tragedies were being enacted in every cage. On the score of science people go Fridays to see the reptiles fed. Prof. Huxley does not lecture in the snake-house; he would probably say some bitter things to the morbid audiences which collect there. I was about to seek the intellectual refuge of the lecture room, when the face of a woman arrested my attention.

It was a cold, cruel, beautiful countenance, classic in its severity, with blue eyes, and lips that had no red in them. The nose came down in a straight line from the low forehead, and was chiseled at the nostrils. The mouth was rather a contradiction to the other part of the face. It was sensual, yet without a touch of the generosity that sometimes modifies the sensual so much that we only call it sensuous. Madame's eyes were not looking at me. They were fixed on the anaconda, which had just uncurled itself, and was sliding towards a couple of fowls that were retreating before it. Suddenly, from an expression of intense expectation, the cold, cruel face was lighted up with anger. The next moment a fan was dashed against the glass to urge the birds into the jaws of the serpent. Madame was tired of waiting for the end. A thrill of indignation ran through me.

"This is no place for ladies," I said aloud to the keeper, that she might hear me; but she continued an unrestrained and active ally of the serpent, intent upon forcing the tragic destiny of the imprisoned birds.

Then, all of a sudden, there was a hurried movement of the snake, a flutter of the feathers; and an expiring cry. The anaconda had begun to feed.

Madame gave a little sigh of satisfaction, and, casting a frigid glance at me, moved away. Then I found she was not alone. Her cavalier was a foreigner, who looked like a faded personage marticulating for Tussaud. My thoughts, however, were not of him, but of her, and as I strolled home, wondering at the combination of angel and demon which is sometimes found in female beauty, I called this lady "Adrastia," as the resemblance to the Italian picture of the goddess flashed upon me. A head full of strange beauty, the hair a cluster of writhing serpents, a face of lovely forbiddingness, with the agony of the serpent's tooth in it, and yet about the mouth the calm, cruel, death-like expression of a Nemesis. The two faces were like and unlike; and the living one took the place of the other in my mind, eclipsing the picture, yet recalling shadowy reminiscences of it. Adrastia never looked so glad when the victims she slew deserved the death it was her duty to provide as did this lady in the London snake-house when the anaconda swooped down upon its living food. Clytemnestra might have worn a similar expression when she murdered Agamemnon; and yet I called the woman of the Zoo Adrastia, and I gave her, in my imagination, a fitting head dress of snakes and serpents.

II.—IN MAYFAIR.

Pall Mall swarmed with cabs and carriages. It was the height of the London season. We had lunched cozily at the club. I forgot Adrastia under the influence of the Reform's dry champagne and Reggy's gush about Mrs. Trentham. For the lady who had won the young fellow's heart and fancy was a widow. I reminded Reggy that a certain character in fiction had uttered a warning concerning widows which had passed into a proverb. He simply said, with the blood running into his face, "Dickens is a vulgar snob!" and then as quickly, "I beg Dickens' pardon old boy, and yours;" and we drove off to Mayfair. Reggy was hard hit. I did not attempt to chaff him about his passion, so out of keeping with the present tone of society, which never goes into raptures over anything.

"We met her at Homburg, and afterwards at Como, said Reggy's aristocratic yet amiable and pleasant mother; she was traveling with her uncle, Count de Tourier."

"It is a rather short engagement," I replied, "but we live in a rapid age."

"I hope he will be happy," rejoined his mother, but I thought there was something of doubt in the way she gave expression to her hopes.

Our conversation, necessarily brief, was interrupted by the arrival of Reggy's betrothed.

Mrs. Trentham. There was a movement of curiosity among the people. Mrs. Gardner rose from the tea-table to receive the latest caller with especial honor. Reggy looked at me triumphantly as he said, "Come and be introduced."

I advanced as one in a dream. I was under a spell. I pulled myself together as well as I could.

"This is my oldest and best friend, Marie," said Reggy; "he hopes though your newest, to be also your best friend."

She looked me straight in the face, and held out her hand. It seemed to me as if her manner was a challenge—as if she said, "We are deadly enemies, but you must pay homage to me!" What she really did say was, "I hope so, Reggy."

Mrs. Trentham was Adrastia! The knot of golden hair which fell in a cluster from her bonnet and rested upon her neck was, to my mind, a tanglement of snakes. The eloquence of the serpent was on her tongue, and she held my friend in her fascination as completely as the serpent holds the bird that eventually drops from the tree into the expectant jaws. Reggy Gardner was to marry the woman of the snakehouse.

III.—DOWN IN BERKSHIRE.

Two years had passed. The honeymoon had long since been forgotten, or remembered only to be thought of as too many waned moons recalled with wonder.

Yet they were happy as the world goes. They had their little tiffs, and Reggy had more than once been jealous, but not of the Count Tourier, her "uncle," of course. The idea of such an absurdity had never entered the honest soul of Reggy Gardner. Mrs. Trentham brought him no money. Her first husband had squandered it in gaming and speculation. Reggy had plenty and he felt proud to settle a handsome sum on his wife, and to allow her her pin-money the income of a duchess. The will which he made in her favor was worthy of his most generous impulses.

"If we do have a little misunderstanding now and then," he said to me while we took a noonday rest in the stables at his princely place down in Berkshire, "that's the common lot, and it gives zest to the fun of making up."

He wouldn't for the world have acknowledged that he was unhappy, and she had a peculiar power over him which could charm him into any mood she desired. If her occasional bursts of ill-temper or indiscretion of manner towards other men were thunder-clouds in his domestic life, her smiles were summer, her acted affection was sunshine. She knew this. I saw through it all. I visited them rarely, and only at all for Reggy's sake. They lived in a curious way, constantly traveling, coming to town only for a month in the season, and going to Berkshire for the first of September. Reggy's mother kept her own state in town.

Two mothers-in-law, she would say, could not be expected to get on well together, and Reggy's wife preferred to have her own mother with her; and so between the dear old lady of Mayfair and her son there had grown up an estrangement which Mrs. Gardner, jr., promoted with insidious persistence. Count Tourier had latterly been a rare visitor at Reggy's owing to misunderstandings with the head of the house; but he often wrote to his "dear niece," and made a special journey now and then to see her.

"No, I don't know where the count lives or how," said Reggy one evening at the end of our week's shooting when we were smoking after dinner. "He is, as you say, rather a mystery. Marie's mother is Italian, you know, on her father's side, and the count belongs to that branch of her family. At Milan he is authority, I believe, in chemical science."

"You don't like him, I fear."

"Like him? I hate him!"

Mrs. Gardner entered the room on the word.

"My dear, I thought you had gone to bed," said Reggy.

"I have come to smoke a cigarette with you, if you don't mind," was the answer.

Her suspicions had been confirmed (for our conversation was a long one) that her strange influence over her husband was in danger of weakening; that his confidence in her was on the wane; that her [illegible] secret, whatever it was, might be [illegible] it.

"By all means—delighted," said Reggy, and she sat down by his side, a superb-looking woman, if you did not examine her face critically for indications of feminine gentleness.

During my acquaintance with her neither she nor I had ever alluded to the incident at the Zoo, though she knew it was constantly in my mind. She had great penetrating powers, and she was like a woman, constantly on the watch. Reggy only saw her great blue eyes, her faultless classical features, her wealth of hair, her tall, graceful figure, lithe and sinuous as a serpent's. From the first he had been enamored of her beauty, and he was not in the habit of looking behind the mask of what are called perfect features, nor did he understand that a face to be truly beautiful must in some measure reflect a pure soul. One part of that conversation which she overheard (not that Reggy ever suspected her of listening) referred to his will, about which I had made an inquiry, since he had only lately told me I was one of his trustees. It is possible she had misinterpreted something he had said about altering it. I think of these and other things now which, under other circumstances, I might have forgotten.

IV.—"IN MOURNING."

I had left Berkshire for London and my servant was packing my traps for Norway. Reggy and his wife having, as I understood, started for the Mediterranean, when I received a telegram from Reggy's mother: "Please come at once; I fear my poor boy is dying." It was from Berkshire; so she was there. I had only been in London three days. I hurried down by the next train. Mrs. Gardner had been sent for only that morning. She thought I was there. The count had gone, and a local physician was in attendance. A London doctor of great eminence arrived with us.

We were both too late. Reggy Gardner was dead.

He had been taken ill the day I came away, and had gradually grown worse. The end had been intensely painful. His wife was with him to the last. She had attended him night and day. He had died in her arms. Now she was inconsolable, they said, and would not see anyone. The doctors called the fatal malady which had carried him off "inflammation of the [illegible]." They did not dream what grim satire there was in the verdict.

At my request the London physician examined the remains of the medicine which had been administered to Reggy, and made other inquiries, but everything, he told me confidentially, tended to confirm the correctness of the certificate of death which the other medical attendant had signed. He diagnosed the case from me, making the story of Reggy's death appear perfectly regular and natural; and a week afterwards they carried the boy who had accosted me that Friday outside the Zoo to the family vault in the little Berkshire church. A codicil had been made to the will the second day of the poor lad's illness excluding my trusteeship, and appointing the widow sole executrix.

"And now good-bye!" said Adrastia, when all was over and we were alone, face to face. "We never liked each other; there is now no further cause to dissemble our hatred."

"Mrs. Gardner," I answered, "I thank you for this frankness. Let me follow your example. I charge you with the murder of the boy we have just buried!"

She stepped a pace backward, but her face neither changed in color nor expression.

"The day may come when I shall reiterate that declaration before an earthly judge."

She swept across the floor in a long train of rustling crape. She was dressed in deep mourning. Looking defiantly at me as she laid her hand upon the bell-pull, she rang a quick, firm peal. It was answered by a sleek Italian servitor. She pointed toward me as she addressed him.

"This gentleman is leaving us; order the carriage round for the railway station at once."

The door being closed again, she said: "Your insolence outruns your discretion, and your enmity overrides your manners. I despise and defy you!"

All the same, she killed that unhappy boy, and watched over his last agonies with the same cruel satisfaction that chilled my blood in the serpent-house. I am sure of it. Have I proved it? No; not yet. At present Reggy Gardner's death is one of the mysteries of London.

If you want a fast friend, buy a porous plaster.

Women are like thistles—approached with fear, they sting.

What the United States navy needs is a sinking fund.—Burlington Free Press. It is a sinking fund itself.

Two plays have recently failed in Paris because of their "immorality." The leading actresses, evidently, were not pretty.

"The way to sleep," says a scientist, "is to think of nothing;" but this is a mistake. The way to sleep is to think it is time to get up.

It is said that bees and wasps will not sting a person whose skin is anointed with honey. In the absence of honey perhaps molasses will do.

An English astrologer predicts the death, only last fall, of "a high American functionary." As every two-cent office-holder considers himself a high American functionary, the prophesy may come true.

Rain or shine, every room in the house should have daily change of air. If this does not prevent moths from beginning work, vigorous measures must be taken. If you fear that they are at work under the carpet, it will sometimes suffice to lay a cloth, and press a hot flatiron over it, but the best way is to take the carpet up and give a good deal of attention to the floor. Look in the cracks, and if you discover signs of moths, wash the floor with benzine, and scatter red pepper on it before putting the carpet lining down.

A DIVING-BELL.

If you wish to see for yourself how a human being can go down under the water in a diving-bell and live, you can do so by trying the following experiment: Nearly fill a basin with water and set afloat upon it a lighted wick or taper. Over this little flame place a glass goblet, mouth downwards, and push it into the water, which will be kept out, while the wick will continue to float and burn under the goblet. In this way you can imitate the living inmate of a diving-bell, which is really nothing more than a great goblet with a man, instead of a candle, under it.

SUNTHIN' SOOTHIN' WANTED.

"Father," he said, as he raked the dirt over the last potato hill and rested on his hoe-handle, "the papers say that there is to be a rise in stocks."

"H'm."

"And Mr. Gould says that railroad prospects are brighter."

"H'm."

"And the leading financiers of the country look for an easy money market."

"H'm. William, what Mr. Gould of the leading financiers of the country may think is all right, but when a family has taken a forty-acre side-hill farm to grab a living out of, and ain't seen but five dollars in cash in six months, it would be more soothin' to have somebody predictin' that watermelons will be fifty cents apiece and potatoes one dollar and a half a bushel. Cover up that next hill."

HOW TO COOK A MUSKRAT.

Muskrat hunting is one of the sports of the season in the marshes and mill-ponds of Maryland. Thousands of the little animals are caught and eaten. The uses of the muskrat are twofold. Its hide is sold to furriers. Formerly, when muskrat fur was fashionable, the hides easily brought twenty five or thirty cents, but nowadays ten or fifteen is all that they are worth. As a food the excellence of the meat depends altogether on the skinning and cooking. If the musk-bag is cut and the scent is imparted to the meat it becomes worthless. A hunter writes: "I asked a colored woman who is somewhat noted for her success in making muskrat palatable how she treated the animal. She said she skinned it very carefully, washed it well in fresh water, soaked it for several hours in salt water, and then, if the weather was cold enough, hung it in the air so that it would freeze. The longer it is allowed to freeze the better it gets. The cold takes away the wild taste. After this she either stews it, or, if she wants it fried, parboils it and fries it afterwards. When served hot after the foregoing treatment, it is a dish not to be despised. The meat resembles the flesh of the guinea, and tastes something like that of a squirrel. The gentleman over whose kitchen the cook alluded to presides, says that between turkey and muskrat he prefers muskrat all the time. The way the Indians used to treat this animal was either to toast it on coals or boil it with corn."

LITTLE SERMONS.

If thou wouldst attain to thy highest, go look upon a flower; what does willessly, that do thou willingly.—Schiller.

I am thoroughly satisfied that all the pleasures of this life pass away like a shadow or dream, or fade away like a shadow or dream, or fade like a flower of the field.—Cervantes.

Mme. de Stael defined happiness to be "A state of constant occupation upon some desirable object, with a continual sense of progress toward its attainment."

All impatience of monotony, all weariness of best things even, are but signs of the eternity of our nature, the broken human fashions of the divine everlastingness.—George Macdonald.

Not by literature or theology, but only by rare integrity, by a man permeated and perfumed with airs of heaven—with manliest or womanliest enduring love—can the vision be clear.—Emerson.

The wealth of Mammon is locked up in burglar-proof vaults; the wealth of God is stored in the hearts of man. The lock combination to open the first is only known to him who sets it, but the combination that opens the latter is known to every Christian.

Christian obligation cannot be made to accord with a law of expediency. The Christian maxims are: "Do right though the heavens fall," "Do right because you are bound to do right." There is a world of difference between "You had better" and "You are bound to."—F. L. Patton.

The way to argue down a vice is not to tell lies about it—to say that it has no attractions, when everybody knows that it has—but rather to let it make out its case just as it certainly will in the moment of temptation, and then meet it with the weapons furnished by the Divine army.—Holmes.

So long as we make sport of slaying man and beast, so long as we choose to contend rather with our fellows than with our faults, and make battlefields of our meadows instead of pastures, so long, truly, the flaming sword will turn every way, and the gates of Eden remain barred close; till we have sheathed the sharper flame of our own passions and broken down the closer gates of our hearts.—Ruskin.

WISE WORDS.

We have some cases of the pride of learning, but a multitude of the pride of ignorance.

In the education of children love is first to be instilled, and out of love obedience is to be educated.

In this commonplace world every one is said to be romantic who either admires a fine thing or does one.

The idle are not to be classed among the living. They are a peculiar kind of dead that cannot be buried.

Pride, like the magnet, constantly points to one object—self; but, unlike the magnet, it has no attractive pole, but at all points repels.

Keep your sorrows and trials from the little ones as far as possible. Life should be all sunshine for them; they will find out its shadows soon enough.

Some men make a great flourish about always doing what they believe to be right; but always manage to believe that is right which is for their own interest.

To commit the execution of a purpose to one who disapproves of the plan of it is to employ but one-third of the man; his heart and his head are against you; you have commanded only his hands.

Those pleasures which depend on ourselves are the only ones a wise man will count; for nothing is ours which another may deprive us of; hence the inestimable value of intellectual pleasures.

Keenness in a man is not always to be taken for a sign of capacity, for it is generally observed most in those who are selfish and overreaching; and his keenness generally ends in that kind of penetration into other people's interest which will tend to benefit his own.

"There are three requisites to our proper enjoyment of every earthly blessing which God bestows upon us, viz., thankful reflection on the goodness of God, a deep sense of our unworthiness and a sober recollection of the precarious tenor by which we hold it. The first will make us grateful, the second humble, the last moderate."

"The blessed founder of our faith in His command to render to all their dues added the force of His own example in the payment of tribute to the Roman ruler. An old writer quaintly remarked: 'Even when Christ borrowed Peter's boat to preach a sermon out of it, he paid him for the same by a great draught of fishes.'"

The opening of the Mutual Driving Association occurs this year on Saturday, the 16th of the present month, at Waverly. Twenty-five hundred tickets will be distributed. There will be no purses offered for the different classes, but the entries will embrace some of the best horses in the State. The programme will be as follows: Free for all, Irish Lad, Grey Horse; 2:35 class, Frank H., Oak Wood, Gen. Wilkes, Leonia; 2:40 class, May B., Hummer Boy; 2:30 class, Twist, Belle of Essex, Cricket, Quaker Boy; 3-minute class, Silver Cloud, Bracelet Trot, Philip H.; road wagon race, Band, Fred Begfried, Silverton, Stranger, Pedroso, Mattie, Stranger. Racing will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

The Peach Crop Safe.

We congratulate our readers over visions of peaches and cream in abundance next summer. Never have our peach growers united in more favorable prognostications. From all quarters of the peninsula comes promise of a full crop; the only apprehension expressed being for the late yellow varieties in some localities. The crop is not yet entirely out of danger, but there is no good reason to apprehend any further damage.

Frightened Passengers.

This morning the fast train from Bound Brook, and due in this city at 8:17, narrowly escaped an accident between Bound Brook and Dunellen, where a switch had been left open, throwing the train suddenly over upon a third track. The train was running at a high rate of speed, and in swinging around the sharp curve of the switch the cars were terribly jarred. It is only miraculous that the cars were not derailed, and it is not surprising that the passengers were badly frightened.—Elizabeth Journal, 6th.

Good Rules.

Never try to "beat down." Go to honest men, and then pay what they ask. With the competition now existing in all branches of business, there is no danger of paying more than the article is worth. Buy in your own town, so far as possible and patronize those who help build your school houses, make your roads, and who are expected to respond to all calls for charity, or for public improvement. Settle all accounts regularly when presented. Heed these simple rules and add to your own peace of conscience and the good nature of your business men.

The Only Way.

All advertising schemes which tend to divert the attention of the public from the newspapers are fast dying out. Railroad time tables, directory, plan and chart advertising, and in fact all such devices our business community have lost faith in long ago. This mode of advertising never pays and after one read finds its way into the waste basket at once, and the advertiser's money is virtually thrown away. The newspaper is the only beneficial medium to the advertiser through which to reach the masses, and merchants are finding it out more and more every day.

A New Railroad Scheme.

It is stated that the managers of the Philadelphia and Reading road are considering plans for the construction of a connecting line between Bound Brook and Elizabeth, across Staten Island, with a view to locating their New York station at the Battery, disconnected with the station of the New Jersey Central road at the foot of Liberty street. At that point, aided by an arrangement with the elevated roads, the Reading road would be able to receive and land passengers at every elevated station in the city of New York, a formidable advantage for a competing line.—Elizabeth Herald.

A Police and Fire Act.

Governor Abbett has approved Assembly bill 2, providing for the establishment in every city, according the provisions of the act, a Board of four Police Commissioners and a Board of four Fire Commissioners, who shall have control of the Police and Fire Departments respectively. The Commissioners are to be appointed by the Mayor, subject to Council's approval, for four years terms, at an annual salary of $[illegible] for each one. The Commissioners are subject to Council, and they have the right to each appoint a clerk and a surgeon. Besides the sum of $10,000 are required from each Commissioner. The act must be voted on and accepted by the people before becoming applicable to the city.

Some New Corporations.

Articles of Incorporation for several new companies have been filed in the Secretary of State's office within the past week. Among them is the New Jersey Steamboat Transportation Company, of which the stockholders are as follows: Ex-Speaker A. B. Stoney, Jno. H. Conover, David Warner, Marcus B. Taylor and Stephen Stoney of Keyport, Edw. S. Savage, of Middlesex, and Wm. Pierson, of Jersey City. The steamboat line will run between Elizabethport and New York, touching at intermediate points. The other companies just incorporated are the Sollers Shoe Manufacturing Company of Camden, Hopatcong Canal Company, Jasper Mining and Smelting Company, and the Postach Bay, Smith Freezing Company.

Railroad Victims.

The annual statement of the railroad and canal companies of New Jersey, which has just been issued, gives a list of the casualties which occurred on the different railroads during the year 1884. The United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Company heads the list with forty-seven killed and 319 injured. The Central railroad killed twenty-eight and injured ten; Delaware and Bound Brook two killed; Morris and Essex, twenty killed and one injured; New York and Greenwood Lake, one injured; New York and Long Branch, eight killed and nine injured; New York, Susquehanna and Western, six killed and five injured; New York, West Shore and Buffalo, two killed and two injured, and the Paterson and Hudson River railroad, twelve killed and forty-six injured.

It Is Time The Public Knew.

The Trenton Times has been refused the complimentary tickets and patronage of the Taylor Opera House at Trenton, because as the paper says, it has not liberally puffed every performance, good, bad or indifferent, that was exhibited in that place of amusement. The Times has in this matter taken a stand which might well be followed by many other newspapers of New Jersey. The practice of "giving a puff" to every show or troupe that happens along is greatly to be condemned. The advertising columns and the news columns of a journal should be so divorced that no showman or anyone else would have a right to expect a complimentary local notice of his business merely because he has bought so much space in the advertising department. It is time the press of the State let the people know that a fifty cent advertisement does not include a two dollar puff.

What They Have in Flemington.

A commercial traveler who has been nearly every town in the country remarked to us last week that he never got into as pretty a place as Plainfield.—Plainfield Times.

It is quite clear that this "commercial traveler" never visited Flemington or he would not have talked that way about so ordinary a little town as Plainfield. In point of beauty our town beats that stone blind. We have handsomer shade trees and more of them; finer stores and neater dwellings, better hotels and fewer saloons, prettier girls and cleaner streets, neater dooryards and more lawyers, a smaller skating rink and fewer tramps, more naptha street lamps and less light,—and besides all this our steam fire engine can out-squirt anything in Plainfield. There is one thing we have to weaken on, though. You have one hundred incendiary fires in Plainfield to our one. We hope those jolly Times editors will not retire to the back room upon reading Flemington's points of superiority and kick themselves with envy.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

Poultry Breeding.

That the public interest in poultry matters is daily increasing is well informed persons doubts. Abundant evidence of this is given by the fact that one can hardly go into any town in the country without finding one or more persons engaged in raising fancy poultry of some kind. Few persons believe that the product of poultry throughout the country is nearly double that of beef. Yet it is a fact; and that the supply of eggs is not equal to the demand is attested by the fact that in 1884 we imported from Germany and other foreign countries over one hundred thousand barrels of eggs. In raising fancy fowls the fancier must have a love for his stock which will stimulate him to the great amount of care and patience necessary to a successful conduct of the business. Good poultry cannot be raised to advantage by those who are not agreeable to the employment. Fowls will not thrive under neglect and careless treatment. They will do well and give you generous returns for all the care you may bestow upon their comfort; but unless you give them care and shelter from cold and storms, you will not have fowls that will lay in the winter months—the time when you want them to lay and can obtain high prices for the eggs.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

COMMENDABLE.

One of the best diplomatic appointments ever made is that of G. V. N. Lothrop, of Detroit, Michigan, to be Minister of the United States to Russia.

Mr. Lothrop is a pronounced Democrat, a lawyer of eminent ability and a citizen of unblemished personal character. In the West where he is well known his appointment is most heartily approved by men of all parties.

The selection of Mr. Lothrop was the direct action of President Cleveland, and we hope he will keep on selecting according to his own sound judgment. If so, there will be no mistakes made in diplomatic and consular appointments. It also practically endorses the safe doctrine that offices should seek the right kind of men to fill them. Mr. Lothrop was not an applicant.

Another commendable selection is that of Dr. John E. Thompson, of New York, as Minister to Hayti. Doctor Thompson is a colored gentleman of the highest character, of liberal education, a medical graduate of Yale College, and proficient in the French language, which knowledge will serve him in his new sphere of diplomatic duty, as the Haytians are French-speaking people. He has been a life-long Democrat. His appointment will prove to colored American citizens that under a Democratic Administration they will not only receive equal rights, but the most honorable recognition.

CLEVELAND.

The New York County Democracy, at a largely attended meeting held in Chickering Hall last Friday evening, unanimously applauded President Cleveland in the following well merited language:

"The conduct of public affairs since his inauguration has been in marked contrast to the violent partisanship which for so many years characterized Republican administrations.

The welfare of the whole people and the honest and efficient discharge of the duties of office have always been his first objects and his guide in making appointments, and they continue.

In passing from the various offices, the duties of all of which he had so honorably discharged, to the position of Chief Executive of this great nation, he has carried with him an unalterable adherence to the principle so often declared by him, and so fully supported by his record, that public offices are public trusts and are not the mere spoils of the conqueror.

His fearless and honest consistency.

His varied experience in the administration of public affairs.

His acceptance of and devotion to the principles of true Democracy—

Afford sure guarantees that his Administration will bring to the nation the inestimable benefits of an intelligent and honest government, and will reflect honor on the party that elected him to office."

Which is the truth, and to all of which we can most sincerely say Amen!

CHAGRIN.

The Illinois Democrats feel chagrined, but they brought misfortune upon themselves.

They took a nap when it was important to be wide awake, and consequently, the enemy stole in and bore away rich plunder.

A Democratic Representative in the evenly balanced Legislature died. His district was largely Democratic, and that his successor to be chosen without much effort at a special election should be of the same political complexion was naturally relied upon.

The Republicans, taking advantage of Democratic confidence, shrewdly abstained from bringing an opposing candidate into the field until a late hour, and then, with a rush of activity and, as is suspected, a plentiful supply of Dorseyite ammunition, got for their man a majority of the diminished vote polled.

The result is a Democratic district represented by a Republican, and a Republican majority on joint-ballot in a Legislature charged with the duty of electing a Senator of the United States.

We marvel not that the Democrats of Illinois feel both mortified and angry, as did the chap who found that while bathing a thief had ran away with all his clothing.

We hope that they will for the future remember that vigilance is the price of party success, as it is of liberty.

Don't fall asleep until the battle has been fought and victory won, or defeat sustained by full ranks.

OFFICE SEEKING.

The hardest task connected with Executive position is the filling of public offices.

Did people who are prone to criticise severely the action of Presidents, Governors and Mayors in that particular line of official duty fairly comprehend the difficulties surrounding the appointing power, we are confident more compassion and less censure would be manifested.

An important office is to be supplied with a new incumbent, and speedily and earnestly fifty applicants present their individual claims for the place, each one deeming himself the best qualified and most deserving man to fill the vacancy, while in support of such pretensions, a troop of ardent friends, some likely to evince more zeal than prudence, rush along the shortest political road that leads to headquarters.

One man is to be appointed.

Forty-nine are to be disappointed.

And although the appointee may be the very best on the entire list of applicants, the nine and forty will think a gross personal slight, if not a grievous public wrong has been perpetrated, and perchance several of them will growl and grumble, or in anger snap partisan teeth.

Which is foolishness personified.

The public good imperatively demands that competent, unsullied and reliable men shall be selected for all the offices, not with reckless haste, but with due deliberation.

Which is practical business foresight.

And the sound policy of President Cleveland.

The Pennsylvania Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows have elected the following officers: Grand Master, F. V. VanArtsdalen, of Lower Marion; Deputy Grand Master, Charles W. Ridgway, of Philadelphia; Grand Junior Warden, John Haney, of Pittsburg; Grand Representative, Francis M. Rea, of Philadelphia; Grand Treasurer, Colonel M. Richards Muckle, of Philadelphia; Grand Secretary, James B. Stevenson, of Philadelphia.

AN ITEM.

The following item has been of late floating over the sea of journalism:

"O. B. Griggs, of Bridgeport, desires to tender his thanks to the choir at Plainfield, who so kindly and satisfactorily sang at the funeral of his mother-in-law."

Now, as there are many estimable mothers-in-law in this city, and also a number of first-class choirs, none of whom we are sure would favor Mr. Griggs in the way for which he so joyfully returns thanks, we deem it proper to say, that the Plainfield mentioned is located in Connecticut, not New Jersey.

Our music is civilized.

RIGHT YOU ARE.

New Jersey's failure to secure a Cabinet office, and the fact that Mr. McPherson is the only Democratic Senator north of Delaware and east of Ohio, causes that gentleman to be regarded with especial interest by the Democracy of this section and State. It is safe to assert that the New Jersey Senator will be among the most influential men with the new Administration at Washington, especially as the removal of three leading Senators to the Cabinet leaves him the equal of any member of his party now in the upper legislative body.—Camden Courier, (Rep).

Ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen is said by his physician to be slowly dying, from liver and kidney troubles. His strength is somewhat maintained by a milk diet, and he may yet live for weeks.

During the month of April, Postmaster-general Vilas has appointed 600 postmasters at fourth-class offices. The greatest number appointed on any one day was 133, on April 27. The majority of the appointments were made to fill vacancies.

The old cannon with which the Democrats of Pennsgrove, N. J., intended to celebrate the election of Cleveland and Hendricks, and which mysteriously disappeared at the time, was washed up recently by a high tide. It had been thrown overboard from a wharf by some unknown parties.

The total issue of postage stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards during April aggregated 271,006,819 as against 264,645,200 during the corresponding month in the preceding year. The number of stamps issued showed an increase of 13,000,000, while the issue of postal cards fell off 4,000,000, and stamped envelopes 3,000,000.

The New Jersey State Board of Health recommends the use of the following specifics in cholera seasons:

As a preventive of cholera, to be used in infected towns at times of exposure—2 grains quinine, 4 drops of aromatic sulphuric acid, 2 drops tincture chloride of iron; to be taken before each meal in a half tablespoonful of water that has been boiled.

For Diarrhœa—A mixture of laudanum and spirits of camphor, one part each, and tincture of ginger and tincture of capsicum, two parts. A dose—one teaspoonful in a wine glass of water.

In Diarrhœa—Take a recumbent position; place mustard plaster on abdomen, and if there is a recurrence of discharge, use the above prescription. Send for a skilled physician. Drink water only that has been boiled.

The State of New Jersey has paid a bounty within four years of $33,494 24 to the only firm in the State which manufactures sugar from sorghum. This establishment is located at a place called Rio Grande, in Cape May county. Eighty-seven thousand gallons of syrup were manufactured upon which no bounty has been paid. The State bounty provides that "for every ton of beets, sorghum, amber, or other sugar cane raised by any farmer in the State, the sum of one dollar shall be paid as bounty," and also "one cent per pound upon all merchantable sugar made in the State from beets or sorghum shall be paid to anyone who shall establish a plant or sugar manufactory in the State."

In examining the count of moneys and securities in the United States Treasury a heavy square box, wrapped in red tape and securely bound, was found in an out-of-the-way nook of one of the vaults. The key had been mislaid and was nowhere to be found. The box had been in the vault for many years and had been almost forgotten. The services of a locksmith were secured, and on opening the box it was found to contain a bottle of diamonds, a bottle of pearls, a bottle of attar of roses, and a lump of gold. One of the older employees identified these as articles which had been presented to President Monroe about the year 1823 by the Japanese Government, and which had been stored in the Treasury pending the passage of an act of Congress authorizing their acceptance. Congress failed to legislate on the subject, and the articles were deposited in the Treasury, where they have remained ever since.

The Courts.

In the Circuit Court Thursday afternoon the trial of the case of Catharine Redford vs. Samuel H. Connett, administrator, of this city, was concluded. The suit was for the recovery of compensation for two and a half years' service as a housekeeper. Mr. Craig A. Marsh and James R. English conducted the case for the plaintiff, and R. V. Lindabury for the defendant. The jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $900.

Teacher's Examination.

The county Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. N. W. Pease, has made the following announcement:

"As the last Saturday in May is a legal holiday this year, the next regular examination of candidates for Teacher's Certificates will be held on Saturday, June 6th, at Westfield. In accordance with a new rule adopted by the State Board of Education, after this year, examinations for First and Second Grade County Certificates will be held in May instead of August. This year, however, such examination will be held on the last Friday and Saturday in August."

Sub Rosa.

Some of the school marms of Rahway have forbidden the children playing that venerable and therefore innocent game of copenhagen at the schools. The youngsters will now have to follow the example of their older brothers and sisters and do their kissing on the sly.—Woodbridge Republican.

Check the Evil.

The reckless manner in which the boys of the city are permitted to use that ugly toy, the bean-shooter, is becoming alarming. Parents should instruct their boys that the law is very severe on boys who are caught using bean-shooters. The police should watch the boys, confiscate the weapons and bring them before the Justice's desk. What would be the value of an eye or a life if lost through the agency of these inventions of an evil genius! Check the nuisance before great injury is inflicted.

Women's Relief Corps.

The Women's Relief corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, have completed the organization of the department of New Jersey. The following are the officers: President, Mrs. Jennie A. Atwood, of Jersey City; senior vice-president, Mrs. Abbie J. Whittier, of New Brunswick; junior vice president, Mrs. Mary Applebly, of Old Bridge; secretary, Mrs. Addis, of Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. Westphal, Plainfield; conductor, Mrs. Helen A. Bray, of Long Branch; inspector, Mrs. Covert, of Trenton; chaplain, Mrs. Elizabeth Amer, of New Brunswick; guard, Mrs. A. M. Way, of New Brunswick. Delegate at large to the National convention, Mrs. A. M. Way, alternate, Mrs. Wark. Delegates, Mrs. Reed, of Long Branch and Mrs. Mary Appleby; alternates, Mrs. Covert, and Mrs. Mary E. Valentine, of Paterson.

Board of Freeholders.

The new Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, organized on Tuesday last, by re-electing all the old officers, as follows:

Director—C. W. L. Martine.
Clerk—John L. Crowell.
Collector—P. Sheridan.
Attorney—Fred. C. Marsh.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST and Times of this city, Herald, Journal, Freie Presse and Leader of Elizabeth, Democrat and Advocate of Rahway, were designated as the legal papers to publish official minutes of the Board. The following committees were appointed:

Collector's bond—Halliday, Dardis and Pierson.
Publishing—Dardis, Beimer and Pierson.
Discharge of prisoners—Astfalk, Etheridge and Roll.
Settlement with collector—Bauer, Astfalk and Howard.

Elizabeth draw-bridges—Oliver, Bauer and Etheridge.
Rahway bridges—Beimer, Howard and Halliday.

Highly Proper.

[From the Elizabeth Herald.]

"The procession of decrepit little boys who smoke cigarettes has begun to deposit its victims in the insane asylum in New Jersey. If it goes on increasing there will have to be more prisons, poor houses and pauper insane asylums than all other buildings put together in New Jersey.—THE CONSTITUTIONALIST."

We would add, further, that the little rascals have now thoroughly recovered from the scare the new law occasioned a few months since, and now purchase cigarettes with impunity. The dealer, with an eye to the pennies, sells them unlawfully, and the youngster can be found on the street corners, on the horse car platforms and everywhere where they can puff the beastly and foul smelling things and blow the smoke in clouds. Some of the victims have made the vicinity of the church doors fragrant with the smell of burnt paper by lighting their cigarettes immediately on emerging from the sacred portals.

It is no uncommon thing to see from six to a dozen matches burning at the doors, just after service, and as many boys from seven to eighteen years of age pulling on these rolls of scrap tobacco and paper. Ladies choke and cough, and, on several occasions, have remarked, "I think they might wait until the people pass before igniting those things." The sextons of churches should look out for this nuisance and check it by forcing the young numbskulls and dudes to betake themselves to the woods and there slowly kill themselves. If the sexton of the church is powerless to stamp out the evil, let the police interfere. It is with much regret that we notice men who are fathers of sons, smoking cigarettes. If they are victims of the evil, they should at once shake it off, for the son will surely follow, and the result will be a short life for both.

The law prohibiting the selling of cigarettes to boys should be rigidly enforced, and the first dealer caught violating the law should be summarily dealt with and made an example of for humanity's sake.

An Awful Death.

It has been a long time since the community of Elizabeth has been so thoroughly shocked as it was Monday morning last, when it was learned that David J. Meeker, a well-known and much-respected resident, had met death under the wheels of a locomotive of the P. & R. railroad at the Union depot. The particulars of the terrible affair are as follows: He was a book-keeper in the dairy of Blanck & Co., corner of Church and Duane streets, New York, and, as was his usual custom, he was on his way to catch the 6.10 train on the P. & R. for New York. He stopped, as near as could be learned, at Dunn's news-stand on the depot and purchased a paper. Meanwhile his train had rolled into the depot and its bell was ringing and the locomotive blowing off steam. Just then the local freight train, No. 168, George Hackett, engineer, bound west, and which had left several cars at the siding of the depot, had gone back across Broad street and was on its way towards Plainfield. Just as Mr. Meeker crossed the track to board the passenger train, and while he was reading his paper, and with the din of ringing bells and escaping steam, he did not hear the approaching freight train and was struck when opposite the restaurant at the depot and near ex-Chief of Police John Keron's livery stable office. The blow threw him to one side, stunning him. Then, in a dazed manner, he struggled to get away from the engine, when he was again drawn under the wheels of the "tender" and terribly mangled and killed instantly. When the train was stopped, his crushed body with one arm and his right leg cut off, was taken from the trucks of the tender, many feet above where he was struck. The deceased was born in Union, and was between 58 and 59 years of age. He had been a resident of Elizabeth for the greatest part of his life. For many years he was assessor and collector for the township of Union, and held other positions of trust there. Coming to Elizabeth with his wife and family, the former dying a few years later, he was appointed secretary and treasurer of the Mechanics Saving Institution, whose doors are now closed. This position he filled with credit. Later on he was the opposing candidate for the shrievalty against ex-Sheriff Seth B. Ryder. Not long since he returned from Minneapolis, where he left the remainder of his family, consisting of one son and three daughters. His mother and brother reside in Union. The deceased was a member of Washington lodge, No. 33, A. F. and A. M.

Grand Jury Discharged.

The Grand Jurors have completed their labors, finding in all twenty seven bills of indictment. They passed a resolution calling to the attention of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, to the overcrowded condition of the county jail, and suggesting that a workhouse be built for prisoners committed for vagrancy and minor crimes.

Odd Fellow Statistics.

The 66th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in the United States was generally observed throughout the country. Since the establishment of the first lodge in the city of Baltimore 66 years ago last Sunday, there have been admitted to membership in the order 1,318,226 adult men. It has organized and chartered 54 grand lodges and 43 grand encampments and has spread into every State and Territory of the nation. Since 1830 it has expended for the relief of members, their widows and orphans, $36,752,126.75, and brothers have paid into the treasuries of the order $96,227,589.60. It has now in the treasuries of its subordinate lodges not less than $30,000,000.

What the Grand Jury Recommends.

When the grand jury returned from their deliberations on Friday last, they brought in twenty-seven indictments and the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The attention of this grand jury has been called to the fact that many men are being sent to the county jail as disorderly persons, who have no visible means of support, and who are popularly denominated tramps, and, it being deemed wise by this grand jury that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of this county should provide a suitable place and suitable means for compelling such persons to pay for the expense of committing them to the county jail; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union be requested to examine into the matter and see if some means cannot be provided for the erection of a workhouse or house for the confinement of such persons so committed as vagrants or disorderly persons, or that a suitable enclosure be prepared, supplied with stone, so that they may be able, from the labor performed by them, to get sufficient means of supporting themselves, so that they will not be a burden to the county of Union.

A Timely Warning.

[From the Somerset Messenger.]

I notice in your Raritan items last week a complaint that parties have been using nets in taking fish from the river, and the writer thinks there should be a deputy warden to look after those persons. Now, Mr. Editor, if your correspondent (or any other person) knows of any violation of the law in regard to daising at the dam above Raritan, and will furnish the evidence, I will guarantee to have the offenders prosecuted according to law. Any who will watch for such parties can do a good day's work, as one-half of the fine, in case of conviction, (see the law) goes to the informant, and the remainder to the county. Any information from a reputable citizen, in any part of the county, in relation to the violation of the law concerning illegal fishing or killing of game will be thankfully received by me, and in every case where sufficient evidence is furnished I will proceed to prosecute those who violate the above laws.

Masonic Dedication.

The new Masonic Temple at Trenton will be dedicated on St. John's Day next. The corner stone of the new edifice was laid July 17, 1884. It is five stories in height, built of fine pressed brick and ornamented with brownstone trimmings, at a cost of 180,000. The lower part of the building is divided into ten stores, and the upper portion will be occupied by a business college. There is a large auditorium on the second floor with a seating capacity of 1,200, which will be used as a headquarters by Company A of the National Guard. The offices of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey will be on the second floor. There will be a handsomely fitted up lodge room and commandery council chamber for the use of the members of the fraternity. When completed and dedicated it will be occupied by Blue Lodges Nos. 5, 50 and 76, Chapter Three by Three and Gebal Council Royal Select Masters; also Excelsior Consistory of A. A. S. R. and a Rose Croix chapter. The furnishing of the lodge rooms has been confided to the care of Royal Select Master Elain Fitzgeorge. All the commanderies of Knights Templars in the State have been called out to take part in the dedication services, and a grand reception will be held in the evening.

For "The Constitutionalist."

Hard on the Council.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Allow me through your valuable journal, to throw out a suggestion to our fellow citizens across the brook (whom I assume will in a few days rise to the dignity of citizens of a Borough Corporation) in relation to a simple, though an important matter, which our City Fathers in Plainfield proper, for some inexplicable reason have constantly ignored. It is that of establishing building lines. Plainfield has been incorporated sixteen years and as yet building lines have not been established. As a consequence each property owner builds to suit himself, until in places the line looks like a Virginia worm fence, and other valuable property is damaged without redress. For example, on Peace street, corner of Second street, a store was erected in front of a dwelling built years before, and was built so far out on the sidewalk as to practically ruin that side of the street or that block for business purposes. Around the corner on Second street, a blacksmith shop was built so far out on the sidewalk as to ruin that side of the street for a business block; and in either case there is about sidewalk enough left to enable two persons to walk abreast. Many of us remember when John Roselle built his livery stable on Park avenue, and set it out in front of the line of brick buildings built years before and occupied for business purposes, some five or six feet: anyone could see at a glance how much the adjoining property was damaged. Remonstrances were of no avail; the Common Council had not done its duty by establishing, as it should at the commencement of its career, a building line, so that Roselle in the language of Tweed, said, "What are you going to do about it," and went ahead. The store on the opposite corner is in front of the line of buildings on that side of the street. A livery stable is now being erected on Second street, and if built on the walls now above ground, will leave a space for a sidewalk between trees and building of about five feet. And yet the owner is not to be blamed so much as the City Fathers. Since should he build ten feet back what assurance has he that his neighbor will not build five feet out in front of him. A simple ordinance passed soon after incorporation, providing in substance, that no building, store or dwelling should be built at a less distance than ten feet from the curb line of the street, etc., would have left citizens a decent sidewalk to walk on, and would have given some security to those who desire to erect buildings for business purposes, who are now in constant trepidation lest some neighbor may erect an adjoining building some feet in front of him; and thereby to use a common expression "bury him up." I hope the Borough will at least teach the city that the best time to establish building lines is in a growing city, borough, or village, is before the buildings are erected and not afterwards.

LOOKER-ON.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The assessor will commence to take the State and school census to-day.

There is a prospect of a base ball match in our town on Decoration Day.

Burtis' stables are rapidly approaching completion. Joseph Moffett is the builder.

Thomas Embree was married on the 6th inst., to Miss Maggie O'Neil of New York.

Cleary & Martin have opened their pool rooms, corner of North avenue and Elm street.

Kaylor & Moffett, carpenters and builders of our town, are engaged in erecting a dwelling house for Mr. George B. Osborn, on Springfield ave., Cranford.

There are as many new kinds of spring bonnets as there are kinds of religion, and it will be some time before one can decide what particular kind is really the style.

There is to be a grand charade and musical entertainment by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at Temperance Hall, on Monday and Tuesday evening next.

John N. Wilcox has the contract to overhaul and thoroughly repair Lyceum Hall, corner of Broad and Prospect street. This is too fine a building to be allowed to decay.

The wind-mill that Mr. William C. Pecham has had erected on his property, Hillside avenue, works to perfection, supplying sufficient quantity of water for his residence.

Hook & Ladder Co., No. 1, at their next meeting, expect to elect a 1st Assistant Foreman in place of James Moffett, who at the recent election was elected Chief of our Fire Department.

Overseer of road district No. 8, has been engaged in repairing the roads the past week. Why does he not open the gutters on the East side of Elm street to allow the surface water to run off and not lie stagnant in the same.

The rage for old furniture is increasing and there should be in every family a desk, table or chair originally possessed by the great-grandparents. Everybody puts his own value on a piece of furniture, and it is only when it is sold at auction that grandparents' stock falls.

On Sunday morning last at 12:30 o'clock, the small dwelling house belonging to the estate of Harvey Bryant, at West End, near our town, was burned. It no doubt was the work of incendiary as the family had moved out the day before, intending to repair the foundation of the building. Charles H. French, foreman of Hook & Ladder Co., No. 1, was on hand.

The Board of Health have sent notices to a number of our residents in regard to alleged nuisances and causes detrimental to the public health. Hoping that our residents will help them in this matter of keeping their yards and cesspools in good order, thoroughly removing all causes of foulness and noxious vapors, which would be the cause of generating fevers in our midst. We have a very healthy town, and it is the intention of the Board of Health to do as much as lay in their power to keep it so by doing their duty under the laws of the State, and they shall cause all nuisance detrimental to the public health to be abated forwith.

THE young ladies of Plainfield are "mighty nice," but in one respect they haven't the good taste of their sex in other places. We hear of the organization elsewhere, among the girls, of plans to boycott the boys that smoke cigarettes.

THE Board of Freeholders of Union county have resolved to build a new grand jury room over that now occupied by the Board of Freeholders in the Court House at Elizabeth, which will be a needed improvement. Three thousand dollars will be expended in its construction.

THE ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church at Scotch Plains, will hold a Japanese Tea Party on Monday evening, May 25th, at 7.30 p. m., in Excelsior Hall. Admission, twenty-five cents, including supper. Each person attending will be presented with a pretty Japanese cup and saucer.

WE are asked by a sweet correspondent if it is true that a number of society ladies and gentlemen of this city are intending to play "Boucicault's Kerry Gow." Our charming inquirer is hereby informed that "Kerry Gow" is neither written by Boucicault, nor will it be played by the amateurs referred to.

MR. IRA G. HURLBERT, builder, who has for many years resided in Rahway, moved to North Plainfield, 36 Duer street. Mr. H. has been one of Rahway's most successful mechanics. Under his supervision was built the Opera House and Water Works buildings of that city. We extend him a hearty welcome to his new field of labor.

MR. "NEIF" APGAR, of Dunellen, caught a eleven inch brook trout in the Raritan river, last Saturday, while fishing for perch. This is the third one of this species of fish we have heard of being caught in these waters since their introduction in certain streams of this vicinity six years ago by the "New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society."

AN exchange contains the following: "It is said that the large firm of Bates, Reed & Cooley of New York, have notified their clerks that any man who drinks must leave their employ. One of the clerks remonstrated saying, "There are a great many men to whom we could not sell if we did not treat them." "Let them go elsewhere then," was the reply.

SPICER & HUBBARD'S planing mill at Madison avenue and Third street, shut down work during the early part of the week—not because of the change of government effecting business in the wrong way, but because, under a new administration better times are promised, and Messrs. Spicer & Hubbard seized an early opportunity of putting new tubes in their steam boiler.

THE "Songbird bill" that passed the last legislature and became a law last week by Gov. Abbett's signature, should have the effect of driving the wholesale taxidermists out of the State or making them confine their work to English sparrows. It is now unlawful to kill for any purpose any night-hawk, whippoorwill, thrush, meadow lark, skylark, finch, martin, swallow, woodpecker, robin, oriole, red or cardinal bird, cedar bird, wren, tanager, catbird, bluebird, snowbird, tern, gull or any insectivorous or song-bird, not generally known as a game bird.

DEMAREST next to Music Hall has the control of the celebrated Philadelphia "Gilt Edge" butter. He is selling it a reasonable price.

ALERT'S jumper arrived Wednesday afternoon, and Foreman Stover and his company are now anxiously awaiting a chance to beat the other hose carriages.

TUESDAY evening, June 24, Mr. Carl Feininger and a few of his talented pupils will give a musicale at Reform Hall. A full programme of this promised treat, we will publish in our next issue.

A CORRESPONDENT elsewhere displays a desire to rap Councilmen of the present and past on the knuckles, for not establishing a building line that would secure for the city wide and uniform sidewalks.

HAMMERED brass teapots, with ebony handles, are among the newest things to be seen at fashionable breakfast tables. They are exceedingly pretty, and look as well on the sideboard as they do on the table.

THE first catch of Raritan shad was brought into Plainfield, Wednesday, by Messrs. Isaac and David Squier. In about four hours they had netted 161 fine fish, many of which weighed over seven pounds each.

QUITE a number of farmers in this county have found it necessary to buy considerable feed in order to bring their stock through the winter, and when the cows are finally turned out to grass, there will be many barns as empty as drums.

AT the Casino skating rink this evening, Master Glenville C. Kingsley and Miss Eva Dawson, pronounced by press and public to be America's greatest combination skaters, will give an exhibition. There will also be band music to-morrow afternoon.

THE Turf Exchange Hotel, 73 Courtlandt street, New York city, is a popular resort for Jerseymen. Mr. Wm. Stillwagon, the proprietor, is a favorite with all who call at the "Exchange." Pure liquors are dispensed over the bar, and an excellent lunch provided every day. Only three minutes walk from the Central railroad station.

GEORGE BECKER is sprinkling the streets of North Plainfield in a very satisfactory manner, and he should receive the patronage of all our neighbors over the brook in return for the trouble and money he has expended in order to furnish pure clear water. A small house has been built on Harmony street, within which has been placed a Hall Duplex Pump that raises gallons of clean water from a two-inch driven well.

High School "Commencement."

The fifteenth annual commencement of the Plainfield High School, will take place in Music Hall, Thursday evening, June 25th. The usual brilliant and beautiful assortment of young ladies—and a boy—will be graduated.

De Lussan, Clark and Remmertz.

As we published the full programme last week of the last Vocal, to be given in Music Hall, next Thursday evening, and as we gave in the preceding issue the list of soloists, there is nothing to add. In our humble opinion, however, this is to be the most pleasing and generally gratifying of the concerts.

Consider The Source.

Most people judge of the accuracy of information by the responsibility of its source, but the handful that hear, repeat and believe stories manufactured from inane ingredients by demented scribes, are to be pitied in their ignorance. Men of sense do not build "watch factories" within a few hundred feet of railroads.

Depravity in Vineland.

Vineland began as a prohibition town, and has grown up in that faith. Out of seventeen indictments found by the Cumberland county court at its present term, nine were against citizens of Vineland for illegal liquor selling, and eight of the nine pleaded guilty and were sentenced to pay a fine of forty dollars apiece.—Sun.

Rahway's Loss.

The people of Rahway feel deeply the loss of the Opera House, and efforts will be made to rebuild. Prominent citizens have said that if the Gordon estate contribute the ground and the bricks from the old building, and use the $10,000 of insurance money in the purchase of stock, the rest of the money needed for rebuilding could be subscribed in the form of a purchase of stock.

In Her Mind.

Mr. W. H. Ludlow of North Plainfield in a letter to the Rahway Democrat, claims that Mrs. Ludlow dreamed she saw the Rahway Opera House fire during the night it was burning. The next morning a tramp peddler stopped at her house whom she recognized as a man she saw in her dream running from the fire when it first started. All this happening before she knew of the conflagration.

Winding Up.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Plainfield Mutual Assurance Fire Co., held May 12th, 1885, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Directors of the Plainfield Mutual Assurance Fire Company that it is advisable, and for the benefit of such corporation, that the same should be dissolved on July 8th, 1885, at 12 o'clock, noon.

A meeting of the stockholders of said Company is therefore called for June 15th next, at 2 p. m., at Association Hall.

Personals.

The Hon. H. J. Taylor and wife have returned from their Winter "in the city," and are again settled down amid the enjoyments and attractions of Plainfield. His Honor seems to grow younger looking, every day.

The remains of Mrs. Albert Marsh, a former resident of this city, were brought from Hartford on Tuesday, and interred here. The deceased was a daughter of the late Leonard Vermeule and has two sisters residing in the old homestead on East Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McClure and family have left Plainfield for their hotel in the heart of the Adirondacks. A number of their many friends will visit them during the season, and enjoy their generous hospitality combined with the beauties of the Upper Saranac.

Mlle. Zelie de Lussan, the charming little vocalist who is to appear at next Thursday evening's concert, is carefully guarded by her mother from the fascinations of the admiring males. This same watchful chaperone is her daughter's teacher, and is deserving all the credit of training and cultivating the latter's voice.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the W. C. T. U. next Tuesday at 3 p. m. in the Reform Hall. Its importance requires that every member, as far as possible, should endeavor to be present.

By order of the President.

Cruel Misrepresentation.

That James D. Fish was the lawfully wedded husband of the unfortunate Sallie Reber, is a fact clearly established. Consequently, the elaborate details in the papers casting reflections upon the memory of the unhappy wife and mother, are certainly as cruel as the truth shows they are undeserved.

Jackson Democrats.

Some weeks since we published the names of a few old Democratic residents of Plainfield who voted for Gen. Jackson in 1828 and 1832. Since then others have informed us that they also were entitled to a place on the roll. As learned thus far the following named voted for Jackson in 1828, and are still residents of Plainfield—John Simpson (Councilman) John Berry, B. F. Mulford, H. J. Taylor, Frazee Whitehead and A. Westerfield. Also in 1832, Benjamin G. Magie, C. S. A. Davis, D. J. Marshall, Alex. D. Button, Wm. Swaim, Isaac Brown, "Uncle" David Smith, Furman Campbell, Jacob Irving, Israel Runyon. Who is the next one?

An Intellectual Treat.

We have had so much, recently, for which to thank the management of Music Hall, that commendation has become almost monotonous; yet again we are called upon to sincerely approve of the successful result of persistent efforts to secure the appearance of Mr. Joseph Jefferson. This old familiar star is undoubtedly one of the best comedians of the day, and a gentleman worthy of all honor. His great ability as an artist is heartily acknowledged by the best authorities, and his character as a private gentleman is without blemish. We take much pleasure, therefore, in welcoming him and his in Rip Van Winkle, at Music Hall, next Tuesday evening.

Central and Reading Railroad.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New Jersey Central railroad in Communipaw Friday last, there was a warm discussion concerning the advisability of leaving the road longer in the hands of the Philadelphia & Reading road, its lessors. Mr. Merritt offered a resolution declaring it to be the interest of the Central to preserve its relations with the Reading so long as with the return of prosperity it seemed likely that the Reading would be able to discharge her obligations to the Central, but demanding security from the Reading for the amount already due the Central under the lease. The present board was chosen. Their names are: Henry S. Little, John Kean, Edward C. Knight, Henry C. Kelsey, Sidney Shepherd, George DeB. Keim, Samuel Sloan, J. K. Todd and Robert Garrett. Mr. Griswold offered an opposing resolution, declaring that the Central should control its own road until the Reading was able to pay its debts, which was adopted.

Gypsies in New Jersey.

Passengers on their way to the city on the Central Railroad of New Jersey on Monday morning, saw a large number of white tents which had been pitched in an orchard on the east side of the track midway between Elmora station and Elizabeth. These tents belong to the well known band of gypsies whose queen died nearly two years ago and was buried with peculiar funeral rites in a cemetery near Newark. Since the death of their queen the gypsies have wandered about the United States, spending the most of their time in the South. The band comprises about 150 persons, men, women and children. A new queen has been chosen, and she rules with an almost despotic sway, her word being law with her subjects. No sooner was the encampment made than the women began going about the neighborhood telling fortunes and selling fancy articles of their own manufacture. The men apparently neither toil nor spin, their sole ambition being to trade horses with New Jersey farmers.

Save Your Flowers for the Soldiers.

In just two weeks from Saturday Decoration Day will be observed. It is the soldiers' day to commemorate the death of their comrades who have fallen in battle to preserve the Union. By the laying down of the lives of these soldiers who lie in the cemeteries, we are to day, as a nation, prosperous and happy, at peace with all nations and with ourselves. It is but a small return that we make to these warriors, who sleep the sleep of death, when we solemnly wend our way to their quiet resting places, and, with sacred reverence, strew their graves with the emblems of purity and love—flowers. The surviving veterans, with true devotion born of a soldier, make an earnest appeal to all patriotic citizens and lovers of the Union to commence now, and save all the flowers possible for that day. Advice will be given later where they can be forwarded to. Everyone can make an effort in this direction, and, by this devotion to the departed ones, instill in the rising generation a spirit of chivalric patriotism.

Facts For Firemen.

When the hook and ladder companies of New York reach a fire the first thing they do is to get the smoke out of the building as quickly as possible. This they do by going instantly to the roof and tearing off scuttles or breaking holes, as the case may require. On their way up to the roof they open the windows of the lower floors, so that the moment the roof is opened the smoke is drawn out and the fire blazes up. The old fashioned method was to direct the stream of water at a volume of smoke. But it has been discovered that that the locality of the smoke. But it has been discovered that the locality of the smoke is seldom, if ever, the locality of the fire. When the smoke has cleared away, the firemen are able to direct the stream at the exact spot where it is required, and thus save unnecessary damage by water. In the fire in the Madison House, in West Fourteenth street, recently, the process mentioned was pursued with such success that the fire that extended from roof to basement was extinguished without flooding any floor with water.—Exchange.

Oh, for Electric Lights!

The intention we spoke of to form a company for the furnishing of electric light in this city has met with such unexpected favor, that already the introduction of that desirable and effective method of illuminating our streets, seems assured. Mr. Charles Wann the representative of the company in Plainfield, and Mr. Edwin D. Mullen the Secretary and General Manager of the Thomson-Houston System, have during the past few days perfected arrangements for a display of the power and ability of the arc light they propose to supply our city and our citizens.

Power has been obtained at French's Mills, a dynamo, lamps and all other necessary appurtenances have arrived from Philadelphia and the Company's men are now here and engaged in constructing a temporary plant for the purposes of an exhibition. Arc lamps—six in all—will be placed on Front and Somerset streets, also on Park avenue, and one in Steile's drug store, to show the results of the light both in and out of doors. The lamps will be lighted, it is expected, next Tuesday evening, and continue burning for several nights.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The library will be closed until next Monday night.

The first meeting of the junior society of the boy's branch will be held on Friday afternoon of this week at 4 o'clock in the new rooms.

The first meeting of the senior society in the new hall will be held next Tuesday evening at 7.45 o'clock. Every member will receive one of the new badges.

The anniversary of the Association will be held on Monday evening, May 25th, in the Stillman Music Hall. Dr. J. H. Vincent will deliver an address. Full particulars will be given next week.

The annual meeting and election of officers and directors will be held this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the new rooms. Reports will be read by the Treasurer and General Secretary. This is a very important notice and all the members are requested to be be present.

The New Public School.

Architect Teale in the midst of other work, is laboring faithfully and effectively in preparing the plans of the new primary school building to be erected, this summer, on the location we designated some weeks ago. The very handsome site at the junction of LaGrande and Putnam avenues, where the Board of Education at one time thought of building, was exchanged some time since for a plot 200 by 200 feet, running through from Fifth to Sixth streets, between Richmond and Franklin place. On this, with the principle entrance facing Sixth street, will be erected one of the most attractive buildings in the city for a primary public school. Its exterior will be of brick, ornamented with terra cotta and stone. Although containing but two floors of daily use, the outside will be so embellished with peaked roofs, minarets and other architectural beauties, that it will overtop all buildings in its vicinity. It will be one of the most conspicuous ornaments to the city, creditable to the taste and judgment of the Board of Education and the architect, and will attract the eye and admiration of every passenger on the cars, or stranger that passes it.

In its interior there will be nine class rooms, each capable of holding fifty scholars comfortably, or maybe seven class and one assembly room. Every convenience for scholars and teachers will be arranged, and the heating, ventilating and lighting will be according to the demands of health and efficiency. The cost is not yet decided upon, but it will be about $24,000.

Meeting of the Fire Board.

The Board of Managers of the Fire Department met in regular meeting, Tuesday evening. All present, including Messrs. Brower and Depew—both claimants for the same place—members of the Board. The roll was called without Mr. Depew's name. The latter claimed to have his name called, as he was a member of the Board and had never resigned. Mr. Morris moved that Mr. Depew's name be called. Mr. Depew asked for the Board's authority to declare that he was not a member. Mr. Knowland stated that the Board proposed to proceed to business and not to answer questions; and that Mr. Depew had ways and means for any redress he demanded. The minutes of sundry meetings of the past, were read and approved, and the minutes of the April and May meetings were, on motion, dispensed with. Mr. Brower reported in favor of the well requested at Broadway and Kensington avenue. Treasurer Cutter reported that funds were low, and suggested that a loan of $2,500 be obtained in anticipation of taxes of 1885. The President expressed the desire of the Board that the Chief Engineer should be present at every meeting, and he requested that at each meeting the company representatives should be present, to make whatever statement they might desire in their company's interest. The following bills were ordered paid: J. M. Quimby & Son, $142.25; J. Egan $45; Mr. Depew was here excused by the President, the former stating that by his leaving he did not intend to waive any claim or rights as a member of the Board. Further bills as follows were also ordered paid: Z. I. Pratt, $35; D. A. Woodhouse, $5.50; Gutta Percha Mf'g Co., $8.31; Berry & Thorn, $120.21; Frank Day, $15; W. T. Newman, $14.50; J. N. Schenck, $64.75; J. E. Flannery, $24.50; A. M. Griffen, $21.90; Henry Jackson, $5.96; H. W. Bilyeau, $1.60; Wm. Jones, $4.20; M. J. McCarty, $1; Engine Co. No. 2, $9.10; P. Hapenny, $5.50; C. A. Butler, $2.15; John Rickert, $5; Wm. E. Moody, $8; P. Kiely, $1; A. Kinch, $9.30; F. W. Conger, $1; T. W. Morrison, $10; Runyon & Leonard, $9; P. Lynch, $2; W. L. Force & Bro., $23.45; John N. Shephard, $23; V. L. Frazee, $207.38; Geo. W. Grant, $2; J. Cooney, $1.80; T. McCue, $3; Berry & Thorn, $12.41; D. J. Boice, $108.79; H. Goelier, $1.50; A. Freeman, $2; Frank Schenck, $25; Plainfield Gas Light Co., $135.75; T. W. Morrison, $24.25; A. L. Cadmus, $8.75; J. A. Rogers, $68.75; W. B. Grannatt, $49; Chas. S. Guion, $110.25; Don A. Gaylord, $20; C. E. Johnson, $12.86; F. A. Dunham, $6; L. F. Wadsworth, $6.92; J. S. Cutter, $100; V. L. Frazee, $49.60; note to Jas. A. Preston, $280.37; J. Rickert, $4.70; J. Kelley, .80; W. Krausse, $9.75; L. F. Schenck, $9.75. Notices of the election of Co. officers were received and accepted from Engine Co., No. 3, Engine Co., No. 1, and Zephyr H. & L. Co., No. 1. An opinion was received from John H. Van Winkle, Esq., to the effect that a fireman's seven years of service need not be all in one company, and that when an interval in the continuous service occurred, the Board could use its discretion as to granting a certificate of exemption. No 2 requested the completion of the additions to its house, which petition was referred. Zephyr H. & L. Co., asked the Board to pay its janitor $10 a month. Filed. A firm of Engineers presented a communication regarding water works, the reading of which, on motion, was dispensed with. Warren Engine Co., submitted a proposition to sell its steamer to the Department for $625 cash, provided it shall control and use the same at fires as other steamers are controlled and used by other companies. A committee consisting of Commissioners Jones, Knowland and Brower was appointed in place of the previous committee (which was, on motion, discharged), with power to secure the services of an engineer from the Amoskeag Co., to examine and estimate the expense of repairing the steamer. Mr. Morris offered a resolution requiring the Assessor to assess the $7,000 voted at the recent election. Carried. Messrs. Knowland and Morris were nominated for the office of Secretary of the Board, and a ballot resulted as follows; Knowland, 3; Morris, 1—Neither candidate voting. The President announced the election of Mr. Knowland, who accepted the position. A motion was carried to the effect that the Secretary be authorized to employ a clerk at his own expense. The newly elected Chief and Assistants appeared before the Board, and were authorized to assume their duties on the 15th inst., at noon. A resolution was offered by Mr. Knowland to the effect that all requests for supplies shall come before the Board through the Chief, or in his absence, his assistants. This resolution was subsequently withdrawn. An amendment was read and laid over providing for the installment of Chief and Assistants, and the procuring of badges for their use during their terms of office. On motion the President and Treasurer were authorized to borrow $2,500. Mr. C. M. Raybert was elected a member of Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1. The Board adjourned to meet on the 20th inst., in Alert Hose house.

Annual Election of Music Hall Directors.

The by-laws of the Music Hall Association of the city of Plainfield explicitly provide for the holding of the annual election of a board of directors, and the annual meeting of the stockholders, on the second Monday of May. The laws of the State imperatively rule that the polls for the election of directors of any association incorporated under such laws shall close before nine o'clock of the evening of the day fixed for such election by the by-laws. The notice of the annual election, and the notice of the annual meeting of the Music Hall Association of this city, which notices were duly advertised, were entirely in accordance with all the requirements and provisions stated above.

The direct consequences of all this, however, were naturally repugnant to business men who believed in securing an assurance that they were doing right before they did it. Nobody was to blame but the stockholders themselves who had endorsed and adopted the by-laws. Yet the result was that the polls would be closed before the business of the annual meeting could be transacted; and the effect was that the stockholders were called upon to re elect or reject the old Board before hearing its reports of what had been accomplished either for good or for bad.

But it could not be helped at so late a day as Monday last, when a score of stockholders gathered in the parlors of Music Hall at 8 o'clock, p. m., to vote for a new Board. There was considerable of that kind of audible expostulation that the boys call "kicking," but the hands of the clock kept moving just the same, and the tellers, Messrs. B. F. Coriell and F. Green, with no concern visible but the ballot box, quietly received the proxies of the absent from the hands of Manager Marsh, and patiently awaited the time of closing the polls. A ticket printed with the names of the then existing Board, had been provided for the information of those who might ask who its members were; and guided by this ticket a stockholder could either vote for or against the continuance of the old management. Yet some considered the printed ticket evidence that the election of the old Board, was "cut and dried."

This "evidence" did not amount to much in the way of proof, yet the fact was the re-election of the old Board by majorities of over three hundred, had been "cut and dried" (whatever that is) before recalcitration set in. For which expression of the good judgment and common sense of the majority of the stockholders, the public is much obliged. The past season has in every way been experimental, and opened late, yet the Treasurer shows in his report given below a balance of $857.84. This balance would have been over $1,200 but for the unfortunate absence of Theo. Thomas' ability to attract the second time. It is both sensible and just to continue the Board of the past year in power another and a full season. Its members know the faults of the building, and they are the ones best fitted to overcome those faults. They know the mistakes made in the selection of attractions of the past, and consequently are the only ones who can entirely avoid the same mistakes in the future.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The stockholders present in the parlors of Music Hall, last Monday evening, called themselves together at 8 o'clock with Mr. Mason W. Tyler, President of the Board of Directors, "in the chair." President Tyler delivered a verbal but concise report of the accomplishments of the very accomplished Board of 1884-85, and referred those interested to the printed report of receipts and disbursements for further facts and figures, as presented by the Treasurer, Mr. O. T. Waring.

Mr. Samuel Milliken moved that the time of closing the polls for the election of a Board of Directors, be extended to 8:50. This was carried, but afterwards was justly opposed by Mr. Alexander Gilbert. He claimed that the meeting was but an incident of the election. The State law provided for the election, and the by-laws provided for the meeting. No action could be taken at the meeting to interfere with the provisions of the law regarding the election, or govern it in any way. Corporation Counsel Marsh, Secretary of the Board of Directors and Manager of the Music Hall, endorsed such view of the question. President Tyler ruled, however, that if the polls closed before nine o'clock, the letter and spirit of the law would be complied with.

Mr. Milliken then moved an amendment to the by-laws of the Association providing that the annual meeting of the stockholders would be held on the first Monday in May—thus occurring one week prior to the election of a Board of Directors. Such amendment required a majority vote of all the stock of the Association, and a vote showed that but 84 out of the 800 shares were represented at the present meeting. The motion, consequently, was not carried, although every share was voted in its favor. This result also proved, for the same reason, that a quorum was not present and no business of any kind could be transacted. Mr. Gilbert then spoke at some length in defense of himself and fellow members of the old Board. He emphatically stamped as an unjust accusation any imputation that the Board had offered a "cut and dried" ticket to re-elect itself. He claimed it was entirely a "labor of love" to serve, and the office was without profit, honor or emolument. If other stockholders desired to act in such capacity, he was certain that he, and he felt assured that his associates, would gladly step down and out.

All present that could get a chance to talk, disclaimed any intention of charging the Board with secretly conspiring for the perpetuation of its office and power. In answer to a number of questioning critics, Mr. Gilbert confessed that the acoustic properties and the heating and ventilating of the Hall, were all defective. Experts had examined the interior, and found the walls of the auditorium to be too flat. An echo of the voice and the vibration of sound, was caused by a lack of upholstering. Several inexpensive plans to overcome this difficulty had been suggested, such as the hanging of curtains in the windows and portierres in the doors, carpeting the parquette, and placing an open railing around the orchestra. During the summer the Hall would be remodelled in this and other respects, and the system of heating and ventilating would be altered or perfected. These changes are in the hands of a sub-committee of the Board, and the stockholders and the public may rest assured that when the season again opens, much more satisfactory results may be expected.

The following were then presented and read:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

To the Stockholders of the Music Hall Association of Plainfield:—Pursuant to the requirements of law, I submit herewith my annual report as Secretary of said Association. Since the last annual meeting of stockholders, the Board of Directors, having duly perfected their organization by the election of Mason W. Tyler, President, Orville T. Waring, Treasurer, and the undersigned as Secretary, and Messrs. Randolph, Waring, Chapman, Marsh, and the President ex officio as Executive Committee, entered upon the discharge of their duties, and have held nineteen regular and special meetings at the office of the Association or elsewhere on adjournment. Mr. George F. Opdyke tendered his resignation to the Board on the first day of January, 1885, and the Board having first accepted the resignation proceeded to fill the vacancy in accordance with the by-laws. Mr. Benjamin A. Hegeman was unanimously elected. The death of Mr. Alfred Berry caused another vacancy in the Board of Directors, but it was thought best, since this occurred late in the fiscal year, to allow the stockholders to fill the vacancy in the first instance at the annual election. The special meeting of stockholders, held June 12, 1884, having authorized the issue of $8,000 of preferred stock to meet indebtedness incurred pursuant to their order at the preceding annual meeting, a strenuous effort was made by the Board to carry out the wishes of the stockholders, but it was found impossible to do so, no stock being subscribed for outside of the Board, and an insufficient amount there. The special meeting of stockholders held February 6, 1885, was accordingly called to determine whether to mortgage the property of the association to meet the special indebtedness above referred to. The vote to mortgage was 602 in the affirmative and 6 in the negative. By order of the Board I applied to various insurance companies and capitalists for a loan of the money upon mortgage at 5 per cent, but none were found willing to loan at this rate except upon the additional security of a collateral bond from some individual. No individual offering to step in the gap, the money was procured from Mr. Charles Hyde of Plainfield, at 6 per cent under highly favorable conditions in other respects—at least 2 per cent for the first year being saved to the Association by reason of Mr. Hyde's accepting the abstract of title previously made by the counsel of the Association in purchasing the property, and the Association having the privilege of paying off the principal in installments of not less than five hundred dollars at its convenience.

Respectfully,

May 11, 1885. CRAIG A. MARSH.

HIS LOSS WAS HER GAIN.

"Well, madam," said a fashionable physician to a wealthy lady patient, "if you don't like my prescriptions, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic, or some other quack stuff." "You don't mean it doctor," she answered, "but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call quack stuff is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of neuralgia arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends, and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS.

A BATCH OF LIVELY GOSSIPING SELECTIONS.

WHICH WAS SWITCH.

A German scientist has counted the hairs on his wife's head, and quotes her at 128,000 to the inch. We don't see how he could tell which was switch.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

Psyche—"No, darling, you must not come to-morrow night. You know it is the fashion now for young ladies to give 'spinster dinners' on the eve of marriage and only female friends are invited. I give mine to-morrow."

"Hyperion—"Curious custom; and yet a wise precaution. Will you make your own biscuits?"

"Oh, of course."

"How lucky! I will have a chance to see whether your guests survive."

USES OF STRAW.

Little Dick—"Pa, what is that florist putting that dirty old straw and stuff in that piano box for?"

Pa—"That is not a piano box. It is a hot-bed frame and he is getting it ready for planting."

"But what good is that old straw? It smells awful."

"It develops gases and goes through other chemical processes which produce heat, so that a fire won't be needed."

"Is that why they use dirty straw in the street cars, pa?"

THE LIVELY PREACHER.

Mrs. DeBlank—"Brooklyn must be a very healthy city."

Mr. DeBlank—"I had an idea that it was rather sickly."

"That is impossible. I see Mr. Talmage claims that he has not been sick a day in his twenty-four years of preaching."

"Oh! That is no argument in favor of Brooklyn. It simply shows the benefit of gymnastics."

"I did not know he was a gymnast."

"Guess you never saw him preach."

QUESTION OF WEIGHT.

Mrs. Newbride—"I am sorry you could not come to my wedding, but you got the piece of cake sent you, didn't you? I made it myself."

Mr. Oldback—"Oh yes; it arrived safely."

"I am so glad. I sent you an awful big piece because I was sure you would like it. It must have weighed nearly two pounds."

"Is that all?" I thought it weighed about twenty pounds."

"Indeed! Why, when?"

"After I had eaten it."

HIS OWN FAULT.

Customer—"See here, sir, this medicine is a fraud."

Medicine Vender—"What's the matter with it?"

"You said it was good for colds and you charged me two dollars a bottle for it and it isn't worth a cent."

"Oh! I guess you did not take it aright."

"Take it right? I began on the horrid stuff just as soon as the cold came on."

"That's what's the matter. You should have begun two days before the cold came on."

SCARING THEM OFF.

Mr. Winks—"Goodness me! There is a young couple looking at that vacant house next door, and they've got a baby—looks awful cross, too."

Mrs. Winks—Horrors! What shall we do? Can't we scare them off some way? Go tell them the roof leaks and the walls are damp and—tell them the last tenant died of small pox."

"I'd like to, dear, but it wouldn't do. The landlord would sue for damages."

"Oh, mercy; but something must be done, Mr. Winks, before they decide to take it. Oh! do think of something."

"I have it. Run down to the piano and sing 'Sweet Violets.'"

ANOTHER CORNER PROBABLE.

First Bostonian—"Hist! I've struck it now; can make a million as easily as rolling off a log."

Second Bostonian—"Would that all things were as easy as talking. What wild scheme have you struck now?"

"No wildness about it; sure thing; all I want is a little capital to start on, and that you can furnish. Come nearer; even the walls have ears. I want you to help me get up a corner."

"A corner? What in?"

"Microscopes."

"Nonsense. What is going to cause any great demand for microscopes?"

"Goodness! Haven't you heard? The religion of Harvard College is to be investigated."

A BRILLIANT MATCH.

American Heiress (who has just married a title)—"What did that vulgar fellow mean by addressing you so familiarly, Count?"

Foreign Count—(her new husband)—"Oh, nothing, nothing; my dear. He just happens to know me."

"But he did not call you by your title."

"Well, no."

"Don't he know you are a count?"

"No; he only knows me by my stage name."

"Stage name? How romantic! Why, you darling, I did not know you had been on the stage."

"Oh, yes; I've been driving a Broadway stage for ten years."

A DULL PLACE.

Employment Agent—"What! you back here again? I shan't try to find many more places for you. What's the matter with the last one? They paid you regularly, didn't they?"

Domestic—"Oh, yes, the pay was reg'lar enough."

"Work hard?"

"No, the work was easy enough."

"Then why in the world did you leave?"

"It was so dull there."

"Dull? Why, the mistress is one of the most popular ladies in society, and the house is always full of company. How could it be dull?"

"Well, you see, her callers never talks about the servants nor their neighbors nor nothin' that I can understand."

THE GLORY OF NIAGARA.

Edith—"How nice it would be if we could both go to the same resort next summer. I rather expect to go to Saratoga again. It is such a delightful place, lots of gentlemen there, you know."

Eulalia—"Oh, I couldn't think of it. I am going to Niagara Falls, as usual. The gentlemen are not so numerous there as at Saratoga, but it is ever so much nicer."

"Well, I never was there, but I am sure I would not prefer it to Saratoga."

"Oh, indeed you would. If you spent one season at Niagara you would never go anywhere else, especially with your ma and pa guarding you like hawks."

"But what advantage can Niagara have?"

"The noise of the falls drowns the sound of kissing."

NO DANGER.

Mr. Minks—"My dear, you should not put coins in your mouth, for diseases are often caught in that way. I noticed yesterday that while you were looking through your pocketbook for small change to give the street-car conductor you placed a quarter between your lips and held it there."

Mrs. Minks—"Well, suppose I did; where's the harm?"

"You should read the papers, Mrs. Minks. Scientists have discovered bacteria on silver coins. Do you know what terrible things bacteria are?"

"Not exactly, no."

"Why, they are little animals which get into the human system and cause all sorts of diseases."

"Is that all? Well, then I am in no danger from the money you give me."

"And why not, pray?"

"You always squeeze a quarter hard enough to crush all animal life out of it before you part with it."

UNNATURAL.

Mrs. DeFashion—"What awful grammar! Here is a little poem by Dinah Mulock Craik, entitled 'Baby and Dog and I.'"

Mr. DeFashion—"That title is all right, it seems to me."

"Well, perhaps it is not ungrammatical, after all, but it is abhorrently unnatural. The idea!"

"Why, what should it be?"

"'I and Dog and Baby.'"

THOUSAND MILE TICKETS.

The decision given by a Massachusetts Judge recently, as to detached coupons of a thousand mile "book," is sound and interesting. The possessor of one of these tickets, a lecturer, tore from the book coupons enough for his transportation and gave the book to his agent, who went on ahead. The conductor refused to accept the detached coupons. The Judge says he must, and he should. They have been paid for and they represent so many miles of transportation promised.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER I.

An Act to authorize and empower the trustees of any Presbyterian church, to whom as such trustees any conveyance of lands and real estate has been made, to convey the same to the church of which they are trustees, by its corporate name.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases where the conveyance of lands and real estate has been made to the Presbyterian church, as trustees of said church, said trustees or their successors in office are hereby empowered and authorized to convey the same to the particular church of which they are trustees, by its corporate name, and such conveyance shall vest in said church as good, effectual and valid title as if the conveyance to said trustees had been to such church in its corporate name.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved January 28, 1885.

CHAPTER II.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning roads," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the township committee in their discretion in any township in this state in which overseers of the highways are elected by road districts, to change the number and alter the boundaries of the road districts of the township during the months of January and February of any year, such change or alteration shall be made by resolution of the said committee defining the boundaries of new districts and the changes to be made in any district, [illegible] and a copy of said resolution certified by the township clerk shall be served on the overseer of the roads in any district affected by the change on or before the first day of March following its adoption.

2. And be it enacted, That notice of the first election of an overseer of the highways in any road district so created or changed shall be given by the clerk of the township, at the time and in the manner that overseers of the highways are now required by law to give notice of such elections, except that the notice to be given by the township clerk shall contain a description of the boundaries of the road district so created or changed by resolution.

3. And be it enacted, That all subsequent elections of overseers in such districts shall be noticed and conducted as in districts that have not been changed.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved January 28, 1885.

CHAPTER III.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the protection of game and fish," approved April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, and other game laws of this state, providing for the payment of fines into the county treasuries.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all that portion of fines hereafter collected of any person violating the game laws or fishing laws of this state, provided to be paid to townships, shall on and after the passage of this act be paid to the collector or treasurer of the county in which the offense shall have been committed.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved January 28, 1885.

CHAPTER IV.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of persons imprisoned on civil process" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the seventh section of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

[7. And be it enacted, That the court to which such application is made are required to name the time and place at which they will attend to hear what can be alleged for or against the liberation of such debtor, which time shall not be less than forty days after making such application of which time and place, so appointed by the court, the debtor shall cause notice, in writing, at least thirty days previous thereto, to be served on or left at the usual place of residence of the attorney of the plaintiff at whose suit he was imprisoned, and of the attorney of each creditor who has lodged a detainer with the keeper of the prison, and also of each of the creditors of the imprisoned debtor, if residing within this state, and have the same inserted for four weeks once in each week, in one of the newspapers published in the county town of the county in which the debtor is imprisoned.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 5, 1885.

CHAPTER V.

An Act relative to interest on arrears of taxes and assessments in incorporated cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That at any time within one year after the passage of this act, any person or persons may pay to the collector of taxes or other person authorized to receive the same in any incorporated city in this state, the amount of any tax or assessment due upon any real property belonging to any such person or persons, laid or imposed prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four and now remaining unpaid, together with interest thereon at seven per centum per annum, to be calculated from the time interest is properly chargeable thereon to the time of such payment, together with the actual expenses theretofore incurred by any such city for the enforcement and payment of said taxes or assessments, and the collector of taxes, or other person authorized to receive the same, shall make and deliver to the person or persons making such payment a receipt therefor, and shall forthwith cancel the record of such tax or assessment; upon such payment such tax or assessment shall cease to be a lien upon the real estate or property, and shall be deemed and taken to be fully paid, satisfied and discharged, and there shall be no right to any further interest or penalty by reason of such tax or assessment not having been paid within the time heretofore required by law, or by reason of any statute heretofore requiring the payment hereafter of any penalty or interest over seven per centum upon any tax or assessment; provided, however, that nothing in this act contained shall authorize the receipt, under the provisions of this act, of any such taxes or assessments in cases where lands and real estate have been sold for taxes or assessments, and bought in by any other person than the city in which said taxes and assessments are laid, or any officer for the use of such city; [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be, and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 5, 1885.

CHAPTER VI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the taxation of railroad and canal property," approved April tenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in case any property of any railroad or canal company which has been or shall hereafter be in any year assessed by the local authorities of any taxing district [illegible]

CHAPTER VIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "A supplement to an act to incorporate trustees of religious societies" (Revision), approved April ninth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for any diocesan convention, presbytery, classis, synod, annual conference, or other governing body, having jurisdiction over a number of incorporated or unincorporated churches, congregations, or societies of any church or religious denomination in this state, at any stated or regularly convened meeting thereof, to elect or appoint certain discreet persons who, upon filing the certificate hereinafter provided, shall be and become a body corporate, capable of taking, holding, managing and dealing with property, both real and personal, to and for the uses hereinafter mentioned, and that the presiding officer and clerk or secretary of such governing body at the time of such election shall immediately thereafter prepare and sign a certificate in writing under their hands and seals, which certificate shall contain first the name or title by which such body corporate shall be known, and second the names of the trustees so as aforesaid elected and the times for which they were respectively chosen, to serve; which certificate, duly acknowledged by said presiding officer and clerk or secretary, shall be recorded by the county clerk of any county within the bounds of the jurisdiction of such governing body, and in the book kept for record of such certificates; and such trustees, upon the filing of such certificate, shall thereupon be and become a body corporate by the name therein mentioned; and that any such governing body may, in its discretion elect more than one set of trustees in manner aforesaid, who may in like manner become incorporated and who shall adopt such names as shall serve to distinguish and designate them, reference being had to the object of their trust; and that such trustees shall be elected for three years, one or more each year, except that the first trustees shall be elected, one-third of the number for one year, one-third for two years, and one-third for three years; all of which trustees shall, when so required by the governing body by which they were elected, furnish to said body a statement and account of the particulars and items of their trust, and permit an auditing of the same, and an inspection of their books and investments, and all things pertaining thereto, at such time and in such mode as said governing body shall direct.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1885.

CHAPTER IX.

An Act to defray the expenses of the New Jersey commission for the New Orleans Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That for the purpose of defraying the expenses incurred under the direction of the commissioner appointed to represent this state at the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans, the comptroller is hereby authorized to draw his warrant upon the treasurer to pay such expenses upon vouchers presented by the commissioner, to be approved by the governor and the comptroller; provided, that the total expenditure shall not exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars; and provided further, that vouchers be taken for all sums of money expended under this act and filed with the comptroller of the state, and that the commissioner report an itemized statement of the expenditure of all moneys under this act to the next legislature.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1885.

CHAPTER X.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That sections one hundred and [illegible] hundred and [illegible] of the act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be and the same are hereby amended so that the same shall read as follows:

[107. And be it enacted, That every cause shall be tried at the next term after issue joined; any cause may be tried at the same term in which issue is joined, if there be time and opportunity to try the same.

108. And be it enacted, That notice of trial may be given for a day in term, if the cause be not at issue in season to be noticed for the first day of the term, or if it be at issue in season to be noticed for the first day of the term.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 10, 1885.

CHAPTER XI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the construction, curbing and paving of sidewalks and crosswalks in townships," approved May ninth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section two of the act to which this is a supplement, and which reads as follows:

[2. And be it enacted, That after the passage of any ordinance as aforesaid it shall be the duty of the township committee to cause a notice signed by the chairman of said committee to be published in a daily newspaper printed and circulating in such township, or if none be printed in such township, in a daily newspaper printed in the county and circulating in such township, for five consecutive days (Sundays excepted) which notice shall require the owner or owners of each lot in front of which or bordering which a sidewalk shall, by such ordinance, be directed to be constructed, curbed and paved, to construct, curb and pave the same in the manner prescribed in such ordinance within such time as the township committee shall direct, not being less than thirty days after the first day of such publication; [illegible]

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

Free From Lime and Absolutely Pure.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from Cream of Tartar specially refined and prepared for its use by patent processes by which the Tartrate of Lime is totally eliminated.

This highly important result has been attained only with great care, labor, and expense. In money alone a quarter of a million dollars has been invested in patents, machinery, and appliances by which the crude Cream of Tartar, being procured direct from the wine districts of Europe and subjected in this country to these exclusive processes, is rendered entirely free, not only from the objectionable Tartrate of Lime, but from other foreign substances.

This adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing Royal Baking Powder; but, as all its other ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care, and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is entirely free from any extraneous substance, and chemically pure in all respects.

No lime, earth, alum, or impurity of any kind can, by inadvertence or by the use of adulterated articles or otherwise, be introduced into the "Royal," and it contains no ingredients except those certified by the most eminent chemists necessary to make a pure, wholesome, and perfect Baking Powder.

It costs more to manufacture the Royal Baking Powder than any other, but it is, as shown by chemical analysis, the only "absolutely pure" Baking Powder made.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS.

I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or any injurious substances.
E. G. LOVE, Ph.D.

It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.
H. A. MOTT, Ph.D.

The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and these practical tests, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, have proved it perfectly healthful, of uniform, excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases.
J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

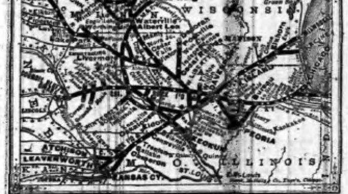
A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE



CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul, and intermediate points.

PLAINFIELD, New Jersey,
OFFICE OF CITY CLERK.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to pass the same.

Further notice is given that the Common Council will consider said ordinance at their next regular meeting, to be held in the Council chamber, Monday, June 1, 1885, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place interested parties may be heard, if they desire.
O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 4th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

appointing commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, and prescribing their duties.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That John W. Murray, Nathan Harper and Jos. A. Hubbard are constituted and appointed commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, macadamized under ordinances entitled respectively "An Ordinance to macadamize Crescent avenue from the middle of Park avenue to the middle of Sixth street," and "An Ordinance to macadamize Seventh street from the middle of Broadway to the easterly side of Park avenue and from the middle of Central avenue to the easterly side of Plainfield avenue," which said Ordinances were approved October 7th, A. D., 1884, and "An Ordinance to provide for part of the expense of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street," approved December 30, 1884.

SECTION 2. Within ten days after this Ordinance goes into effect under the charter of the City, said Commissioners shall take and subscribe before the City Judge or other magistrate of the City of Plainfield, an oath or affirmation that they will justly, fairly and faithfully make said assessment and execute and discharge the duties imposed upon them by virtue of their appointment as such Commissioners according to the best of their skill, judgment and understanding without favor or partiality. Thereupon said Commissioners shall give at least five days notice by advertisement in the official papers of the City, and by mailing written or printed copies of said notice to the post office address of each of the persons owning land along the line of said macadamizing, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, stating when and where said Commissioners will meet for the purpose of making said assessment, and of hearing whatever any person interested in said assessments may have to say or offer relative to said assessments. Said hearing may be from time to time adjourned by said commissioners. Said commissioners shall give all persons interested full and fair opportunity to be heard before them, shall carefully go over the entire line of said macadamizing, and review every tract of land and premises affected thereby, shall estimate the benefit as well as the damages (if any) sustained by each tract and having first carefully considered the premises and all that may be produced or offered relative thereto, they shall make the said assessment according to the statutes and ordinances in such case made and provided, and report the same in writing to the Common Council for ratification. Said commission is hereby empowered to employ a competent surveyor to make necessary maps and surveys and also to employ such clerical assistance as may be necessary.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER XV.

An Act authorizing [illegible] for work, labor or materials [illegible] construction of any article [illegible].

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the lien which any person may have upon any chattel in his possession for labor or materials bestowed or employed in the repair or construction thereof, shall be in no wise waived, merged or impaired by the recovery of any judgment for the moneys due for such labor or materials; and such lien may be enforced by levy and sale under execution upon such judgment.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 16, 1885.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Further Supplement to the act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any unincorporated company or voluntary association consisting of seven or more persons organized for religious, social, benevolent, charitable, literary or political purposes, and having a recognized name may be sued by such recognized name in any of the courts of this state in any action affecting the common property or the joint rights and liabilities of such company or association; all process or other papers in such suit shall be served on the president or treasurer for the time being of such company or association, or on the person authorized to perform the duties of such offices and such suit shall have the same force and effect as regards the joint rights, property and effects of such company or association as if it were prosecuted in the names of all the members of association in the manner now provided by law; such suit shall not abate by reason of the death, resignation, removal, withdrawal or legal incapacity of any officer or officers of such company or association or by reason of any change in the membership thereof.

2. And be it enacted, That when judgement shall be obtained against the defendant in such suit, execution may issue thereon in the same manner that executions now issue upon judgments against corporations, and the sheriff or other officer may by virtue of such execution levy upon and expose to sale all the common property of such company or association not by law exempt from sale under execution whether the same be held in the name of such company or association or by the trustees thereof in trust for such company or association.

3. And be it enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent any person having any cause of action against any such company or association for which the members thereof or any of them are or may be personally liable as heretofore, nor shall any judgment obtained against any such association or company by virtue of the provisions of this act, after execution issued thereon and returned in whole or in part unsatisfied, be a bar to any action to recover the residue thereof against such member or members as may be personally liable therefor.

4. And be it enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to give to such companies or associations any of the powers or liabilities of corporations except as herein set out.

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1885.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Supplement to "An act to authorize the conveyance to the Ladies' Hospital Association, of the city of Paterson, of the right, title and interest of the state of New Jersey, in and to certain lands in the city of Paterson," approved February seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

Whereas, in the preamble to the act to which this is a supplement it is stated that the deed for the lands therein mentioned "contained no penalty of forfeiture or reversion," and that "the interest of the state of New Jersey in and to said land and premises is of the remotest kind and of the most trifling value;"

And whereas, the act of eighteen hundred and thirty-eight, authorizing said deed, contained a provision of penalty and reversion, which was omitted in the deed;

And whereas, the officers of the state charged with the valuation of the right, title and interest of the state of New Jersey in and to the lands aforesaid, by the act to which this is a supplement, have hesitated to act in the premises because of the apparent misapprehension of the legislature as to the actual interest of the state in the said lands; therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the consideration to be named in the deed authorized to be given by the act to which this is a supplement shall be the full and fair value of the right, title and interest of the state of New Jersey in and to said lands and premises, including the value of the reversionary interest, the same as if such reversion had been provided for in the original deed from the state for said land, dated February thirteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-four.

Approved February 16, 1885.

CHAPTER XVIII.

An Act to limit the duration of the lien of recognizances.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all recognizances of bail made or hereafter entered into in or before any court or magistrate having a criminal jurisdiction in this state, which have been or shall hereafter be forfeited, but upon which no writ of scire facias or other process to enforce or collect the same shall have been issued within a period of six years after the same shall have been entered into shall be and the same are hereby declared to be no longer a lien or charge upon or against any lands, tenements, hereditaments or real estate of which any surety named in any such recognizance was or shall have been seized at the time of his entering into such recognizance or at any time afterwards.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XX.

An Act to provide for the election of a chosen freeholder in incorporated boroughs.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the legal voters of each incorporated borough within this state shall at the next and each succeeding annual borough election vote for and elect one freeholder commonly called a chosen freeholder, who shall hold his office for one year; provided, the voters in such borough do not at present vote with the township in which it is situate for freeholder.

2. And be it enacted, That the chosen freeholder so elected by any incorporated borough shall thereupon be and become a member of the board of chosen freeholders of the county in which such borough is situate, the same in all respects as though he had been elected by the voters of any township or ward in said county.

3. And be it enacted, That this be a public act and that it take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning idiots and lunatics," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section seven of the act entitled "An act concerning idiots and lunatics," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be amended so as to read as follows:

[7. And be it enacted, That whenever any idiot or lunatic shall be seized of any lands or real estate and it shall be represented to the chancellor on behalf of such idiot or lunatic, by his or her guardian or guardians, duly appointed in the manner prescribed in this act, that his or her interest requires that the said lands should be sold or disposed of, the chancellor may proceed in a summary manner, by reference to a master, to inquire into the merits of such application, and whenever and as often as it shall satisfactorily appear to the court that the interest of such idiot or lunatic requires, or will be substantially promoted by a sale of his or her lands or real estate, or of any part or parts thereof, the chancellor may order and direct the guardian or guardians of such idiot or lunatic to sell or dispose of the whole or any part or parts of such lands or real estate in such way and manner and with such restrictions as shall be deemed expedient; provided, however, that nothing in this act contained shall authorize the sale of any lands or real estate contrary to the provisions of any last will and testament, or of any conveyance by which the same were devised or granted to such idiot or lunatic.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the court of chancery" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful in any action now pending or hereafter to be brought in the court of chancery for the partition and sale of lands for the clerk of said court to tax as a part of the taxable costs in favor of the complainant in said action any and all such legal fees and charges as may have been necessarily paid or incurred for or in behalf of said party in procuring searches against or in relation to the title of the lands sought to be partitioned or sold in said action, which fees or charges shall be ascertained in such way as the chancellor may direct.

2. And be it enacted, That in any such suit it shall be lawful for the chancellor in his discretion to allow a counsel fee to the complainant to be taxed in the bill of costs whether an appearance shall have been entered, or an answer or answers shall have been filed by any of the defendants or not.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the orphans' court and relating to the powers and duties of the ordinary and the orphans' court and surrogates" (Revision, page 758.)

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the ordinary shall have full authority to appoint a special guardian for the property, real or personal, within this state of any non-resident minor, and the orphans' court of any county shall have concurrent authority to appoint a special guardian for any property, real or personal, within such county of any minor residing without the state; and said courts shall have authority to control, remove or substitute such guardian, and in any case not already provided for by statute or the rules of the court, the court shall take such action in the matter as it shall deem meet for the advantage of the infant.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXVII.

An Act for the relief of Charles A. Koerner.

Whereas, on the eighth day of March, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, suit was entered in the Essex county circuit court against Charles A. Koerner, of the city of Newark, in said county, by the state of New Jersey, for the sum of five hundred dollars, on account of a certain forfeited recognizance heretofore entered into by the said Charles A. Koerner to the said county for the appearance of Louis Lobbe at the court of general quarter sessions in and for said county;

And Whereas, on the fourteenth day of April, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, the said Charles A. Koerner paid to Oscar Keen, prosecutor of the pleas for the said county, the sum of five hundred dollars, [illegible] on account of said suit brought as aforesaid, and four hundred and seventy-five dollars thereof paid into the state treasury;

And Whereas, the said Charles A. Koerner, subsequent to the payment of said sum of money, did procure, at his own expense, a requisition from the governor of the state of New Jersey to the governor of the state of Minnesota, and by means whereof did deliver up into custody the said Louis Lobbe, who was accordingly sentenced by said court of general quarter sessions to the state prison for the term of three years, and to pay a fine of one thousand dollars and costs;

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the treasurer of this state be and he is hereby authorized and required to pay to Charles A. Koerner, of the city of Newark, county of Essex, the sum of [illegible] hundred and seventy-five dollars.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall [illegible] take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning corporations" (Revision) approved April seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any corporation of this state now existing or hereafter to be incorporated under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement, having for its object the improvement and sale of and owning lands in or near any of the seaside resorts of this state, and not located on the line or at the terminus of any railroads in this state, may, by a vote of the majority of the capital stock of such corporation, subscribe to the capital stock of and become a stockholder in any railroad company about to construct its line of railroad so as to extend to, through or over the lands owned by such corporation; provided that such subscription shall not exceed one-fifth of the amount of the capital stock of such subscribing corporation.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning roads," approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section ninety-four of the act to which this is a supplement, which reads as follows:

[94. And be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any overseer of any road to require or employ any person to work on any road between the first day of October and the first day of April, except so far as may be necessary to make the roads passable when obstructed by snow or rain; provided that nothing in this section shall prevent the macadamizing of roads according to law during the months of March, October and November;] be amended by inserting at the end of the proviso the following: "or the gravelling of roads during the months of October and November."

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Further Supplement to an act respecting conveyances (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

Whereas, Commissioners of deeds in and for this state in some instances have, through inadvertance or mistake, continued to take acknowledgments and proofs of deeds, mortgages and other writings after their term of office had expired, or after their commissions had become void by reason of removal out of the township, ward or district in which they resided at the time of their appointment, and innocent persons may be subjected to loss or injury thereby; therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all acknowledgments and proofs of deeds, mortgages and other writings, and the certificates thereof, heretofore made or taken before or by any commissioner of deeds in and for this state, whose term of office had expired, or whose office had been vacated, or whose commission had become void at the time of taking such acknowledgment or proof; and the records of such deeds, mortgages and other writings are hereby confirmed and made valid and legal and effectual to the extent that the same would have been valid, legal and effectual if the term of office of the commissioner taking such acknowledgment or proof had not expired, nor his office been vacated, nor his commission become void as aforesaid.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed February 17, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A Supplement to an act concerning roads, approved April sixteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the overseers of the highways of the several townships of this state to remove or cause to be removed during the months of August and September of each year, the briers, thistles and weeds growing on the highways of their respective districts, and to clear out and open to all gutters, drains and ditches along or across said roads within their respective limits and divisions, or so much thereof each year as may be determined upon by the legal voters of their respective districts at the annual road district meeting.

Approved February 23, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXII.

An Act to provide for the execution and giving of official bonds by clerks and treasurers of boroughs and villages.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all incorporated villages and boroughs in this state where, by existing general or special laws, there is the office of village or borough clerk, or the office of village or borough treasurer, the clerks and the treasurers of such villages or boroughs, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall make and execute their bonds to their respective villages or boroughs in their corporate names, for the true and faithful performance of their respective duties, in such form and for such sums and with such sufficient freehold securities as the mayor and council, board of trustees, or other governing body of such village or borough shall direct and require.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, general or special, inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 23, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to establish a bureau of statistics upon the subject of labor, considered in its relation to the growth and development of the state industries."

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars be and is hereby appropriated for the current expenses of said bureau.

2. And be it enacted, That the treasurer of this state is hereby authorized to pay, from any money not otherwise appropriated, the sum provided for in the first section of this act.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 27, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act providing for the adoption of children," approved March ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one of the act to which this is a further supplement be amended so as to read as follows:

[1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act it shall and may be lawful for any person, not married, or any husband with his wife's consent, or any wife with her husband's consent, or any husband and wife jointly, to petition the circuit court or the orphans' court of the county wherein any minor child or children may reside, for permission to adopt such minor child or children, and also petition for a change of name of such child or children; provided, that if such child or children be of the age of fourteen years or over, the written consent of such child or children to such adoption, duly acknowledged, must be obtained and presented with the petition, and also the written consent of the parent or parents, if living and not hopelessly intemperate or insane, or shall have abandoned the child or children sought to be adopted, then and in such case the written consent, acknowledged as aforesaid, must be obtained from the legal guardian of such child or children, and if there be no legal guardian, then such consent must be obtained from some discreet and suitable person appointed by the court to be next friend of such child or children sought to be adopted.]

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 23, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations and regulate the same," approved April second, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever the time limited for the completion of any railroad authorized to be constructed under the act to which this is a supplement shall expire during the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, such time shall be and the same is hereby extended for a further period of two years; provided, however, that this act shall not apply unless money has actually been expended in surveys, or location of route, or in acquisition of right of way, or in construction; and provided, further, that this act shall not apply to any corporation unless such corporation shall first, and as a condition precedent to the exercise of any power granted by this act, file in the office of the secretary of state an agreement, to be approved by the governor and the attorney general, waiving all rights of exemption from taxation, and from privileges and advantages arising from any law or contract (if any there be) establishing any special mode of taxation of any such corporation, and the further agreement to be bound by any general law of this state now in existence, or that may hereafter be passed, taxing such corporations as are now authorized to be taxed by the legislature of the state under any general law, and further agreeing that the exercise of any power granted by this act shall not in any way affect the rights of the state (if any there exist) to take the property of such corporation under any existing law of the state, and agreeing, further, that all laws affecting such corporations shall be subject to alteration or repeal by the legislature.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 23, 1885.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning taxes," approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases in which deductions shall by law be claimed or allowed, either for indebtedness or for property claimed to be exempt from taxation, from the total valuation of the property or estate of any person [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That no deduction shall be made, either for indebtedness, or for property claimed to be exempt from taxation [illegible] of his or her indebtedness, or of the indebtedness of any taxable property of the corporation of which he is an officer, or of such property or securities claimed to be exempt from taxation, shall be deemed guilty of perjury and subject to the penalties now or hereafter prescribed by law for that offence.

3. And be it enacted, That the statements herein required to be furnished, when made by or on behalf of any corporation, shall be subscribed and sworn to by the president or principal officer of such corporation.

4. And be it enacted, That the assessor, taxing officer or other taxing authority, to whom any such statements and declarations shall be made, shall have power to examine such person [illegible]

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 23, 1885.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

ONLY TWO CENTS.

The count of money in the Treasury of the United States resulted in a shortage of only two cents.

Whereupon some Republican editors jump high in air and shout loudly about the honesty of their party officials.

Sober down, gentlemen!

No citizen ever called in question the integrity of the Treasurer, nor doubted that all the funds his books called for were in the vaults.

That is not the point at issue. Not how much money is now on hand, but for what purpose have the hundreds of millions of dollars gone out of the Treasury.

Let that be detailed.

What portion of it has been wasted on mere political henchmen, drawing fat pay as ostensible office-holders, but rendering no real public service therefor; what for corrupt contractors—military, naval and postal; what for digging out frog ponds in the name of river improvements, and a thousand and one other schemes of thieving jobbery.

Tell the people that?

PUBLIC OFFICES.

It has been suggested that safe action might result from the adoption of a rule to make public, for a proper length of time, a list of all applicants for important Executive appointments.

The offices so far filled by the present Democratic Administration have been in the main judicious and worthily bestowed, yet, it must be admitted, that in some instances better incumbents would have received commissions had the truthful antecedents of those appointed been known to the President and his Cabinet. The fact is, that in almost every instance where an objectionable applicant has slipped through, the error can be directly traced to either misrepresentation on the part of influential endorsers or the withholding of damaging truth.

It is the sincere desire of President Cleveland to select none but reputable and efficient men for public office. That he should be personally familiar with the past record of the great mass of applicants is an impossibility, and whatever plan will aid him in the laudable effort to avoid the bad and secure the good, thereby advancing the patriotic purpose of establishing a thoroughly honest and competent public service, ought to be sanctioned and put in practical operation.

LEAGUE ISLAND.

One of the most prolific sources of national waste and official profligacy has been the Navy Department.

It has cost the people of this country during the past twenty years a frightful amount of treasure, and to-day there is scarcely anything of value to balance the expenditure.

The present able and honest Secretary of the Navy is hard at work reforming abuses, and has already made some startling discoveries.

For instance—

The League Island Navy Yard, near Philadelphia, was declared useless in 1883 and ordered closed.

Yet Secretary Whitney now finds that a number of League Island officials have been ever since the Yard was closed drawing their full salaries with regularity.

As for example—

A master ship-builder with no ships to build.

A timber measurer with no timber to measure.

A boss joiner without a joint of employment.

And so on and so on.

League Island is a specimen of the way in which public money has been outrageously squandered.

It is needless to add, that a Democratic Administration has notified those revenue grabbers, of elegant leisure, that their names will no longer grace the national pay-roll.

Gen. John A. Logan has at last been elected Senator from Illinois, after a long and bitter contest.

Munsell, the juror in the Short case who visited O'Donovan Rossa's den during the trial, has been sentenced to pay a fine and go to prison for his act. Right.

The seventeen year locusts are turned up by the plow in large quantities about Bridgeport, Ill., and it is feared they will kill young apple orchards recently planted in that region.

Riel, the Canadian revolutionist, has been captured and his forces dispersed. The Canadian authorities now have an elephant on their hands which they hardly know how to dispose of.

For the third time the Government dispatch boat, Dolphin, built by John Roach, has failed to give satisfaction on a trial trip. The last time it was a hot crank pin which did the business.

The first deed ever recorded in the Sussex County Clerk's office bears date July 25th, 1785, and was given by Elizabeth Neal to Mark Landerman, for the remarkable consideration: "The performing to me his promise of marriage."

Robert Emmet Odlum, a professional swimmer, of Washington, D. C., took a leap from the Brooklyn Bridge, a distance of 143 feet, on Tuesday afternoon last, and of course was killed. He struck the water on his back and side and burst a blood vessel.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming T., May 19.—Rudolph, the finest Hereford bull in the world, property of the Wyoming Hereford Association, died last evening, after a veterinary surgical operation, in which a tumor of sixty-five pounds was taken from him. He was valued at $40,000.

Crowley, the New York police sergeant, who committed an atrocious assault upon a young girl named Maggie Morris, was on Monday last sentenced to imprisonment at Sing Sing for seventeen years and six months. Good enough. Every such wretch should be as summarily dealt with.

The Ocean County Board of Freeholders in squaring up the debts incurred by the Wainwright murder trial reduced the bill of R. T. Lindabury, Assistant Prosecutor, from $2,000 to $1,500; that of the Court stenographer from $2,251 to $1,200, and that of the Prosecutor from $750 to $500. The bill of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, $548, was laid over.

AWARDING THE PRINTING.

The Printing Committee of the State met in the Governor's Chamber Tuesday morning and awarded the State printing. Mr. John L. Murphy received the largest share, but little being divided around the State. The Newark Advertiser receives the printing of the documents, while the German papers of Newark receive the work done in that language.

ELIZABETH CITY'S DEBT.

After five months' struggle between the two political parties in the City Council of Elizabeth, N. J., Ferdinand Bitter, Republican, last Tuesday night was elected Captain of Police for three years. An ordinance was passed empowering the fiscal agents to settle the city debt at 50 cents on the dollar, with 4 per cent. interest to date back from January 1, 1885. It is understood that nearly all the large creditors, except the Singer Manufacturing Company and one or two others, have acceded to this arrangement. Under the terms of settlement creditors not accepting same before July 15, 1885, will forfeit six months' interest.

NEW RAILROAD DIRECTORS.

On Thursday of last week the following named were elected Directors of the East Trenton Railroad Company:—E. C. Knight, Henry S. Little, Secretary of State Henry C. Kelsey, A. G. Richey, Lewis H. Taylor, Samuel K. Wilson and J. Lowrie Bell. These were elected Directors of the Delaware and Bound Brook road: Edward C. Knight, Henry Lewis, Franklin A. Comly, John H. Michener, William Massey, Charles S. Baylis, George Richards, Lewis H. Taylor, William Mershon, Samuel K. Wilson, Augustus G. Richey, Abraham Browning, Isaac F. Richey. Mr. E. C. Knight was elected President in each case, with Mr. J. H. Stevenson as Secretary.

THE FIFTH NEW JERSEY DISTRICT.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. Hugh Kinnard, of Newark, was appointed as Collector of Internal Revenue in the Fifth New Jersey District. Some objection being raised against Kinnard, however, he declined the appointment, and on Saturday Mr. Samuel Klotz was appointed in his stead. The district embraces Essex, Hudson, Morris, Bergen, Warren, Sussex and Passaic counties, and is the second in importance in the United States. It yields a revenue annually of about $2,000,000. The salary of the Collector is $4,500. Besides he has the appointment of deputies in each county. There are more than forty candidates for the seven deputy collectors' positions in Newark.

NEW JERSEY FORESTS.

The ninth volume of the Census of the United States is devoted to forestry, and is among the most interesting and important of the series. Professor Sargeant, one of the best authorities on trees, was in charge of this branch of the census work, and performed it with remarkable ability and intelligence. The report for this State, says:

> The original forests of New Jersey have disappeared, except from the highest and most inaccessible ridges, situated in the northwestern part of the State, and these, with the increased demand of the railroads for ties and other material, are now fast losing their forest covering. The forests of New Jersey are insufficient to supply the wants of the population of the State, and nearly all the lumber it consumes is brought from beyond its limits. The forests of pitch pine, which once covered large areas in the southern counties, have now generally been replaced by a stunted growth of oaks and other broad-leaved trees. The manufacture of cooperage stock and other industries using hard wood have been largely abandoned owing to the decrease of the local supply of lumber. There are 284 saw mills in New Jersey, sawing 386,000 feet annually, and employing 1,066 men.

Ex-Secretary of State Theodore T. Frelinghuysen, died at his residence in Newark, Wednesday afternoon last. He was born at Milltown, Somerset county, in 1817.

It is reported that Colonel C. Myer Zulick, of Newark, will be appointed Governor of the Territory of Arizona, where he is largely interested in mining operations. His salary as Governor will be $2,600 per annum, and his private secretary will receive $1,800.

Eighty weavers, lately employed at the Ammidown Woolen mill at Passaic, are on a strike. On a recent morning, when they neared the mill to see if they would be taken on again at their terms, they were warned off by a foreman, who had been sent to caution them against venturing on the company's property. He was quickly and quietly surrounded by forty or fifty of the girls, and, when he turned to enter the mill again, found himself hemmed completely in by a crowd of laughing, merry girls, who began calling him "pet names," entreating him to stay, and, in fact, preventing from moving. In vain he protested that he would be late. They kept him in his novel and not altogether unpleasing captivity for half an hour before they would release him, and when he at last scampered off into the mill he was followed by a hearty round of cheers. The girls expected to be taken on again the next day.

The County Collector.

The Elizabeth Herald thus speaks in terms of our County Collector, which we most heartily endorse:—County Collector Sheridan succeeds himself, the freeholders having again honored him with election for another term. This is a deserved tribute to high efficiency and almost unexampled faithfulness in the discharge of important public duties. When Mr. Sheridan took hold of the county's finances they were in a most lamentable condition, made so by Republican extravagance and long misrule. From his induction into office until now the credit of the county has pursued an upward and onward course, and, to-day, the credit of the county of Union is second to none in the entire state. The satisfactory condition of to-day is the legitimate consequence flowing from a Democratic Board of Freeholders and an upright and efficient county collector. A contrast of the county with the city, which is under Republican domination, tells what good Democratic government brings. While not advocating life-tenure of office, the county collector can be changed every year, but such has been Mr. Sheridan's proud record that the people, through their representatives, have never asked him to change nor do not desire him to change his place. No greater compliment could be paid to a public officer than the frequent elections of Mr. Sheridan by a board whose interest he has so faithfully, under all circumstances, kept steadily in view.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, May 18th.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Corlell and Messrs. Dumont, Gallup, Goddard, Livingston, Marsh, Simpson, West—10.

Absent—Mr. Wadsworth—1.

Minutes and rules of order were dispensed with.

On motion the Cesspool Ordinance was taken from the table and referred to the Streets Com.

The following claims were presented and referred: G. M. Angleman, $514.50; Jno. Stelle, $100.31; Berry & Thorn, $18.85; O. B. Leonard, $75.

The officers of the Seventh Day church asked for the location of a lamp at Fifth street and Central avenue. Ref'd.

A protest against the further granting of rights to stretch wires overhead, and a petition to grant the subscriber the authority to lay wires underground was received from F. E. Kinsman and referred to the Special Com.

J. M. Fraley, Esq., asked for permission to remove the frame dwelling at Park avenue and Seventh street to Park avenue and Arlington place. Ref'd with power.

D. F. Stewart asked for permission to move a barn on New street to Fourth. Ref'd with power.

D. Rockafellow and G. Thorpe asked for peddler's licenses. Ref'd, and subsequently granted.

His Honor the Mayor nominated as Health Inspector, Dr. J. H. Platt, and as a special policeman, P. J. Flanagan.

The nominations were unanimously confirmed.

The following previously nominated as special policemen, were taken from the table and confirmed:

Jno. Hickey, W. H. Hardy, W. H. Hardy, Jas. Flynn, S. J. Clark and Moses Carney.

Mr. Whiton from the Alms Com., reported as correct the claims referred at the last meeting. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The applications of Berry & Clark and Huff for peddler's licenses, were taken from the table, referred and subsequently granted.

The Laws Com. reported as correct the bill of O. B. Leonard, and the Streets Com. the claims in its hands. All ref'd to Aud. Com.

The Lamps Com. recommended that a lamp be located at Fifth street and Central avenue as requested. So ordered.

On motion the salary of the Health Inspector was fixed at the rate of $40 per month until October 1st. Leaving the compensation for the balance of the year to be arranged later.

A resolution offered by Mr. Whiton was adopted, providing for the securing by the Alms Com., of new quarters for the paupers in Pruden's alley.

Mr. Livingston offered from the Police Com. a resolution authorizing the Police Board to uniform the regular police. Adopted. The Council also authorized the Board to have its rules printed.

On motion the Streets Com. was authorized to purchase crushed stone wherever it pleased whenever it could not be obtained under the contract made with John Wilson.

Mr. Dumont introduced an Ordinance to regulate and license scavengers. Read as required and ordered published.

Mr. Marsh from the Com. on Rooms stated the same would be ready for occupancy at the next meeting of the Council.

The bills in the hands of the Auditing Com. were reported as correct and ordered paid.

The Council then adjourned.

POISON AT THE FRONT DOOR.

No article entering so generally into the food of every family has been found more villainously adulterated than baking powder. For the purpose of underselling those powders of absolute purity and wholesomeness which alone are safe for use in food, hundreds of dealers are putting up baking powders with cheap and adulterated cream of tartar, which contains lime, earth, etc., adding strength by the free use of alum.

These adulterated powders are "shoved" upon the public with the greatest persistency. They are first given away—left in samples at private residences, with circulars containing bogus analyses and certificates, and false representations as to their value, etc. This fact of itself is sufficient to condemn them. A first-class article will sell on its merits. No manufacturer whose goods are of value can afford to give them away, and none but the cheapest make and most inferior or unmarketable goods require to be distributed free in order to get the public to use them, and this method is adopted only by parties who have failed to dispose of their wares through the ordinary and legitimate channels of trade.

Free samples of articles of food left at the house should be regarded with suspicion. There is no guarantee of their wholesomeness, while there is real danger that they contain a fatally poisonous compound. Many instances of poisoning from the use of such samples are recorded.

The only safe way is to consign all such samples immediately to the ash barrel, and to turn a deaf ear to the statements made by their venders. It is not worth while to trifle with life and health to the extent of testing every doubtful baking powder that comes along. Better to rely upon an old and reliable brand, like the Royal, which has by a quarter of a century's constant use proved its perfect wholesomeness and efficiency, or some other brand that is not so worthless and cheap that its proprietors can afford to give it away by the cart-load. It is in its favor that the Royal Baking Powder is never given away, sold by means of lotteries, nor accompanied by chromos, spoons, crockery, or other gifts except the gifts of absolute purity, wholesomeness, full weight, and superlative leavening power. Its own merits have been its chief advertisement, and they have secured for it the constant patronage of the American people to an extent beyond the combined sale of all other baking powders. The Royal Baking Powder is certified by all the Government chemists as absolutely pure and perfect.

Death of Joseph Clark.

Dr. Joseph Clark, an old and well-known resident of Scotch Plains, died at his house in that village, on Saturday last. Mr. Clark has been an invalid for a number of years, and was in his 84th year. He has resided in the village of Scotch Plains for the past forty years, and was a highly respected citizen. He has during his lifetime held various offices of trust in the village, Town Committeeman, School Trustee, and Justice of the Peace. He was a kind, generous, Christian man, and had many friends. He leaves three sons and a daughter.

Literary Note.

Mr. W. D. Howells is engaged upon a new serial story for The Century Magazine, to follow "The Rise of Silas Lapham," which will be finished in the August number. The publication of the new story will be begun possibly during the autumn, and will be completed in six numbers of the magazine. It is said to deal with the fortunes of a country boy in Boston, and with the perplexities, on his account, of the minister who has tried to help him with advice; and will therefore illustrate phases of one of the peculiar questions of American life. The situations will be fresh, and the characters a larger group than Mr. Howells usually brings upon the scene of one novel. In the minister, the readers of The Century will recognize one of the subordinate characters of "The Rise of Silas Lapham."

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Mr. Samuel W. Reese, residing on Hillside avenue, was made the happy father of a boy on Friday last.

Mr. A. Stamm of Westfield avenue, is the father of a ten-pound boy. The event occurred on Monday last.

A quartette from the Reform Club of Plainfield, gave an entertainment in Temperance Hall on Wednesday evening.

One of our prominent citizens who had been sick for a short time found upon being weighed that he had lost fourteen pounds.

Freeholder Pierson is about giving out a contract for the building of a stone bridge on road district No. 4, near the Lee farm.

Our dealers in ice are feeling very happy over the prospects of a very hot summer. Both of them have a fine stock of pure spring water ice.

On Monday last F. A. Kinch, Jr., and Arthur Pierson, rode from Westfield to Plainfield on their bicycles, making the trip in twenty-seven minutes.

Turkish footstools are now fashionable in Eastern cities, but at Chicago and St. Louis there is still a marked preference for the old-time Jumbo style.

Mr. Patrick Traynor is making a decided improvement in the lot around his store, in filling it in and grading so that the surface water will run instead of lying stagnant.

Miss E. M. Johnson has sold out her stock of fancy goods to Miss Louisa Woolley, who will occupy the store in the Darsh building, formerly used by Miss Johnson.

Last week, Wednesday, Mrs. Munday, residing on Central avenue, was agreeably surprised by a large number of her friends. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

The ladies of the M. E. church intend holding a pound sociable in the Sunday school room on next Wednesday evening. Proceeds for the benefit of the Sunday school fund.

The son of an English peer, it is said, is employed as a car-starter at a depot in Pittsburg. He does very well in the position for a man whose ancestors never did anything but loaf.

The Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school expect to go on their annual excursion on July 16 to Islandwild, opposite Glen Island. The committee having the excursion in charge will spare no pains so that all may have a pleasant time.

The overseers of the several road districts in our township should see to it that our gutters and ditches along the roads of our township are kept open, so that the surface water may run off and not lay stagnant, festering in the hot sun of summer.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held an entertainment on Monday and Tuesday evenings last, consisting of charades, tableaux, singing, etc., after which ice-cream and other refreshments were sold. Their rooms were crowded both evenings. About eighty dollars was netted to their treasury.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to pass the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 18th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE.

To provide for the licensing and regulation of scavengers.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Licenses may be granted by the Common Council to persons above the age of twenty-one years to carry on the business and act in the capacity of scavenger or night scavenger in the city of Plainfield, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Board of Health, and the ordinances of this city. All applications shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be recommended by the Board of Health, or some member thereof, or the City Physician.

SECTION 2. Each license granted under the provision of this ordinance, shall expire on first day of February in each year, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person licensed, the number of the license and the date of its expiration, and may contain any restrictions that the Board of Health may direct. No person shall be entitled to be licensed under this ordinance until he shall have paid to the City Clerk for said license the sum of ($10) Ten Dollars, and in addition thereto the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the same.

SECTION 3. No person shall carry on the business or act in the capacity of a scavenger or night scavenger, or clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy without being first licensed for that purpose by the Common Council, and no person shall keep and use or drive any scavenger cart or wagon or any night scavenger cart or wagon within the City of Plainfield without the same being licensed as aforesaid under penalty of fifty dollars for each and every violation of any of the provisions of this section. Provided that the owner of any sink, cesspool or privy may remove the contents thereof himself or by his hired help constantly in his employ without being licensed by the Common Council, but subject to the regulations of the Board of Health.

SECTION 4. Every person licensed as a night scavenger as soon as licensed shall cause his name to be marked in plain letters, and the number to be marked in plain figures in a conspicuous place on each side of the cart or wagon so licensed under the penalty of ten dollars for every day he shall use or employ any such cart or wagon, without having the same so designated.

SECTION 5. It shall not be lawful for any person licensed as a night scavenger to hire out or sub-let any night scavenger cart or wagon, to any person or persons not licensed to act in the capacity of night scavenger under penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every violation of this section.

SECTION 6. No night scavenger shall stop or leave any night scavenger wagon or cart in any street, avenue, alley or highway, nor permit his wagon or cart to occupy an unreasonable time in loading or unloading or in passing along any street, avenue, alley or highway, or through any inhabited place or ground, nor leave any such wagon or cart, when not in use, on any premises where the same may become a nuisance to the occupants of other premises, under penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

SECTION 7. It shall be the duty of the Board of Health to establish from time to time such rates to be charged for the removal of the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy as they may deem reasonable and proper [illegible]

SECTION 8. No person shall remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy, or any part thereof, or carry the same in, or through any street, [illegible]

SECTION 9. No person or persons shall deposit or cause or permit to be deposited the contents, or any part thereof, of any sink, cesspool or privy anywhere within the City of Plainfield, [illegible] and any violation of this section or failure to conform to the terms of the written consent aforesaid, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars.

THERE are still some of our readers that are in ignorance of the fact that Dr. Albert Utter, who trained and arranged "Queen Esther" for its recent rendition at Music Hall, is entirely unconnected with the reproduction of the Cantata on the 30th inst.

AT its regular meeting of Monday evening last, the Board of Education officially approved and accepted the plans of Mr. Oscar S. Teale for the new primary school building on Sixth street. Specifications will be drawn up at once, the contracts awarded and work commenced in a few weeks.

THE excellent financial condition of Union county as shown in the proceedings of the last meetings of the Board of Freeholders published in another column is creditable to that body and the county. While the Board is Democratic, it is composed of good and capable officials from both political parties, who are mindful of the interests of the public.

WHILE Mr. Henry C. Drake, a workman in the employ of C. E. Hobby, painter, was at work on Monday last, painting a house on Park avenue, he fell from a step ladder on which he was standing, and broke his left wrist. Dr. South set the broken bone, and Mr. D. is comfortable, but will not be able to resume work for some time. He has the sympathy of numerous friends in his unfortunate accident.

VOGEL BROS. Clothiers, Nos. 605 to 609 Broadway and 651 and 657 Eighth avenue, corner Forty-second street, New York, have for years been recognized as one of the leading clothing houses of the metropolis and their trade extends over a large amount of territory. Their motto has always been "one-price only," and the rapid manner in which they have reached so large a patronage is due to the fact that their line of goods is of the kind to meet the wants of all classes of men, youths' and boys, and their prices are lower than most, if not all of the other firms in their trade. This Spring they have been enlarging their facilities for the manufacture and sale of clothing which by judicious advertising is bringing them an increasing trade from all parts of the country.

He Hopes In Vain.

A correspondent asks us to "settle the question" whether the year 1900 will be a leap year. We trust our friend is not a young man looking forward to that date with the hope of a proposal from the fairer sex. If so he'll be left again. Although divisible by four without a remainder, 1900 will not be a leap-year. The last year of a century must be divisible by four hundred without a remainder.

Thunder and Lightning.

The season is nigh at hand when thunder showers may prevail, and it behooves every person to see that their buildings are properly protected from the lightning's stroke. Mr. John S. Bishop, of Bound Brook, is ready at a moment's notice to properly rod buildings with safe and reliable rods, at reasonable prices. If your buildings are already rodded, see if they do not need repairs, and at once notify him to put them in proper condition.

A Close Contest.

On the 5th inst. Messrs. Andrew Love, Jr., and Edward Sebring of Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co., were tied in the contest for the gold badge given by their Foreman to the man who reached the house first and secured the tiller the oftenest. Each had been tiller-man at ten actual fires, but that afternoon when the Leal school alarm sounded, Mr. Love got ahead and was presented the badge. The same night Mr. Sebring was first again, but too late to count.

Eastern Electric Company.

The above named company have a proposition before the Common Council to light the streets of this city with electric lights. Its president is Hon. Robert S. Green. The office of the company is 74 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J. This company use the Van Depoele system of electric lighting, which is claimed to have many advantages over other systems. Iron towers are used for street lighting. The company has large capital behind it, and is officered and managed by prominent and responsible men.

Another Attraction Engaged.

The training of the children, the arranging of the tableaux, the costuming and all the details of the programme at Music Hall, to-morrow afternoon, are under the management of Prof. A. B. Walsh, who for the past season has been the director of amusements at The Netherwood. We are glad to announce that Mr. Woodruff has succeeded in re-engaging him for the coming summer, in the same capacity. Prof. Walsh has recently leased a comfortable home on Front street near Netherwood avenue, where he intends permanently to reside.

Personalia.

The wife of Fire Commissioner W. E. Jones, is lying very ill at her home in North Plainfield.

At the residence of the officiating clergyman, Tuesday afternoon last, by the Rev. K. P. Ketcham, Miss Sarah Catherine Haynes of this city was married to Thomas Wright Cameron of New York.

J. U. Fraley, Esq., has purchased the property of Mr. Ellis S. Potter at the corner of Park avenue and Seventh street. The dwelling now occupying the lot will be removed, and in its place will be erected a handsome residence of pressed brick and frame for Mr. and Mrs. Fraley, Jr.

The family of Mr. Auguste Saltzman returned to their quarters in Force's Hotel last Friday, after several weeks' absence to Florida, where Mrs. Saltzman has a fine orange grove on the Halifax river. The oranges grown in this section are the finest and largest Southern fruit of that description we ever saw. At the New Orleans Exposition the Halifax river section took the premium for the finest oranges grown in the world.

New Club Rooms.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club has leased new quarters in Force's Hotel building on North avenue, and are now engaged in decorating and furnishing them. When completed the rooms will be both comfortable and convenient, and all members of other Clubs and of the League of American Wheelmen, will find therein a hearty welcome.

Distinctly Different.

The rendition of the Cantata of "Queen Esther," at Music Hall, next Saturday, the 30th, is to be entirely distinct from its former presentation in every way. Soloists from New York have been engaged to sing the leading parts, the treatment of the music is entirely new, and the costuming will be, it is believed, more appropriate to the time of the "Beautiful Queen." We will give further particulars next week.

Dr. Vincent Will Speak.

The anniversary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in Stillman Music Hall next Monday evening, May 25th, commencing at 8 o'clock. Mr. Charles McCutchen will furnish good music. A report of the year's work, etc. will be given by President Munger. There will be also an address by Rev. J. H. Vincent, D. D. Seats are free and everybody invited. The balcony will be reserved for young men until five minutes before 8 o'clock.

Children's Matinee.

The programme for the Children's Matinee at Music Hall, to-morrow afternoon, will present for the entertainment of older folks and the delight of the little ones, a varied assortment. There will be pantomimic representations of selections from "Mother Goose's" melodies, choruses and madrigals, fancy dances, and the operetta of "Little Red Riding Hood" in five acts. Miss Annie L. Richardson, soprano of St. George's, Brooklyn, is announced to take the part of "Mother Goose." The performance will begin at 2:30 o'clock—doors open at 1:30.

Consider the Source.

Ignorance is to blame for a multitude of sins, and allowance should always be made for false reports by reason of it. From the same obtuse source where emanated the amazingly senseless delusion regarding Mrs. Yeaman's part in "Cordelia's Aspirations," issued the stupid blunder that "M'lle. DeLussar" was to sing at last evening's Vocal. The statement that Dr. Vincent would speak in Music Hall the 28th inst., was also as needless an error, but the dozen or so that read these "erroneous" statements, had previously been correctly informed in these columns.

Caught on the Fly.

On Tuesday last Chief Dodd of this city received word from the Chief of Newark, N. J., to look out for a young man driving a white horse to a buggy. During the evening, Officer Lynch saw the party and arrested him. Detective Walker, of Newark, arrived later, and on Wednesday morning took the prisoner to the latter city, to answer a charge made by Frederick Meyer for grand larceny in the sum of $300. The prisoner's name is Benjamin Jacklin. He has been observed driving recklessly through our streets the past week or so, accompanied by women of immoral character.

To Whom It May Concern.

Having been informed that a report has been circulated, to the effect that, while Mr. Samuel C. Terry was Superintendent of the Holly Tree Inn, the receipts fell off from $90 to $100 per month, in justice to Mr. Terry, I make the following statement:

	Received.	Spent.	Gain.	Loss.	Total Gain.
April....	$329.98	$341.19		$11.21
May....	301.14	288.44	$12.70

MRS. S. K. STRUTHERS,
Treasurer, W. C. T. U.

Rip Van Winkle

Mr. Joseph Jefferson, supported by a caste praiseworthy in every part, gave the pathetic, romantic and humorous drama of "Rip Van Winkle," at Music Hall, Tuesday evening, to the usual crowded house. The gratification of the audience evidenced that "Rip" has lost none of his charm; nor has Mr. Jefferson's own particular interpretation of the character lost its hold upon the hearts of us all. Miss Lillian Lee as "Gretchen" was unexpectedly suitable, and Mr. Charles Plunkett's "Derrick" was—especially in the fourth act—all that could be desired. "Meenie" as both child and woman gave general satisfaction, but with age "Hendrick" lost whatever charm he had possessed.

Cordelia's Aspirations.

Being assured by THE CONSTITUTIONALIST that Mrs. Annie Yeamans would play her own part of "Cordelia" in the aspirations of Mrs. Mulligan, the public filled Music Hall, Thursday evening of last week. Mr. Richard Quilter filled Hart's place to the best of his ability, and the satisfaction of the audience proved how little Mr. Harrigan's former partner is missed. All the old favorites were well received, and although the play is the one of the Mulligan series that belongs distinctly to Mrs. Yeamans, yet Messrs Harrigan, Wild and Fisher secured new admirers by their appearance here. The orchestral music was the best we have had, and the "Waiter's Chorus" and "Sam Johnson's Cake Walk" were very pleasing.

Fires.

Saturday evening about 11:30 o'clock, the incendiaries thought they would wind up the week with something extra in the way of a fire, so the lattice work under the front stoop of No. 47 Peace street was kindled. An alarm was sent by telephone, and the Department was soon searching around the vicinity for the fire that had been quenched by the neighbors before the arrival of the boys.

Monday evening the barn back of the corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets was started and well "under way" before the Department reached the scene. For three years past Bowers the grocer had occupied the building as a stable, but fortunately had removed about a week ago. It was at present rented by Mr. Dennis O'Brien, a hackman, whose loss was slight. The building was ruined.

Resolutions of Regret.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted at a special meeting of Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, Tuesday evening, May 19th, 1885.

WHEREAS, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our late brother and esteemed friend and associate, Thos. L. Anderson, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

Resolved, By Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, of this city of Plainfield, that it is but just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in deeply regretting his removal from our midst we sincerely mourn for one who was always in every way worthy of our respect and regard,

Resolved, That we earnestly condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, That the heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be published in the newspapers of the city and a copy forwarded to the family of our departed brother by the Secretary of the company.

Music Hall Officers.

The new Board of Directors of the Music Hall Association, whose names were given last week, organized on Wednesday night by the unanimous election of the following officers: President—W. Rockhill Potts; Treasurer—Orville T. Waring; Secretary—Craig A. Marsh; Executive Com.—The President ex-officio and Messrs. Randolph, Gilbert, Chapman and Marsh; Special Com. on Building, Improvements, etc.—Messrs. Gilbert, Waring and Murray; Com. on Entertainments—Messrs. Dumont, Tweedy and Marsh, Manager—Craig A. Marsh.

Only the Best.

We have had occasion frequently, in justice to ourselves and the public, to condemn the many inferior artists that have been sent here to play minor parts with "Madison Square," "Union Square" and other companies. We are, consequently, glad that the Music Hall management, recognizing the injustice to its patrons, has taken a firm stand against future imposition of that sort. Bartley Campbell was recently refused a date for "Siberia" because of the low grade of his company in the "White Slave," and a guarantee hereafter of the ability of the entire caste will be necessary to secure a chance to play in Plainfield's Music Hall.

A Sudden Tumble.

About three o'clock last Sunday afternoon, the residents of North avenue, in the vicinity of Force's Hotel, were startled by a loud crash, and cries of 'alarm, followed by the sudden appearance of a fierce-eyed man on the sidewalk in front of Lawrence Paoli's peanut store, gesticulating wildly. Investigation proved that the flooring on the south side of Paoli's store had given away, precipitating to the cellar beneath, bags of peanuts, fruits, confectionery, etc., and the proprietor, who happened to be on that side of the building. Fortunately, however, he received no injuries, but was considerably frightened. The building has recently been moved off its foundation, to make room for the side wall of Mr. Paoli's new brick structure now in course of erection, and was supported by upright pieces of joist. The heavy weight on the floor caused the floor to give way. Mr. Paoli has the sympathy of his customers and friends in his piece of bad luck.

At the Hotel Netherwood.

Gardeners have changed the grounds about The Netherwood into lawns of verdant plush, the shrubbery is closely trimmed and radiant with blossoms, the flower beds are luxuriant with many colored buds, and the rockeries are profusely covered with ivies and exotics. Inside all is as clean and attractive as could be imagined. Every department has been completely overhauled and put in thorough order. A great deal of money has been spent to accomplish in advance the desires of any guest, but already Mr. Woodruff is assured by the engagement of most of his rooms by permanent guests, of a Season that will repay all outlay and reward his enterprise and generosity as he deserves. Joseph Jefferson and his company were guests of the hotel during their stay in Plainfield. Speaking to a party of friends at the railroad station, Mr. Jefferson said that the hotel was one of the most delightful in the country; it was commodious and elegant, and at the same time free from anything gaudy in its nature, and the attendance was excellent. To the proprietor he announced his intention of paying a visit at his first opportunity.

Y. M. C. Annual.

The Y. M. C. A., at its annual meeting, in the new rooms on Front street, Thursday evening of last week, heard the following report from the Secretary and elected officers and directors as given below:

Mr. President and Members of the Young Men's Christian Association:—In this brief report of the year's work I will first speak of the most important part, the religious work. The average attendance at our young men's meeting has been 27; this has been a very good number considering the adverse circumstances we labored under during the Fall campaign. A few young men have found the Master; many have been strengthened and blessed by attending this meeting. We feel it has been a power for good and is growing steadily both in spirit and in numbers. The outpost meetings at Mt. Pleasant have averaged 31, and many have been wonderfully blessed. During the latter part of February a revival took place, meetings were held, not only on Sunday evenings, but on Wednesday evenings. About fifteen were converted, and have joined the churches or will do so. The meetings at Washington Valley have averaged 35, and while no actual revival has taken place the meetings have been of unusual interest and have been of much good to the people of that vicinity. The Sunday school at the same place has averaged 42, the largest attendance since the school was started. During the two weeks preceding Messrs. Pentecost and Stebbins, six extra meetings were held with considerable interest. During the Winter a course of seven entertainments was given in the Music Hall. Two health talks were given by Drs. Long and Hedges. A Literary and Debating society was formed and was of much interest and instruction to all who participated. We hope next year more of our young men will join this society. In October an Association Bulletin was published as an experiment, and so successful was it that it has been decided to issue it every quarter. The reading room with its twenty-seven daily, weekly and monthly publications, and the library with its 1,300 volumes, has been visited by 10,892 people, but figures cannot tell of the number of young men that have been kept from the billiard-room, the saloon and other places of evil, by our rooms. Writing materials are furnished free, and many have found the parlor a very pleasant place to write a letter or spend an hour in social chat or games. We expect to add new books to the library, and many periodicals are lacking to make our reading room the attractive place it should be. During the first six months of the year our boys' work was in a very precarious condition. About January 1st a change was made that has placed this work on a solid basis. Under the guidance of the chairman of the Boys' Work Committee the Branch was divided and a Senior and a Junior society formed, the Juniors of boys from 9 to 14 years, holding their meetings on Friday afternoon, while the Seniors are composed of boys from fourteen upward. The Ladies' Auxiliary have taken entire charge of the Juniors, while the Seniors are still under the charge of the regular committee. The average of the Juniors has been twenty-eight and the Seniors twenty-nine, while before the change the average was thirty-two. This is a very important part of our work, for from the Senior society will come many of our active workers. Our Ladies' Auxiliary have done good work among the boys and in fitting up our new and beautiful rooms. They deserve credit for the faithful way they have labored in the face of many disappointments and discouragements. Our Association has been represented by the General Secretary at the Secretaries' Conference held in Montreal, Canada, last June, also at the State Convention held in Bordentown last month. A few young men have been helped to employment, visits have been made to the sick, sympathy extended, cheerful words and sunshine we trust have been given to the afflicted. Many papers have been given away, many letters written and calls made. We have received periodicals from friends, also a gift of the Gospel Hymns consolidated. Before closing I wish to express my thanks to all the city papers for the use of their columns, also to the officers, directors, committeemen, and workers of the Association for the support and brotherly love I have received. Let us thank God and press onward, praying for His blessing and determining that the coming year may see many young men brought into the Church and the best year the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield has ever seen.

Yours respectfully,
F. L. WILLIS, General Secretary.

The Fire Alarm Telegraph.

We are informed by Mr. W. H. Page, the Manager of the District and Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, that they are very much gratified at the success they are meeting with among our citizens in their canvass for their patent ten call fire alarm and telegraph box, having already secured between sixty and seventy signatures to contracts. They propose to continue their canvass until they have completed a thorough tour of the city, and perfect arrangements to commence active operations at once. Already one circuit has been secured by permission of property holders, which demonstrates to the entire satisfaction of subscribers the excellence of the system.

Somerset County Courts.

In the Quarter Session Thursday of last week the Prosecutor moved the case of The State v. Wm. Jones, for alleged firing of a barn. Mr. John A. Frech appeared for defendant, who was brought into court. The witnesses for the State (John B. Holmes, Charles L. Holmes, Gertrude Holmes and Alice Dowling) failed to appear. Officer Bauersack was sworn and testified to having served the subpœnas. The Prosecutor applied for an order to show cause why an attachment for contempt should not issue against these witnesses. The order was granted. His Honor remarked most emphatically that no disregard of the mandates of the Court could be tolerated, but, in his opinion, should be visited by the severest penalty. The order was made returnable May 29, and the defendant was released on his own recognizance.—Somerset Messenger.

A Serious Accident Averted.

One day last week, as Mr. Halsey Compton was returning from a fishing trip at the Raritan river, his horse caught his foot in the rails of the Packer railroad at a crossing near Dunellen, and threw himself. Mr. Compton was buried from his sulky, in the endeavors of the animal to arise. When he did so, the horse dashed down the track toward New Market, Mr. Compton following as fast as his injured condition would allow. A short distance away he found the animal fast between the ties over a culvert. Just then a train whizzed by over the adjoining track, and another was heard approaching from the opposite direction. Despite the efforts of persons residing near by, the animal could not be released from his perilous position. One of the men ran along the track with a lantern and signalled the approaching train to stop, which the engineer succeeded in doing within a few feet of the animal. With the combined assistance of the train hands the horse was then lifted on his feet. No sooner was he freed than he made a dash toward home, where he arrived later, Mr. Compton following on foot. The sulky was demolished, and fish and fishing tackle strewed the ground about the scene of the accident. It was a narrow escape from a serious accident, as the train would surely have been thrown from the track if it had struck the horse.

Improvements for Plainfield.

Mr. Charles Wann came to reside in Plainfield over three years ago. He no sooner got settled than he saw that our citizens needed telephone connection with each other and with surrounding cities. He was determined to see it established, and under many difficulties succeeded. To him is largely due its existence in Plainfield to-day. He then saw that a messenger service, special police and fire alarm system was needed; also cheap telegraph service. He is engaged on this enterprise with every hope of success. His greatest endeavor, however, has been to establish the electric light in our streets and in private houses. The result of his labor (of which many of our citizens are familiar) for over eighteen months was seen in our streets this week, when he succeeded in inducing the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Co. of Philadelphia to give our citizens an exhibition of their are light.

Power for the dynamo was obtained from the steam engine of forty horse power at French's Mills, and wires stretched over the telephone poles, by permission of the Council, sufficient to furnish six lights from Laing's Hotel to corner of Park and North avenues. Owing to the many difficulties to be overcome by the workmen in applying the power to the dynamo with the crude materials at hand, the first night of the trial, Tuesday, was not satisfactory to the managers, and the light was consequently discontinued before the performance at the Opera House was ended, which was a disappointment to many. Wednesday evening, however, certain difficulties had been overcome, and our citizens were greeted with a bright and steady glow from the lamps, which called forth many remarks congratulatory to the exhibitors and general satisfaction with the light. The following circular was then sent out:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 19th, 1885.

DEAR SIR:—There will be an exhibition of the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Company's system for lighting streets, in Front street and Park avenue, next Thursday evening, May 21st, at 8 o'clock. Several lights will be in operation for the purpose of demonstrating to the citizens of Plainfield the effect of street lighting by electricity. Will you kindly attend.

JOHN W. MURRAY,
MASON W. TYLER,
FRANK O. HERRING,
J. EVARTS TRACY,
CHARLES WANN.

It is the intention of the Plainfield Electric Light Co. to offer to the City a proposition for lighting our streets, and our store keepers and hotels will have an opportunity to rent private lights as well. Mr. Wann has also the right to use the Consolidated Electric Light Co's Sawyer-Man's system of incandescent lighting in Plainfield, and we learn, at a cost not exceeding the present price of gas, for private houses. A very important decision was rendered last week in favor of this Company by the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioners of Patents, who decide that the Sawyer invention was perfected in March, 1878, and that of Edison, not until October, 1879. Both claimed patents on the same invention. The officers of the successful company claim that the use of any incandescent electric lamp without their authority in this country will be an infringement of their patent.

We are heartily in favor of wires being placed underground, but fear that the enormous expense of doing so in Plainfield will discourage the undertaking. It is different in New York, where the stores, offices and dwellings are so closely connected. In Plainfield a large territory must be covered, with the uncertainty of getting subscribers to the light in every store and dwelling. In any event, if our streets are to be lighted by electricity, it would still be necessary to set lamp posts, but they could be utilized as poles, the same character as those in Fifth avenue, New York, and which would not be an eye-sore. The few wires required for the lighting would not be so objectionable as the ungainly poles of the Telephone Company. From appearances it looks as if an attempt was made to "hedge" Mr. Wann off, by a petitioner to the Council on Monday last, offering to place wires underground. We hope our Council will examine closely into the merits of the various lights which will come before them for their consideration. Mr. Wann has acted slowly and wisely in all these matters so as not to "saddle" our citizens with anything objectionable, and while on the verge of success he finds competition (without any new features) in his district messenger, police and fire service, and an underground electric light scheme, which may or may not succeed. The exhibition will continue until after next Sunday night.

Our Knights and Some Other Knights.

By a special invitation of Anchor No. 149 and Jerusalem lodge No. 26, F. & A. M., of this city, St John's commandery, No. 9, Knights Templar, of Elizabeth, under command of Captain General W. H. Meeker, visited Plainfield, Thursday evening of last week, in their complete and handsome uniforms. They numbered thirty five. The occasion of the visit was to attend the Ascension day services at Grace church. On their arrival at Plainfield they were met at the depot by both the above lodges in strong numbers, and the Plainfield cornet band. The usual receiving formalities were gone through with and the line of march taken up to the church, headed by the band; after which, came the Elizabeth Knights, then Anchor and Jerusalem lodges. The streets were crowded with people, and many flattering comments were made on the elegant appearance of the Knights and their splendid marching. The interior of the church edifice was beautifully decorated with flowers, the chancel and vicinity being one perfect bower of beauty. Some of the floral designs exhibited rare taste and skill, and for the Knights and others are indebted to the ladies of the church. The services were conducted by Rev. T. A. Tidball, D. D., of Camden, assisted by Rev. Mr. Rodman and Rev. F. M. McAllister of Elizabeth. Rev. Mr. Tidball took his text from St. John, chapter xiv, verses 12 and 13, speaking of Christ as a man, and his work, in a measure unfinished and taken up by his disciples. The discourse was a most eloquent and impressive one, and listened to with rapt attention. As the Knights marched up the aisle of the church the quartet choir, accompanied by a portion of the band, rendered, ably, the hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldier." At the close of the services the guests were escorted to Force's hotel, where a very satisfactory collation was served. The first toast was "To Our Guests," by Dr. Burlingham, and the address of welcome, by Rev. Mr. Rodman, which was responded to by Eminent Commander W. J. Christopher of St. John's Commandery. Then followed remarks by Rev. F. M. McAllister, Past Eminent Commander Farrand and Shepherd, of St. John's, with Captain General W. H. Meeker and Grand Captain General Price, of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey; Brother Havett, Stiles, Freeman and others made remarks. At 11:35 the Knights bid their guests farewell, and started homeward bearing with them recollections of an exceptionally cordial reception.

HIS LOSS WAS HER GAIN.

"Well, madam," said a fashionable physician to a weakly lady patient, "if you don't like my prescriptions, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic, or some other quack stuff." "You don't mean it Doctor," she answered, "but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call 'quack stuff' is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of neuralgia arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends, and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

IT LEADS ALL.

No other blood-purifying medicine is made, or has ever been prepared, which so completely meets the wants of physicians and the general public as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases. If there is a lurking taint of Scrofula about you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA will dislodge it and expel it from your system. For constitutional or scrofulous CATARRH, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the true remedy. It has cured numberless cases. It will stop the nauseous catarrhal discharges, and remove the sickening odor of the breath, which are indications of scrofulous origin.

ULCEROUS SORES. SORE EYES. "Hutto, Tex., Sept. 28, 1882. At the age of two years one of our children was terribly afflicted with ulcerous running sores on its face and neck. At the same time its eyes were swollen, much inflamed, and very sore. Physicians told us that a powerful alterative medicine must be employed. They united in recommending AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. A few doses produced a perceptible improvement, which, by an adherence to your directions, was continued to a complete and permanent cure. No evidence has since appeared of the existence of any scrofulous tendencies; and no treatment of any disorder was ever attended by more prompt or effectual results. Yours truly, B. F. JOHNSON."

CHAPTER XLVII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to enable [illegible] to construct water works [illegible]," [illegible] one thousand eight hundred and sixty [illegible].

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, [illegible]

3. And be it enacted, [illegible] deposited in such bank or banks as may be designated by said board of commissioners or other governing body of such town, borough, camp meeting association, or other municipality, and they shall draw said funds by checks upon said bank or banks, to be signed by at least two of their number, which said checks shall specify briefly the purposes for which the same are drawn, and the said water commissioners shall keep accurate accounts of their receipts and disbursements in proper books to be provided by them for that purpose, and which shall always be open for the inspection of the commissioners or other governing body of said town, borough, camp meeting association, or other municipality, and their authorized agents, and which accounts shall be annually, in the month of March, audited by a committee of said board of commissioners of said town, borough, camp meeting association, or other municipality, and a short abstract thereof shall be published with the annual statement of the [illegible]; every water commissioner at the expiration of his term of office shall deliver to his co-commissioners all books and papers which he may have in his possession or custody by virtue of his said office; and all books and papers of said water commissioners when no longer currently needed by them shall be deposited with the clerk of said town, borough, camp meeting association, or other municipality, who is hereby required to keep them safely in his office [illegible] having special acts.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March [illegible], 1885.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An Act relating to sales of lands [illegible] by virtue of any legal proceeding," approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of lands heretofore made shall be invalidated by the omission of a portion of the newspaper advertising provided for in the act to which this act is a supplement, or in any other act supplementary thereto; provided, that such sale shall have been advertised in a newspaper printed and published at the county seat of the county wherein said lands are situated once in each week for thirty days next preceding such sale, and in one other newspaper of said county three weeks next preceding such sale; provided, further, that all the other provisions of said act shall have been complied with, and that this act shall not be construed to legalize any sales of lands to be made after this act goes into effect.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March [illegible], 1885.

CHAPTER XLIX.

An Act for the establishing and maintaining sewers [illegible] by commissioners.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the commissioners of any incorporated [illegible] governed by a board of commissioners, to contract with any person, persons or corporation for the removal of sewage, and for the construction of a comprehensive system of sewerage within the boundaries of such local government, upon such reasonable terms as they may agree upon; also, for said board to make ordinances [illegible] in relation to the manner of such construction and maintenance of such sewers, and in relation to the manner in which said person, persons or corporation, so contracting, shall exercise their rights.

2. And be it enacted, That such person, persons or corporation shall be subject to such rules, ordinances and regulations as said commissioners may establish, [illegible] such reasonable charges against the owners of dwellings which may be connected with said sewers [illegible].

3. And be it enacted, That the said board of commissioners or other governing body shall have the right to purchase and take from such person, persons or corporation, their entire system of sewerage and drainage constructed under this act [illegible].

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March [illegible], 1885.

CHAPTER L.

An Act enabling a change of name in certain municipalities incorporated as commissions.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That when application shall be made to the governing board of such [illegible]

3. And be it enacted, That after such change of name shall have been adopted the governing board of such municipality shall be known and [illegible]

4. And be it enacted, That all the provisions of the charters of such municipalities [illegible]

5. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, whether special or general, not consistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and this act take effect immediately.

Passed March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LI.

An Act to prevent [illegible] by travelers.

[illegible]

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, [illegible]

3. And be it enacted, That any person or persons violating the provisions of the second section of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or either or both, in the discretion of the court [illegible].

4. And be it enacted, [illegible]

5. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the owner or owners of railroad, steamboat and other public conveyances to provide for the redemption of [illegible]

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Passed March [illegible], 1885.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

The buckthorn is a good hedge plant, is extremely hardy and thrives in most soils.

It is a fact, as every dairyman who has experimented knows, that cows do better on mixed feed than when confined to a single ration.

A great mistake in tree planting is failure to cultivate the orchard, thus allowing the soil to become hard and crusted, and also covered with weeds and grass.

A fruit-grower placed tobacco stems around the trunks of peach trees, and the borers did not touch them. He set the stems around the butts of the trees and tied them at the tops, and it kept off the rabbits in winter.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten, "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

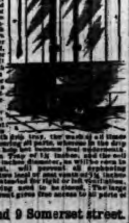
The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.



WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will insure itself applicable to all needs, in doing away with drip tray, the wash of all flushes thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray it cannot help but become foul and unclean. It has a seal in Trap of 1½ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two local or vent vents of 1½ inches diameter are intended for right or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER LII.

An Act to provide for the taxation of the property of persons engaging temporarily in business in taxing districts subsequently to the completion of the annual assessment by the local assessors.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any person, firm or corporation shall, subsequently to the time fixed by law, for the completion of the annual valuation and assessment for local taxes in any taxing district in this state bring or send into such taxing district any stock of goods or merchandise to be sold or disposed of in a place of business temporarily occupied for their sale, without the intent of [illegible] its permanent trade in such place, the owner, consignee or person in charge of the said goods or merchandise shall immediately notify the local assessor or board of assessors by whatever name such officer or board shall be designated; and thereupon the assessor or board of assessors, as the case may be, shall at once proceed to value the said stock of goods and merchandise at its true value, and upon such valuation the said owner, consignee or person in charge shall pay to the collector of taxes of the township, town, borough or city, as the case may be, a tax at the rate assessed for state, county and local purposes in the taxing district in the year then current; and it shall not be lawful to dispose of any such goods or merchandise so [illegible] in such taxing district until the assessor or board of assessment shall have been so notified as aforesaid and the tax assessed thereon fully paid to the collector.

2. And be it enacted, That in case any such owner, consignee or person in charge of such stock of goods and merchandise as is mentioned in the foregoing section shall fail or neglect to notify the proper assessor or board of assessment, or to pay the said tax as is herein required, or shall proceed to sell or dispose of such goods, or any portion thereof before the payment of the tax levied on account thereof, the owner of such goods or merchandise shall forfeit to such taxing district a sum equal to twice the amount of tax assessable as aforesaid on account of such stock; such penalty may be recovered in an action of debt in the name of the collecting officer of such taxing district in any court having jurisdiction in civil causes to the amount thereof, and such action may be commenced by a writ of attachment which shall issue upon the filing in such court of the affidavit of the collecting officer, showing the cause of forfeiture under this act; the subsequent proceedings in said cause shall be regulated and conducted in the same manner that suits by attachment against non-resident or absconding debtors are conducted, the said penalty shall be preferred before all other debts or claims proved or preferred in such action; any mistake in the name of the owner of the said goods or merchandise shall not affect the right to recover such penalty by an attachment and sale of such stock.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LIII.

A Supplement to "An act for the punishment of crimes," (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases where any person shall hereafter be convicted of malicious mischief under the act to which this is a supplement, it shall be lawful for the court before which such conviction shall be had to sentence such offender to the work-house or jail, there to be kept at hard labor for the term for which he shall be sentenced.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LIV.

A Further Supplement to an act to establish a state industrial school for girls, approved April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the powers conferred by the act to which this is a supplement and by the supplements thereto upon the justices of the supreme court be and they are hereby extended to the presiding law judges of the court of common pleas of all counties which now have or may hereafter have such an officer.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LV.

An Act to further amend section seventy-nine of the act entitled "An act for the organization of the National Guard of the state of New Jersey," approved March ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section seventy-nine of the act entitled "An act for the organization of the National Guard of the state of New Jersey," approved March ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

[79. And be it enacted, That the widow and minor children of any officer or soldier who may have been within three years last past, or who may hereafter be killed or fatally injured in the performance of any actual service of this state, or while engaged in any parade, encampment or brigade, regimental or battalion inspection (not in the service of the United States), or any officer or soldier who may be wounded or disabled in the performance of any actual service of this state, shall receive from the treasury of this state, the like reward that persons under similar circumstances receive from the United States; and in cases of fatal injury, such reward shall date from the time of receiving the injuries on account of which such reward is allowed.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LVI.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act to amend and consolidate the several acts relating to game and game fish," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That nothing in the act to which this is a supplement shall hereafter be construed as applying to the English sparrow, and that all said English sparrows shall be excluded from any protection whatever.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed to be a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LVII.

An Act to protect children.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all and every person or persons having in his, her or their custody or control, lawful or unlawful, any minor child under the age of eighteen years, who shall apprentice, give away, let out, hire or otherwise dispose of such minor or minors for the purpose of begging, singing and playing on musical instruments, or for any other mendicant business whatsoever, in any immoral conduct or occupation in the streets, roads and other highways and public places of this state, and whosoever shall take, receive, hire, employ, use or have in custody, any such minor or minors, under the age of eighteen years, and use or employ him, her or them, in any mendicant or immoral business whatsoever, either in public or private places within this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned, the fine not to exceed one thousand dollars and the imprisonment not to exceed two years at hard labor in the discretion of the court.

2. And be it enacted, That if upon such conviction, the minor or minors shall have no home or means of support and no one to take proper care of him, her or them, the court may, in its discretion, if it shall appear a humane and proper thing to do, commit such minor or minors to the state reform school for boys or the state industrial school for girls, until said minor or minors attain the age of eighteen years or for a less age in the discretion of the court.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LVIII.

An Act relating to arrearage of water rents or charges for the use of water furnished by cities wherein water works are owned and controlled by the city authorities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any city of this state, wherein water works are owned by the city and controlled by the city authorities, the municipal department of the city government having charge of such water works or the regulation of the distribution and use of water from the reservoir or reservoirs connected with such water works, shall have full power and authority in case of the neglect or refusal of any person or corporation to promptly pay for the use or rents of water theretofore or hereafter furnished by such city or any municipal department thereof, to, by or upon any building, place or premises, to shut off the supply of water from such building, place or premises, and to make, adopt and enforce such by-laws, rule or rules, and regulations as may be deemed proper by such municipal department in relation thereto, and in case the supply of water shall be shut off from any building, place or premises for non-payment of water rent or water rents, the said city or such municipal department aforesaid, shall not be compelled again to supply said building, place or premises, or any additional building or erection thereon, with water until said arrears, with interest and penalties, if required, shall be fully paid and satisfied; nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as in any manner to deprive the said city of any rights which it now has to prosecute any person or persons, corporation or corporations for the use of water or the power to sell lands and premises for unpaid water rent, or otherwise deprive the city of any existing rights regarding the same.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 9, 1885.

CHAPTER LX.

An Act to provide additional shop room at the New Jersey State Prison.

Whereas the laws of this state provide for the abolition of the existing system of contracts for labor of convicts confined in the state prison of this state and for the employment of said convicts in the manufacture of goods to be used in other state institutions or under either the system commonly known as the "piece price plan" or the system known as the "public account system," and

Whereas, in the opinion of the authorities of the said prison the present shop room connected therewith is wholly insufficient for the successful establishment of either of the plans authorized by law; therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That for the purpose of altering the present buildings or erecting new buildings to provide the necessary facilities for the proper employment of the said convicts, the board of inspectors together with the principal keeper and the supervisor of the said prison are hereby appointed and constituted a building commission with authority to purchase the necessary material, to employ the necessary labor and incur such other expenses as may be necessary to alter or construct such shops with the approval of the governor of the state as may be required to carry out the aforementioned purposes.

2. And be it enacted, That the sum of fifteen thousand dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated for the purposes of this act and the said commission shall have power to use for the said purposes (if in their judgment it shall become necessary) any unexpended balance of the sum appropriated by an act entitled "An act making an appropriation for the extension of the state prison walls," approved April eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four; provided, that in the alteration or construction of the said buildings all materials and work which in the opinion of the said commission can advantageously to the state be furnished or done by contract shall be done or furnished after due advertisement for proposals; and provided, further, that so far as shall be deemed practicable the labor of the convicts in the said prison shall be employed and utilized in the said alteration or construction.

3. And be it enacted, That the comptroller of the state is hereby empowered and authorized to draw his warrants from time to time upon the state treasury for the expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this act upon bills and vouchers certified and approved by the said commission.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXI.

An Act to amend the act entitled "An act to organize and establish a state board of agriculture," approved April twenty-two, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act the county board of agriculture in each county of this state, the state and Pomona Granges of Patrons of Husbandry, the State Agricultural Society and the State Horticultural Society shall each have power to select and appoint two directors to the state board of agriculture who shall hold that office for two years.

2. And be it enacted, That the state board of agriculture shall have the right and power to elect their officers and committees or any of them either from among the directors or from among any of the members of the board who are not directors.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An Act respecting the orphans' court, and relating to the powers and duties of the ordinary, and the orphans' court and surrogates" (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in order to prevent the failure of justice by reason of mistakes and objections of form, it shall be lawful for the orphans' court or the ordinary, at all times and in all cases, including estates now in process of settlement, to amend all defects and errors in any [illegible] whether there is anything in writing [illegible] and whether the defect or error [illegible] without costs, [illegible] orphans' court or ordinary may [illegible] all such amendments as may be necessary for the purpose of determining in the existing suit or proceeding the real question in controversy between the parties, or the real question raised on the application to amend, shall be so made.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXIII.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of the courts of law" (Revision) March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall not be necessary to file a bill in equity to obtain a new trial in an action at law, merely because the term in which the verdict was rendered has expired, but a new trial may be granted by a court of law after the expiration of the term.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXIV.

An Act creating the office of assistant clerk, and providing a suitable salary therefor, in counties in which the criminal and civil fees of the clerks go to the county collector for the use of the county.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any county in this state in which it is now or shall hereafter be provided by law that the fees, costs and compensations allowed clerks for services in the criminal and civil courts shall be collected and paid over to the collector for the use of the county, it shall be lawful to have an assistant clerk, to be paid by said collector of said county.

2. And be it enacted, That each of the clerks of said counties of this state, whenever the population of his said county shall exceed sixty thousand, shall appoint, under his hand and the seal of his office, an assistant clerk to be known and designated as such, and that said assistant clerk shall be a public officer, with a term similar to that of said clerk.

3. And be it enacted, That the term of such assistant clerks shall commence with their said appointment, and that if said appointment shall be approved by the presiding judge of the court of common pleas of said county, said appointment shall be for the term of five years.

4. And be it enacted, That such assistant clerks shall have and possess all the powers of the county clerk, to be exercised in his absence and under his direction, and it shall be competent for such assistant clerks to do and perform each and every act that the county clerk is required by law to perform, and which said county clerk is authorized by law or custom to do or perform.

5. And be it enacted, That said assistant clerks shall use the name and seal of the county clerk in his official acts.

6. And be it enacted, That after the appointment of said assistant clerks respectively they shall severally subscribe an oath and file the same in the office of the county clerk, that they will support the constitution of the United States and the state of New Jersey, and that they will demean themselves in office faithfully and well, and truly perform the duties of their office to the best of their knowledge, skill and ability.

7. And be it further enacted, That each of said assistant clerks shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, enter into a bond to the state of New Jersey in the sum of two thousand dollars, with two sufficient sureties, which said bond shall be approved as to form and security by the presiding judge of the court of common pleas, and shall be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and that any party aggrieved by the acts of said assistant clerk shall, after obtaining permission in writing of the chancellor of this state prosecute said bond in the name of the state of New Jersey for the use of the party aggrieved, and that, for all purposes of suit a certified copy of said bond shall be, and be taken to be, the original; provided that no prosecution upon said bond shall be had after four years from and after the expiration of his term of office.

8. And be it further enacted, That the said assistant clerk shall be paid the sum of two thousand dollars per annum in equal quarterly payments by the county collector.

9. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the formation of borough governments in seaside resorts," approved March twenty-ninth, one thousand, eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall and may be lawful for the council of any borough incorporated under the act to which this is a supplement to order and cause to be assessed and raised by tax every year such sum of money, not exceeding twenty mills on the dollar, as they shall deem expedient for the current expenses of such borough, and for all other objects and purposes authorized by the act to which this is a supplement; to be assessed and collected in the same manner as the assessors and collectors of townships are or may be by law required to assess and collect the state and county taxes; which taxes when collected shall be subject to the order of said council; and the said council may from time to time borrow such sum or sums of money, not exceeding ten mills on the dollar of the assessed value of the property in the borough in any one year, and then only for the purpose of anticipating the next year's taxes, in the corporate name of the borough, for all purposes for which they are authorized by the act to which this is a supplement to raise money by tax, as they may deem necessary, and secure the payment thereof by bond or other instrument, under the common seal of the borough and signature of the mayor attested by the clerk, and to provide by tax for the payment thereof within the ensuing year; provided, that no loan shall be made without the concurrence of a majority of all the members of said council.

2. And be it enacted, That whenever hereafter a greater sum of money than the said sum of twenty mills on the dollar shall, in the opinion of said council, be necessary to be raised in any one year for the use of such borough, then and in such case the said council are hereby authorized to give notice to the property holders of the borough by advertisement, published in one newspaper, if any there be circulated in the county in which such borough is situate, for at least two weeks, once in each week, before acting thereon; and by printed handbills put up in five of the most public places in such borough for a like period, stating the sum of money necessary to be raised and the purposes and uses for which such money is needed, and upon obtaining the written consent of persons representing one half or more of the taxable property in said borough as represented by the duplicate of the borough assessor for the previous year, said members of council may proceed to vote thereon; and every sum of money so voted by any resolution of said council to be raised by tax in said borough shall be assessed and collected the same as other taxes are assessed and collected; providing always that whenever council shall, by a unanimous vote, declare any sum, not exceeding two thousand dollars in any one year, to be necessary for the repairing or maintaining of the beach front, such sum so voted upon shall be assessed and collected in the same manner that the other taxes are assessed and collected, and said council may, if by a unanimous vote they declare it necessary, borrow such sum in anticipation of its assessment and collection, giving therefor such bond or bonds as they are hereinbefore authorized to issue.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXVI.

An Act respecting judges of the court of common pleas.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no justice of the peace shall be hereafter appointed a judge of the inferior court of common pleas, and the appointment of any justice of the peace to be such judge and his qualification as such shall vacate his office of justice of the peace.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXVII.

An Act to secure the payment of the interest and principal of bonds now issued and that may be issued in pursuance of an act entitled "An act in relation to encumbered cities," approved March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the officers, board or authorities having power to assess and levy taxes for state and county purposes in any municipality, and they are hereby empowered to levy an additional tax therein for the purpose of securing the payment of the interest as it accrues and the principal when due, on all bonds now issued and that may be issued by any city within their county, in pursuance of an act entitled "An act in relation to encumbered cities," approved March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, [illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the council or other legislative body of any municipality which has issued or shall issue any bonds under the authority of said act of March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, to appropriate to their payment, by ordinance, [illegible] taxes and assessments and the moneys that may be collected thereon; that after the passage of such ordinance all moneys collected on account of the taxes and assessments so appropriated shall, as collected, be paid over to a trustee to be appointed by such council or other legislative body, [illegible] the said council or other legislative body shall have full power to pass from time to time such ordinances and enter into such contracts with a trustee or trustees for the benefit of the holders of the bonds, issued and to be issued under the said act of March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, as such council or legislative body shall deem necessary or proper to carry out the powers herein granted.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, general, local or special, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXVIII.

An Act to authorize the issue of bonds for the erection or rebuilding of public buildings destroyed by fire, and purchase of fire apparatus.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any incorporated town in this state having more than five thousand inhabitants, as shown by the last census, where buildings for the use of the government and fire department have existed and been maintained and where the same shall have been destroyed by fire, it shall be lawful for the common council, town committee, or other governing body of such town to raise money by the issue of bonds, for the purpose of erecting, providing and properly furnishing suitable buildings for the uses and purposes of the town government and all departments created by or existing under it, and for the proper equipment of a fire department with necessary apparatus for protection against fire.

2. And be it enacted, That the said bonds shall state upon their face the purpose for which they were issued, and the term for which such bonds shall run shall not be longer than thirty years; and they shall be redeemable any time after the expiration of five years, at the option of the town; and shall be of denominations of not less than five hundred dollars, [illegible] sum of thirty thousand dollars, and shall bear a rate of interest not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually in the months of January and July.

3. And be it enacted, That the amount necessary for the payment of the interest of said bonds shall be placed in the appropriations, tax levy or tax ordinance, to be assessed and raised by taxation, as other moneys are raised for the uses and purposes of the town, together with the sum of one thousand dollars in each year, which sum, when collected, shall be deposited in the sinking fund of the town for the liquidation of the principal of said bonds when due.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts conflicting or inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXIX.

An Act to cure defective acknowledgments of conveyances by corporations.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the acknowledgments and proofs of any and all deeds of conveyance of lands, tenements and real estate situate within this state heretofore made, executed and delivered by any corporation organized under the laws of this state and having for its object the purchase, improvement or sale of lands, but which deeds have been acknowledged by an officer of the grantor corporation instead of having been proved by a subscribing witness thereto, be and the same are hereby declared to be as good, valid and effectual as if the same had been duly proved; provided said deed or deeds shall have been recorded in the clerk's or register's office of the county wherein such lands are situated for five years last past.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXX.

An Act for the ascertainment, protection and enforcement of the rights of the state under special charters in certain railroad and canal property.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the attorney general of this state to ascertain what companies have special privileges or immunities and what privileges and immunities by virtue of their charters other than such privileges and immunities as are granted by the general railroad act of the state, and in particular that he ascertain what companies, if any, have privileges or immunities with respect to taxation, and with respect to the right to charge tolls, fares and rates of compensation for the transportation of freight or passengers, and that he estimate the pecuniary value of these privileges as compared with the status of the same companies if organized under the general railroad law.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said attorney general to ascertain, and report what special rights are reserved or given to the state in any railroad or canal company or in its property, other than such rights as are reserved to the state by the general railroad law in corporations organized thereunder or in their property, and in particular that he ascertain the companies whose properties may, by their charters, be taken by the state in any other manner than by exercise of the right of eminent domain, and in what manner and on what terms the same may be taken, and the probable value of such right to take the same, and the probable cost of such taking.

3. And be it enacted, That the said attorney general shall report either to the present or to the next session of the legislature, or to both, and that he shall frame and report acts or proposed laws for the definite ascertainment, protection and enforcement of the rights of the state in such companies or property wherein the state has a special interest or for the disposal of such rights at their fair value, which acts may provide for the actual taking of said property by the state or for an agreement with the companies now holding or possessing the said property to sell the same to them, or for the sale of the right of the state to take such property to the highest bidder, or for the repeal of the charters of such companies and the appointment of receivers to take charge thereof on behalf of the state and of all parties concerned; or for such other measures as shall seem just and for the interest of the state, having in view the abolition of all special privileges or immunities and the restitution to the state of the fair value of its rights and interests in railroad property and corporations.

4. And be it enacted, That said attorney general may employ such counsel, clerks, stenographers and other assistants as may be necessary, and the treasurer of the state is hereby authorized and directed to pay, on the warrant of the comptroller the expenses incurred under the provisions of this act, the same being first properly certified by the attorney general.

5. And be it enacted, That for the purposes of this act the attorney general shall have power to examine witnesses and take evidence and require the production of books and papers; if any person shall refuse to appear and testify before him when required or to produce books and papers under his control when required, the attorney general may apply to any justice of the supreme court for an order to compel such appearance and production, and the disobedience of such order shall be a contempt of the supreme court and shall be punished by said justice in the same manner as such contempts are punished.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXI.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section seventy-six of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

[76. And be it enacted, That for the purpose of defraying the expenses of teachers' institutes, the procuring of teachers and lecturers for said institutes, and other necessary expenses of the same in each county of the state, there may be paid annually to the county superintendents of the respective counties, upon the certificate of the state superintendent of public instruction, a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars to one teachers' institute in any county, and where two or more counties join in holding a union institute each county so uniting may receive a like sum, the same to be paid on the certificate of the state superintendent of public instruction, out of the income of the school fund upon the warrant of the comptroller upon itemized accounts rendered to him by the state superintendent of public instruction of the expenses incurred.]

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXII.

An Act to provide compensation to constables for extra services rendered to the courts of the several counties of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any constable of any circuit court, court of oyer and terminer, court of general quarter sessions of the peace or court of common pleas of this state shall be required by any of the said courts to attend upon any jury while out considering of their verdict for more than six hours after the usual hour of adjournment of said courts, then it shall be lawful for the presiding judge of said court in his discretion to order that the said constable be allowed extra compensation for the said extra attendance at the same rate as is now allowed by law for regular daily attendance upon said courts, and to be paid in the same manner as constables are now paid for attendance upon the said courts.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act relative to the jurisdiction and practice of district courts in this state," approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and eighty-two.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section three of said act be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

[3. And be it enacted, That the pleadings to be filed in said district courts in any suit where the debt demanded, or damages claimed, actually exceeds the sum or value of two hundred dollars, shall be the same as those in the circuit courts of the several counties of this state, and the declaration in any such suit shall be filed within ten days after the return day named in the summons, and the plea of demurrer of the defendant shall be filed within ten days after the time limited for filing the plaintiff's declaration; and each succeeding pleading, until the case is at issue, shall be filed within ten days after the time limited for pleading by the opposite party; and every cause when at issue shall be noticed for trial within twenty days thereafter, and at least five days notice of trial shall be given by the plaintiff and served in the same manner as in the circuit courts of the several counties of this state; and if the plaintiff shall neglect to notice his cause for trial within said time judgment shall be awarded for the defendant as in case of a non-suit, with costs, unless the court allow further time; and the costs to be taxed in any such cause shall be the same to the attorney, court, clerk and sheriff as are taxable in the circuit courts of the several counties in this state; provided, however, that in case the plaintiff shall upon, or within ten days after the return day of the summons file his declaration and serve a copy thereof on the defendant or his attorney, the defendant shall plead or demur thereto within ten days from the date of such service, and in default thereof the plaintiff may have judgment in the same manner that judgment by default is rendered in the circuit courts of the several counties in this state.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXIV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section fifty of the act to which this is a supplement be amended so as to read as follows:

[50. And be it be enacted, That in every city having a board of education governed by special law, there may be a city board of examiners to consist of such members as said board of education of that city may appoint; said examiners shall have power, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the city board of education, to grant certificates of qualification, which shall be valid for all schools of that city; and no teacher shall be employed in any of the schools of that city unless possessing such certificate, or a state certificate, nor in any school of a higher grade than that for which said certificate represents the holder to be qualified; any city board of examiners may recognize the certificates of any other city, and without examination issue to the holders certificates of a corresponding grade.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the formation of borough governments," approved April 5th, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section three of a supplement to the act entitled "An act for the formation of borough governments," which supplement was approved March thirteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, be amended so as to read as follows:

[3. And be it enacted, That the mayor and council of boroughs organized under the act to which this is supplement, shall have power and authority to provide by ordinance (either general or special) for constructing, flagging, repairing and keeping in repair the sidewalks on any and all streets, roads, avenues or public places in general use within the borough, or which or may be laid out upon any map or lands therein, at the cost and expense of the owner or owners of the lands in front of which the same be so constructed, relaid or repaired, provided that all such ordinances shall provide for allowing such owner or owners at least thirty days' time within which to perform the work required thereby, and that written notice of the required work be sent to such owners by mail, if their post office address be known; if not known, then by posting such notice [illegible] or leaving [illegible] or by personal [illegible]

[illegible] expense of the work performed by [illegible] contemplated in the last preceding section of this act, in front of each lot or tract of land and shall either assess the same upon the lands in front of which such work was done, or may sue for the same in any court of competent jurisdiction in an action of debt, or certify the said cost and expense, together with a short description of the lot or tract of land in front of which the work was done, on or before August first in each year, to the assessor of taxes within the borough, who shall assess the same upon the lands so described under name of "sidewalk assessments," at the same time and in same manner as general taxes for that year, which when so assessed shall be and become a first lien on such lands, and be collected at same time and in same manner as such other tax.

2. And be it enacted, That the legal voters of boroughs incorporated under the act to which this is a further supplement shall annually vote upon the same ballot used in voting for mayor and councilmen designate an amount of money to be raised by taxation upon the real and personal property within the borough for the purpose of working, permanently improving, macadamizing, repairing and keeping in repair the accepted streets, roads, avenues and public places therein, and the laying, repairing and keeping in repair all necessary street crossings in the borough, and the sum of money receiving the greatest number of votes at any such election shall be the sum of money to be raised for the aforesaid purposes within the borough, and the result shall be certified upon the returns of said election, and the sum of money so voted shall be assessed and collected at same time and in same manner as other borough tax under the name of "road tax." [illegible] the money so raised and collected shall be paid by the collector thereof subject only to the warrant of the council signed by the mayor and attested by the borough clerk under the corporate seal; provided, however, that in case of failure of the legal voters of the borough to so designate the amount of money to be raised as "road tax," by reason of a tie vote or that this act becomes a law before the annual election to be held in March, eighteen hundred and eighty-five, or for any other reason then it shall be lawful for the mayor and council at any regular meeting to fix such road tax levy at a sum not exceeding three-fifths of one per cent. of the valuation of the real and personal property within the borough as assessed the preceding year; and provided further, that no township or other road tax shall be assessed or collected within the borough.

4. And be it enacted, That every ordinance passed by the council and every resolution of such council appropriating or binding in any way to pecuniary obligate the borough and also every resolution authorizing or directing the payment of [illegible] demands together with such bills shall before the same or either of them take effect and within five days after the passage thereof (Sundays excepted) be presented to the mayor, if he approve he shall sign it, if not, he shall return the same within seven days (Sundays excepted) after the receipt by him to the borough clerk with his objections thereto in writing, and the council shall at their next regular meeting cause the objections to be entered at length on their minutes, and proceed to reconsider the same, and if two-thirds of the members of the council shall vote to pass the same it shall take effect; if such ordinance or resolution, shall not be so returned by the mayor within seven days (Sundays excepted) after receipt of it, then it shall take effect the same as if he shall have signed it; provided, that if any resolution or bill shall contain more than one distinct item, clause or items the mayor may approve of one or more thereof and veto the rest.

5. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the mayor and council, at any sale of lands for unpaid taxes or assessments to cause the same to be purchased (in case of no bidders) in the corporate name of the borough, for the use and benefit of the borough, and to hold, possess and enjoy the same and the rents and profits thereof, as provided by law.

6. And be it enacted, That when the election for borough officers falls on the same day as the annual township election, within which such borough is situate, the polls for the borough election shall open and close at the same time as those of such township election.

7. And be it enacted, That the mayor and council shall have power and authority to provide by ordinance for the curbing and guttering of any street, road, avenue or public place, or any part thereof, within the borough, and assess the cost and expense thereof, upon the several lots and parcels of land and real estate within the borough specially benefited thereby, and in proportion to the benefits received by each one of such lots or parcels of land and real estate, and no lot or parcel of land shall be assessed more than benefited, and if there be any surplus of such cost and expense after making the said assessment, then such surplus shall be borne by the borough at large, and shall be assessed and collected at same time and in same manner as borough taxes are assessed and collected, and that all such assessments made as herein directed, shall be a lien and remain from date of such assessment until paid, a first and paramount lien upon the lands and real estate so assessed, and in case any such assessment shall remain unpaid for the space of sixty days after the same shall have been so assessed, then the mayor and council shall proceed to collect the same, together with interest from date of assessment, at not over the rate of ten per cent. per annum, and all costs and expenses thereof, by the sale of the lots, tracts or parcels of land so assessed, in the same manner and form and to the like effect in all things as prescribed for the sale of lands for the taxes under and by virtue of an act entitled "A further act concerning taxes, making the same a first lien on real estate, and to authorize sales for the payment of the same," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

8. And be it enacted, That the borough clerk shall have power and authority to take and administer oaths, affirmations and affidavits in borough matters required, with like force and effect in all things, as if taken by a justice of the peace, and to charge therefor a fee of ten cents for his own use.

9. And be it enacted, That such warrants and other process as the mayor may lawfully issue may be legally served or executed throughout the county within which the borough is situate, and may be served or executed in other counties in like manner as warrants of justices of the peace now are.

10. And be it enacted, That the assessor shall assess all taxes to be by him levied and assessed within the borough in a separate and distinct duplicate from township taxes, the same to be provided as other duplicates now are.

11. And be it enacted, That the election of the first officers of boroughs incorporated under the act to which this is a further supplement may be held on any Tuesday after two weeks from date of filing of the certificate of the result of election referred to in section three of said act.

12. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, both general and special, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

13. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXVI.

An Amendment to an act entitled "An act in relation to the payment of assessments for local improvements," Approved April 6th, one thousand and eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the fourth section of the said act be and same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

[4. And be it enacted, That in municipal corporations in which there are commissioners of the sinking fund it shall be lawful for the said commissioners by resolution to limit the time within which, and to decide what class of bonds shall be received for assessments, and to determine whether bonds shall be received for assessments [illegible] or not.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

An Act to repeal an act entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act concerning roads,' approved March twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three."

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That an act of the legislature of this state entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act concerning roads,' approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four," which act was approved March twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

An Act to authorize the appointment of additional ward assessors in the cities of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the board or officer authorized in any city to appoint ward assessors or taxing officers in the wards or taxing districts of such city, is hereby authorized to appoint an additional assessor in any ward or taxing district wherever the whole number of assessments in such ward or taxing district shall exceed five thousand; and two additional assessors in any ward or taxing district where the whole number of assessments shall exceed ten thousand in each ward or taxing district; provided, however, that no such additional appointments shall be made where the assessors are paid a fixed salary.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 11, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXIX.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act relative to the Monmouth battle monument," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

Whereas, "the Monmouth Battle Monument Association," a corporation under the laws of this state did, in conformity with the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement, convey to the state of New Jersey the tract of land in the county of Monmouth known as "monument park," containing over three acres; and

Whereas, A monument to commemorate the battle of Monmouth has been erected on said land, by the joint contributions of the people and the state and United States governments, under the supervision of the commission created by said act; and

Whereas, It is represented that the said commission has not sufficient funds remaining to grade, fence and improve said land, the site of the monument, as was contemplated by said act; and

Whereas, Under the provisions of said act the Monmouth Battle Monument Association retained, out of the moneys which had been contributed to said association by the people, the sum of two thousand dollars, the interest from which was intended to be used towards keeping the grounds in order and caring for the monument after the same had been completed; and

Whereas, The said association has also received, since the passage of said act, other moneys towards keeping the grounds in order and caring for the monument in future; and

Whereas, It is desirable that said grounds should be graded, fenced and improved as speedily as possible so as to cause the site to correspond in beauty with the monument itself; and

Whereas, It is represented that the said association will pay to said commission created by said act all said moneys now in hand, or which may hereafter be received, and transfer to said commission all bonds or evidences of indebtedness belonging to said association, to be used by said commission in grading, fencing, beautifying and improving said grounds, the site of the monument now belonging to the state of New Jersey; provided, that after said improvements shall have been made, the said grounds and the monument shall, until otherwise provided by law, be and remain in the care and under the supervision of said commission to keep the same in order and care for the monument; and

Whereas, One of the chief inducements to the appropriation of the sum of twenty thousand dollars made by the United States toward the erection of said monument was the fact that the title to the site thereof was in the state of New Jersey, which fact was considered a guarantee that the site and the monument would be continually cared for, therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That when "the Monmouth Battle Monument Association" shall pay all the moneys belonging thereto and shall transfer all the bonds and other evidences of indebtedness in possession of said association to the said commission created by the act to which this is a supplement, the said commission may receive the same and shall use the proceeds thereof as soon as practicable, to grade, fence, beautify and improve said Monument Park; provided, the sum paid, together with the bonds and other evidences of indebtedness transferred as aforesaid by said association to said commission shall exceed in value the sum of twenty-six hundred dollars.

2. And be it enacted, That after the said grounds shall have been improved as aforesaid with the proceeds of the moneys paid over and evidences of indebtedness assigned by said association to said commission, the said grounds, the site of the monument and the monument itself, shall, until otherwise provided by law be and remain in the care and under the supervision of the commission created by the act of the legislature of this state to which this is a supplement.

3. And be it enacted, That as soon as the improvements to the grounds as aforesaid shall have been finished, said commission shall make to the governor a report and detailed account of the expenditures in making such improvements, who shall lay the same before the legislature at the next session thereafter, and thereafter the said commission shall keep said grounds in order and care for the monument.

4. And be it enacted, That said commission shall report annually in detail the items of cost of keeping said grounds in order and caring for the monument, to the governor of the state for his approval, and if approved [illegible] to the treasury of the state upon [illegible] comptroller upon vouchers certified by the president of the commission, [illegible] shall not exceed the sum of three hundred dollars.

5. And be it enacted, That the members of said commission shall not receive any compensation for their services under this act or the act to which this is a supplement.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXX.

An Act to declare and establish the intent and meaning, force and effect of the several acts and parts of acts granting to certain active and exempt firemen, to persons who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the late war, and to all general and staff officers, all commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the national guard of this state, certain advantages in respect to taxes.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the several acts and parts of acts granting to certain active and exempt firemen, to persons who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the late war and to all general and staff officers, all commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the national guard of this state certain advantages in respect to taxes shall not be construed or held to be cumulative in their action, and that any person claiming any exemption or deduction from taxation by reason of his belonging to any one or more of the three classes above mentioned, shall elect at the time of making such claim for exemption or deduction under only one of the said classes for tax exemption, and shall make his claim thereunder [illegible] and shall not be entitled to have or claim by reason of his belonging to more than one of the three classes aforesaid any other or additional tax exemption whatever.

2. And be it enacted, That in the case of a city, town, or borough being or having been at any time incorporated within the limits of any township, any person claiming tax exemption by reason of his being an active or exempt fireman, shall only claim exemption from such taxes as shall be assessed against him or his property under the authority of the municipal corporation under the supervision or control of which he may be doing or have done duty, and if such claim be made by reason of his being an exempt fireman, such exemption shall only be made from taxes assessed against him or his property, or both, by the municipal corporation in the service of which he was an exempt fireman.

3. And be it enacted, That any person, whose right to claim any exemption as aforesaid shall accrue prior to the time when such tax shall become payable, in any year, shall be entitled to claim such exemption from the taxes assessed during said year as aforesaid.

4. And be it enacted, That the following shall be sufficient evidence to the collector or receiver of taxes of the right of any person to claim exemption as aforesaid, to wit: In case of certificates of exempt firemen, the certificate of the clerk of the city, town, borough or township or of such other municipal officer as shall have charge of the records showing what persons are entitled to be exempt firemen, which shall be produced without charge, stating that the person claiming such exemption is either an active or exempt fireman; in case of persons who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the late war, the honorable discharge from such service, which discharge shall be produced [illegible] discharge or the certificate of the adjutant general of this state, and in case of all general and staff officers, all commissioned and non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the national guard of this state, the following certificates, to wit: Of general, staff and commissioned officers, the certificate of the adjutant general of this state; of all non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, the certificate of the commandant of their respective company, board or battery to which they belong, as the case may be; which certificate shall specify that the person or persons therein named are in the active service of the national guard of this state.

5. And be it enacted, That in case any two or more persons, residing in the same city, town, borough or township, shall be entitled to certificates as above mentioned, from the same officer, or from the clerk of any city, town, borough or township, such certificates may be made in the form of a list of the persons entitled and certified as aforesaid, which list shall be certified by such officer or clerk, and filed by him with the collector or receiver of taxes of such city, town, borough or township, at or before the time, in each year, when taxes shall be assessed and payable.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately, and that all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Passed March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXI.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the protection of fish and game in this state," approved March twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section [illegible] of the act to which this is a supplement be amended to read as follows:

[illegible]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act for the formation of borough governments in seaside resorts," approved March twenty-ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

There never was a more general public confidence evinced in a newly inaugurated National Administration than in that of President Cleveland.

It is true that corrupt spoilsmen of every name and hue do not take kindly to the administration now in control of public affairs at Washington, and that is its most merited eulogy. The truth stands equally prominent that honest men of all parties do accord it hearty approval, because they believe President Cleveland sincere in his endeavors to make rectitude and ability officially supreme.

His programme of action is—

Honest and competent men in office.

Impartial and vigilant execution of law.

Rigid accountability and prudent economy.

An efficient public service throughout every department of government.

Just and equal rights to all citizens and every interest.

Raise that into supremacy and the star of Jeffersonian Democracy will shine with unclouded brilliancy, and peace, honor and prosperity will be the people's portion.

REPAIRS.

Many and deep are the holes down which public money has been poured without stint in this boasted land of law and liberty.

Gradually are those sinks of official profligacy and national loss being discovered and exposed to view by a Democratic Reform Administration.

Millions upon millions of dollars have, during the past dozen years, been charged on the books of the Navy Department for repairs to naval vessels.

The dollars of the people went out of the Treasury for repairs, but, strange to say, the Navy grew more and more rotten and worthless as the cost for putting it in order swelled into gigantic proportions.

Had the charge for such expenditures been headed FRAUD, instead of REPAIRS, the term would have been much nearer the truth, as the people will yet be made to see.

A vessel is ordered by the Secretary of the Navy to a certain Navy Yard for repairs.

That looks all right on the outside.

But, what of the inside?

After being there two or three years undergoing repairs, and a half million of dollars or more paid out for her complete renovation, she is found to be less seaworthy and efficient than ever.

That is a specimen job.

The money is gone.

Repairs were a sham.

The vessel is a useless hulk for naval purposes.

Who pocketed the outlay?

That's the question, taxpayers!

The long disputed question whether a physician who gives a prescription, or the druggist after he has filled it, is the owner of the prescription, has been settled in favor of the druggist by the Supreme Courts of New York and Massachusetts. The prescription, in fact, is a voucher that the druggist has faithfully performed his obligation, and he is not even bound to give a copy, but may renew the drugs when it becomes necessary.

Judge Chilian Robbins died at his residence in Freehold, N. J., Sunday morning last, in the forty-third year of his age. He had been suffering from an intestinal tumor for over six months. He studied law under Judge Scudder, and was admitted to the bar in 1866. In 1872 he was appointed Lower Judge of Monmouth county, N. J., and after serving two years resumed the practice of law. He ranked among the foremost lawyers of New Jersey. In the year 1880 he ran for Congressman in the Third District against Miles Ross, and was badly defeated.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Board of Managers of the Fire Department met in adjourned meeting in Alert's parlors Monday evening—all present. On motion of Mr. Knowland, seconded by Mr. Livingston and opposed by Mr. Morris, the proposition of Warren Engine Co. No. 3 to sell its steamer to the Department for $600, and to take the Board's note at 12 months for the amount, was accepted—Commissioners Jones, Brewer, Livingston and Knowland voting in favor. The Chief Engineer was instructed as to the duties of the Fire Patrol, and a committee was requested to secure a suitable place to store the supplies that were necessarily kept in hand. A committee was appointed to confer with ex-City Collector Clark in relation to an unsettled account between him and the Board, and the Com. on Wells was authorized to build one at Broadway and Park place. Mr. Knowland's resolution was carried to the effect, that hereafter all reports for supplies and repairs shall come to the Committee through the Chief Engineer. In cases of emergency, however, that officer is empowered to do all that is needed and report to one of the Committee. The expenditures of the Chief for the Department, without the authority of the Com. on Repairs and Supplies, is limited to five dollars. The proposition of the Amoskeag Co. to put a new boiler on the No. 2 steamer for $650, was accepted, and it was ordered that the steamer be sent on for the purpose as soon as possible. The Committee on Repairs was given power to put a new set of wheels on No. 2's steamer. President Jones hoped all the Commissioners would accept the invitation to be present at the moonlight parade of Wednesday evening. The Board then adjourned.

Right You Are!

The Commissioners appointed to rebuild the State Capitol have concluded to abandon the effort. Reason: inadequate appropriation. This act will, just as soon as the next Legislature convenes, revive the efforts of Newark and Elizabeth to have the State House transferred to their shores. For our part, we don't see what a bankrupt city wants with a striking Legislature. We now have too many twisting lawyers within our confines.—Elizabeth Herald.

Fair Warning.

The attention of boys and their parents is called to the following new law in regard to buying or using fire-arms: "And be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful to sell, hire or lean to any person under the age of fifteen years, any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire-arms, or for any person under the age of fifteen years to purchase, barter or exchange any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire-arms; or for any person under the age of fifteen years to carry, fire or use, except in the presence of his father or guardian, any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire-arms."

Appreciated.

The following letter, received from a well known lady resident of this city, we deem entitled to public notice with the thanks of the recipient:

PARIS, May 13, 1885.

MESSRS. FORCE BROS.—DEAR SIRS—Herewith please find enclosed $2 to be given the enterprising young lad, John L. Force, to aid him in contributing toward the Bartholdi Pedestal Fund. I receive the papers from home regularly every week. I was much pleased to learn of the efforts of these young lads in trying to raise subscriptions for this laudable object, and trust they may succeed in raising a large amount. It is a dishonor to our country that the amount required has not already been raised; it shows at least a lack of appreciation on their part. I have been four years in France, with the exception of spending a few months of each year at home, and I know the opinion of the French people on that subject. We Americans must not forget that we owe our independence almost entirely to that nation. I leave Paris on the Steamer Normandie, which leaves Havre the 16th of May. I always regret to leave la belle France, and particularly at this season of the year, still, home ties are strongest. * * * When you will have received this letter I shall probably be on the deep, deep sea. With kind regards I remain yours most respectfully,

* * *

Where Is She?

Susie Steers, a domestic, has been missing from her friends in this city for some days. For several months she was in the employ of Mr. Ellis A. Campbell on Park avenue. Recently she went to New York city. Shortly after going there her sister, Maggie, who is a domestic in the employ of ex-Councilman John B. Brown, of this city, received a letter from Susie stating that she was married. The letter in question was from New York and told of meeting her husband, who does not receive her kindly. The writer refers to him in uncomplimentary terms and concludes as follows:

> When you receive this I will be dead. You will find my body at 141 West Fifteenth street and my trunk at Abingdon Square. I pray you will forgive me for thus taking my life, but I cannot live.

Inclosed in the letter was a receipt from the express company and the trunk was found at the office. On Tuesday Mr. Campbell visited the morgue, in New York city, where the body of a young woman was lying, who had committed suicide at the Grand Union Hotel, by shooting herself through the heart. He at once asserted that the corpse was that of Susie Steers. The next day in company with the missing girl's sister and brother, Mr. Campbell again visited the morgue, only to find that the body had been recognized as that of Miss Hattie Bedient, of Hornby, N. Y., and was then on its way to that place in charge of the dead girl's father. From photographs, however, the sister Maggie, and Mr. Campbell were quite positive that the suicide was Susie Steers until they were shown the clothing worn by the deceased, when they were reluctantly compelled to admit the identity of Miss Bedient. Since then nothing has been learned of Susie Steers, and her parents and relatives are wild with grief over her sudden disappearance. Miss Steers states that her sister had given evidence of being unsettled in her mind for some time, and thinks it possible that the whole scheme was an invention of her fevered brain.

Memorial Day Observances.

Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R. of this city will decorate the graves of all soldiers and sailors in Plainfield and Scotch Plains by special details, each in charge of officers and accompanied by a drum corps. This will be done in the morning.

The post will assemble at its rooms corner Park ave. and Front st. at 1 30 p. m., preparatory to marching to Reform Hall, where the services will be held at 2.30. The march will be through Front st. to Central ave. and thence to the hall.

The order of exercises at Reform Hall will be as follows:

Opening, by the drum corps.
Singing by quartette.
Prayer by Comrade Schnellendreusler.
Memorial services by Post.
Singing by quartette.
Address by Past Department Commander Burrows.
Singing by quartette.
Selection by drum corps.
Benediction.

The Post will then return to headquarters through Second street and Park ave.

Free tickets are distributed to all who wish to be present at Reform Hall on that occasion. They may be obtained at Peck's, of Dr. Lowrie and Wm. Addis.

Persons having flowers to give for decorating graves are requested to leave them with Ford & Stiles on Friday.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The pound sociable held at the M. E. church parlors on Wednesday evening, was well attended.

The irrepressible John Peiffer has commenced practice as a veterinary surgeon. John, where did you get your diploma.

The ladies of the Congregational church will hold a summer festival in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, June 9.

Lewis C. Thies, agent for the champion horse rake and Syracuse plows, is meeting with good success in the sale of them.

A large number of our residents went to Plainfield last week to witness the performance of Rip Van Winkle, at Music Hall.

The new dwelling house of John S. Irving, corner of Cumberland street and North avenue, is rapidly approaching completion.

Now is the time for the overseers of our roads to repair them, and not wait until late in the Fall, as has been the custom of many of them.

The next quarterly teacher's examination will be held at Westfield Academy, on Saturday, June 6, instead of May 30, that day being Decoration Day.

John N. Wilcox has the contract for repairing and putting in first-class order the Lyceum Hall building. He is engaged in carting the lumber for the work.

Mr. John Hetfield's horse, attached to a wagon in which were Mrs. Hetfield and her daughter, became frightened while driving along Broad street on Wednesday afternoon, and ran away. It was stopped at the corner of Mountain avenue and Broad street, without doing but very little damage. The occupants of the carriage were considerably frightened.

The Health Board are using their best endeavors to have our town in good sanitary condition for the coming summer. The law organizing health boards gives them a large amount of power to abate nuisances detrimental to the public health, and the board intends using the rights that the law has given them. If their notices and ordinances are not complied with, our residents can assist them by reporting all causes affecting the sanitary condition of our town.

On Monday afternoon at 2:30, as coal train drawn by engine No. 118, bound West, was nearing our station, the train broke apart. The rear brakeman, George Hummell, was between the two cars that parted their coupling. He jumped to save himself and fell, striking the ties, and breaking three of his ribs; the wheels of the car tore the heel of his shoe off. Hummell was taken to the station and Dr. Cooper summoned, who bandaged the wounds, and he was taken to his home at Hampton, New Jersey.

Town committee met at the town rooms on Monday evening, May 25, 1885. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. On motion Gustave H. Koester was appointed constable for the balance of the unexpired term. Mr. Embree reported communication from P. & R. railroad company quoting the price of crushed stone at $1.25 per cubic yard; also that they expect to commence shipment this week. On motion the following township bills were ordered paid: F. Decker, postage, Board of Health, $4.15; Westfield telegraph, $4.25; J. M. Knapp, 3½ days' service, Health Inspector, $11. Total, $19.36. On motion the following bills for lighting street lamps were ordered paid: Village Improvement Company, lighting lamps, month of March, $20.25; April $20, to May 21, $9.39. Total, $49.64. On motion adjourned subject to call of chairman.

The Equestrian Department is not confined to an occasional "star." The whole range of the arenic horizon is ONE EXPANDED GALAXY OF CROWDED CONSTELLATIONS!

The long list of distinguished names are not mentioned in connection with this announcement.

THE TRAINED CASTILLIAN DOGS of Signor Abero have positively no equal in all history of canine culture and [illegible]. It is worth the whole price of admission to see these alone. The ZOOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT contains 13 cages of living Wild Animals from all parts of the world, with many rare specimens, THREE FINE ELEPHANTS, among which is EMPRESS, the Largest and Best Performing Elephant in the world, the good people of this town to be the judges.

There will be Two Entertainments each day, Afternoon and Night, at 2 and 8 o'clock. A splendid new Pavilion large enough to accommodate everybody, with an ample supply of comfortably upholstered reserved seats, only 25 cts. extra. In fact everything is spic-span new, and every department conducted in first-class order. For full particulars see large and small bills, couriers, programmes, etc., scattered everywhere by the thousands.

READ WHAT THE PAPERS SAY OF THIS SPLENDID SHOW:

The Show is one of the finest that has been in this city. The entertainment last night was first-class in every respect.—Washington National Republican, April 16.

The bareback riders, acrobats, gymnasts, the trained elephant and other features of the ring were excellent. The clowns kept the large audience in high glee, and no circus began its week's entertainment under favorable auspices.—Washington Post, April 16.

The attendance was large, the ring features were excellent, the clowns were real clowns and kept the spectators in a merry mood. The horseback riding, as was every feature that entered the ring, was superb. In every respect it is a most excellent show.—Evening Critic, April 17.

The show in a single ring gave great satisfaction and was heartily applauded. Altogether the show is a good one. The performing elephants and trained dogs were pleasing features.—Evening Star, April 17.

We hesitate not to give the show a personal endorsement, having seen it and heartily enjoyed its interesting entertainments throughout. The performance of the elephants are wonderful, displaying great intelligence and docility. Signor Abero's trained Castilian dogs equal everything we have ever seen in the canine species, while every act in the ring is first-class.—Washington Sunday Chronicle, April 19.

The Menagerie is a good one, containing splendid specimens, while the entire circus is the best ever seen in this city.—Sunday Gazette, April 19.

First-class in every particular. O'Brien & Co.'s Circus is a surprise to the circus-goers of this city, and differs from most traveling shows in one respect, viz: it is first-class in every particular.—The Washington Capital, April 19, 1885.

O'Brien, Astley & Co.'s circus and menagerie visited this city yesterday. The street parade was modest, but the entertainment gave great satisfaction. The attendance was large, the ring features were excellent, the clowns were real clowns, and kept the spectators in a merry mood. The horseback riding, as was every feature that entered the ring, was good.—Trenton State Gazette, May 21.

The show without doubt is one of the finest that was exhibited in this or any other city.—Newark Daily Register, May 6. m29w2

"AMATEUR" burglars attempted to enter the houses of Messrs. Fred L. Willis and Ira G. Hurlbet, on Duer street, during Monday night, but were frightened away by the former. The following night Mr. J. Howard Wilson's premises were visited by the same marauders. Mr. Wilson was aroused by their movements and fired his revolver at them without effect.

ABNER CORIELL has been postmaster of New Market for over 24 years. "Uncle Jesse Thorn," although 92 years of age, and who was the postmaster when succeeded by Mr. Coriell, has his eye on the office, as the latter's successor. Mr. Thorn is still hale and hearty, despite his age, and thinks nothing of walking to this city and back from his home.

MR. S. C. LILIENSTERN, formerly "the Plainfield clothier," has opened in New York city an extensive custom tailoring establishment. To meet the wishes of his large trade here, however, he has arranged to be at No. 26 East Front street, every Wednesday forenoon and Friday afternoon, with a line of samples, and will then take orders for clothing to measure at the prices quoted in his advertisement elsewhere.

THE store clerks ask for a holiday on Decoration day, and from a general expression of the merchants, it looks as though their request will be largely acceded to. As a rule clerks have very little recreation, and an occasional holiday would be beneficial. Saturday is a bad day for suspension of business, but if the public will assist by making their purchases on Friday, it would be possible for most of the stores to close.

THE trial of the prisoner Mitchell, who made the atrocious assault upon Deputy Warden Breen in the County Jail on April 30th last, with a pair of shears, came up in the Union County Courts, on Monday last. The Court had assigned counsel to Mitchell, but he was not present when the case was moved. The Court declined to postpone the case, and said the counsel had wanted the defendant to plead guilty. Mitchell cross-examined the State witnesses. Mr. Breen and Warden Cahill related the story of the assault, and Dr. Oakley described the wounds, all of which he said were dangerous. Mr. Breen admitted that he struck Mitchell first, but was justified in so doing, because he believed Mitchell was about to strike him. Mitchell in defense testified that Breen came to his cell with a club and began the assault upon him without provocation, except because of an old grudge held against him. He alleged that on the day of the assault a prisoner in an adjoining cell fainted. He (Mitchell) called to Breen to care for the man and Breen told him to mind his own business, and with a threat that he would fix him, came to the cell with the club. Samuel Ferguson and Matthew Flannigan, prisoners in jail, were called by Mitchell, and testified that they heard Mr. Breen make the threat as alleged by the defendant. William Dockerty was called by the prisoner, but testified that he did not hear the threats. Mr. Breen was recalled and in rebuttal testified that he did not use the threats. The State showed that the witnesses who had sworn in behalf of the defendant had been confined to their cells for infringement upon the rules of the jail. The jury found the prisoner guilty and recommended him to mercy.

THE post office will be closed tomorrow from 10 a. m., to 5 p. m. No money orders will be issued during the day.

THE six hour race at the Casino, Wednesday afternoon and evening, resulted as follows: Moore, 65 miles, 1 lap; Carney, 57.17; Mundy, 52.6; Cook, 50.12; Brown, 44.17. Others were in the race but did not finish. Moore finished his last mile in 4 minutes 42 seconds.

THE Dunellen Presbyterian church will give an entertainment next Thursday evening. Mme. Alberti will read and several young ladies will illustrate the emotions by gesture. Also a male quartette consisting of Plainfield talent, accompanied by Mrs. S. I. Mitchel.

IT has been many years since the shad fishing in the Raritan River has been so prolific as the present season. The fish are numerous and large. The season is, however, drawing to a close. June 10th is the limit allowed by law to catch shad with nets in the Raritan.

AT a special election for aldermen in the Second ward of Newark, Wednesday, to fill the unexpired term of Alderman Vandervoort, who resigned, John W. Strahan, Democrat, was elected over Isaac Bannister, Republican, by a majority of 213, a large gain of votes for the Democrats.

WEDNESDAY last the attention of the Union County Court was taken up in the trial of Patrick Day, of this city, on a charge of assault and battery. Geo. P. Suydam, Esq. and Hon. John T. Dunn were counsel for accused. The case was given to a jury after a lengthy trial, who acquitted Mr. Day.

THE public exhibition of the Thomson-Houston system of electric lights, on our streets last week, gave general satisfaction, and was the cause of very favorable comment regarding that style of street lighting. Mr. Charles Wann, who has the matter in charge, was assured by several citizens that they were ready to subscribe to shares of stock in the Company which he proposes to organize, while a number of others have signed applications for lights, among them being the proprietor of the Hotel Netherwood, who takes ten lights. The next question comes, to whom will the city grant a franchise for the introduction of electric lights, if to anyone. There are now three applications before the Council. Mr. Wann seems to be in the foreground with his Company, by giving our citizens the exhibition above alluded to, which was in charge of skillful mechanics and electricians, Messrs. Daniel Killion and H. S. Fosster, of Philadelphia. Laboring under great disadvantages, Mr. Killion succeeded admirably in giving our citizens a fine exhibition of this really excellent system of light. Oh, for electric lights!

Postponed.

By reason of the impossibility of getting the scenery for "The Rahjah" from the South, where the company has been playing, to this city by June 2d., as intended, a postponement of the performance may be necessary.

Shooting Match.

On Saturday, Decoration day, there will be clay pigeon and glass ball shooting at Campbell's Club House, on Park avenue. During the day there will be prizes offered in sweepstake matches, consisting of two elegant silver cups and a silver badge. It is expected that there will be a large attendance.

The Borough Election.

President Judge Bartine of the Court of Common Pleas on Saturday granted an order for a special election to incorporate North Plainfield as a borough; the election to be held Tuesday, June 9. The Judge appointed H. N. Spencer Clerk of Election and P. M. French and Assemblyman John Vetterlein as Inspectors of Election.

Health vs. Discipline.

No scholar, especially during this weather should be "kept in" for any length of time. Turn the rascals out! If so unruly that more than a half-hour's detention is necessary, send word to the parent or guardian that they may punish as they may see fit. But the scholars and teachers should not remain in the school rooms "after hours."

The Circus is Coming.

We can not hesitate in giving our endorsement to O'Brien, Astley & Co's Circus, when it is so heartily and sincerely praised by our brothers of the press after its appearance in other places. The street "pageant" is modest, but the show itself seems thoroughly satisfactory. It will be in this city at the corner of Fourth, Fifth and William streets, Saturday afternoon and evening of next week.

Honor the Union Dead.

The ladies of Garfield League, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, assisted by their chorus of girls, will hold a Memorial service in honor of the Union dead, on the evening of May 30th, at 8 o'clock, in the Howell Division rooms, Front street, corner of Park avenue. The exercises will consist of a patriotic service, to be rendered by the children, choruses, solos and recitations, appropriate to the occasion. Admission free, and to all who may be desirous of witnessing the service a cordial welcome will be given by the members of Garfield League.

Y. M. C. A. Annual Meeting.

In the words of the principal attraction—the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Music Hall, Monday evening, was a very interesting meeting for those who are interested in meetings of that kind. The report of the retiring president, Mr. H. R. Munger, was instructive and full of suggestions for the incoming officers. Dr. Vincent's address was necessarily shortened for lack of time, but was, nevertheless, entertaining and well received. The singing by a remnant of the Vocal Society, of Blumenthal's "Evening Hymn," Mendelssohn's "Judge Me O God," and the "Sanctus" from the "Messe Solennelle," was distinctly bad.

Children's Matinee.

Frequent, lengthy and unnecessary waits, especially tiresome to the hundred or two little ones gathered in Music Hall, last Saturday afternoon, was one of the drawbacks that interfered with the complete success of the "May Matinee." The entertainment in its variety and originality was creditable to the taste and judgment of Prof. Walsh, and for the utter lack of harmony among the "choir boys," he should not be held responsible. The programme tells us that Miss Sarah L. Richardson was the "Mother Goose," but unless we are mistaken, Miss Annie L. Richardson, of St. George's church, Brooklyn, is to be commended for the very sweet singing of the nursery jingles. Of the many that took part in the pantomimic illustrations of the songs, Lillie Walsh charmed the most. The dancing was particularly pleasing—Nellie Walsh in her first appearance being specially graceful, and Freddie Rivers displayed wonderful talent. A recitation of the story of "Little Red Riding Hood," in six tableaux and five acts, with songs and dances "by the entire company," closed the entertainment.

Temperance.

A public meeting will be held in the rooms of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, Front street and Park avenue, Tuesday evening, June 2d, at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Hundreds Expectant.

The necessary scaffolding is being erected by the carpenters in the interior of the Crescent Rink, preparatory to the raising of the large pillars and the framing of the trusses that will support the roof plates. Hundreds visit the building daily, and gaze with curiosity, admiration and expectation at its progress.

Moonlight Parade

Upon invitation of Zephyr H. & L. Co., Engine Co's No. 1 and 2, with their steamers, the Fire Commissioners and the officers of Alert and Warren, joined in a moonlight parade through some of the principal streets, Wednesday evening. The Casino Cornet Band lead the procession, and all along the line of march the public greeted the boys with enthusiasm and delight. The good time that resulted, is very creditable to the hospitality and courtesy of the officers and members of the Hook & Ladder Co.

Take Warning in Time.

During a severe storm Sunday night the residence of Abe Winglee, seven miles northwest of Oakland, Ill., was struck by lightning. The flash came through a window and entered the sitting-room, wherein were Mr. Winglee, his wife, his sister-in-law and four children. Mrs. Winglee was struck and died without a struggle. Miss VanVaris, her sister, was struck down and is still in an unconscious condition, and Mr. Winglee and two of the family were struck, but did not lose consciousness. The house was set on fire, but the flames were extinguished. This should be a warning to every householder to see that their buildings are properly protected by lightning rods. John Bishop, of Bound Brook, N. J., is the proper person to do such work.

Evening Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy gave a large reception at their Eighth street residence, Tuesday evening, which was attended by the "elite" of this and New York city. The house was profusely decorated with flowers, and the supper was the successful effort of a fashionable Broadway caterer. Among the Plainfielders present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Potter, Jr., the Misses Potter, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meyers, Miss Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Tallmadge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ames, Rev. Dr. John H. Vincent, Rev. and Mrs. William H. Richards, Rev. K. P. Ketcham, Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Ayers, Miss Maud Ayers, Dr. Chauncey M. Field, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ward Stimson, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Hawley, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Endicott, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepherd, Miss Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. John Erskine, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph Mr. and Mrs. George F. Opdyke, Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ludlam, Miss Jean Murray, Miss Tiffany, Dr. Coles and Dr. Hedges.

A Warning to Owners of Horses.

On Tuesday last before Justice L. F. Wadsworth, Mr. Job Male through his counsel, Craig A. Marsh, Esq., brought suit against a business firm of this city, for damages caused by a horse of the defendant's that had barked a tree in front of one of the plaintiff's houses. As it was proven that the offence had been committed after the defendant had been warned of the trespass, the full penalty of the law covering the case could have been exacted. Mr. Male however, for the protection of the property of others as well as himself, and to preserve the beauty of the trees along our thoroughfares, had brought the suit merely, to show how severe the law was in the matter, and to act as a warning. Mr. Marsh in closing his case, so stated, and that the levying of nominal damages with costs was all the penalty his client sought to accomplish. The court so ordered, but added in all like cases of the future the guilty would suffer the full penalty. The law is so clear in the matter, and exemplary damages can be awarded to such a large amount, that owners of horses within the jurisdiction of Justice Wadsworth's court, will be wise in keeping their animal's teeth out of reach of the trees.

Personalia.

Ex-Judge Good has left Plainfield and a statistical report of his past service to the city, behind him.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Zeagler of Denver, Col., after an extended trip through the South, are visiting Mrs. Zeagler's mother on Second street.

To Mr. C. H. Clark, the tenor of the last Vocal, and Mrs. Clark, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alberti, Tuesday, an informal reception was given by their hosts, and attended by a number of musically-inclined Plainfielders.

This (Thursday) evening at the Hotel Netherwood, Colie K. Woodruff will give a reception to his friends upon the occasion of his birthday anniversary. A programme of many pleasing features has been arranged, including fancy dances, games, an elegant supper, and closing with a German.

Mrs. John L. Brewster, of Union ave., died suddenly at her residence, during Tuesday morning last. The deceased was found by her daughter, about half-past seven, abed and unconscious. A physician was immediately summoned, but in less than an hour death had resulted. The cause was the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain. The funeral services will be held in the Crescent avenue church, this morning, at 11.30 o'clock.

The Feininger Musicale.

The first annual concert by the pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger, in this city, will be at Reform Hall, next Tuesday evening. The affair is entirely of a private and complimentary nature, and cards of invitation have been issued only to the friends of the executants. The full programme is as follows, and owing to its length repetitions are not permissible:

To-Morrow's Entertainment.

The Cantata of "Queen Esther" that the Amateur Musical Association is to sing at Music Hall, to-morrow evening, cannot be considered as a repetition of the production of last February. The music is treated in a different manner entirely, the parts of "Esther" and "Zeresh" are to be rendered by soloists engaged for their talent and experience, and the costumes are especially brilliant and appropriate.

Souvenir programmes have been issued, that will be preserved by many, giving the Argument, the selections and the cast, in a creditable form. Miss Janet Smedley, the soprano, is a very attractive looking young lady, and Miss Annette Washburn, the contralto, possesses a remarkably fine voice.

Financial Embarrassment.

The managers of the Children's Home have been most unfortunate. After erecting the building they occupy as the headquarters of the institution, and paying for the same as per the contract made with the builder, they are now called upon to pay the bill for lumber purchased, which by reason of the contractor's failure to settle becomes a lien upon the property. Recognizing their obligations to the friends who have generously sustained the Home in the past, the managers present the facts and circumstances that have caused the present embarrassment, as follows: A committee from the Advisory Board kindly superintended the erection of the Home edifice. A contract for building the same was made with S. Y. Hollister. This contract should have been filed at Somerville, but by mistake of the architect it was filed at Elizabeth. As soon as the building committee knew of this they caused the contract to be properly filed, and previous to paying Hollister the balance due under the contract, said committee took his written guarantee that there was nothing outstanding on the building. A short time afterwards Weed & Hall commenced suit against the Home for materials sold and delivered to Hollister. The Advisory Board believing, under advice of counsel, that the Home was not responsible, defended the suit to the court of last resort, and this court has lately affirmed the judgment, and the Home is now obliged to pay about eleven hundred dollars. It is believed, that the great usefulness of this institution and the confidence reposed by the public in its management, warrant the hope that this unforseen burden will be lifted, and that the public will not permit the institution to be sold by the sheriff to satisfy this judgment. About three hundred and fifty dollars have already been pledged towards the payment of this judgment—and all are asked kindly to aid. Contributions or pledges can be sent to any of the following officers and managers: Mrs. Horace Kimball, President; Mrs. James McGee, Vice President; Mrs. Charles Place, Recording Secretary; Miss Lucy H. Everett, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. L. W. Serrell, Treasurer. The Advisory Board is composed of Messrs. Isaac Rushmore, Isaac L. Miller, Charles Place, L. W. Serrell, Wm. B. Maxson, Chas. Tweedy, H. K. Carroll, Mason W. Tyler, H. B. Opdyke.

The Last and Best.

The third private concert of the Plainfield Vocal Society, held in Music Hall on Thursday evening of last week, was the termination of a very successful course and closed the labors of that society for the season. The programme, with few exceptions, consisted of gems selected from the various concerts of bygone years, so that the greater part of the rehearsals was spent in perfecting the singing of parts already familiar to most of the chorus. The first selection, "Now by Day's Retiring Lamp," by Bishop, is a descriptive piece of considerable merit, and was well interpreted by the chorus. The recitative and aria from Rigginnella was sung by Mr. C. H. Clark with expression, and gave much satisfaction to the audience. Mr. Clark in fact was generally gratifying in all the selections in which he appeared, especially in the obligato passage in the male quartette.

The two part songs, "The Stars are Shining in Heaven," and "You Stole my Love," were sung as one number and were effective by contrast—the latter receiving an encore. The dramatic cantata "Hero and Leander" was something entirely new to this city, but the manner in which the attacks were made, showed it to have been well studied by the chorus, for nothing show more quickly the unfamiliarity of a chorus with a composition than weakness of attack. The parts of "Hero" and "Leander" were sung by Mlle. DeLusan and Mr. Lemmertz, and were well sustained. Mlle. De Lusan has a very pleasing voice and manner, and of Mr. Remmertz nothing need be said, as he is too thoroughly known and appreciated to require a word of praise.

The style of the piece is very peculiar but some parts are particularly pretty—the duet between Hero and Leander being perhaps the most strikingly so. The only balk was following the first chorus, where, after a page and a half of orchestration, "Leander" failed to begin his solo, and, although prompted several times by the leader, he concluded to let the orchestra do the whole work, of which they seemed perfectly capable. The blame should be laid to the absence of light in the fore part of the stage, and unless Mr. Remmertz had known the accompaniment as well as his solo by heart, it would have been impossible for him to have taken his lead. The only light was from the chandelier in the center of the building which shone in the eyes of the soloists, and a reflected light from the back of the stage. To the rendering of the "Propeccatis" and Inflammatus" of Rossini's Stabat Mater, no exception can be taken. Mr. Fitzhugh's "Rest, Dearest, Rest" received its usual encore. Upon this occasion the orchestra and ladies of the chorus left the stage and the gentlemen came to the front, so that all the sound was thrown into the auditorium. The chorus as a whole was heard to better advantage however, than in the previous concerts, as a sounding board had been formed by throwing a drop scene over the flies. The gentlemen were ably assisted in this piece and in those following by about twenty tenors and basses from Brooklyn. Gounod's "Messe Solennelle" which gave so much pleasure last year, was greatly improved by the addition of the orchestra, and Mr. Clark's solo in the "Sanctus" was a decided improvement upon the flat rendition of the same to which we listened at the previous performance. That grand psalm of Mendelssohn's, "Sing to the Lord," ended the programme. The only adverse criticisms which we have heard from the audience were, that the programme was too long—which, had it been less enjoyable, would have been a serious objection—and that the orchestra was too heavy for the chorus, an objection which was also apparent at the first concert. After the performance the chorus disbanded and an entertainment of a social nature was given by them to their friends and assistants. Cake and ice cream was served, and a characteristic speech was made by the President, Mr. W. W. Howland, followed by a few equally characteristic remarks by Mr. Fitzhugh. The latter said, among other things, that of all the concerts that had been given by the society, none had ever equalled the one of that evening; which, from one who knew all their failings, was praise worth having. A meeting was held last evening to hear the reports of the various officers and to consider the feasibility of continuing the society for the coming season.

Police Rules and Regulations.

The Police Board of this well ordered and peaceful city, is composed of Mayor George W. Rockfellow, President B. F. Coriell of the Common Council, and the Police Committee, Messrs. R. L. Livingston, C. D. Wadsworth and F. E. Smith. That so able a Board never before served the people, is proven by its adoption of the rules and regulations as given below. For the first time in its history, Plainfield has proper restrictions for the government of its police.

RULE I.

Dismissals, Suspensions—Any member of the police force may be suspended, reprimanded, fined (not exceeding one week's pay) expelled or any or either thereof as may be deemed necessary or expedient, in addition to any other punishment he may be subject to by law, against whom any of the following charges shall be substantiated:

1st. Intoxication.

2d. Willful disobedience of orders.

3d. Violent, coarse, or insolent language or behavior to a superior or other person.

4th. Receiving money or other valuable thing contrary to the rules and regulations, or the statutes of the State.

5th. Willful non-compliance with the rules and regulations.

6th. Inefficiency or gross neglect of duty.

7th. Willful maltreating or using unnecessary violence toward a prisoner or citizen.

8th. Absence without leave.

9th. Immoral conduct, or conduct unbecoming an officer.

10th. Any legal offence.

Note—Special policeman may be dismissed without charges or trial.

RULE II.

Fines—In lieu of suspension or expulsion, the Board of Police shall have the power to impose upon any member of said department, against whom any of the foregoing charges shall be substantiated, a fine not exceeding one week's pay for each offence, and the amount of the fine in each case shall be deducted from the pay of the member fined, for the current month.

RULE III.

Each and every regular policeman shall devote his whole time and attention to the business of the department. Although certain hours are allotted to the respective members for the performance of duty on ordinary occasions, yet at all times they must be prepared to act immediately on notice that their services are required.

RULE IV.

Punctual attendance, prompt obedience to orders and conformity to the rules of the department, will be rigidly enforced.

RULE V.

No member of the department shall be a member of any fire or military company.

RULE VI.

Each and every member in his conduct and deportment must be quiet, civil, and orderly; in the performance of his duty he must maintain decorum, be patient and discreet. He must at all times refrain from harsh, profane or insolent language, yet at the same time, when required, act with firmness.

RULE VII.

No member of the department shall, in the Station House, or elsewhere, while on duty, drink any kind of liquor, or smoke or (except in the immediate performance of his duty) enter any place in which any kind of intoxicating drink may be sold, or furnished. No liquor or any intoxicating drink shall, upon any pretext, be introduced into the Station House except advised by a physician; nor shall any smoking be allowed at any time in the public office of the Station House.

RULE VIII.

No member shall accept from any person while in custody, or after he shall have been discharged, nor from any of his friends, any gratuity, reward or gift directly or indirectly, or any description of drink.

RULE IX.

They must not compound any offence committed against their person, or property, or withdraw any complaint unless permitted by the Mayor or Board of Police.

RULE X.

No member shall communicate to any person any information which may enable persons to escape from arrest or punishment, or enable them to dispose of or secrete, any goods or other valuable things stolen or embezzled.

RULE XI.

No member shall communicate, except to such persons as directed by his superior in office, any information respecting orders he may have received.

RULE XII.

Each member shall, at all times, have with him a small book, in which he shall enter the names of persons taken in charge by him, and such particulars in each case as will be important on the trial of the cause.

RULE XIII.

All Policemen when on duty, shall wear the shield on the outside of the outermost garment, over the left breast.

ARTICLE XIV.

No member of the Police Department shall leave the city, or be absent from duty, without permission from the Mayor or Chief of Police.

RULE XV.

On occasions of fires, riots or emergencies, when the reserve force has been on active duty, the officer in charge, immediately on their return to the Station House, shall call the roll, to ascertain who, if any, have been absent.

RULE XVI.

Members of the police force must be civil and respectful to each other on all occasions.

RULE XVII.

Every member of the Department will be furnished with a copy of the rules and regulations, which they will keep in their possession in order to become perfectly familiar with their respective duties.

RULE XVIII.

Policemen finding horses, cattle, goats or swine running at large, will drive or cause the same to be driven to the public pound, and must report such fact to the Mayor.

RULE XIX.

Members of the Department, when suspended or resigning, will immediately surrender their book of Rules and Regulations, their shield and other insignia of office in their possession, to the Chief of Police.

RULE XX.

The members of the Police Force are particularly enjoined to investigate cases of all persons found begging in the streets. If they are found to be proper subjects for relief, they are to be taken to the Overseer of the Poor, and if proven to be impostors, or actual vagrants, then to be taken before the City Judge, to be dealt with according to law.

RULE XXI.

Every officer when entering upon duty must be neat in his person, his clothes and boots clean, and his dress in conformity with the regulations.

RULE XXII.

CHIEF OF POLICE—The Captain of Police (subordinate to the Mayor) shall be the Chief executive of the Police Department. He will repair to scenes of fires, riots and tumultous assemblages, take charge of the police present and use every exertion to save and protect property, disperse mobs, and arrest such persons as he may find engaged in disturbing the peace, or who may aid or abet others in so doing, and he shall at all times be vigilant in suppressing all violations of the laws of the State and the ordinances of the city.

RULE XXIII.

He shall promptly report to the Mayor, or Chairman of the Committee on Police, each and every case of dereliction of duty coming in any way to his knowledge, and also all complaints made to him against members of the department.

RULE XXIV.

He shall keep in his office a book, in which shall be entered the name of each policeman, and he shall therein state the hours of actual duty, of the several members, and note the absentees and those present at each roll call.

RULE XXV.

He shall keep in his office book, in which shall be entered the name in full, with the alias, of every person arrested and detained by him, or against whom criminal complaint shall be made, the time of arrest, the nature of complaint, and what disposition was made of the accused; also, the name of the person who made the arrest, the names and residences of the witnesses, together with all the circumstances of interest in such cases.

RULE XXVI.

He shall keep in his office a book in which shall be entered an account relating the time, place and circumstances of all larcenies, burglaries, and other offences which shall come to his knowledge; of suspicious persons and places, of money and other articles of value, taken from prisoners and lodgers, all stolen property found, together with the disposition made of such money or other property!

RULE XXVII.

He shall, by and with the advice of the Board of Police, designate the day and night posts and the police who are to patrol the same.

RULE XXVIII.

No person shall be permitted to remain in the Station House without express permission from the officer in charge, except members of the Department and persons on business.

RULE XXIX.

PATROLMEN—The prevention of crime being the most important object in view, the Patrolman's exertions must be constantly used to accomplish that end. He must examine and make himself perfectly acquainted with every part of his beat, and vigilantly watch every description of person passing his way.

RULE XXX.

He must, to the utmost of his power, prevent the commission of assaults, breaches of the peace, and all other crimes about to be committed.

RULE XXXI.

He shall strictly watch the conduct of all persons of known bad character, and in such manner that it will be evident to such persons that they are watched, and that certain detection must follow the attempt to commit crime. He shall note the time of the appearance of any person of known bad character on his beat, and the circumstances attending and the premises that said person may enter, and report to the commanding officer.

RULE XXXII.

Policemen shall report to the Chief or Mayor all policy-dealers, gamblers, receivers of stolen property, or his suspicions that they are such.

RULE XXXIII.

When any person charges another with the commission of a crime, and insists that the person charged shall be taken into custody, the policeman shall require the accuser, if unknown to him, to accompany him as a witness, along with the accused, to the police station.

RULE XXXIV.

He shall carefully watch all disorderly houses, or houses of ill-fame within his beat, and observe by whom they are frequented, and report his observations to the commanding officer.

RULE XXXV.

He shall take particular notice of all hacks, cabs, or other vehicles at night, which under any circumstances excite his suspicion.

XXXVI.

He shall not leave his beat till regularly relieved, unless it be for the purpose of taking a prisoner to the Station House, or to answer a call for assistance by a police officer, or to make an arrest on view on the confines of his beat, or to follow an offender to an adjoining beat for the purpose of making an arrest.

XXXVII.

He shall report to his commanding officer all lamps that may not be lit at the proper time, cleaned, or in any way out of order.

RULE XXXVIII.

He shall give his name and number to all persons who may inquire for the same.

RULE XXXIX.

He must not use his baton except in the most urgent cases of self defence.

RULE XL.

Policemen must not walk together or talk with each other or with any other person, when they meet on the confines, or any other part of their beats, unless it is to communicate information appertaining to the department, or answer legitimate questions, such communication to be as brief as possible.

RULE XLI.

It will be deemed a neglect of duty on the part of a policeman to lose his shield, emblem, or other insignia of office, or when lost to neglect to report the same immediately thereafter to the officer in command at the Station House.

RULE XLII.

He will pay particular attention to all public houses and drinking places in his beat, reporting those which remain open beyond hours allowed by ordinance.

XLIII.

If he observe in the street anything likely to produce inconvenience, or anything which seems irregular and offensive to the public, he shall report the same immediately to the Mayor or Chief.

RULE XLIV.

Umbrellas or walking-canes are not to be carried by policemen while on duty.

HIS LOSS WAS HER GAIN.

"Well, madam," said a fashionable physician to a wealthy lady patient, "if you don't like my prescriptions, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic, or some other quack stuff." "You don't mean it Doctor," she answered, "but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call 'quack stuff' is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of neuralgia arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends, and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

An Act to provide a uniform method of procedure for the recovery of penalties for the violation of the several laws relating to game and game fish.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter justices of the peace, district courts and police magistrates [illegible] to try and [illegible] the provisions of [illegible] "An act [illegible] relating to game and game fish," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and [illegible], or [illegible] the killing of [illegible] game fish [illegible] penalties in said acts prescribed for the violation thereof may be enforced and recovered before any justice of the peace, district court or police magistrate of any county where the offence is committed or where the offender is apprehended.

2. And be it enacted, That such justice of the peace, district court or police magistrate, upon receiving due proof by affidavit of one or more persons of the violation of any of said laws by any person or persons, whereby a penalty has been incurred, is hereby authorized and required by warrant under the hand and seal of such justice or magistrate, or under the seal of such district court, as the case may be, directed to any constable, police officer or fish warden of the county, to cause such person or persons to be arrested and brought before such justice, court or magistrate, who shall thereupon in a summary way hear and determine the guilt or innocence of the person or persons so charged, and upon the conviction of any such person or persons upon such hearing the said justice, court or magistrate is hereby authorized and required to impose upon the offender or offenders so convicted the penalty or penalties prescribed for such offence in the act so violated; and if any person or persons so convicted shall fail to pay the penalty or penalties so imposed, together with the costs of the prosecution, the said justice, court or magistrate is hereby authorized to commit such offender in the common jail of the county for a period of not less than ten nor more than thirty days.

3. And be it enacted, That for the violation of any of said acts done in the view of any constable, police officer or fish warden, such officer is hereby authorized without warrant to arrest the offender and carry him before a justice of the peace, police magistrate or district court of the county wherein such arrest is made, and the justice, court or magistrate before whom such offender shall be taken shall have jurisdiction of the case, and is hereby authorized and required summarily to hear and determine the same after receiving from the said officer an affidavit in writing of the commission of the offence for which the person was arrested.

4. And be it enacted, That any case begun under this act may for good cause be adjourned by the justice, court or magistrate not exceeding thirty days from the date of the arrest of the defendant, but in such case it shall be the duty of the justice, court or magistrate to retain the defendant in custody unless he shall enter into bond with at least one sufficient surety to the prosecutor in the cause in double the amount of the penalty prescribed for the offence complained of, conditioned for his appearance at the adjourned day of trial and thence from day to day until the case is [illegible] and [illegible] to abide the judgment of the court or otherwise to demand and perfect an appeal to the court of common pleas of the county within ten days from the time of rendering final judgment; any such bond, if forfeited, may be prosecuted in the name of the said prosecutor or his assigns in any court of competent jurisdiction; all sums of money recovered for the violation of any of said acts or the forfeiture of such bonds, shall be paid one-half to the prosecutor and the other half to the county in which the offence is committed.

5. And be it enacted, That any party to any proceeding instituted under this act may appeal from the judgment or sentence of the justice, court or magistrate to the court of common pleas of the county in which the trial shall take place; provided, the party appealing shall within ten days from the rendering of such judgment serve a written notice of such appeal upon the opposite party, pay the costs adjudged against him, and deliver to the justice, court or magistrate a bond to the opposite party in the sum of fifty dollars, with one sufficient surety, conditioned to prosecute the appeal and to stand to and abide by such order or judgment of the court as may be made against him in the premises.

6. And be it enacted, That whenever an appeal shall be taken as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the justice, court or magistrate to send all the papers in the case to said court of common pleas of the county, which court shall receive, try and determine all such appeals in the same way and manner that appeals from the judgment of courts for the trial of small causes are tried and determined in that court.

7. And be it enacted, That in case under this act no [illegible] of demand or other pleading shall be required, but the [illegible] affidavit shall [illegible] the act and section thereof claimed to have been violated.

8. And be it enacted, That the duly appointed and commissioned fish wardens of this state shall have the same powers and be entitled to the same fees for the service of process in cases instituted under this act that constables have and are entitled to under the act constituting courts for the trial of small causes.

9. And be it enacted, That in all proceedings under this act the prevailing party shall recover costs and the same fees and costs shall be allowed thereon as in trials before justices of the peace in the courts for the trial of small causes.

10. And be it enacted, That the act entitled "Supplement to an act entitled 'An act to amend and consolidate the several acts relating to game and game fish,' prescribing a method of procedure for the better enforcement of the game laws of this state," approved March ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed in so far as the same are inconsistent herewith.

11. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 26, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXV.

A Supplement to an "An act to establish a system of public instruction," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the nineteenth section of the act to which this is a supplement shall be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

19. The state board of education shall appoint for each county, subject to the approval of the board of chosen freeholders of the county, a person of suitable attainments to be county superintendent of the public schools of that county, who shall hold office for the term of three years and until his successor shall have been appointed and approved, as aforesaid, unless sooner removed for cause by the state board.]

2. And be it enacted, That where any vacancy now exists in the office of county school superintendent, or where any such vacancy shall hereafter exist for the space of six months, from any cause, it shall be lawful for the board of chosen freeholders of the county wherein any such vacancy exists or shall exist to appoint some person of suitable attainments to be county superintendent of the public schools of that county, who shall hold the office for the term of three years and thereafter until his successor shall have been appointed and approved, unless sooner removed for cause by the state board of education.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 17, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXVI.

An Act concerning cities in this state and regulating the manner of the appointment and removal of certain officers therein.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in the cities of this state where the control and regulation of the police force is in the common council, or mayor and common council, or other governing body, the appointment and dismissal of the members of the police therein shall be made by motion and not by ordinance or resolution; provided, that this act shall not apply to cities wherein the police force is under the control of a board of commissioners, until such board of commissioners shall be thereby abolished.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 17, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXVII.

An Act amending "An act to provide for the purchase, construction and maintenance of public parks by the cities and other municipalities in this state," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty three.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the first section of the act of which this is amendatory, be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any city or other municipality in this state wherein there are now no grounds owned by such other municipality and used as a public park, the common council, board of aldermen, board of trustees or other governing body, may, by ordinance passed by a two-thirds vote of all the members of such body, purchase one or more tracts of land lying wholly or partly within or without the limits of such city or other municipality, for the use of the inhabitants of such corporation as a public park or parks, and may dedicate the same to such use, and may lay out, embellish and maintain the same, and may pass ordinances regulating and controlling the same, and providing for the proper and convenient use thereof by the inhabitants aforesaid.

2. And be it enacted, That such lands may be paid for as provided in the second section of said act.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 18, 1885.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

An Act respecting the cutting and sale of ice in cities of this state, and giving to boards of health in such cities power to regulate and control the same.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no ice shall be cut for the purpose of being sold or used in any city of this state from any pond, creek or river within the limits of any such city, unless a permit therefor shall be first obtained from the board of health of such city, and no person or persons shall sell or deliver any ice in any city in this state without first obtaining a permit therefor from the board of health of such city, and it shall be lawful for any such board of health to refuse a permit and to revoke any granted by them as aforesaid when in their judgment the use of any ice cut or sold, or to be cut or sold, under the same is or would be detrimental to the public health.

2. And be it enacted, That the board of health of any city may prohibit the sale and use of any ice within the limits of such city when in their judgment the same is unfit for use, and the use of the same would be detrimental to the public health, and the said board may prohibit and through its officers stop, detain and prevent the bringing of any such ice for the purposes of sale or use into the limits of any such city, and also in the same manner stop, detain and prevent the sale or use of any such ice found within the limits of such city.

3. And be it enacted, That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or who shall attempt to cut, sell, or bring into any city any such ice after being notified by said board of health or its officers not to do so shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be sentenced to imprisonment in the county penitentiary for a term not to exceed six months or to pay a fine of five hundred dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court; and it shall be lawful for the officers of said board of health or the police officers of any such city to arrest on sight any person or persons who shall be found violating any of the provisions of this act.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 14, 1885.

LITERARY NOTE.

The North American Review concludes its seventieth year with its June number. "Shall Silver be Demonetized?" is answered, pro and con, by three distinguished economists, Sumner, Laughlin and Walker, representing Yale and Harvard Colleges, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "The Tardiness of Justice" is discussed by Judge W. L. Learned, and "Prohibition in Politics" by Gail Hamilton; "The Swearing Habit" by E. P. O'Byrne, of North Carolina, and defended by Bishop Keane, of Virginia. "How Shall Women Dress?" is answered by Charles Dudley Warner, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Dr. W. A. Hammond, Dr. Kate J. Jackson, and Mrs. E. M. King, the English leader of the dress reform movement.

THERE is no accounting for the actions of an insane man. A lunatic at the Morris Plains Asylum was mute for five years. Even the physicians thought he had lost the power of speech. One day he caught two of his fingers in a washing-machine and they were horribly mangled. Another patient, a boy, in the same institution, is a lightning calculator. The most intricate problems are solved by him in fractions of a minute. The boy believes that his head is filled with little blocks with figures upon them, and that they instantly fall into different positions and work out the problems. He thinks his brain, in fact, is a multiplication table. His insanity seems pardonable, for only a few sane men can compete with him as a mathematician. Every day he soaks his head in water to prevent the blocks from rattling, and occasionally he begs for oil to put into his ears so that the imaginary squares will slip upon each other more easily.

On motion, the report of committee and collector's supplementary report were received and ordered on file.

From committee on jail inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The committee on jail inspection would respectfully report that the amount expended for the past year is $4,000.00, which includes supplies of all kinds, salaries and medical attendance.

The general health of the jail has been good; the fixtures, furniture, etc., is in as good order as wear and use will permit.

We also submit the report of the warden, giving a detailed account of expenditure and prisoners, which we commend to your perusal.

We desire also to protest against cities, townships or individuals sending insane patients to the asylum by the way of the county jail. The jail and its accommodations are only calculated for people arrested for crime, and no irresponsible, innocent person should be sent there if it can possibly be avoided; and, when sent, those having charge of them should remove them at the earliest possible moment.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. M. OLIVER,
JOHN ISENMANN,
A. VANDERBEEK,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 12, 1885.

On motion, the report of the committee was received and ordered on file, and the annual report of the jail warden ordered printed.

From committee to discharge prisoners:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on discharge of prisoners would respectfully report that they have held the proper meetings during the year for the purpose of releasing prisoners from the jail whenever the same was necessary. One hundred and eighty-nine (189) prisoners have been discharged by us, and we have allowed to each one of them the number of days the law allows for good behavior when the warden has recommended the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN E. ASTFALK,
JOHN A. ETHERIDGE,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 12, 1885.

On motion, received and ordered on file.

From committee to settle with sheriff:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with sheriff beg leave to report that the bills and accounts between the county and Sheriff Forsyth were all settled when he retired from office, and the amount paid Sheriffs Forsyth and Stiles on the May and October terms of 1884 and January term is $11,311.20. The fines and costs paid the county by Stiles amount to $675.28.

All which is respectfully submitted.

WILMOT M. [illegible],
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 12, 1885.

On motion, received and ordered on file.

From committee on lunacy:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on lunacy would respectfully report that for the maintenance of the indigent and pauper insane of the county there has been expended during the year $[illegible]. The county has received from five patients in the aggregate $661.90, which leaves the net cost to the county $20,[illegible].

The number in the asylum charged on last bill was 127. Two patients have died and thirteen have been discharged during the year.

Your committee have visited the asylum, in accordance with rules of this committee, and have been shown each patient chargeable to the county. Their general health and condition were as good as could be expected.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

On motion, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By the director:

Resolved, That $100 be transferred from court to members' pay, com. expenses and salary accounts.

On motion, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the thanks of this board are due and are hereby tendered to the Director for his untiring devotion to the interests of the county, in the discharge of the delicate and important duties of his office, and for his uniform courtesy to the members.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Thompson:

Resolved, That the thanks of this board are due to Patrick Sheridan, esq., county collector, for his uniform courtesy and for the efficient and faithful manner in which he has performed the duties of his office.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Resolved, That the thanks of this board be tendered J. L. Crowell, the clerk of this board, for the efficient manner in which he has performed the duties pertaining to his office.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That in giving the parting hand to the retiring members, we desire to express to them our regrets that the pleasant associations of the past year must now be broken; and also, to record our appreciation of their faithful services.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Oliver:

Resolved, That the thanks of this board be tendered to the clergy and others who have interested themselves in sustaining religious services in the county jail during the past year.

On motion, adopted.

Freeholder Hubbard moved that the board do now adjourn, sine die.

Which was carried.

The Director thereupon declared the board adjourned without day.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

SOUR BREAD.

Sour bread is caused by poor yeast, or an excessive fermentation in the dough. Sour biscuits are caused by the use of an adulterated, impure, or improperly compounded baking powder. Both are unwholesome, producing intestinal derangements, indigestion, etc.

The sour or alkaline taste attending the use of cheap, low-grade baking powders is due to the fact that such powders are not properly combined, and that the ingredients used in them are impure. The cream of tartar of the market used by their manufacturers is adulterated from five to twenty per cent. They do not know how much lime it contains, and hence are unable to mix it with the alkali or soda in proper proportions. As high as 11.85 per cent of lime has been found by the chemists in some of these powders, due to these causes. The result is an imperfect action which renders the bread, biscuit, or pastry heavy, sour, and disagreeable, or a residuum of lime and dirt, imparting a bitter taste to the food. Any baking powder that does this is unfit for use.

There can be no heavy or sour bread, biscuit, or cake where a perfectly made pure baking powder, like the "Royal," is used. In the use of the Royal no residuum is left, and the loaf raised by it is always sweet, light, and wholesome, and noticeably free from the peculiar tastes complained of. This is because it is composed of nothing but absolutely pure materials, scientifically combined in exactly the proper proportions of acid and alkali to act upon and destroy each other, while producing the largest amount of raising power. We are justified in this assertion by the unqualified statements of the Government Chemists, who, after thorough and exhaustive tests, recommended the "Royal" for Government use because of its superiority over all others in purity, strength, and wholesomeness. There is no danger of sour or bitter bread or biscuit where the Royal Baking Powder alone is used.

"I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of

as a cough remedy.

"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."

Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.

WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with Trap, made.—For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of one piece action we invite comparison with any Cistern Closet ever manufactured, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make it apparent to all users, in doing away with drip tray, the wash at all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray it cannot help but become foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1¾ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two lugs of soap vents of 1¼ inches diameter are intended for right or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to pass the same.

S. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., May 15th, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE.

To provide for the licensing and regulation of scavengers.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Licenses may be granted by the Common Council to persons above the age of twenty-one years, to carry on the business and act in the capacity of scavenger or night scavenger in the city of Plainfield, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Board of Health, and the ordinances of this city. All applications shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be recommended by the Board of Health, or some member thereof, or the City Physician.

SECTION 2. Each license granted under the provision of this ordinance, shall expire on first day of February in each year, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person licensed, the number of the license and the date of its expiration, and may contain any restrictions that the Board of Health may direct. No person shall be held to be licensed under this ordinance until he shall have paid to the City Clerk for said license the sum of ($10) Ten Dollars, and in addition thereto the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the same.

SECTION 3. No person shall carry on the business or act in the capacity of a scavenger or night scavenger, or clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy without being first licensed for that purpose by the Common Council, and no person shall keep and use or drive any scavenger cart or wagon or any night scavenger cart or wagon within the City of Plainfield without the same being licensed as aforesaid under penalty of fifty dollars for each and every violation of any of the provisions of this section. Provided that the owner of any sink, cesspool or privy may remove the contents thereof himself or by his hired help continuously in his employ without being licensed by the Common Council, but subject to the regulations of the Board of Health.

SECTION 4. Every person licensed as a night scavenger as soon as licensed shall cause his name to be marked in plain letters, and the number to be marked in plain figures in a conspicuous place on each side of his cart or wagon, so licensed under the penalty of ten dollars for every day he shall use or employ any such cart or wagon, without having the same so designated.

SECTION 5. It shall not be lawful for any person licensed as a night scavenger to hire out or sub-let any night scavenger cart or wagon, to any person or persons not licensed to act in the capacity of night scavenger under penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every violation of this section.

SECTION 6. No night scavenger shall stop or leave any night scavenger wagon or cart in any street, avenue, alley or highway, nor permit his wagon or cart to occupy an unreasonable time in loading or unloading or in passing along any street, avenue, alley or highway, or through any inhabited place or ground, nor leave any such wagon or cart, when not in use, on any premises where the same may become a nuisance to the occupants of other premises, under penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

SECTION 7. It shall be the duty of the Board of Health to establish from time to time such rates to be charged for the removal of the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy as they may deem reasonable and proper and no person licensed under this ordinance shall charge or receive more than the established rate, under a penalty of $10 for each offence, and any person licensed under this Ordinance who shall refuse to clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy for any one at the rates established by the Board of Health shall be liable to a penalty of $10 for the first such refusal and shall forfeit his license for the second offence.

SECTION 8. No person shall remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy, or any part thereof, or carry the same in, or through any street, road, lane, alley, or public place between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and nine o'clock in the evening under a penalty of $25, unless the same is done by the process in use by the "Odorless Excavating Apparatus Company" of Baltimore or other like process to be first approved and certified to by the Board of Health in writing.

SECTION 9. No person or persons shall deposit or cause or permit to be deposited the contents, or any part thereof, of any sink, cesspool or privy anywhere within the City of Plainfield, without first obtaining the written consent of the City Physician or Health Inspector specifying therein the place where the same is to be deposited, and the manner in which the same is to be covered or otherwise disposed of, and any violation of this section or failure to conform to the terms of the written consent aforesaid, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

An Act to incorporate societies for the promotion of veterinary science and art in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any society in this state composed of not less than ten members, not all residents of any one county, who are regular practitioners of veterinary surgery and which society has for its object the advancement of the science and art of veterinary surgery may at any regular, or special meeting called for that purpose, elect by ballot to become incorporated under this act, and they shall thereupon cause a certificate to be made setting forth their intentions and the proceedings of such meeting thereof, the officers of the society, its name and object, which certificate shall be signed by such members who shall be present and by said officers, and shall be acknowledged by them all as deeds for the conveyance of real estate are acknowledged, which certificate shall be filed with the secretary of state, and upon the filing of the same said society and such other persons as may be associated with them shall be constituted a body politic and corporate in law by whatever name they shall have assumed and by such name shall have succession and continuance, and be capable in law of suing and being sued, defending and being defended, in all courts and places whatever, and may have and use a common seal and alter and renew the same at pleasure, and, by their name and under their common seal may make and enter into, execute and enforce any contracts or agreements relating to, touching or concerning the objects of such incorporation; a certified copy of said certificate of incorporation shall be presumptive evidence of the incorporation of such society and the facts therein stated.

2. And be it enacted, That the estate and property of whatever kind of such society so incorporating shall vest in them as a corporation, and by their corporate name such society shall be able to acquire, purchase, receive, take, have and hold for the use and benefit of such corporation and for the purpose of effecting and carrying out the objects of its incorporation, any lands, tenements and hereditaments, and any sum or sums of money, rights, securities, goods and chattels by gift, grant, alienation, devise, bequest or otherwise, of any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, and the same or any part thereof to sell, grant, assign, mortgage, devise, alien and dispose of.

3. And be it enacted, That each incorporate society shall have power to make, adopt and use and from time to time alter and amend such constitution and by-laws for their government, the election and appointment of officers, the admission and dismissal of its members as to them shall seem right and proper; provided, that nothing in such constitution or by-laws shall be repugnant to the constitution and laws of the United States or of this state.

Approved March 16, 1885.

CHAPTER XCI.

An Act to provide for the surrender to the state by railroad and canal companies of special immunities with respect to taxation claimed by virtue of contracts with the state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any railroad or canal company having the right, by contract, to any different imposition of tax, either state or municipal, than that provided for in the act entitled "An act for the taxation of railroad and canal property," approved April tenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, is hereby authorized to execute and file in the office of the secretary of state an instrument to be first approved by the attorney-general, waiving the benefit of any such contract and accepting and submitting to the provisions of the aforesaid act and the [illegible]

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY.

At a municipal election held in Norfolk, Virginia, a few days ago, the colored citizens voted cheerfully and largely with the Democrats, whose candidates received handsome majorities.

That shows which way the political wind is blowing, and proves what truth can accomplish over falsehood and deception.

In order to control the colored vote, the Republican leaders instituted and have systematically kept alive the most wanton misrepresentations regarding the Democratic party.

Misled by such disreputable means, the colored voters generally looked upon the adherents of Democracy as their sworn enemies.

Democracy is now in national power. Truth has swept away the base of partisan falsity.

The colored people find the Democrats, instead of being foes, their practical and very best friends.

In lieu of being remanded into slavery, as lying politicians told them would be the result of Democratic success, they are fully recognized as free citizens and protected in all their just and legal rights, and more than that, under the present Democratic Administration colored men have been appointed to office.

Truth is mighty.

Partisan duplicity cannot forever hold back the avenging spear of truth.

Hereafter the colored Democratic vote will be greatly increased, and rightly so.

HONEST GOVERNMENT.

Honest Government is not an idle theory, a political promise made current for effect, not for redemption.

It has a deep and practical meaning. It is a condition of affairs which can be realized, and must be, if national honor and the general public good are, as they ever should be, foremost considerations on the part of those vested with governing authority.

The hand of reform cannot suddenly remove the accumulated errors and abuses of years. The work it finds to do is indeed laborious, and to secure permanent and prosperous results, patient application and sound judgment are essentials.

To establish and keep Honest Government in vigorous existence there must be—

Thoroughly honest and competent men in all the offices.

Intelligence and equity in the enactment of all laws.

Rigid impartiality and zeal in the enforcement of every statutory enactment.

Prudent economy and strict accountability in the disbursement of every dollar of public money.

Official devotion to the welfare of the people, and a total disregard of mercenary self interest.

Upon that platform of enlightened statesmanship rest the pillars of Honest Government, the greatest blessing, both present and prospective, the people of the United States can enjoy.

For the attainment of that grand purpose the Democracy in National Convention assembled nominated Grover Cleveland for the Presidency, and honest men of both parties voted for and elected him.

He has commenced well and is destined to accomplish a noble task, for the good of country, his own renown, and to the credit of the Democratic party.

Corrupt spoilsmen may howl, but patriots will give thanks that Cleveland is President.

Frederick A. Palmer, ex Auditor of the city of Newark, died in the Trenton State Prison on Thursday of last week, from an apoplectic stroke. In May, 1882, he was convicted for embezzlement and sentenced to twenty years. He was forty-five years old, and resided in Newark nearly all his life, moving in the best society.

In the Supreme Court on Tuesday morning Attorney General Stockton made a motion under the new law of the last Legislature for a special term in which to try the 39 railroad taxation cases on the part of the State. He stated that no laches has taken place and no effort has been spared to have the testimony all completed in time for the present term, but it was impossible. The Court decided not to allow the motion, and set down the hearing of the causes for the first day of the November term.

County Collector Patrick Sheridan gave his annual banquet to a few chosen friends at the Sheridan House, Elizabeth, on Thursday last. Although it was not our pleasure to be present on this auspicious occasion, we learn from the Elizabeth papers that the affair was a grand one, and the Collector praised in the highest terms by the speechmakers. Well, Mr. Sheridan is deserving of praise for his correct and careful handling of the county's money. That he meets all the requirements of such an official, is evidenced by the fact that he has held the position of County Collector for the past ten years, without any serious opposition to his yearly re-election. Among the invited guests present on the occasion was that sterling Democratic friend, Captain Wm. H. Gill, commandant at the Schuylkill Arsenal, Philadelphia, who was also the recipient of congratulatory remarks, from the guests assembled.

The New Jersey Fish Commissioners, R. S. Jenkins, William Wright and Frank M. Ward, accompanied by a party of guests, made their annual inspection on Tuesday of last week, of the big seine fisheries at Gloucester Point and Howell's Cove. They found nothing to condemn. The company also went aboard the steamer Fish Hawk, of the United States Fish Commission, which is now lying off Gloucester, and which will remain there till the close of the fishing season. A plank-shad dinner was afterwards enjoyed at Thompson's Hotel. The guests included State Senators Fish, of Essex, and Carpenter, of Hunterdon; Comptroller Anderson, Assemblymen Braker and Jewett, and A. M. Spangler, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission. After dinner a discussion arose in regard to the "close" day. Commissioner Jenkins said he favored two days instead of one, and would have Sunday to remain as one, and Wednesday or Thursday for the other. This plan would undoubtedly largely increase the stock of shad. No action was taken, however.

Victor Hugo, the French poet, was buried on Monday last.

The Vail Libel Case.

In the Union county court at Elizabeth, on Monday, the case of ex-State Senator Benjamin Vail against St. Commissioner Hughes, ex-Judge Gibby and others, of Rahway, for circulating an alleged libelous circular on the eve of election last November, came up. The indictment against Hughes was quashed and a nolle prosequi entered as to the others. The court held, in the Hughes case, that there was not sufficient evidence to prove that the circular Hughes distributed was the one containing the libel.

Memorial Exercises.

The memorial exercises conducted by Garfield League on the evening of May 30th, were of an exceedingly interesting character. The room was crowded to its utmost capacity, many remained standing during the entire service, and many more were compelled to leave the building, not being able to obtain admittance. The League President presided over the meeting, the Senior Vice President and Guard, together with other members of the Order occupied seats on the platform. The decoration of the Cenotaph by the thirty-eight girls representing the states of the Union was particularly pleasing. A large cross composed entirely of white flowers was presented by the Chaplain of the League, Mrs. Thomas Mac Donald, in memory of her son buried in the Hospital ground at Alexandria. The following memorial hymn written for the occasion by a member of the League was sung by the chorus:

All up and down the Sunny South land
Far, far away,
There will our hearts be turning ever
On each Memorial day,
For where our eyes may never see them
Lie scattered graves,
From old Virginia's hills and valleys
To Mississippi's waves.

All the world is sad and dreary
Where so e'er we roam,
Oh, Comrades we will not forget you
Gone from our dear old home.

Oh, how our hearts are yearning, yearning,
Flowers to lay,
Over the spot where rests a soldier
Dear to our hearts to-day,
Brave boys, o'er all this blood bought country
Lie where they fell,
God has their precious dust in keeping,
He'll guard the treasure well.

The flowers used in decorating the Cenotaph, including a cross and wreath contributed by Lizzie May Bachman, and another very pretty piece by Carrie Smith, were distributed over the soldiers' graves in the Presbyterian cemetery on Sunday morning.

Memorial Day.

Early in the morning of Memorial Day, May 30th, the drum corps of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, of this city, and the members of the organization, were astir and assembling at their headquarters in readiness to participate in the ceremonies of the day. Business was generally suspended throughout the city, and many flags displayed at half-mast in memory of the occasion. Details of members of the Post proceeded to the various cemeteries in Plainfield, Scotch Plains and Westfield, and strewed flowers over the graves of their fallen comrades. Junior Vice Commander George W. Moore had charge of the detail visiting the Presbyterian, Friends, and Catholic cemeteries; Captain Wm. Hand, the detail to Scotch Plains; Dr. Gale, the detail at Westfield; Officer of the Day, E. C. Morse, the detail to the Baptist, Methodist, and Seventh-Day Baptist cemeteries of this city. In the afternoon the members of the Post, headed by their fine drum corps, marched in a body to Reform Hall, where interesting ceremonies were observed suitable to the occasion. A large cenotaph was formed in the centre of the Hall, about which the members of the Post were seated. Vice Commander Wm. Addis presided in the absence of the Commander, ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph. Near him were seated Assistant Department Inspector S. C. Peck, Acting Vice Commander H. H. Lowie, Junior Vice Commander George W. Moore, Quartermaster J. E. Stewart, Adjutant Wm. E. Alpaugh, Chaplain Wm. E. Mattison, and Officer of the Day, E. C. Morse. Comrade Schnellendreussler offered prayer, and then a choir of four voices, Mrs. A. Collier, Miss Carrie Ketcham, Mr. Willis and Dr. Anderson, rendered some excellent music. The drum corps followed with stirring martial strains. The Orator of the Day was Past Department Commander Burrows, who gave a very excellent and interesting address. Beautiful features about the cenotaph were the floral decorations and emblems. Conspicuous was the small cannon captured during the war and presented to Winfield Scott Post by Loyal Farragut, son of Admiral Farragut. On each side of the piece stacked arms were represented, while on the muzzle of the gun sat a white dove, both designs emblematic of War and Peace. Much credit is due Messrs. Ford & Stiles who generously loaned their services and vehicle for the gathering together and transportation of the floral tributes for the occasion. Mrs. Stiles and other ladies, mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of the members of the Post, made over one hundred bouquets from the flowers gathered by the school children, to be used in the ceremonies of the day. The members of the drum corps are W. C. Smith, major; Chas. Schermerhorn, Jr., (fifer,) 1st Sergeant; George Squires, (snare drummer,) 2d Sergeant; Wm. Addis, Jr., (snare drummer,) Corporal; Frank Manchester, (fifer;) Leon Townley, (snare drummer) and Fred. Walker, (bass drummer.) Their uniform is neat and becoming. This drum corps has made remarkable progress under the tuition of Major T. W. McKeever, drum and fife major of the 9th Reg. National Guard of the State of New York (formerly Duryea's Zouaves.) Having been given but nine two hour rehearsals by him these drummers are a credit to themselves and instructor. The following is a list of the fallen heroes whose remains lie in Plainfield and North Plainfield cemeteries, and whose graves were strewn with flowers by the Post:

The Electric Light.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The action taken by the Council on Monday evening in regard to the electric light was a great disappointment to very many of our citizens. They hoped and expected that consent would be given for its introduction. The exhibition recently given proved a perfect success. Everybody was delighted with it. The light was steady and brilliant. We are informed that there was no difficulty in securing subscriptions for thirty lamps, for the use of private parties favoring its introduction. This number would have been doubled in a few days, had consent been given by the proper authorities. For the same price that the city now pays for lighting the streets, it could secure electric light and a more thorough and successful illumination. The Council might have granted the privilege of introducing the light to the party, on condition that if it was expedient and practical, the wires should be placed underground. No doubt the party would have obligated himself to do this, giving a written guarantee to that effect. After the trouble of exhibiting and working up the matter, it does seem that a little more consideration should have been given to the application. The Council could have had such guarantee as would certainly have satisfied them. This method of light would be a great improvement to the city. With its fine Music Hall, Public Library and Art Gallery, we had hoped that in a week or so we would have been favored by the introduction of electric light, thus demonstrating that we are at least waking up to the necessity of keeping up with the progress and improvements of the age, making Plainfield the most desirable suburban place in the vicinity of New York. Cannot this matter be righted at the next meeting of the Council, giving us this much desired improvement.

PUBLIC SPIRIT.

For "The Constitutionalist."

An Error Corrected.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

In your last issue you announced a memorial service by the "ladies of the Garfield League, Auxiliary to the G. A. R." There was a League once in existence here by that name, but as you will see from the proceedings of the Ladies' Loyal League of New Jersey last January, as given on pages 15 and 18 of the official minutes herewith handed you, the charter of the League was annulled and no such League has now any legal existence. By publishing the extracts of the minutes to which your attention is called, you will set this matter right before the public. Yours, G. W. MOORE, J. V. Commander, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73.

The extracts of the official minutes referred to are as follows. The first portion refers to the action of the Advisory Council:

The charter of Garfield League No. 22, of Plainfield, N. J., was revoked by the Advisory Council.

This charter was issued to Garfield League No. 22, of Post 73, G. A. R., Department of New Jersey. Post 73 passed the resolution on June 11th, 1884, that "whereas considerable contention and strife exists and has existed in this post for the past few months, and whereas in the estimation of a majority of this post said contention and strife has been caused and fostered by the Loyal Ladies League, auxiliary to this post, therefore be it resolved, that for the good and welfare of this Winfield Scott Post No. 73, Department of New Jersey, G. A. R., all connection now existing between said post and Garfield League, No. 22, be severed, said action to take effect immediately."

The department president, and president of Garfield League were duly notified of this action of Post 73.

By this action of the Post the charter of Garfield League became null, since the League was no longer of Post 73, as stated in charter.

The President of the League was given an opportunity to disband and reorganize immediately, which was the only way out of the difficulty, and which could be done without any additional charter fee. (See R. & R., page 13, Article I., Sec. 2.)

This the President refused to do, and after waiting ample time, on November 13th, the Advisory Council declared the charter null and void.

The following is the resolution of the State League ratifying the action of the Advisory Council:

The appeal of Garfield League No. 22 was now taken up.

On motion of Mrs. Sallie D. Hogg, the representatives of Garfield League were heard from after much discussion, and the matter being fully explained (from all points Frances Strickland offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That the Advisory Council be sustained in their action in annulling the charter of Garfield League No. 22, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post No. 73, G. A. R., according to Section 2, Article I. Rules and Regulations for Subordinate Leagues.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

John Peiffer has gone into the newspaper business.

L. M. Whitaker has moved into his new residence on Union street.

Jonas S. Miller was the happy father of a bouncing boy on Monday last.

Some miscreant one evening last week painted the words "Little Wee Wee" on all sides of the Frenchman's sprinkling cart.

The difference between Pittsburg and Boston girls is that the former have smuts on their noses and the latter have specs.

Frank Godshalk has bought out the stock and good will of the ice cream saloon of J. S. A. Wittke. Frank will be glad to see his friends at any time.

Empire Eng. Co. No. 2 held their monthly meeting on Tuesday evening at the truck house. Considerable interest was manifested in the welfare of the company.

The regular monthly meeting of Bucket and Engine Co. No. 1 was held on Monday evening last. Considerable business of importance was transacted. The Co. intend getting a fire apparatus soon.

On Decoration day a detail from Winfield Scott Post, of Plainfield, visited Fairview cemetery and the old churchyard, and decorated the graves of their late comrades with flowers and flags.

The "Clover Club" will give an entertainment in Temperance Hall on Monday evening, June 8th, for the benefit of the New York fresh air fund. This entertainment will be first-class in every particular and ought to be liberally patronized.

Milton Frazee received the contract from the committee of Freeholders to build the new bridge on Road District No. 4, near the Lee farm. It is to be a stone bridge. Aaron B. Clark has the contract for building an arch bridge on Kimball avenue.

The ladies of the Methodist church held their annual strawberry and ice cream festival and musical entertainment on Wednesday evening last, in the church parlors. There was a large attendance present. Ice cream and strawberries were well patronized.

The Presbyterian church strawberry and ice cream festival was held on Tuesday evening, June 2d. It was largely attended, the lecture room being crowded. The floral booth was liberally patronized, as also were the ice cream tables. About $60 was netted for church improvements. Their old pastor, Rev. W. H. Gill, and wife, were present.

On Monday evening, while the members of our bicycle club were out on the streets, Mr. John Carberry was run into by Edward Delaney, of Summit, with his horse and wagon. The damage to the bicycle was considerable. Suit no doubt will be brought against Mr. Delaney, as he was heard to make the remark that he would run them down. Any person riding upon a bicycle on the public streets has the same rights that a party has with a horse and wagon.

The town committee met at town rooms on Wednesday evening last. Present—Miller, Embree and Cory. L. M. Whitaker, clerk. The bond of G. H. Koester, as constable, was presented and ordered on file. The bill of Edward Towley, balance for lighting street lamps, $10.61, ordered paid; Wm. W. Connoly, undertaker, funeral expenses, burial of T. Mc Carty, $20; J. H. Urmston, carriage hire and expenses for Mrs. McCarty and Jacob Verner, $15.75; H. L. Fisk, Overseer of Poor, coal and provisions furnished T. Blay, Elizabeth, $4.50; P. & R. railroad, crushed stone, $71.85; freight on same, $105.33; ordered paid. On motion, the Treasurer was authorized to negotiate a loan of $1,000 for three months, from June 4, 1885, to the order of D. T. Pierson, collector. On motion, adjourned, subject to call of chairman.

[From an Occasional Correspondent.]

Aeolian Hall building is being renovated and will soon be occupied by a new tenant.

Fodder corn, oats, peas and clover are fed to cattle in abundance by all the best farmers.

There are about fifty thoroughbred Jersey cattle in Westfield now; two years ago there was not five.

The crushed stone roads in this place are more important than any other improvement ever started.

Chauncey B. Ripley purchased ten acres of land of Joseph G. Hanson, on Central avenue, last week.

Mr. Henry W. Lacy, the celebrated painter of animals, has taken a house on the corner of Park street and Summit avenue.

The roadmasters are as busy as bees dressing their districts with crushed stone, now being supplied by the town committee in great quantities.

Rahway real estate is commanding fair prices. She, like Elizabeth, is recovering from the bonded debt trouble, having settled for 33½ cents on the dollar.

The friends of Comptroller A. B. Carlton, of Elizabeth, gave him a quiet supper recently in recognition of his services in the pending settlement of the bonded debt.

Mr. Burtis is fitting up a first-class livery stable near the railroad depot, a much needed convenience. Our funerals and weddings are now furnished with carriages here, being obtained formerly at Rahway and Elizabeth.

Mr. E. G. Brown, of Elizabeth, lately remarked: "The improvement most needed to introduce a good class of New Yorkers along the line of our railroad, is a macadamized drive from Elizabeth to Plainfield. Many people prefer Orange to Westfield because of the superior advantages for driving, while Westfield, in other respects, has more attractions than Orange. If one of the avenues, either North or South, along the Central railroad, was put in order from Plainfield to Elizabeth, gentlemen who keep horses and carriages and do pleasure driving, would purchase property and have their Summer residences on our railroad." Mr. Brown is right; and no one knows better whereof he speaks. Mr. E. G. Brown has spent the active part of his life, thirty years, in contracting for bridges along the line of the Central, Pennsylvania, and Morris & Essex railroads. He keeps a great many horses and owns many farms in this county. The people should heed Mr. Brown's suggestion and have a boulevard without further delay.

AN IMPORTANT FOOD REFORM.

Production of Chemically Pure Cream of Tartar—Total Elimination of all Lime Impurities—New Discoveries in Refining—A Long Stride Toward Pure Food.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Discoveries of much importance on account of the relation they bear toward a more wholesome food supply and consequently upon the public health, have been recently made in the process of refining cream of tartar: Cream of tartar as is well known, is a bitartrate of potassa purified from the crude tartar, or argol, which collects in a crystalline deposit upon the bottom and sides of wine casks during the fermentation of the wine. This tartar, in its crude state, contains lime and other impurities, which no process of refining known prior to that here described was able to entirely remove.

In a report upon the subject of food adulteration made to the New York State Board of Health by Professors Chandler and Love, it is stated that of twenty-seven samples of cream of tartar bought from dealers as pure sixteen were adulterated with various substances from 3 to 93 per cent, while of the remainder all contained tartrate of lime, some as high as 10.59 per cent.

The serious character of this adulteration is more readily appreciated when it is recollected the amount of cream of tartar used in this country in a year in baking powder and otherwise in the preparation of food is over ten million pounds. If this were 90 per cent pure—a high estimate—we would consume one million pounds or more of lime annually as a substitute for bread. So large a deterioration becomes appreciable in the deprivation of our food of a portion of its nutritive elements not only, but if, as is now supposed, this excess of lime taken into the system has a relation to the painful affection of the kidneys so prevalent in this country, its bearing upon the health of the entire community is too important to be over-looked.

The determination of the Royal Baking Powder Company to place upon the market only absolutely pure goods, and the impossibility of doing this from the cream of tartar of commerce, made it apparent that some new method must be sought by which cream of tartar could be procured in large quantities, free from lime and chemically pure. The cream of tartar refiners of this country and Europe declared such a result impossible, and declined to incur the expenditure necessary to make the trial. The Royal Baking Powder Company, accordingly, having secured the aid of the best chemists of Europe and America, proceeded with its investigations and discoveries until the result, after several years of labor and the expenditure of over half a million of dollars in the purchase of patents, perfecting of processes, and the erection of buildings and machinery, was reached in the complete attainment of the end sought. The works (now owned by the New York Tartar Co.) are located in Brooklyn, and exceed in size and capacity any other similar refinery in the world. They produce a chemically pure cream of tartar, which is now exclusively used for pharmaceutical preparations, and in the manufacture of the celebrated Royal Baking Powder.

The energy and outlay that have effected this will undoubtedly be fully rewarded by the public which will chiefly benefit by the successful issue of the investigations. People are coming daily to more fully appreciate the value of pure and wholesome food. By the exclusive use of this chemically pure cream of tartar, the Royal Baking Powder is produced entirely free from lime, and absolutely pure, qualities possessed by no other baking powders yet made. A baking powder entirely free from lime or other impurity must not only contain more strength or leavening power and produce better food and therefore be more economical for use, but what is more important, possess qualities of superior wholesomeness.

Chemists and physicians have looked upon the experiments with much interest, and regard their success as a matter of much importance.

AN ORDINANCE.

appointing commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh St., and prescribing their duties.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That John W. Murray, Elisha Harper and Joe. A. Hubbard are constituted and appointed commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, macadamized under ordinances entitled respectively "An Ordinance to macadamize Crescent avenue from the middle of Park avenue to the middle of Sixth street," and "An Ordinance to macadamize Seventh street from the middle of Broadway to the easterly side of Park avenue and from the middle of Central avenue to the easterly side of Plainfield avenue," which said Ordinances were approved October 7th, A. D., 1884, and "An Ordinance to provide for part of the expense of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street," approved December 2d, 1884.

SECTION 2. Within ten days after this Ordinance goes into effect under the charter of the City, said Commissioners shall take and subscribe before the City Judge or other magistrate of the City of Plainfield, an oath or affirmation that they will justly, fairly and faithfully make said assessments and execute and discharge the duties imposed upon them by virtue of their appointment as such Commissioners according to the best of their skill, judgment and understanding without favor or partiality. Thereupon said Commissioners shall give at least five days notice by advertisement in the official papers of the City, and by mailing written or printed copies of said notice to the post office address of each of the persons owning land along the line of said macadamizing, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, stating when and where said Commissioners will meet for the purpose of making said assessment, and of hearing whatever any person interested in said assessments may have to say or offer relative to said assessments. Said hearing may be from time to time adjourned by said commissioners. Said commissioners shall give all persons interested full and fair opportunity to be heard before them, shall carefully go over the entire line of said macadamizing, and review every tract of land and premises affected thereby, shall estimate the benefits as well as the damage (if any) sustained by each tract and having first carefully considered the premises and all that may be produced or offered relative thereto, they shall make the said assessment according to the statutes and ordinances in such case made and provided, and report the same in writing to the Common Council for ratification. Said commissioners are hereby empowered to employ a competent surveyor to make necessary maps and surveys and also to employ such clerical assistance as may be necessary.

Adopted June 1, 1885.
Approved June 2, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.

A HOME DRUGGIST
TESTIFIES.
Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—
RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.
SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

THE Council meets next Monday evening.

THE regular meeting of the Fire Board occurs next Tuesday evening.

WARREN'S Steamer has been shipped to the engine works for a new boiler.

COLD, rainy and cloudy May has at last consented to give us some sunshine and warm weather.

AT Reform Hall, Thursday evening of last week, Mme. Alberti's kind efforts were an attraction that was highly appreciated.

MONDAY was what the boys call "squirter day." The maple seeds (the squirters) were flying in the wind in all directions.

THE usual closing exercises of the term at Miss Kenyon's young ladies seminary, will take place next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

THE Dime Savings Institution of Plainfield are now paying another dividend of five per cent, which makes 90 per cent. thus far paid.

THE Vocal Society can justly claim a successful season. It is free from debt, although certain subscribing members neglected to settle.

THE Ladies' Aid Society of the New Brooklyn Baptist church will hold its Annual Festival in the Flax Factory, next Wednesday evening.

THE Decoration Day base-ball match between Leal's school and a picked nine, resulted in a tie of 14 to 14 at the end of the game of eight innings.

THE Rev. H. B. Steelman of Troy, N. Y., will preach in the Park avenue Baptist church Sunday morning at 10:30, and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

SOME people think the longer the introduction of water works into Plainfield is postponed, the longer will our city's enviable and desirable healthfulness, continue.

EDITOR Charles Rittenhouse, of the Hackettstown Gazette, has been appointed postmaster at Hackettstown, to succeed Robert Rusling, Jr., whose commission recently expired.

THE Board of Education has given the title of Vice-Principal to each head of the different departments of the Public School, as subordinate to Miss Bulkley, principal over all.

MR. J. NEWTON JENKINS is the contractor who is successfully engaged in raising into position the 2,000 pound posts that are to support the 100,000 pound roof of the Crescent rink.

THE closing exercises of the Warren Mission Industrial School will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All who may be interested are cordially invited to be present.

CITY JUDGE ULRICH was sworn in Tuesday morning and before noon presided over his first case on the bench of the Plainfield Court with a dignity to which the bench must become accustomed.

MRS. JOHN HASKARD, of Scotch Plains, desires to return thanks through these columns, to Good Will Lodge, Knights of Pythias, for the prompt payment, of her husband's insurance of $1,000 immediately after his death.

FOURTEEN of the Plainfield Bicycle Club took a run by wheel and rail, last Saturday, and Messrs. Marsh, Cooley and Pound rode all the hills without a dismount. The "Star" was the only machine that caused an accident.

DISAGREEABLE in the morning and worse in the afternoon, was the weather of Decoration Day. In spite of all that the memorial services by the Winfield Scott Post, as published by us last week, were successfully carried out.

MR. WILLIAM SHOTWELL has purchased the property on the east corner of Duer and Emily streets, formerly occupied by his father-in-law, Mr. Joseph Staats. He will make necessary and decided improvements about the premises at once.

THE Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. gave a reception in the rooms of the Association, Thursday evening of last week. The large attendance was delighted by a varied programme, followed with refreshments served by dainty hands.

A large crowd witnessed the race at Waverly park on Decoration Day, between Mr. John Stearn's "Billy Button," and Helene. The former won stylishly in three straight heats—2:30½, 2:30, 2:32. The betting was in favor of "Billy Button."

THE different points about the extensive lumber yards of Messrs. A. D. Cook and Bro., have been connected by electric wires. By pressing the buttons located at these points, the night watchman registers the time and frequency of his rounds.

THERE is general disappointment at the action of the Council at their last meeting in not granting permission to place two electric light wires on the telephone poles for the purpose of supplying about twenty business firms with the electric light in Front street, Park and North avenues.

THURSDAY evening of last week at The Netherwood was what might be considered the opening of the Season—and a "most auspicious occasion." Mr. Colte Woodruff gave a birthday reception to a number of invited friends, and some of the hotel's guests with a few couples from this city, joined in a German.

THE parents and friends of the scholars over-the-brook, and all interested, hope that this year the commencement exercises of the North Plainfield Public School will be held in some suitable building for the comfort of those desirous of attending. It would also be more satisfactory if held in the evening.

THE proprietor of the Hotel Netherwood desired ten electric lights for the grounds, piazza, etc., to be in operation by the 15th inst., but the action of the Council at their last meeting in not granting permission to place two wires on poles already erected may defer the matter until next season, which is to be regretted.

A NUMBER of gentlemen from this city and other places, who are lovers of the piscatorial art, have leased a piece of shore front at Lake Hopatcong, and will at once erect a club house thereon, where they will spend a few days during the season in attempting to beguile the wary bass and pickerel from the depths of that beautiful lake.

THE case of the city against M. Daly of the City Hotel, for selling liquor on Sunday, May 24th, in violation of his license, was tried before Judge Ulrich and a jury, Wednesday morning. The verdict was guilty, and the penalty was a fine of $30 on Mr. Daly and $20 on his bar-tender. Messrs. Jackson & Coddington, counsel for the defendant, will appeal.

THERE will be a strawberry festival held in St. Mary's Hall, this city, June 18th. Tickets 25 cents.

THE circus will attract the public tomorrow evening, so there will be skating and band music at the Casino this evening instead.

No law as to where a portion of our business men pay their tax, can affect a loss to this city. It is permitted to assess and collect (if it can) certain amounts for certain purposes. No more and no less.

MR. A. D. COOK has just had his new brick barn thoroughly protected against lightning in having it rodded by Mr. John Bishop, of Bound Brook, who is doing considerable work in that line in this city.

THE Saengerbund has rented, furnished and dedicated a new and commodious Hall on Second street, next to the City Hotel. Here they will enjoy their social meetings with Caspar at hand to furnish bountiful refreshment.

OUR German residents postponed their "May Walk" until the coming Sunday, when their wives and lady friends will join in the festivities. The men will start for the mountains before sunrise, but the stages to convey the ladies will leave Plainfield at about eight o'clock.

SCHWED BROS., the enterprising clothiers of Plainfield, No. 7 East Front street, announce that on Saturday next, the advent of O'Brien's circus visiting here, they will give to every purchaser of over $5 worth of goods at their store, a ticket to the above mentioned entertainment. No doubt but that they will reap a rich benefit for their generosity.

AN extensive conflagration was averted in Bound Brook last Tuesday afternoon, through the efforts of the crew of Engine No. 413, Central R. R. division, who discovered a fire on the shingle roof of out buildings belonging to Mr. Isaac Brokaw, along the line of the road. The train was stopped and the boys speedily put the flames out with buckets of water.

THE Delaware river is to be re-stocked with shad. Fish Commissioner Ellis has now in charge at Trenton, car No. 3, of the United States Fish Commission, which is fitted up as a shad hatcher. Its object is to stock the Delaware river with shad. He has on hand 700,000 eggs and will also use the spawn obtained from fish by Trenton fishermen. He expects to place several million shad in the river in a few days.

THERE were a number of sportsmen at Campbell's Club House, on Decoration Day, despite the rain, to participate in the shooting contest for silver cups and other trophies. In shooting for one of the cups, Messrs. Harry Campbell and "Neph" Apgar tied on thirteen broken balls out of fifteen each, and agreed to shoot the tie off next Saturday afternoon at clay pigeons, at which time also the other cup will be shot for. A large attendance is expected on that occasion.

A DELAY in the construction of McIntyre's building on Park avenue, of which Isaac Melbourn is the contractor, has been occasioned by a strike among the masons and bricklayers employed by him on the building. The cause of the trouble is on account of the placing of a non-Union man on the work. The union men immediately refused to continue work. New men have been obtained from abroad, but invariably they were induced to quit by the Union men. No violence has thus far resulted from the strike and it is hoped that matters will soon be amicably settled between contractor and workmen.

A Social Event.

Last evening at the residence of William R. Clarkson, Esq., on Front street, East, the play of "Kerry" was given in an unassuming manner by such talented amateurs as Miss Clarkson, Miss Maude Agnes Bowers, and the Messrs. Harberger and Harte. The limited number of invitations issued insured the selectness of the affair throughout.

Plainfield Vocal Society.

The following are the officers elected at the annual meeting held May 28, 1885, to serve during the season of 1885-86:

President—W. W. Howland.
Vice President—C. W. McCutcheon.
Secretary—W. R. Cock.
Treasurer—J. K. Meyers.

Chautauqua Picnic.

The members of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle and the Chautauqua Town and Country Club, propose to have a basket picnic at "Houghton Farm," about ten miles from Newburgh, N. Y. The date fixed is June 23d, and those intending to go must report to the Chautauqua Secretary, Miss K. F. Kimball of this city, before the 15th inst.

A "Tip" in Time.

The "Glorious Fourth" occurs four weeks from to-morrow and the attention of boys and parents is called to the fact that, under a new law, it is unlawful for all persons under the age of fifteen years to sell, hire, loan, purchase, barter, exchange, carry, fire or use, except in the presence of parents or guardians, any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other fire-arm.

School Commencement.

Commencement exercises of Plainfield Public School will be held Thursday evening, June 25, in Stillman Music Hall. No tickets of admission will be issued except for a limited number of seats reserved for the relatives and friends of the graduating class and for teachers. The address of the evening will be by Henry M. Tyler, Esq., Professor of Greek in Smith College, Massachusetts.

Plainfield Talent in Dunellen.

This (Thursday) evening is the date of an elocutionary and musical entertainment at the Dunellen Presbyterian church, that is sure of success. Not only will Mme. Alberti's readings and the emotive gestures of her young lady pupils please and fascinate our neighbors, but the singing of the male quartette that has been selected will charm all souls that have any music in them.

Just What He Deserved.

The members of No. 2. Engine Co. are determined that the present Chief of the Department shall be more fittingly and handsomely equipped than any of his predecessors. For that purpose about $75 was subscribed by Chief Jennings' admirers, and Tuesday evening he was presented with a 64-cone hat with hand-painted front, fatigue cap and belt, a blue beaver double-breasted duty coat and a rubber overcoat.

Band of Hope Entertainment.

Last Monday evening at Reform Hall the Band of Hope and its friends enjoyed immensely a programme arranged for the occasion—its "Spring Festival." Mr. George L. Van Emburgh delivered an address, and the Secretary, Miss Hudson, read a favorable report of the Band's work. Master Feininger gave three violin solos, Miss Margaret Yates and others recited, and vocal and instrumental music completed the entertainment.

Personalia.

Senator B. Livingston has been enjoying himself the past week among Adirondack trout streams.

Fire Commissioners F. Knowland and Wm. H. Brower, visited Greenwood Lake on Monday and had fine success in taking black bass and pickerel.

Ex-Assemblyman W. W. Swayze, of Glen Gardner, Hunterdon county, called upon us Wednesday. Mr. Swayze was a few years ago a prominent candidate for Comptroller of the State.

Pretty Rhetoric.

"The foliage and verdure never looked more beautiful at this season of the year than they do now. They have responded with eager alacrity to nature's ardent wooing." This is rather a neat closing of a paragraph which the Flemington Democrat garnered with its trusty scissors from a dude paper of Trenton.

Strawberries and Cream.

Thursday evening and Friday afternoon and evening, the 11th and 12th insts., the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church will hold a festival and offer the public an abundance of strawberries, ice-cream, fruit, flowers, fancy articles and fun. A select orchestra from New York will furnish music during both evenings.

Wrong This Time.

The New York dailies universally attempt to connect every suicide, embezzlement and scandal in some way with this city—and they generally succeed. But Dick Scott who walked off with $160,000 of the funds of the Manhattan Savings Institution, has not "honored" Plainfield as his residence in three years, at least.

The New Council Rooms.

As remarked by Councilman F. E. Marsh—Chairman of the Special Committee, and to whom is due all the credit—the new Council rooms can speak for themselves. Although one story higher than the chambers of the past, so many advantages are gained thereby that the extra stairway is disregarded. Convenient rooms for the City Court and Council Committees have been secured by the change of location, and the entire floor is most comfortably and suitably arranged and fitted. The new furniture is from Green & Co., and the carpets of a light brown ground, relieved with sprays of bright flowers, forming a desirable contrast to the incongruous frescoing, were furnished by Pope Bros., of this city.

The Garfield League Matter.

It is with regret that we are again compelled to allude to an unfortunate condition of affairs existing among members of the G. A. R. fraternity. In another column will be found a statement from the Vice Commander of Winfield Scott Post, regarding the Garfield League, Ladies' Auxiliary. While that statement would seem to be decisive, the ladies claim that they still hold the charter of their organization, and that the action alluded to in Mr. Moore's communication is not legal. They have taken legal advice and say that the matter will be taken into court for final adjudication. It is to be regretted that such a state of affairs should exist among members of such an excellent fraternity, and more so that the matter should be brought before the public so generally by newspaper communications and remarks. We trust with this issue to have had our share of it.

Cheaper Telegraph Service.

The Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Co. has recently reduced its rates to important points. From New York to Philadelphia ten words can be sent for ten cents, and one cent for each additional word. To Boston, Washington, Baltimore and Newport the rate is also ten cents, Chicago is fifteen cents; Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Rochester is twenty cents. The rates from Plainfield to these points are nearly 60 per cent. higher by the Western Union Telegraph Co. Mr. Wann of the Plainfield District Messenger Co., hopes to complete arrangements with the Bankers and Merchants Co. to connect their wires here, so that our business men and others can enjoy cheap telegraph service. This has been one of Mr. Wann's plans in connection with his District Messenger Service. Telegrams would be delivered and called for free of charge, at any hour of the day or night.

A Capital Scheme.

Now that the State Capitol Rebuilding Commission has decided not to proceed with its work of rebuilding the Capitol, Bound Brook will have plenty of time to set forth the claims of this place as the proper location for the State Capitol. Bound Brook is the railroad center of the State and its girls are the prettiest in the country. What further inducements can legislators want? The Capitol must come to Bound Brook.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

Now what is the use in your trying to deceive our wise legislators in this manner, brother Mason. You know just as well as we do, that Plainfield is the spot for the State Capitol, and that our girls are prettier than yours are. Besides, look at our advantages. We have the finest Opera House in the State, an effective Reform Club, lots of churches, good schools, telephone service, gas, macadamized roads, and—skating rinks. Besides, we are going to have electric lights and District Messenger service. And furthermore, we have no debts, and more too—Plainfield is the handsomest and healthiest city in the State. The Capitol should come to Plainfield.

Nothing to Gain.

Next Tuesday over-the brook the question will be finally settled whether North Plainfield is or is not to have a borough form of government. We have been unable to discover in the weeks that are past why the present system is not good enough, nor what can be secured by the borough that is not obtainable by the township. Under the present law the township can have sidewalks, and police, and flagged crossings, and street lights, and stone road-beds and a lock-up. The borough will merely increase taxes that are now heavier than in Plainfield city, and create the offices of Mayor and Council for the personal satisfaction of the occupants.

North Plainfield is still young and can afford to wait until the gradual settlement of a large portion of her outstanding indebtedness of a special nature is accomplished. By reason of the Somerset street, Public School and Johnston Drive assessments, the taxes of our neighbors are higher than the taxes of our citizens. Consequently the extra tax levys that will be an outcome of the adoption of a borough government, will so increase the individual cost of owning or occupying property over-the-brook, that the growth of North Plainfield and the prosperity of its inhabitants may not be so continuous and gratifying as in the past and present.

Obstruction.

It is difficult for the public—and difficult for us—to understand the action of the Council, Monday evening, in interfering with the desire of a number of our merchants and the proprietor of The Netherwood, to illuminate their respective places of business with electric lights. The city was not called upon to expend a cent, and permission only was asked to string two additional wires upon poles already erected and occupied. Yet the wishes of business men were pushed aside, and the beginning of one of the greatest benefits, improvements and attractions to our city was obstructed at the private request of a representative of the Standard Cable Company.

If wires can be laid underground, and still—among other impossibilities—furnish electric light as cheaply as gas, then THE CONSTITUTIONALIST will be the first and the most emphatic to demand that overhead wires shall come down. But, after the greatest electricians of the day have testified that it is scientifically impracticable,—or while the Standard Cable Company is learning the lesson by experiments—shall a few Councilmen say that we must not enjoy what we are willing to pay for?

Rather grant the privilege asked by the Thomson-Houston Company, with the proviso that the wires shall be taken down when the Standard Cable Company practically demonstrates the worth of its theory and its contrivance.

Chapter XCVII.

A law of interest to road overseers will be found in this issue. It empowers road-overseers to use broken stone as well as gravel in the repair of the roads of their respective districts, and when they are unable to procure these articles the township committees may procure the same at a cost not to exceed ten per cent. of the whole amount of road tax assessed in that year. This is a move looking to the permanent repair of the highways.

Eggstraordinary.

While some of the newspapers are bragging week after week about double-yolk eggs and other monstrosities of the chicken yard, it will be right and proper for us to merely mention the recent work of a modest hen belonging to our friend, Amos Vail, Esq., Town Committeeman of North Plainfield. She had formerly been a poor hen for eggs, but last week beat the record and established an enviable reputation for a Quaker, by laying an egg eight inches by nine in circumference, and weighing six ounces. In blowing out the inside of the egg Mr. Vail found that enclosed in the outer shell was another perfect egg.

About Underground Wires.

[From the Philadelphia Record, June 2, 1885.]

The report of William Henry Rawle, Esq., as Master in the equity suit brought by the Board of Trade in the name of the Commonwealth, against the Brush Electric Light Co., to compel that corporation to put its wires underground, was yesterday sustained by Court of Common Pleas No. 2, in a decision dismissing the exceptions thereto. Mr. Rawle decided as a scientific fact that no practicable underground system had yet been devised, and that a decision in favor of the complainants would embarrass the operations of the company.

How To Save Additional Expense.

The Commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, have been appointed by ordinance, and due notice will be given when and where they will meet for that purpose. But persons owning land along the line of said macadamizing will save the cost and expense of the Commissioners by paying at once the amount they are liable for. Bills will be sent all such, certified by the Chairman of the Street Committee, and may be paid to the contractors, Messrs. Spotiswood & O'Rourke, at the office of City Surveyor F. A. Dunham.

Muhlenberg Hospital.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Governors held May 25, 1885, the following officers and committees were elected to serve the coming year.

President—Samuel Huntington.
1st Vice President—W. R. Potts.
2d Vice President—J. Evarts Tracy.
Secretary—Wm. R. Cock.
Treasurer—Geo. H. Goddard.
Managing Committee—Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, Samuel Huntington, J. Evarts Tracy, John H. Cuthbert, William R. Cock.
Finance Committee—W. R. Potts, Chas. Schipper, Geo. H. Goddard, W. E. Lowe, Jas. W. Jackson.

The Mayor's First.

On Saturday afternoon, Decoration day, His Honor, Mayor Geo. W. Rockfellow, performed the first official act of its kind coming within his jurisdiction, since his installation into office, which was the marriage of Mr. Smith W. Laing, of Red Bank, N. J., to Mrs. E. A. Clayton, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony was performed in the parlors of Force's Hotel, North avenue, the proprietor of whom is a cousin to the groom. There was present only the son and daughter of the groom, who was a widower, and one or two other immediate relatives. Even the guests of the house were not informed or cognizant of what was going on until after the ceremony. Mr. Laing is a former resident of Plainfield and his many friends wish him continued prosperity and good luck in his second matrimonial venture.

Good Enough for Newark

The Newark Register, in speaking of the circus which visits Plainfield to-morrow, says: "Two performances were given yesterday at O'Brien, Astley & Company's circus. The show without doubt is one of the finest that ever was exhibited in this or any other city, and as a consequence every available seat under the canvas tent was occupied by delighted spectators. The equestriennes were simply delightful. They are unquestionably in point of style and beauty the finest that it has ever been the delight of the Newark public to gaze upon. The bareback riders, the acrobats the clowns, the trained elephants, the performing dogs and the menagerie of this circus will be seen with delight by thousands of Newark people. No Newarker should fail to see this magnificent show."

That Cantata.

The cantata, Esther, which was rendered by the Amateur Musical Association last Saturday evening, was in some respects better than the previous performances, although in others it was not. Miss Janet Smedley, who impersonated Esther, was very pleasing to the audience, but Miss Annette Washburn, although she did very well, was not so generally liked as was Miss Smillie. The local talent was in most cases about the same. Mordecai did not do so well as before, as he was either overcome with the greatness thrust upon him, or forgot his words and left out the middle of one of his solos. We hope that Haman has sung tenor for the last time, unless he can find something which will raise every note in his voice a fraction of an inch. He was flat from first to last, and at one time the chorus taking their lead from him started at his pitch but recovered themselves. The shading of the choruses may have been better than formerly, but as a large part of the chorus were in the original one, it would be surprising if they had not improved in three months practice.

Normal Training Class.

It is proposed by the Board of Education to establish a training class the coming year with the view of preparing graduates of the Plainfield High School for teaching and of forming a corps of trained teachers to meet the needs of the schools. The course of study is designed to cover a period of two years and will embrace the following studies: Mental and moral science; principles of education and their application in various branches of study; history of education, or the life and methods of great educators; school law; school government; lessons in natural history; laws of health; methods. Besides the class in theory, the general plan includes school room observation and practice. The pupil-teachers are to remain one week in turn with each principal teacher, to take notes of work observed, and refer these to principles of teaching. At the end of each week these notes are to be reported to the principal. As soon as possible, according to the judgment of the principal teacher, these pupil-teachers are to be entrusted with class exercises. During the second year the pupil-teacher may teach under supervision in various classes in any department according to assignment by the principal. This will give a practical knowledge of the requirements of the various grades and will also test the teacher's ability and fitness for a certain department of teaching. During this year the pupil-teacher may substitute in any temporary vacancy. Thus when regularly appointed to the position of teacher after finishing the prescribed course, she will already have the confidence of some experience and good assurance of success.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY EVENING, June 1st.

The Council met in regular meeting. Present—President Corlell and Messrs. Baguelin, Cutter, Dumont, Gallup, Goddard, Marsh, Simpson, Wadsworth, Whiton—10.

Absent—Mr. Livingston—1.

Minutes of regular meeting of May 4, approved as read.

PETITIONS.

From Chas. Wann, of the Thomson-Houston Co., for permission to place wires on poles of N. J. Telephone Co. for electric lights at Netherwood Hotel, and certain business places in the city. Ref'd to Special Com., to be reported on this evening.

From J. G. Miller and others, requesting the laying of a cross-walk over Front street at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Ref'd.

From E. Lanphear, in relation to an unopened street shown on a certain map, running from Fifth to Eighth street, between Park and Madison avenues. Tabled unanimously.

CLAIMS.

Salaries of regular police, $208.34; F. A. Dunham, $39.69, $10.79; G. M. Angleman, $22.90; P. P. Good, $50; J. H. Platt, $17.33; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Co., $136.50; Plainfield Gas Co., $221.83; W. L. Force & Bro., $59.30; G. M. Angleman, $515; F. A. Dunham, $73.75; Jno. Wilson, $376.48; Claims on Poor Fund, $190.82; Green & Co., $84.75. All referred.

The monthly report of City Collector, the monthly statement of City Treasurer and the quarterly report of the Overseer of the Poor, were read and filed.

His Honor the Mayor nominated Messrs. J. E. Tracy, M. W. Tyler and H. P. Tallmadge as Directors of the Public Library. Confirmed.

City Judge P. P. Good tendered his resignation. Tabled.

Petitions for sundry peddlers and scavengers licenses were presented. Ref'd.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On Rooms—Mr. Marsh explained what the new rooms were for, and left their conveniences to speak for themselves.

Laws—On the Mahaffee claim for return of fee, the committee reported adversely. Claim returned.

License—As correct, license petitions. Granted.

The committees on Finance, Lamps, Police, Salaries, Streets and Printing, reported as correct claims in their hands Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The Special Com. reported against the granting of permission this evening to the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Company to stretch wires along the streets. Adopted.

The Streets Com. was authorized to lay a cross-walk over Third Place on the southerly side of Crescent avenue.

Petitions left over by the previous Council for cross-walks at Eighth street and Central avenue and at Crescent avenue and Seventh street were read. All such petition not acted upon were referred to the Streets Com., with power.

The Ordinance for the appointment of Commissioners on Seventh street and Crescent avenue macadamizing, was called up for its third reading. Adopted.

The resignation of the City Judge was taken from the table and accepted.

On motion the Council proceeded to the election of a City Judge by ballot, without nomination.

Messrs. Cutter and Wadsworth acted as tellers, and the votes resulted:

First ballot—W. R. Coddington, 2; George P. Suydam, 3; John Ulrich, 3; Blank, 2. No election.

Second ballot—John Ulrich, 6; W. R. Coddington, 2; George P. Suydam, 2.

Mr. Ulrich was declared elected.

The Auditing Committee reported as correct the claims in its hands. Ordered paid.

The Council adjourned for one week.

The "Texas Siftings" Man.

Thursday evening of next week Mr. J. Armoy Knox will lecture in Music Hall, and Mr. W. Bradford Williams, a former resident of Plainfield, will add his skill as a "character delineator" to the programme of the occasion. Mr. Knox has long been known as a talented journalist, subsequently as a successful writer of plays, and recently as an interesting lecturer. Mr. Williams last appeared in this vicinity at The Netherwood, and was occasionally entertaining.

Oh! For A New Church Organ.

Much has been read and spoken of the wonderful possibilities of the cathedral organ in Garden City, but few of those most interested are probably aware that in one of the largest churches in this city is an instrument quite as remarkable in its own way, in that it requires the unrelaxing diligence of three strong men in its management. Where this choice article is situated, the congregation are never startled out of their senses by a sudden burst of melody, as there is always a premonitory sound which resembles the working of a village corner-pump and can be heard at almost any distance. This proceeds from behind the organ where the "blower" earns all he gets, since, owing to a leak in the bellows the wind retires with a gentle hissing sound almost as fast as it enters. Had this individual plunged deeply into the intricacies of mathematics he would doubtless often be reminded of the problem about the snail who fell back two inches for every three that he ascended in climbing from the well. The noise of the bellows is of advantage in that it keeps the congregation well informed as to what is going on, for when it is not heard all know "Thomas" is asleep, a committee of one is detailed by the choir to attend to the matter, a smile goes the rounds and the sounds from the bellows are a little more sudden and jerky than usual. Now is the time for the organist to begin. He in the meanwhile has been arranging the few available stops to the best advantage—half having long fallen into disuse—and has seen to it that the worn out keys are propped up with matches, and the pedals are not stuck. Then he starts forth. Now the labors of the assistant begin, whose duty it is to pick up the keys as fast as the organist's fingers leave them and to settle refractory stops, an office which is no sinecure. In the midst of this commotion the choir sometimes comes forward and does its best to reduce the whole to a delightful harmony, no matter what is going on behind them. In spite of all efforts, however, accidents will sometimes happen as, for instance, on last Sunday evening when the congregation were treated, after the last hymn, to a sound like a fire whistle, and the benediction was almost over before the cause could be discovered. After service the congregation go to their homes some wondering why the singing isn't better, others remarking upon the poor playing of the organist, while some few justly lay most of the trouble to an instrument which was discarded twenty years ago by the church which it then occupied as being unfit for use in a building that could afford better, and which has now become a disgrace to the people that give it house-room. And all this, when a year ago $2,500 was raised by the efforts of a few zealous women and the subscriptions of four men, and it only requires an equal amount to place an organ there which will change the attendance of the church from the laughing stock to the envy of the city. To cut a long story short, the moneyed men of the Crescent avenue church ought to be ashamed of themselves. They have the richest church in the Presbytery, and pay their minister the largest salary. Every pew and every seat is rented, and a list of applicants await their chance to secure sittings. Yet the church organ is a "crying shame."

Mr. and Mrs. Feininger's Pupils.

The entire programme published by us last week, without a change, was accomplished in a decidedly accomplished manner at Reform Hall, Tuesday evening, from eight to ten o'clock, upon the occasion of the first annual concert of the pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feininger. There were 500 of the representative families and 250 representatives of other families present, to all of whom were presented a stage full of lovely ladies, a grand piano and, in the "dim vista," wild animals and weird women.

The Miss Potters rendered a selection of Auber's, arranged for six hands and two feet, with most pleasing effect. The applause and the flowers their efforts secured, were alike profuse and appropriate. Miss Tomlinson's voice was a charming surprise to many and to even those who had heard rumors of its sweetness. As she gained confidence her treatment of her solo was all that could be desired. Miss Dewey surpassed herself in Schubert's Impromptu No. 4; and Miss Roome sustained the reputation she had attained upon past occasions in this city. Master Long, a young favorite, followed with a violin solo, and Miss Alice Holmes, another young favorite, rendered Raff's Polka de la Reine with noticeable precision. Miss Julia Ketcham, one of our leading contraltos, awoke Saturnia courageously and satisfactorily; after which Miss Handren and Miss Falkinburgh interpreted with the same gratifying effect, selections distinctly opposite in style.

Part Second was opened by Master Leo Feininger whose violin solo was quite delightful, and whose recall was the only one of the evening. Miss Wooden's solo was, of all the piano selections, one of the most gracefully rendered, while Miss Jackson's, that closed the list, was possibly the most difficult and—scientific. Mendelssohn's "Lift Thine Eyes," was wretchedly sung by Mrs. Feininger, Miss Tomlinson and Miss Ketcham, but the songs for soprano that Mrs. Feininger gave later, were more effective. Mr. Feininger's playing of De Beriot's Finale, from Second Violin Concerto, was the great pleasure of the evening, but the execution of Carnival of Venice, by four violins, that closed the programme, was not so fortunate an addition to the entertainment.

The whole was a remarkable—almost a wonderful—exposition of perfect training and cultivation, that proved what we have so often asserted—Mr. and Mrs. Feininger are unexcelled in their profession of teachers of music.

WHAT PARENTS FEAR.

Many persons—especially parents—object to many quack nostrums as likely to engender or encourage a love for strong drink. They are right. Better die of disease than drunkenness. The use of Parker's Tonic does not involve this danger. It not only builds up the system, curing all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it stimulates without intoxicating and absolutely cures the appetite for liquor.

The burglar, like his friend the philosopher, "takes everything just as it comes," and not infrequently goes for it.

THE GEM OF BLOOD PURIFIERS.

It is now acknowledged that "O. I. C." (Old Indian Cure) is the best medicine for a general Spring cleansing of the system that our Materia Medica furnishes. Entirely vegetable, containing no mercury, potash or other drug whatever. We have hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy in all diseases due to impure blood. Physicians recommend it. For sale at Butler's drug store. The O. I. C. Co., Perry, Ga., and 42 Clinton Place, N. Y.

THAT DIRTY DANDRUFF.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It soils the clothing continually, and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the falling hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, and elegant dressing. Very economical, as only a small occasional application keeps the hair in perfect condition.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

CHAPTER CXIX.

An Act concerning townships.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any township in this state where the public roads are worked by commissioners elected by virtue of any special law, it shall be lawful [illegible] the township collector, and [illegible] to pay any [illegible] road tax [illegible] such township [illegible] the road [illegible] same person [illegible] is now directed by law to pay the amount of said road tax.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 25, 1885.

CHAPTER CXX.

An Act concerning the recovery of possession of lands sold for taxes.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no any action of law instituted to recover possession of real estate sold for taxes [illegible] title vests in the purchaser [illegible] bettersment within the time [illegible] than five years previous to the [illegible] such action, judgment shall be [illegible] by the [illegible] recovery of such real estate [illegible] or person or persons so recovering shall be [illegible] the chancellor on bill in equity [illegible] of the lands [illegible] such person [illegible] the party or parties in [illegible] of such real estate the cost of all permanent improvements made thereto by the person or persons in possession under such tax title [illegible] grantors.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 25, 1885.

CHAPTER CXXI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act providing for additional powers and certain changes in the government of certain localities governed by commissioners," approved April seventeenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one of "An act providing for additional powers and certain changes in the government of certain localities governed by commissioners," and passed April seventeenth, eighteen hundred and eighty four, shall be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

[1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all municipalities in this state, governed by a board of commissioners, whether the same be chosen by the people or appointed by the supreme court, or however they may be selected, the elective members of such boards shall be legal voters of such locality.]

2. And be it enacted, That the second section shall be and is hereby amended to read as follows:

[2. And be it enacted, That there shall be elected by the legal voters in such place, at such annual election for members of such boards of commissioners, which election shall be held on the third Tuesday in January in each year, at which time also shall be appointed such members as are appointed by the supreme court, or however such members may be selected, one collector of taxes, one board of assessors, to consist of not more than three members, who shall hold office for the term of one year; the said collector of taxes shall enter [illegible] books, to be kept for that purpose, the sums received by him for taxes, respectively with the names of persons on whose account the same shall be paid each day.]

3. And be it enacted, That the eleventh section shall be and is hereby amended to read as follows:

[11. And be it enacted, That the commissioners shall have power to raise by tax such sum or sums of money as it may deem necessary and expedient for carrying on the government of such place; provided, that the rate of taxation in any one year shall not exceed the proportion of three dollars on one thousand dollars of the valuation of the real and personal property in such place; to borrow money and negotiate temporary loans in anticipation of taxes of any current year, not exceeding in amount ten thousand dollars, such temporary loans to be paid within the current year within which such loans are made.]

4. And be it enacted, That the thirteenth section shall be and is hereby amended to read as follows:

[13. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the board of commissioners, whenever in their opinion the public good requires it, by ordinance to lay out and open any street, road, highway or alley within said district, to order and cause any street, road, highway or alley already laid out to be vacated, straightened, altered or widened, and to take and appropriate for such purpose any lands and real estate upon making compensation to the owner or owners thereof, such compensation and the expense arising from such improvements to be assessed upon the property lying within the corporate boundaries of such commission, and to be assessed and collected as are other taxes assessed and collected.]

5. And be it enacted, That the eighteenth section be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

[18. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, general, special, local or otherwise, inconsistent with the provisions of this act and the supplements and amendments thereto, be and the same are hereby repealed.]

6. And be it enacted, That the seventeenth section shall be and is hereby amended to read as follows:

[17. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately, but its provisions shall remain inoperative, unless accepted by a majority of the legal voters of such locality, voting at any regular municipal election of such place, or special election held for that purpose as directed by the commissioners or other governing body of such locality, of which election the clerk of such commission shall give notice of the time and place of its being held in the same way and manner as is provided for advertising the municipal elections of such locality, at which election there shall be printed or written, or partly printed and partly written, upon ballots, "For the act and the amendments," and printed or written, or partly printed and partly written, upon ballots, "Against the act and the amendments," and the election officers of said election shall return to the commissioners or other governing body of such locality, a true and correct statement, in writing, under their hands, of the result of said election in reference to the "Act and the amendments," the same to be entered at large upon the minutes of said commissioners, and if it be found that a majority of the ballots cast have upon them "For the act and the amendments," then this act and this supplement shall be lawful and of full effect, but if a majority of ballots cast have upon them "Against the act and the amendments," then said act shall remain in force as before it was amended.]

Passed March 25, 1885.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THOSE TWO CENTS.

The Tribune is quite too previous in congratulating the country, and above all in congratulating the Republican party, that the recent Treasury count should have come out all right with the possible close shave of two cents short, and the Tribune essays some grim humor over the missing two cents which is not too sensible—if the Tribune will permit one of the venerable chestnuts it loves so well—considering all the circumstances of the case.

Of course, the count was imperative to see if the funds alleged on paper to be left in the Treasury actually were there. And it is not at all remarkable that what was "left" was there. But for the Tribune to assume that because what was left is reason for assuming the immaculate integrity and honesty of the custodians of the Treasury for the past twenty-four years, and that there has been no stealing in all that time, is simply to fly in the face of history.

For example, the Tribune cannot be oblivious of the stupendous swindling and stealing carried on by the Republican party which appeared in the Boss Shepherd frauds, the Freedman's Bureau swindle, the Robeson naval frauds, the Sanborn contract, the Indian and Pension Bureau frauds, the Star-Route and Howgate frauds, the Burnside robbery, the Swaim swindles and the Keifer business. These are but upsticking stones in the rushing stream of swindling that has run through the doors of the Treasury in the past twenty-four years. Hundreds of millions of money have been stolen and put into the pockets of party favorites and contractors. These men have been enriched at the expense of the people, who have been made proportionately poorer by these frauds and swindles and out-and-out robberies.

Considering all things, it would have been no more than fair to have left in the Treasury the final two cents which some departing Republican official appears to have put in his pocket.—N. Y. World.

FISHERMEN'S LAWS.

From our exchanges we learn that on Friday of last week Mr. Amos Cartright was fishing in the Big Bushkill creek, near Hessca, Monroe, Co., Pa. He hooked a large trout, and while playing it in the pool a large fish hawk dropped down upon the fish and rose with it from the water. Cartright was so astounded that the hawk had reeled off half of his line before he thought of stopping the reel. The hook held fast in the trout's jaw, the line parted at the tip of the rod, and the hawk soared away not only with the trout, but with flies, leader, and fifty feet of the fisherman's line. Cartright says he was not ten feet away from the trout when the hawk dropped on it, and in full sight.

Last week Mrs. Simpson, living in Paulding county, Ga., while fishing on Pumpkin Vine creek, got a bite and attempted to pull the fish out. The order was reversed, however, and the fish pulled her into the water, and not knowing how to swim, she was drowned. The body was found about sixty feet from where she was fishing. The fishpole was found floating, and when pulled up, a catfish weighing twenty-two pounds was still on the hook.

NEW JERSEY'S BANKS.

Recent statistics show that New Jersey stands ninth among the States in amount of capital, circulation, loans and discounts of national banks. The total capital of such banks in the State is $12,273,350, with a circulation of $8,436,669. Individual deposits amount to $28,743,811.

A FORTUNE IN BEESWAX.

"Did ye ever hear of the original discoverer of the Toughnut mine at Tombstone? Well, he was a regular tenderfoot from 'way back, and was workin' with two pards on the claim, an' one day he came up from the bottom of the shaft an' says he: 'Boys,' says he, 'I'm played out, and I ain't got no more heart in this racket. I allow as long as I was striking anything like ore I'd stand it out here, but may ye sit on my grave if I ain't working beeswax,' and he showed his pards a piece of rock thickly covered with a brown substance as did look uncommonly like wax. 'Will ye take $200 for your share?' said one of his pards. 'Bet yer sweet life I will,' and so the stuff was handed over, the quit claim deed made out, an' the tenderfoot lost a fortune. The thing he took for beeswax was chloride of silver, an' the rock went $15,000 to the ton. Tell ye, stranger, it ain't every man's a judge of rock."

The platform of the Lehigh Valley Railroad took fire a few nights ago, probably from sparks dropped by a passing train, and had it not been for a citizen returning home late who caught sight of the embryo conflagration, and who aroused the station master, Mr. Rupell, we should probably have to record the destruction of the New Market depot, to add to the list of mysterious fires.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Art Amateur for June contains designs for a mirror frame (tulips), a dessert plate (myrtle), wood carving (swamp rose), four doilies, and a fireplace facing of seventeen tiles (nasturtiums). The Prize Fund Exhibition is reviewed at length, with illustrations of the principal pictures. There are valuable practical articles on amateur photography, scene painting, charcoal drawing, wall decoration and frame embroidery, and the usual editorial, dramatic, literary and correspondence departments are ably sustained. Price 35 cents. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

The June issue of The Eclectic begins with an interesting paper containing the Spencerian theories, entitled "The State vs. The Man," by M. De Laveleye, which is followed by a very important article on "The Russian Advance in Asia," written by a great Anglo Indian authority, Sir Henry Rawlinson, K. C. B. St. George Mivart concludes his discussion of "Organic Nature's Riddle." Andrew Lang is represented by an interesting study of Comparative Ghost Myths, and Matthew Arnold comes to the front again with "A Comment on Christmas." Other specially notable papers are "Social Science on the stage" by C. Sutherland Edwards, "The German abroad," by C. E. Dawkins, "George Sand," another account of a remarkable woman, and "Jules Ferry and His Friends." The general make up of the number appeals to a wide variety of tastes.

The leading contribution to the Magazine of American History for June is a critical study of the professional life and character of Charles O'Conor, by Chief-Justice Charles P. Daly, of New York. The second paper is the career of Judge Asa Packer, the founder of Lehigh University. The curious "Antiquities of the Western States" forms the subject of an informing article by J. M. Bulkley, L. L. D. "The Cave Myth of the American Indians" is ably discussed by George S. Jones. "The Discovery of Lake Superior" is a paper written by Arthur Harvey, of Toronto. The Hon. P. V. Daniel, Jr., of Richmond, Va., criticises certain points in Mr. Robert C. Winthrop's oration on the completion of the Washington Monument, under the head of "Historical Errors Corrected." This number of the magazine completes volume XIII. Sold by newsdealers everywhere. 50 cents a number, or $5 a year in advance. Published at 30 Lafayette place, N. Y. city.

To be the best seen in PLAINFIELD for twenty years.
Will exhibit in PLAINFIELD
SATURDAY, JUNE 6th.
Only 25 Cents Admission to all!

The Circus, Arenic, Equestrian, Acrobatic and Athletic Performances in a single ring, fully equal if not superior to the best ever seen in any show, or the money willingly refunded.

The Equestrian firmament is not confined to an occasional "Star." The whole range of the arenic horizon is ONE EXPANDED GALAXY OF CROWDED CONSTELLATIONS!

The long list of distinguished names are not mentioned in connection with this announcement.

THE TRAINED CASTILLIAN DOGS of Signor Abero have positively no equal in all history of canine culture and nauticism. It is worth the whole price of admission to see these alone. The ZOOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT contains 13 cages of living Wild Animals from all parts of the world, with many rare specimens. THREE FINE ELEPHANTS, among which is EMPRESS, the Largest and Best Performing Elephant in the world, the good people of this town to be the judges.

There will be Two Entertainments each day, Afternoon and Night, at 2 and 8 o'clock. A splendid new Pavilion large enough to accommodate everybody, with an ample supply of comfortably-upholstered reserved seats, only 25 cts. extra. In fact everything is spic-span new, and every department conducted in first-class order. For full particulars see large and small bills, couriers, programmes, etc., scattered everywhere by the thousands.

READ WHAT THE PAPERS SAY OF THIS SPLENDID SHOW:

The Show is one of the finest that has been in this city. The entertainment last night was first-class in every respect.—Washington National Republican, April 16.

The bareback riders, acrobats, gymnasts, the trained elephant and other features of the ring were excellent. The clowns kept the large audience in high glee, and the circus began its week's entertainment under favorable auspices.—Washington Post, April 16.

The attendance was large, the ring features were excellent, the clowns were real clowns and kept the spectators in a merry mood. The horseback riding, as was every feature that entered the ring, was superb. In every respect it is a most excellent show.—Evening Critic, April 17.

The show in a single ring gave great satisfaction and was heartily applauded. Altogether the show is a good one. The performing elephants and trained dogs were pleasing features.—Evening Star, April 17.

We hesitate not to give the show a personal endorsement, having seen it and heartily enjoyed its interesting entertainments throughout. The performance of the elephants are wonderful, displaying great intelligence and docility. Signor Abero's trained Castillian dogs excel everything we have ever seen in the canine species, while every act in the ring is first-class.—Washington Sunday Chronicle, April 19.

The Menagerie is a good one, containing splendid specimens, while the entire circus is the best ever seen in this city.—Sunday Gazette, April 19.

First-class in every particular.—O'Brien & Co.'s Circus is a surprise to the circus-goers of this city, as it differs from most traveling shows in one respect, viz., it is first-class in every particular.—The Washington Capital, April 19, 1885.

O'Brien, Astley & Co.'s circus and menagerie visited this city yesterday. The street parade was modest, but the entertainment gave great satisfaction. The attendance was large, the ring features were excellent, the clowns were real clowns, and kept the spectators in a merry mood. The horseback riding, as was every feature that entered the ring, was good.—Trenton State Gazette, May 2d.

The show without doubt is one of the finest that was exhibited in this or any other city.—Newark Daily Register, May 6.

The "PERFECTION," All Porcelain.

WE TAKE pleasure in calling attention of our customers and all interested in sanitary matters to the all porcelain "Perfection," the only square top Hopper, with trap, made. For perfect cleanliness and simplicity of construction we invite comparison with any Closet ever put forward, either home or foreign. It combines, with the utmost simplicity, all the points of a strictly first-class water-closet. The square top will make itself apparent to all users, in doing away with a tray, the wash at all times thoroughly scouring all parts, whereas in the drip tray is cannot help but become foul underneath. It has a seal in Trap of 1½ inches, and the soil pipe vent of 2 inches diameter, as will be seen in the above cut, will prevent all syphoning of Trap. The two bowl openings of 1¼ inches diameter are intended for right or left ventilation, the one not being used to be closed. The large hand hole in front gives free access to all parts of trap.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY
By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE
Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE
Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

DEMOCRATIC.

It is pardonable for Democrats to feel and express pride in their grand old political organization, not at the behest of partisan bigotry, but because of the fact that fidelity to sound party principles has been so gloriously vindicated.

The same principles and measures of equity and government integrity Jefferson, as a patriotic statesman, made Democratic, are to-day practically maintained by his political followers.

After the lapse of nearly one hundred years, the Democratic party lives as vigorous as ever, and fully as able and determined to promote the general public welfare.

Many other parties have from time to time arisen and strove by every possible means, fair and foul, to destroy the Democratic.

They are gone, fallen into decay, buried in the grave of oblivion.

The Democratic, with unbroken energy, survives.

And why?

For the simple reason that it never abandoned Jeffersonian principles. In spite of the bitterest opposition, the most ungenerous misrepresentation, the deepest laid schemes of partisan hostility, the treachery of professed friends, and the malignant hatred of avowed enemies, the party of Democracy stands upon the same platform its noble founder first built.

And there it will continue to stand.

Organized to perpetuate and give practical effect to the ordained liberties of the Constitution,

The Democratic party remains strictly loyal thereto.

To protect and advance the rights and interests of all the people, regardless of birth, creed, class, condition or locality,

Is the purpose of the Democratic party now as it was at the first.

To administer the whole affairs of Government with prudence, economy and honesty, and to make character and ability the foremost essentials for official place of every grade,

Is to day the sincere endeavor of a Democratic President as it was when Thomas Jefferson occupied the chair of Washington.

Forever live Democracy!

General W. S. Rosecrans, of California, has been appointed Register of the Treasury, vice Blanche K. Bruce, colored, resigned.

The bond of Collector Samuel Klotz, of the Fifth Internal Revenue District of New Jersey, was approved at the Treasury Department June 5th, and the President has signed his commission. He is now at liberty to enter his office at any time.

The New Jersey editors will go to Old Point Comfort and Richmond, Va., this year, on their annual excursion, starting June 23d. The price of tickets has been fixed at $20, to be had in this county of Judge Lewis Hyer, editor of the Rahway Democrat.

Thomas J. Cluverius, on trial for the murder of his cousin, Fannie Lillian Madison, whose body was found in the Richmond reservoir in March last, has been convicted of murder in the first degree. The jury was out ten minutes. The prisoner was apparently unmoved by the verdict, which was received with some applause by the spectators.

The Essex County Grand Jury, it is said, have taken up the case of the Newark Savings Institution with a view to enforce Judge Depue's charge as to where the responsibility lies in that case. It is understood that the last Grand Jury failed only by a single vote to investigate the case, and the reason for that failure has never been apparent.

Professor Crudell, a noted Eastern scientist, lays claim to having discovered an antidote for malaria. He advises that a decoction of lemon be made as follows:—Cut up one lemon, peel and all, into thin slices, put it into three glassfuls of water and boil it down to one glassful. Strain the liquid through linen, squeezing thoroughly the remains of boiled lemon, and set it aside to cool. Drink the whole amount when fasting.

The Pennsylvania Legislature has passed a bill prescribing a penalty of $200 upon any minister or Justice of the Peace who shall unite in marriage any minor, and a penalty of $500 upon any minor who shall induce any person to perform the marriage ceremony under false representations. In New Jersey the law authorizes a clergyman to administer an oath to applicants for marriage. If they swear falsely with regard to their age, the minister is not held accountable.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has issued a new edition of its "Summer Excursion Route Book," and it is but fair to say that this book is an advance even upon its predecessors. It is full of the most valuable information to those contemplating trips, including the most convenient routes, the price of fares and hotel accommodations. Accompanying the book, is an exquisite bird's eye view of the railroad system, extending from the ocean to St. Louis, and from Richmond to the great lakes.

The steamboat Plymouth Rock has been purchased by C. W. Schofield, of New York, and Tuesday of last week workmen began to transform her into a floating skating rink. An extra deck 220 feet long and 40 feet broad, will be built above the present upper deck. An awning will shade the new deck, which will be the skating rink. After the alterations are made the Plymouth Rock will run to Newburgh during the day, and in the evening will lie at her pier in the East River as a stationary rink. The Plymouth Rock was built in 1854, and her cost was $600,000. Mr. Schofield paid $35,000 for her.

Steps have been taken to investigate alleged pension frauds in New Jersey. There is a large soldier element in the State and it is believed that extensive frauds have been practiced. Numerous cases have been discovered already where widows of deceased soldiers continued to draw their allowance after they had re-married, and others where relatives and friends concealed the pensioner's death and drew the pension regularly afterwards. The latter are known as "dead men's claims," and there is proof that hundreds and perhaps thousands of such claims were employed for campaign purposes. The investigation will be thorough and there will be some intensely interesting developments.

THE CORY CASE.

The opinion of Justice Dixon, given in the State Supreme Court last week, affirms the judgment of the Somerset Court in the case of the Board of Freeholders against Daniel Cory. The case has been tried twice in the Somerset courts. At the last trial a verdict of $5,088 was given for the county. An appeal was taken, and the case was ably argued at the last term of the Supreme Court—Judge Bartine for the Freeholders and Messrs. J. R. English and A. A. Clark for Mr. Cory. It now remains for Mr. Cory to pay over to the county the amount carried by the verdict, or prolong the litigation by further appeals.—Somerset Messenger.

STATE ASSESSORS' REPORT.

New Jersey's income from the tax imposed on miscellaneous corporations, outside of railroads and canals, will this year amount to about $200,000, an increase over last year of about $5,000. According to the report filed recently by the State Board of Assessors, all corporations are taxed on their capital stock. Fire, marine or accident insurance companies are assessed for $4,341; life insurance companies incorporated in New Jersey, $32,610; oil and pipe line companies, $4,821; other companies, $91,273. Reports from gas, electric light, express, life insurance companies, not incorporated in New Jersey, and parlor and palace car companies are not yet complete, but when made out will swell the aggregate to $200,000. This source of income renders unnecessary the imposition of a State tax.

Emil Darner, the man who filled the Hocking mines with laborers to work at 40 cents a ton, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for two years for illegal voting, and shouts of delight go up from the 10,000 miners of the West who have been cursing his name.

A summary of the Federal patronage in New Jersey shows that there are 744 postmasters, 172 mail messengers, 50 internal employees, 24 custom house men, 42 post office clerks, 71 engaged in the life saving service, 15 judicial and miscellaneous employees, 53 railroad messengers, 229 clerks in Washington departments, 8 employees in diplomatic service, 49 clerks in New York custom house, 18 in other New York offices, 26 in the Brooklyn navy yard, and 56 in other government places. A total of 1,383 Jerseymen employed by the U. S. Government.

Prof. Riley, the entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, says the "seventeen year locusts," or cicadas, are harmless to growing crops and do no injury, except to the twigs of forest and fruit trees. "Wherever young orchards have been planted on land which has been cleared during the last seventeen years the trees are liable to suffer somewhat, but it is probable that the use of kerosene emulsion, sprayed upon the trees, will protect them." Prof. Riley says, the ordinary locust, which is so destructive to growing crops, has jaws which cut, while the seventeen year species, more properly called the cicada, has only a beak, through which he sucks the nourishment.

Rahway's Population.

The assessors of Rahway have finished the enumeration, and the population is within a fraction of 6,800. This is an increase of about six per cent. over the population in 1880. It is said there are at least 200 mechanics absent in consequence of the depression in trade, most of whom will return on the revival of business.—Elizabeth Journal.

To Make Tramps Work.

Under the recent resolution by the Board of Chosen Freeholders the work of enclosing a portion of the jail yard, for a place where tramps can work while serving their terms of imprisonment, has been commenced. A high board fence and sheds are in course of construction, and everything will be in readiness for the experiment in a short time.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Planets in June.

Saturn is evening star until the 18th when, like Neptune, he deserts the western to hold his courts in the eastern sky. On the 18th, at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, Saturn is in conjunction with the sun, passing with his rings and moons behind the sun and reappearing on his western side as a morning star.

Jupiter is the evening star during the month. He is a superb object in the western evening sky of June, the only visible planet and the brightest of the 3,000 stars visible on clear moonless nights.

Uranus is evening star. On the 19th, at 10 o'clock in the evening, he is in quadrature with the sun on the eastern side.

Mercury is morning star till the 27th, and then evening star. On the 27th, at 10 o'clock in the morning, he is in superior conjunction with the sun.

Venus is evening star. She is slowly and surely making her way to visibility and her presence in the glowing west will be warmly welcomed. On the last day of the month sets an hour after the sun and sharp sighted observers may obtain a glimpse of her.

Neptune is morning star. His path lies near that of Mars during the month.

Mars is morning star. At the close of the month, Saturn, Neptune and Mars are morning stars; Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Uranus are evening stars.

The June moon fulls on the 29th, at 10.14 o'clock A. M.

Y. M. C. A. Officers.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 28, 1885.

To the Special Committee on right of way for District Telegraph line, etc., appointed by Common Council:

GENTLEMEN:—The Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Company, composed of prominent business men of New York city and New Jersey, propose to erect a suitable plant with circuit wires, batteries, relays, etc., and to at once open a convenient "Central" office in this city for its business, purposes—crossing the streets over roofs and houses of their subscribers by wires wherever such crossings do not interfere with, and always subject to the private rights of our citizens; and they propose to erect but few if any poles, and are willing to submit to the written consent of the property holders in erecting any such poles. Having sufficient capital to do as we propose, and thoroughly responsible, and experienced, and having erected such plants, with much success and now operating them in other towns, such as Stamford, Conn., New Brunswick, N. J., etc., and our system which is a combination of two simple principles is so thoroughly endorsed by scientific and business men, we feel confident in satisfying the wants of this city as well. Our proposition is to place the new patent return call District Telegraph and fire alarm box (which we control for this city) in the houses of subscribers at a rental of $1 a month (three cents a day) and a charge of twenty-five cents an hour for messenger service, such as doctor, carriage, special wants, etc., except calling for and delivering telegrams, which are free to the subscribers; and also to provide a cheap telegraph system at our "Central Office" to all parts of the country, an exclusive contract having been recently consummated with a prominent telegraph company, by which any subscriber can at his own private residence communicate simply by writing his dispatch and ringing up the call for a messenger (from our patent box) to deliver and transmit at our "Central" so that any subscriber can have his own telegraph office, practically in his own house. First, last, and always, to have every subscriber connected with the fire department as a fire alarm by notifying individual members of the fire department the exact location of the fire the moment (within thirty seconds) of its discovery by a system of "gongs" and electric bells in engine houses and the homes of the firemen; placing a 4-call box and a 6 inch gong in houses of (say 150) active firemen and a 10 inch gong in engine houses and police station. A few moments saved from the time the fire is discovered to the sending in of the alarm may be the saving of much property and a large part of the town; therefore the small annual expense will be a great economy to the city and a protection to taxpayers. We propose to ring all these gongs and bells simultaneously with the fire bell, by districts, etc., so that every part of the city will be connected by a complete system of instantaneous fire alarm; public fire boxes being placed in fifteen or twenty districts, etc. We are having much success in canvassing, having already in a few days, secured nearly one hundred signatures to contracts for one year and expect to get three hundred in the city; therefore the company do most earnestly request a favorable consideration of the petition from your Honorable Body subject to proper regulations and requirements mutual to all parties. All this system to be in operation within three months from June 1st.

Most Respectfully,
W. H. PAGE,
General Manager for the Co.

Also the following report and recommendations:

REPORT OF SPECIAL COM ON WIRES, ETC.

Your Committee to whom were referred the various petitions for the right of way for electric wires in the city of Plainfield would make the following report, and ask that it may be fully discussed by all present. On the petition of Mr. W. H. Page, General Manager for the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Co.,

Whereas, the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Co., agree:

1st. To place their ten (10) call box (with a return call) in private houses of their subscribers, or at their places of business, at a rental of $1 per month, and to charge at the rate of twenty-five cents per hour, fifteen cents per half hour, (no charge less than ten cents); for all actual messenger service, except in the case of the collection of telegrams which shall be free of charge.

2nd. To place a six-inch gong and a four-call box in the houses of at least one hundred and fifty (150) of the active firemen, a ten-inch gong in each engine hose, and truck house and the police station, and an apparatus to strike the alarm on the Fire-Bell, and at least fifteen (15) public fire alarm boxes in different parts of the City, under the advice of some authorized City officer, and to connect these all with their Central Office, and to ring these gongs and bells simultaneously with the fire-bell by districts, whenever an alarm of fire is received at the Central Office.

3rd. To have their plant in working order on or before the first of September, 1885. Therefore be it resolved,

1st. That the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Company be granted the privilege of running their wires along and across the streets of the City of Plainfield at a height of not less than twenty-five (25) feet above the level of the curb, where this can be done without the erection of poles.

2nd. That the said Company may petition the Common Council for permission to erect poles specifying the exact location of the desired pole or poles, and presenting with such petition the written consent of the property owners abutting on said location on each side of the street, the Common Council to grant or refuse such privilege as they may see fit.

3rd. That permission be granted to the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Company to allow the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Company the use of their poles which may be already erected.

4. That this privilege is only for the stringing of wire for use in the District Telegraph and Fire Alarm service in this City and is not to be construed as an exclusive franchise, the Council reserving the right to grant the same privilege to others if desired.

On the petition of Mr. Chas. Wann for the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Co., in the interest of the Plainfield Electric Light Company, Whereas, Mr. Wann has received orders from the Hotel Netherwood and from several other parties for his Electric Light: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That Mr. Wann be granted the privilege of stringing two (2) wires for the purpose of conveying electricity for electric lighting along the poles of the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Company (having first obtained their permission) which are already erected on the following streets and avenues, viz: Somerset-st., Front-st., from Peace to Grove-sts., Park-ave., from Front-st., to North-ave., North-ave., from Park-ave., to Peace-st., and also to the Hotel Netherwood. Provided always, that this privilege is granted with the express understanding that if at any time a system of underground wires are laid in the City of Plainfield, Mr. Wann by the act of accepting of the privilege hereby granted and availing himself of said privilege, does agree to rent wires of the parties to whom the underground privilege may have been granted, provided, he can do so at as reasonable a rental as other responsible parties are accustomed to charge for a like privilege, or to forfeit the privilege herein granted.

Resolved, That the Common Council reserve the right to grant a similar privilege to that herein granted to any other parties if they so desire.

C. M. GODDARD, } Special
ROBT. L. LIVINGSTON, } Com.

The committee was authorized to make a contract with the Plainfield District Telegraph Co., according to the terms of the report, reserving the right for the Council to revoke said franchise (?) after a year from September 1st, 1885, upon three months' notice to the Company. All present voting aye.

The committee was also authorized to make a like contract with Chas. Wann, reserving the same privilege of revocation by the Council, and in accordance with other restrictions embodied in the report. All present voting aye.

Mr. Wann who was present asked to reserve the right to discontinue the light in the event of underground wires being laid and proving too costly or impracticable.

Mr. Whilton offered as a amendment, that before the current of electricity be turned on, Mr. Wann be required to furnish a certificate from an expert to the effect that the wires are properly and safely introduced into the different buildings. Not seconded.

Mr. Marsh offered as an amendment that the wires introduced be insulated in the most approved manner. Carried.

The committees on Rooms, Alms, Printing and Streets reported as correct claims in hand. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The License Com. reported its approval of the application of C. Hoagland. Granted.

The Finance Com. recommended that the Assessor be paid $500 as his salary for 1885 in lieu of fees. Adopted.

The Lamps Com. reported its intention to recommend at the July meeting that as the Telephone Co. had violated its agreement by taking telephones out of certain fire apparatus houses, that its franchise be suspended in so far that the Company be not allowed to erect any more poles or stretch any more wires until the phones be replaced.

Mr. Marsh moved that until the meeting of July no more wires shall be strung unless the phones that were removed be put back. Seconded by Mr. Livingston but subsequently withdrawn.

Mr. Marsh moved that the Telephone Co. be directed to restore the telephone to the house of Zephyr H. & L. Co., and connect it with the central office, before the meeting of the Council in July. Carried.

The Laws Com. offered for adoption an ordinance in relation to the laying of a flag sidewalk on LaGrande avenue. Read as required and ordered engrossed and advertised.

On motion the Fire Board was granted permission to use one of the Committee rooms during the month of June.

The Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulating of scavengers, was read the third time and adopted.

The Aud. Com. reported as correct claims in hand. Warrants ordered drawn.

The Council then adjourned.

The result of the number of school children in District No. 10, taken in May last, shows total number between five and eighteen years of age, 533; under five years, 158; total number of children under eighteen, 691; number not vaccinated of school age, 61; number not vaccinated under five years of age, 28; number of children attending private schools, 50.

The marriage of Miss Jennie Pierson to Mr. Lindley Belknap occurred on Thursday, June 4th, at the residence of the bride's mother on Broad street. The groom was for several years a resident of our town, but for the past year has resided at Jamaica, L. I. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The Rev. Henry Neill, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony. After the wedding supper the bride and groom left on the 6.43 p. m. train upon their wedding tour.

The annual Children's Day of the Westfield M. E. church Sunday school will occur on next Sunday, June 14th. The programme is a very interesting one. There will be services in the morning at 10 30, consisting of singing of hymns by the school and congregation, floral exercises by seven little girls of the school, texts and commandments by the school, and an address by the pastor. In the afternoon at 2.30 singing and recitations by a number of scholars of the school, addresses by Prof. Jas. Strong, S. T. D. L. L. D., of Drew Theological Seminary, and the pastor, and basket collection, in aid of the fund for the education of young men for the ministry. In the evening Prof. Strong, one of the revising company, will deliver an address on "The Revision of the Old Testament."

On Saturday morning last at about 4 30 o'clock a young woman came to the depot and enquired of the night operator if she could telegraph to Philadelphia. On being told she could she said she had no money, but wanted to send word to her mother. She acted rather strangely and said she had slept in a gentleman's hammock on the piazza a little ways out of town, which upon investigation proved to be true. It was at the residence of Mr. Morehouse, on Clark street, about a mile from the village. He said she came to his house about 10 o'clock, Friday night, and asked the privilege of sleeping in the hammock, which was granted. About 6 o'clock on Saturday morning the station agent called officer Marsh's attention to her, who in conversation found that she was partially insane. She gave him the address of her mother in Philadelphia, who was telegraphed to. An answer was received asking to take care of her and would send some one on first train. About 1 p. m. her two brothers arrived and took her home. They had been looking for her for several days. Her name was E. Spencer Miller, and belonged to a highly respectable and wealthy family of Philadelphia. She had been confined for some time in a private asylum at Philadelphia. In her wanderings during the week she said she had been to Boston and other places.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to pass the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 8, 1885.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on north side of La Grand avenue, between the east side of Washington street and west side of Franklin place.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. The owners of lands fronting on the north side of La Grand avenue, between the east side of Washington street and the westerly side of Franklin place, are hereby required to flag the sidewalks in front of said lands, for a width of at least four feet, except where they are now already flagged with stone flagging. Said flagging shall consist of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on surface, and shall be properly laid in one course under the direction of the street commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than two inches thick in the thinnest part.

Sec. 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within twenty days after this ordinance shall become a law, then the street committee are authorized and directed to cause said flagging to be laid, and the costs and expenses thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the city charter.

To go on record—the fact that the temperature on Monday last, at 3.30 p. m., was 80 degrees, and on Tuesday at 6.30 a. m., 53 degrees.

THE County Clerk's office at Elizabeth has contributed $83 towards the Bartholdi Pedestal. County Clerk James S. Vosseller headed the list with $25.

A LITTLE cold cream is good for chapped lips. That the reason the girls are always leading the footsteps of their beaux to the confectionery saloon.

MR. CHARLES POPE, postmaster of Dunellen, died Sunday night last, of congestion of the brain. He was a brother of Postmaster E. R. Pope, of this city.

PRESIDENT FRENCH, of the Reform Club, and Judge Harper, by invitation, visited Bound Brook Sunday afternoon and addressed a large meeting on the question of Temperance.

MR. JOHN WILSON'S stone crusher, at the "Notch," North Plainfield, is now run by steam as well as water power, a suitable boiler and engine having been erected at that point.

HANCHETT & SPARKS have succeeded Bowers & Co. in the grocery business, on the corner of Broadway and Fifth streets. They are gentlemen well worth the patronage of our citizens.

YOUNG man, now is the time to keep a sharp lookout for strawberry and ice cream festivals, for if you don't they will capture every penny that you've got and all that you can borrow of your friends.

TRENTON Emporium: "The Hessian fly is what is troubling the Western farmers these times. A little over a hundred years ago they flewed around this section but George caught them on the first base."

YOUNG ladies needing graduating outfits will find a nice assortment of appropriate dress fabrics, white kid gloves, handsome laces, novelties in pretty neck ruchings and other necessary articles at Edsall's.

A POOR street parade and a worse band that were parts of O'Brien's show, last Saturday, did not promise much, but the exhibition under the tent was more and better for the money than many previous circuses that have visited us.

OF course Plainfield will have no 4th of July celebration (?). It looks like it now. We hope we are mistaken. Wha's the first man to move in the matter? Cleveland is President and the corn and other products still continue to grow.

IT is a fact susceptible of proof that ninety-nine out of every hundred men who go to newspaper offices to kill the editors are themselves killed. Irate patrons seem to forget how much practice the editors have on spring poets.

DON'T let the good work stop until all of Plainfield's streets are macadamized. Good streets and good government will make Plainfield what it is yet destined to be, the leading city in the State for health, beauty and place of residence.

AT "The Golden Horse Shoe," No. 5 East Second street, there is to be a grand opening, next Monday, that promises to be a big affair. There will be a bountiful lunch offered free all day, and music by the Casino Band from 8 to 12 o'clock in the evening.

THE young fruit trees, pears principally, have suffered severely this Spring from the ravages of the sparrow. This little bird, introduced as insectiverous, has become pestiferous. But there is no law now against the wholesale slaughter of the miniature Johnny Bull.

THE Mount Holly Herald is a good paper, a first-rate paper, a Democratic paper, but—it is most execrably printed—if we may judge from the copies of the paper received weekly at this office. We have before spoken about this matter, Bro. Willis, and we have all the waste paper we want.

WE state by request that "it will be well for the private watchmen employed in certain localities in our city to be on the lookout, or the nightly thefts of plants from yards will render the employment of such watchmen a seemingly unnecessary expense, and their services may be dispensed with."

THE work of laying pipes from the mountain side to the residence of John Taylor Johnston, Esq., a distance of over a mile, for the purpose of introducing pure spring water into that gentleman's residence, is now being performed by Mr. John Wilson, who well understands that kind of business.

THE following is what Runkle, of the Hunterdon Democrat thinks about it:—"The bass season is now open, and no doubt the Recording Angel weeps over the many lies that are beginning to circulate about the 'biggest bass I ever saw that broke the line and got away just as I was going to pull him out of the water!'"

THERE are only two classes of men whose chief ends run in the direction of denouncing newspapers. One is composed of rogues who fear exposures, and the other of little men who misfit themselves into big places. Great and good men always look upon the press as a friend and co-laborer in promoting the public welfare.

MESSRS. Carney Bros. have secured the contract for the entire system of water works and sanitary plumbing to be placed in the new residence now building on 7th street for Mr. Charles Potter, Jr. This contract is the most extensive of its kind in the city, but the Carney Bros. are thoroughly competent to do the work in the very best manner.

MANY of our residents were startled and alarmed early Monday morning last by the terrific thunder and sharp lightning which accompanied the needed and refreshing showers at that time. Those whose dwellings were protected by lightning rods, of course felt easier. Now is the time to have buildings properly rodded. Mr. John Bishop, of Bound Brook, is a proper person to perform such work.

Now it's the same question over the brook. Shall the Council of the Borough be license or no license.

NETHERWOOD'S "long felt want"—repairs on its roadways—is being accomplished by the Street Commissioner.

THE Classes of '83 and '84 will give a reception to the class of '85 at the High School, Thursday evening, June 25th, from ten to one o'clock.

CHIEF JENNINGS who has had but one fire since his election, was out of town Tuesday, so the Department was called out by a burning heap of brush. Who started the alarm?

PROF. S. D. FRAZEE, Plainfield's well-known musician, is ready at short notice to furnish first-class music for festivals, picnics, parties, etc. Those engaging the services of the Prof. will not be disappointed in their music.

DON'T forget the strawberry and ice cream festival, Thursday and Friday nights, June 11th and 12th, in the M. E. church. A fine orchestra from New York will supply music both evenings. Admission only 15 cents. Open also Friday afternoon.

THE Plainfield Bicycle Club is in its new rooms on North avenue, and very pleasant and convenient rooms they are. Runs will start therefrom every Saturday afternoon hereafter—weather and roads permitting—without further notice, at five o'clock.

THE only damage in particular of which we learn that proceded last Sunday night's storm, was the fainting of two young lady attendants of the First Presbyterian church at Cranford. Considering their youth, the bravery they displayed was remarkable, and we "must say they done splendid."

THE brick-work of the Crescent rink is all completed with the exception of the arch way over the entrance and the fancy chimney. The carpenters under command of Colonel Johnson and Captain Shepherd are pushing their work rapidly. The fifty ton roof will probably be raised in place by the first of July.

SOME members of the Fire Board met in regular meeting at the Court room, Tuesday evening, and adjourned for want of a quorum. Other members met at Alert's house and took the same action. Commissioner Knowland, at the same time, was on his way to Chicago. Consequently, another meeting of the Board is called for this (Thursday) evening.

A. POPE, successor to the old established house of M. Vermeule, No. 5 West Front street, opposite Somerset, has an elegant line of Summer styles of straw hats, derbys, and other goods suitable for the public, such as hand satchels, trunks, umbrellas, etc. Mr. Pope is fast gaining a reputation for knowledge of what the public wants in his line of business, furnished at low prices.

MR. J. A. CLARK and wife, daughter of L. L. Compton, Esq., had a narrow escape from being suffocated by smoke on the occasion of a fire originating in their premises at Asbury Park last week. Mr. Lewis Compton, a brother of Mrs. Clark, was awakened in the night by smoke and flame, and it was with great difficulty the family were aroused and their escape made from the burning building in scant attire. Mr. Clark lost all his household goods and effects, on which there was no insurance.

PARTIES visiting Lake Hopatcong the present season should not fail to visit the head of the Lake, where is situate the town of Woodport. There will be found a well-kept hotel under the management of Mr. Thomas Bright, who for thirty-two years has been the Superintendent of the Hurd iron mines in that vicinity and is always ready to extend courtesies and show the depths of the mine to visitors. For excellent accommodations and kind attention we commend visitors at this point to landlord Bright and family.

Bound Brook's Population.

According to the Bound Brook Chronicle, Assessor Potter has completed taking the census of Bound Brook. The inhabitants number 1,011, as against 934 in 1880. There are 180 dwelling houses and 217 families.

Served Him Right.

John Mitchell, who was indicted by the last Grand Jury for atrocious assault, with intent to kill Deputy Warden Philip Breen in the Union county jail, was last week sentenced to six years in State Prison.

School Children in the City.

The completion of the school census by Assessor Hubbard shows the number of children in the city between the ages of 5 and 18, to be:

1st ward	554
2d ward	566
3d ward	486
4th ward	736
Total	2,394

The Netherwood's Electric Lights.

Passengers on the P. & R. R., in a few weeks will view with admiration and curiosity, after nightfall, the Hotel Netherwood in a blaze of electric illumination. Mr. Woodruff intends to have ten arc lights placed within and without the hotel, as a beginning. There will be three along the front piazza and one each in the entrance hall, courtway, dining-room, parlor, ladies' billiard room, gentlemen's smoking room, and on the top of the building.

Does Advertising Pay?

The proprietor of a household article recently informed the publishers of a well-known monthly magazine of large circulation that the insertion of a small advertisement twice in pages of their magazine had brought in more than eight thousand inquiries. And yet some people are still wondering if newspaper and magazine advertising pays! The article mentioned is the "Gate City Water Filter." An advertisement, occupying thirty lines which appeared in the December, 1884, and May 1885, numbers of the Century, with the above result.

A Good Programme.

The entertainment given for the benefit of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen, Thursday evening of last week at that place, was not largely attended. The programme, however, was particularly pleasing. Mme. Alberti's readings were unusually satisfactory, and the emotive gestures by six of her pupils lead by Miss Tyler and Miss Manning, were perfect. The vocal music by Messrs. E. Runyon, S. Mitchel, C. Tyler and B. Barnes—the latter a new comer, and a valuable addition to musical circles—was generally good. Mr. Tyler played the accompaniments in a generally satisfactory manner.

Saved By a Crazy Quilt.

To Councilman Goddard's presence of mind and courage, is to-day owing the life of a little daughter of Mr. Hawley, of First place. Saturday evening last the little girl, who has been visiting at Mr. Goddard's residence on Third place, set fire to her clothes while lighting a match. When Mr. Goddard attracted by her cries first saw her, she stood in the hallway almost entirely wrapped in flames. There was nothing at hand of use, but as the child turned and ran into an adjoining room, Mr. Goddard followed and seized a "crazy" quilt that lay upon the bed. First throwing this over the unfortunate victim's head and thus stifling the flames about her neck and shoulders, Mr. Goddard then forced her down upon the floor and laying across her body succeeded in smothering the fire. The child's life was thus saved when another moment's delay would have been fatal. Mr. Goddard's clothing, also, was considerably burned.

Let The Good Work Go On.

By the recent cleaning of Park avenue from Front street to the railroad great benefit was accomplished, and the crushed stone subsequently spread upon the surface will in time result in forming a level and solid roadway. Now the Street Commissioner should scrape up and cart away the three or four inches of loose dirt that covers Front street West of Somerset and East of Park avenue.

The "Bumble Bee."

Boys are often greatly annoyed at "bumble bees," and wonder whatever in the world they are made for; but an ocean steamer recently took out to New Zealand, as freight, a consignment of them. At present clover does not "seed" in that country, though it grows readily, because there are no bumble bees to fertilize the flowers. The importer hopes that the bumble bees will save him £5,000 a year in clover seed.

Fireman's Relief Association.

The annual meeting of the Fireman's Relief Association was held Wednesday evening, and the following officers elected:

President—T. O. Doane.
Vice President—W. R. Cock.
Treasurer—J. A. Hubbard.
Secretary—E. Mosher.
Relief Committee—B. A. Mumford, William Harding, James Conneely.
Finance Committee—A. L. Carpey, W. R. Cock, John Shepherd.

The full report of receipts, disbursements, etc., for the past year, we will publish in our next issue.

North Plainfield Borough.

The advocates of a borough government had it pretty much their own way at the election, last Friday. The workers against the system were few and without the "sinews of war" necessary to secure victory. Yet, the majority for incorporation was only 29. As the Township Assessor is almost through his assessing for this year, many think there should be no change made until next. But the projectors of the system will probably succeed in calling an election for borough officers the last of the present month or the first of July. The total vote was:—For incorporation, 248; against, 219.

Lost His Right Hand.

James T. Ferry of Bound Brook was so unfortunate as to lose all four fingers of his right hand at Spicer & Hubbard's mills, Thursday morning. He was tightening a nut on the planer, and thoughtlessly turned his hand that grasped the wrench under the rapidly revolving knives. Dr. Tomlinson and Endicott were at once summoned to dress the wound. The unfortunate man had worked at the trade for twenty-five years, and this was his first accident. Messrs. Spicer & Hubbard desired to have him taken to Muhlenberg Hospital where he would have the best of care and comfort, but he expressed a wish to go home.

The Boys' Imagination.

Wednesday evening last two young lads reported to Justice Mattison in North Plainfield that while fishing along Stony Brook, near Stines' bridge that evening, they heard a splash in the water and the cries of a person near them. Returning to the spot they saw bubbles and muddy water rising to the surface of a deep pool. Overseer of Poor, D. I. Smalley, Constable Peter V. Weaver and a number of other citizens proceeded to the spot later in the evening and dragged the waters with a grappling iron but found no body. On the bank at the spot where the boys claim to have heard the cries was found a fish line and an old carving knife, with tracks of a man's shoes leading to the water.

Singular Casualty.

Some two weeks since, Mamie, daughter of John Whitlock, Esq., of North Plainfield, while on a visit to her grandfather, at Harlingen, N. J., was thrown from a buggy in which she was riding with a gentleman friend, in consequence of the horse he was driving upsetting the vehicle and running away. Her escort was also severely bruised by the mishap. Miss Whitlock has since been confined to her bed in consequence of injuries received at the time. Last week, the grandfather, while hitching the same animal to a carriage, was thrown to the ground by the beast in his endeavors to run away, and was so severely injured by the breaking of two ribs in two different places as to make his recovery from the accident slow and doubtful.

As It Used to Be.

The Somerset Unionist-Gazette thus gives truthful remarks relative to the bad roads in its section. The same state of affairs used to exist with us, but since macadamized road beds have been substituted our people have not the same cause of complaint as our Somerset county friend has. The remedy is—macadamize:—"The reason we have such abominable roads in the winter and spring, and poor enough ones in the summer, is because of the continuation of the witlessness of our progenitors on this subject. As our fathers in June turned up the sods and soil from the gutters to form a high, break-neck road-bed, and then rested from their labors till the next spring floods, so we, the sons, follow their course. Taxes are "worked out," the road is "made," and the carriages go thumping and the inmates bumping along, as if things were lovely and roads jolly, for the rest of the year."

Excursions.

The members of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, and the Chautauqua Town and Country Club, are to have a basket picnic at "Houghton Farm," near Mountainville, N. Y., Tuesday, June 23rd.

Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., are to have an excursion to Oriental Grove, Long Island Sound, Wednesday, July 8th.

The Methodist Episcopal Sunday School will pay the first visit of the season to Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Asbury Park, Friday, July 17th.

St. Mary's R. C. church and the T. A. B. Society are to sail for Hudson Grove, Long Island Sound, Thursday, July 23rd.

Messrs. Laing and Nelson will conduct an excursion to Long Branch, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park and return, Wednesday, August 12th.

The members of No. 2 Engine Co., and their friends intend to have the best time of all in a sail up the Hudson to Oscawanna Island, Wednesday, August 19th.

Reform Club.

Reform Hall was crowded on Sunday evening last to hear an address by the Rev. Dr. Carroll, of Minnesota. His subject was "The Young Man in Chains," and for over an hour he held the large audience spell-bound listeners to one of the most able and eloquent orations that ever fell from mortal lips. Doctor Carroll on his way South, being the guest of our fellow-citizen Captain Ostrom, kindly consented to remain over Sunday for the purpose of addressing the Plainfield Reform Club and assembled citizens. Nobly did he fulfill his mission and to the edification of every one who heard him. President French presided with his customary ability, and on the platform with him were seated Mr. Gibbs, President of the Manhattan Temperance Association of New York, Captain Ostrom, ex-Mayor Maxson, Judge Harper, Col. Julian Scott, Messrs. J. H. Cuthbert, M. M. Thorn, R. H. Manning, Jacob Voehl, H. N. Spencer, and a delegation of gentlemen from the Bound Brook Reform Club. A full choir under the leadership of Dr. Utter discoursed sweet music.

A Former Plainfielder Caned.

On Thursday evening of last week a pleasant birthday surprise party was tendered Mr. Reuben A. Gibbs, at his home, No. 11 Spring street, Newark, N. J., by a few friends of the Eighth avenue M. E church of that city. The Rev. Mr. E. Blakeslee in a neat speech presented Mr. Gibbs with a handsome gold-headed cane. Mr. Gibbs also received many other presents during the day and evening. He entertained his guests in a pleasant manner.—Newark Sunday Call.

Sunday School Anniversary.

The fifty-ninth anniversary of Willow Grove Sunday school was celebrated last Sunday afternoon in the grove, opposite the school house, at Fanwood. The day being fine, there was a large attendance of scholars, teachers and many friends. The singing was rendered with much spirit, and in the open air gave a pleasing effect. Rev. Mr. Cadwell, of Westfield, opened the meeting by prayer; Rev. Mr. Ray, of the Presbyterian church, Rahway, made a few remarks on sin, with an object lesson, and Rev. Joseph Graves and Rev. Mr. Smith, of Westfield, spoke in their usual happy manner. Mr. and Mrs. Radley, who were scholars when the school was organized, fifty-nine years ago, were present at this anniversary. The school has seventy-six names on its roll and is in a flourishing condition. An Estey organ, costing $125, has been purchased within the year. Money has been sent for missionary purposes, and there is a balance of $73 in the treasury. Mr. King, the present superintendent, has proved himself a faithful leader. The many friends of the school wish it continued success.

Princeton Commencement.

The commencement exercises at Princeton, begin on Saturday, the 13th, as follows:

The District Telegraph Service.

The terms of contract insisted upon by the Council in granting the petition of the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm Company, are most advantageous to the city, and the public should congratulate itself upon getting so much for nothing. In consideration of the privilege granted, the Company is required to place and connect 150 gongs in the residences of active members of the Fire Department, put an alarm in each fire apparatus house and to ring all these and the district signal on the tower bell, from the Central office upon being notified of a fire. All of this service is to be furnished without charge for a year from the first of September—the Council reserving the right at the end of the year to revoke all privileges granted, by giving the Company three month's notice of such intention.

The field having been and still being open to competition, has resulted in the City's obtaining all these concessions. The possibility of the Plainfield District Messenger Company getting a foot-hold, seems to have impelled Mr. Page to agree to anything. Mr. Wann, the representative of the latter company, having unfortunately been unable to combine his service with the cheap telegraphic system of the Bankers and Merchants Telegraph Company, withdrew the project for a time, and successfully devoted his entire effort to the introduction of the electric lights that will illuminate our business streets in a few weeks.

We hope that Mr. Page will be able to carry out all the provisions demanded by the city, as we learn that Mr. Wann claims to have a call-box equal to all requirements, and the former may be called upon to compete with gentlemen largely interested in the latest improvements for Messenger Service, at a rental 50 per cent lower. From all of which, the public will reap the benefit.

Mr. Page, however, insists that he does not agree to give free fire service to the city, but simply to leave it in a year, at least, on trial, and take his chances of pay for the same from the Fire Board. As he puts it in for nothing, will never get a cent for the service, and forfeits his franchise (?) if he takes the fire alarm boxes out, he seems to be correct in his denial. He does not "agree" to furnish the service free, but does furnish it free because he can't help himself.

Personalia.

Having been detained for a month by slight illness, Mr. G. Bachman sailed for Europe, Wednesday.

Arthur P. Miller has been admitted to the New Jersey bar as an attorney-at-law and solicitor-in-chancery.

Mr. Condit of the well-known New York firm of Acker, Merrill & Condit, with Mrs. and Miss Condit, are at the Hotel Netherwood.

Councilman Dumont has gone West for two weeks to attend a meeting of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul R. R., of which he is a Vice President.

Mr. Millard R. Jones of New York city, who instigated roller skating in Plainfield, and under whose management the Casino knew its best days, was in this city Wednesday.

We were pleased to see the smiling countenance of friend Joe Hoffman, of Lebanon, N. J., on Tuesday last. Joseph is a brother of ex-Assemblyman S. C. Hoffman, of Somerset county.

Congressman Robert S. Green was one of the guests at the farewell banquet tendered to Hon. S. S. Cox, the newly appointed Minister to Turkey, at the Hoffman House, New York, last Tuesday evening.

The remains of Coleman H. Dow were received at the depot for interment by Ford & Stiles on Monday last. Deceased was a son of E. Dean Dow, formerly principal of the Young Ladies' Seminary, in this city. He died at Nashville, Tenn.

"Jere" Moore, the popular foreman of Gazelle engine company No. 1, has taken unto himself a partner for life in the person of Maggie Scott, and his numerous friends gave him a "benefit" on his return from his wedding trip last Monday night. Our congratulations are extended the happy couple.

Mr. Robert Williams, of this city, is lying dangerously ill at his residence on New street. Mr. Williams is one of our oldest and best known citizens. He has worked in all the flouring mills in this vicinity, and for a number of years was in the employ of Mr. P. M. French. He is in his 76th year.

Death of John Steiner.

The death, caused by pneumonia, of Mr. John N. Steiner, which occurred on Tuesday last, was sudden and unexpected to his many friends. Mr. Steiner was born in Germany, in 1833. At the age of sixteen he embarked to this country, went out West, but returned and came to Plainfield about thirty years ago, and has continued to reside here since. By his strict integrity and close attention to business, he worked his way up from a poor lad to become a well-known business man in our community. When the township of North Plainfield was first formed, he was elected Commissioner to the Court of Appeals, and was time and again asked to fill the position of Town Committeeman and other important positions of honor, but always declined serving. He was elected to the position of Fire Commissioner of the Plainfield Fire Department and declined re-election after a faithful discharge of three years' duties. He was also an exempt member of Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co., No 1. Mr. Steiner was a member of the German-Dutch Reformed church, and has been a member of the Consistory for many years and served as a Trustee. He was a faithful and worthy member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, Free and Accepted Masons, Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, and St. John's Commandery, No. 9 and at the time of his death, was the honest and trusty Treasurer of Jerusalem Chapter, which position he held over ten years. It can be said of him, that he was a true friend, a useful citizen, a loyal protector, and one who had the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. The funeral services will take place at his late residence, on Somerset street, opposite Grand View avenue, North Plainfield, on Friday, at 1:30 p. m., which will be conducted in German by the Rev. Mr. Koehl, and a funeral sermon at half past two at the M. E. church, by the Rev. Dr. Tuttle, after which Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, will take charge of the remains, and accompany them to the Presbyterian Cemetery, North Plainfield, where the last honors and masonic rites will be performed by Worshipful Master John Ulrich, of the lodge.

At Miss Kenyon's Seminary.

The friends of the wise and otherwise owlettes of the Ulula Society of 1884-85, crowded the assembly room of the Young Ladies' Seminary on Seventh street, last Saturday evening—in fact, packed themselves in so closely that they could not escape when the French play was given. The audience, as always, included our best people, while the society of young birds in gay plumage included, Miss Frances Waring, President; Miss Estelle Place, Vice President; Miss Laura Van Derbeck, Secretary; Miss Mary Brunson, Treasurer; and the Misses Gussie Murray, Josie Drake, Minnie Murray, Lilian Dorman, Nellie Lithgow, Edith Clark, Alice Fairbairn, May Tracy, Hattie Gardiner, Minnie Wilson, May McLain, Belle Duryea, Elvira Kenyon, Bertha Martens, Mabel Potter, Lilian Erskine, Nellie Pidcock, Helen Thompson, Lizzie Thompson, Bessie Smith and Grace Lewis.

After the calling of the roll, Miss Drake, exquisitely dressed, delivered the salutatory—verbally extending "The Hand" of welcome to various creatures of history, more or less dead. Miss Brunson recited "The Switzer's Wife" with a true appreciation of the sense and sentiment of the composition. Miss Gardiner rendered an instrumental selection from musical classics, in anything but an instrumental manner. Miss Clark's violin solo was expressed with sweetness, and Miss Smith's recitation of "The White Ship" was freighted with appropriate enunciation. After Miss Waring's very complete valedictory, entitled "Incompleteness," the society's song, by Miss Clark, was sung by the entire caste.

But the above contributions of individual talent, were only a part of the evening's entertainment. THE OWLETTE, a society paper edited by Miss Edith Clark and Miss Hattie Gardiner, was read by Miss Lewis and Miss Place. It contained an amateur editorial on "The Literary and Social Organizations of Plainfield," by Miss McLain; a tender poem on "The Dandelion" from Miss Potter; a small collection of big jokes by the Misses Murray and Miss Dorman; a "Reminiscence" of Miss Martens; Miss Clark's poetical idea of "a soft air from the South;" Miss Van Derbeck's biography of "The Murrays of Murray Hill;" a number of advertisements by the Misses Wilson and Duryea, and Miss Thompson's ode to "The Owls." All of this showed remarkable ability, and in spite of youth and sex, no programme so varied and demanding talent in so many ways, was ever more satisfactorily carried out. And all of this is very creditable to the teachers that developed the minds within, and to Miss Titsworth who trained the manners without.

Of the French play that occupied too much of the evening's time, we are too full for utterance. Some of the audience knew what was coming and succeeded in escaping into the corridors, where even the members of the society had sought a refuge. Those who were so unfortunate as to remain talked good English to one another, while all kinds of French was talked one to another by the Misses Marie Depew, Kenyon, Van Derbeck, Potter, Tracy, Wilson, Erskine and Potts. It may be by reason of our perfect mis-understanding of French in its primitive purity, but it seemed to be less of a regular play and more of an irregular debate as to why the Seminary should be called "The Chestnuts" when the title is rather a good joke than an old one.

THE EXERCISES OF COMMENCEMENT.

Tuesday evening at eight o'clock the same rooms were again crowded with dudes and other gentlemen in full dress, and the young and still-young belles of the city and borough clothed in all the delicacies of the season. The work of the three graduates consisted, first, of an essay by Miss Gussie Murray, that shed much light on the subject of "Light" and showed how bright was Miss Murray. Then Miss Van Derbeck gave a review of the "Historical Associations of New Jersey"—not neglecting to mention Miss Quito—and of the "Literary Associations" which included the authoress of "Common Sense in the Household" and "other works of fiction." Miss Dorman's valediction was in sweet, sweet verse, and both effective and effecting. It is sad enough to witness and hear the farewells in prose of school girls that part forever to live in the same neighborhood the rest of their lives. But such grevious ceremony accompanied by the soft rythm of poetry, is pathetic beyond description.

The full programme of the evening began and ended in instrumental music. Miss Van Derbeck and Miss Martens played a duet of Schumann's very acceptably, and the former also favored the audience with a nocturne of Chopin's. Miss Sandford gave Mendelssohn's "Andante and Variations in E flat," with great skill. Prof. Venino, however, charmed all with his touch, expression and skill as displayed by his rendition of Beethoven's "Moonlight" sonata. The Rev. William R. Richards, after the few words that are necessary because expected, and the advice that is necessary because customary, presented the diplomas. The gifts of flowers were profuse on both occasions, and only rivalled in loveliness by the young ladies on whom they were deservingly "showered."

The usual reception by Miss Kenyon in the parlors of the Seminary, and dancing accompanied by fine music and refreshments, followed. Consequently it was Wednesday morning before the last of the satisfied guests started homeward.

For "The Constitutionalist."

A RIDDLE.

What is this that we daily see
Scattered about profusedly?
It both substance and it doth bear
Area 'bout three inches square;
A strange device on either side
Of "come" and "go," nor hide abide;
The author claims, perhaps 'tis so!
That 'tis "Pro Bono Publico."
Like the manna in times of old
On last of week comes double fold,
Unlike the manna it doth lay
Before our eyes day after day,
Our constant gaze it tends to tax
Like "S. T. Eighteen-Sixty-X."
Now, unto you I this devolve
And hope you will the riddle solve,
If you fail and say I can't sir,
Then—"Go to Peck's" for the answer.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The black bass season opened on June first, but as yet no large catches have been reported. The season is backward, and the bass are yet on their spawning beds.

A gentleman from New York, on June 4th, caught a weak fish weighing ten pounds, opposite the Sewaren House, Woodbridge Beach. The fish was caught with soft crab bait. The Sewaren House will be open for guests in a few days, conducted by the popular proprietor, John P. Turner.

Seth Green, the great authority on fishing, says "when trolling with flies for bass the boat should be rowed one-third slower than for any other kind of fish. The flies should be allowed to sink within three or four feet of the bottom and when you have a strike take plenty of time to reel him in, as there are ten fish lost by reeling them too fast where one is lost by slow reeling. When casting for black bass in a river with a current, cast abreast the current and let the flies swing round with the current without drawing them in only just enough to keep the line taut, and, having swung around, recover your line slowly and cast again. Great care should be taken to have the tackle as fine as possible. It is better to lose some fish than to have coarse tackle. A fish must be thoroughly deceived to be caught. It is not luck that fills your basket, it is plain common sense. When fishing from a boat the bait should be thrown so far from you that there is not a possibility of the fish seeing you, while the tackle should be so fine that they will not see anything but the bait. Follow the precautions," adds Mr. Green, "and you will fill your basket, and luck will not have anything to do with it."

WHAT PARENTS FEAR.

Many persons—especially parents—object to many quack nostrums as likely to engender or encourage a love for strong drink. They are right. Better die of disease than drunkenness. The use of Parker's Tonic does not involve this danger. It not only builds up the system, curing all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it stimulates without intoxicating and absolutely cures the appetite for liquor.

THAT DIRTY DANDRUFF.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It soils the clothing continually, and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the falling hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, and elegant dressing. Very economical; as only a small occasional application keeps the hair in perfect condition.

CHAPTER CXXXIX.

An Act for the support and improvement of the New Jersey School for Deaf Mutes.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the trustees of the New Jersey School for Deaf Mutes to submit a quarterly report to the governor of the state, from November first, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, showing the number of pupils taught and maintained in the school in each quarter, and a statement or estimate of the amount of money required to defray the expenses of tuition and maintenance for the said pupils, and upon the approval of the said report by the governor, there shall be paid to the said trustees, for such expenses, the sum or sums required, provided the same shall not exceed, for any three months, the sum of seventy dollars for each pupil taught and maintained within the said period, the money to be paid out of the income of the school fund of this state, upon the warrant of the comptroller.

2. And be it enacted, That for the improvement of the grounds of the said school, the needed repairs to the buildings and furniture, and the purchase of such furniture and school appliances as may, in the judgment of the trustees, be from time to time required, the [illegible] sum of five thousand dollars is hereby appropriated, the same to be paid as provided in the foregoing section, upon the requisition of the president of the board of trustees.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 26, 1885.

CHAPTER CXL.

An Act relating to elections and appointments to office hereafter to be made by any board of aldermen, common council, township committee or other municipal board or body.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter no member of any board of aldermen, common council, township committee or other municipal board or body shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected such member, be eligible for election or appointment to any office that is now or hereafter may be by law required to be filled by any such board, council, committee or body, of which he is such member; provided, however, that this act shall not apply to any offices now required by law to be filled from any such appointing body.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 21, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLI.

An Act for the construction of an act to establish a system of public instruction, (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That nothing in the act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be construed to require the township [illegible] to pay over to the county collector any school moneys received by him from special township or district school taxes raised under the eighty-sixth section of said act.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 21, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLII.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act relative to sales of lands under a public statute or by virtue of any judicial decree, &c." (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of land heretofore made shall be invalidated by reason of the publication in a newspaper published on Sunday, of one of the [illegible] advertisements of such sale required by law to be published four weeks next before the time appointed for such sale in two newspapers printed and published in the county where the lands are situate; but such sale shall in all cases be held to be as valid and effectual as if both advertisements were made in newspapers published on week days; provided, that the advertisement of such sale shall have been in other respects according to law.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLIII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act in relation to county expenditures," approved April second, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the fourth section of an act entitled "An act in relation to county expenditures," approved April second, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, be and the same is amended so as to read as follows:

[4. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for any board of chosen freeholders to make temporary loans in anticipation of the collection of the taxes of any current fiscal year, such loans not in any case to exceed three-fourths of the amount of the appropriations for the said current fiscal year, and said loans may be made for such time as may be deemed reasonable and prudent and the same may be renewed from time to time until the taxes in anticipation of the collection of which such temporary loans were made are received by the county collector; provided, that when any such temporary loans shall be renewed, all arrearages of taxes thereafter received by the county collector for the year in anticipation of the taxes of which said loans shall have been made, shall be held by the county collector and by him applied to the payment of such loan or loans.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLIV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize cities to order and regulate the construction of sidewalks, and to provide for the payment of the expense thereof," approved May tenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in addition to the provisions of the act to which this a supplement, and the powers and authority therein and thereby given, it shall and may be lawful for the authorities in such cities to [illegible] the assessments made against any property improved in the manner specified in said act [illegible] the annual tax bills rendered to the owner or owners of such property; and the same may be collected in the same manner and by the same officers as taxes are or may be collected in such cities, and it shall and may be lawful to anticipate the collection of assessments made for such improvements by temporary or other loans, in the same manner and to the same extent as is now lawful [illegible] to anticipate the collection of taxes in such city or cities.

Passed March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act for the preservation of fish," approved April thirteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section four of said act shall be amended to read as follows:

[4. And be it enacted, That the fish commissioners of the state shall appoint the fish wardens required by this act, and the said fish wardens so appointed shall be subject to the orders, rules and regulations adopted by the fish commissioners of this state.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLVI.

An Act concerning cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for any city in this state where work has heretofore been done and materials furnished for the city in accordance with the terms of a written contract legally entered into and the same have not been fully paid for as the contract price, for such city by and through the board having supervision and control of the finances of such city to issue registered or coupon bonds in the corporate name of such city in the form now prescribed in such city, to bear interest at a rate not to exceed five per centum per annum, and to deliver the same at not less than their par value to such person or corporation to whom payment may be due or become due for such work and materials, or for an adjusted amount, or for an amount stated between the city and such person or corporation and in full satisfaction of the same; said bonds to be issued in such installments and for the respective terms of years, not to exceed five years, as said board may by resolution determine; provided, that the principal sum of said bonds shall not exceed in the whole the amount [illegible] due and to become due the said person or corporation by the terms of such contract; and provided further, that no bond be issued or delivered unless authorized by a resolution adopted by a unanimous vote of said board, to be approved of by the mayor of said city.

2. And be it enacted, That any moneys due or to become due for the use made of such work and materials, or for any merchandise, article or supply connected therewith or furnished through or therefrom shall be applied to the payment of such bonds and for no other purpose till the same are wholly paid.

3. And be it enacted, That the proper authorities of said city, in case of the failure to collect sufficient money in the manner recited in the last preceding section of this act to pay and satisfy any such bond or bonds at their maturity, shall have power to provide by taxation for the payment of said bonds and interest thereon, and may order and cause to be assessed and collected by tax, at the same time and in the same manner that other taxes in such city are assessed and collected, a sum of money sufficient to pay and discharge the principal of said bonds and interest thereon at the several times it shall become due.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLVII.

An Act to authorize cities to provide for the pensioning of members of the police force.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for any city of this state, by general ordinance, to provide for the payment, by such city, of an annual or monthly pension to such retired members of the police force of the city as shall have honorably served upon such force for twenty years; provided, that no member of the police force of any city shall be retired on a pension under the provisions of this act who has not attained the age of sixty years unless he be permanently disabled by injury received or by disease contracted during the time of his active service on the police force.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLVIII.

An Act providing for the support of the State Industrial School for Girls.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That for the support and maintenance of the state industrial school for girls and for necessary repairs, the sum of five thousand dollars be and is hereby appropriated, and that the state treasurer is directed to pay the same on the warrant of the comptroller.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CXLIX.

An Act to amend an act entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act for the support of the New Jersey State Reform School for Boys,'" approved March thirty-first, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, which said supplement was approved May 8th, eighteen hundred and eighty-four.

Whereas, By reason of the enactment by the legislature of the state of New Jersey of a law entitled "An act to provide for the employment of the inmates of any prison, penitentiary, jail or [illegible] reformatory institution located within this state," approved April eighteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, the revenue derived from industries by the trustees of the New Jersey State Reform School previous to the enactment of said law, and which was necessary for the maintenance of the same, has been diverted from said sources, and is required by said law to be paid into the treasury of the state, by means whereof the said trustees are left without adequate provision by law for the proper and necessary maintenance of said school; therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the trustees of the New Jersey State Reform School to make and submit a report to the governor of the state at the expiration of every three months dating from January first anno domini, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, showing the average number of boys maintained in the school during such period, which said report shall be duly certified by the president and attested by the secretary of the board; and in order to support the said school the treasurer of this state shall pay out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the treasurer of the New Jersey State Reform School such a sum as shall be considered necessary by the trustees and approved by the governor of the state, for the maintenance of said school for the succeeding three months, such sum not to exceed the maximum sum of thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents for each boy maintained in said school, which said sum shall be based on the average number of inmates for the last preceding quarter, such sum to be paid upon a warrant of the comptroller.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1885.

CHAPTER CL.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act respecting conveyances," (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section forty-one of an act entitled "An act respecting conveyances" (Revision) approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

[41. That the governor of this state be and he hereby is authorized to appoint and commission such number of commissioners in each of the states and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia as he may deem expedient and where such appointment shall not be incompatible with the laws of such state, territory or district wherein such commissioner shall reside; which commissioners shall be called and designated "foreign commissioners of deeds for New Jersey," and each of them shall have authority to take the acknowledgment or proof of any deed or conveyance, mortgage, defeasible deed or other conveyance in nature of a mortgage, of any lands, tenements or hereditaments lying and being in this state, or any other instrument of writing under hand and seal required by law of this state to be acknowledged or proved, and such acknowledgment or proof to be taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state and certified by the commissioner before whom the same shall be made, as by the law required, shall have the same force and effect and be as good and available in law, for all purposes, as if such acknowledgment or proof had been made in this state before one of the justices of the supreme court of this state.]

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 1, 1885.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A FASHIONABLE DRESSING TABLE.

A deal table is the foundation, which must be covered with colored glazed cambric. Over this is a cover of linen, ornamented with designs in cross-stitch worked with crewel or embroidery silk, the spaces between the designs have the threads drawn to form an insertion. The border corresponds, and is edged with a handsome fringe. The drapery is arranged in plaits, with a cross-stitch design on each. A pretty circular cushion is placed in front of the glass; this is of cambric, the color of the lining of table cover, ornamented at the top with an applique design, edged with a flounce of lace, finished by a ruche of satin ribbon. The hairpin cushion—a very necessary article of a lady's toilet table—is a little basket filled by a cushion covered with knitting and ornamented by a drape of embroidered cloth. This same design for a table can be carried out in cretonne; it looks exceedingly pretty at a trifling cost. The cover can then be edged with a box-plaited quilting instead of fringe, if desired.

A HINT FOR SOME MOTHERS.

Mothers sometimes mistakenly insist that the child shall eat all upon its plate, to prevent it from being "wasted." It ought to be needless to remark that this is not to be commended. A child should early be taught not to waste his food, nor should he ever be permitted to render valueless that which may be of use to others. But to eat food when one has had a sufficiency, to keep it from being "wasted," is not the way to teach a child frugality. To force into the stomach one ounce more of food than it needs is to overtax it; and frequent overtaxing will lead to the rebellion of stomachs as well as of people. Then the services of the physician must be had; and before we can dispense with them, the value of a barrel of flour is gone to save an ounce of food. This is not economy; neither is it common sense. It is better to help a child two or three times to food than to load his plate so that he be in danger of leaving any. Thus may health and frugality be secured at the same time.—Health at Home.

USE THE PEN.

When Rufus Choate began his professional life, he wrote in his journal, "Constant writing is the parent of ripe speech. It has no other. But that writing must always be rhetorical writing; that is, such as might be uttered to a listening audience. It is to be composed as in and for the presence of an audience."

Mr. Choate was wise in relying on the aid of the pen to correct vagueness of thought and expression, and to give force and vividness to ideas which are to be presented to an audience. He did not mean that an orator should write out a speech and then learn it by heart as Edward Everett did, but that he should habitually use his pen to secure accuracy and copiousness of language. "Always prepare, investigate and compose a speech," he once said to a student, "pen in hand. Webster always wrote when he could get a chance."

Our great orators have usually written out their important passages, and then delivered them as if they were inspired at the moment. Curran was a fiery orator, whose bursts of eloquence used to electrify court and jury.

"My dear fellow," he said to a friend, "the day of inspiration has gone by. Everything I have ever said which is worth remembering, was carefully prepared."

Some orators who write their speeches are ambitious to be thought as extemporaneous in their utterances as an Italian improvisator. Macaulay had his petty vanity, and always resented the criticism that in his parliamentary speeches he "talked like a book." Yet every word of his orations was written and memorized.

At the close of one of his speeches, delivered at a public meeting, a reporter asked him to furnish a report of it, as he had spoken so rapidly that no short-hand could do justice to it.

Macaulay said he would think of it. In the evening a large package was sent to the office of the newspaper, which contained a verbatim report of the speech. It was, in fact, the original manuscript, with the brilliant passages marked in pencil, and the whole bearing thumb-marks indicative of many readings.

But these important passages must be so dove-tailed that the audience cannot discover the joints. Unless the orator can so introduce a prepared paragraph that it blends with the impromptu part, he has not acquired the art which conceals the art.

Lord Brougham used to pause, as if in search of words, when about to utter a passage which he had written and memorized. But his repeated use of this artifice at last warned the hearers to expect a cut-and-dried sentence.

* * *

One knows his blows and the other blows his nose a good enough answer if any one has a conundrum to fit it.

"To the victors belong the spoils," said the Republican grocer as he worked off a dozen bad eggs on a just appointed Democratic office-holder.

More often than a man, a woman makes the mistake of a lifetime when she opens her mouth, so many of them never part their lips save to put their foot in it.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE RISING QUESTION.

Shall we eat Lime with our Bread?

It is a fact no longer questioned that all the baking powders, with the single exception of the Royal, contain lime or alum. Prof. Love's report as analyst of the New York State Board of Health, revealing lime impurities, and Government Chemist Mott's researches showing the alarming use of alum, have conclusively established the presence of these substances. Eminent analysts have found in some of the powders, notably those so prominently advertised, 10.7 per cent of lime alone.

Every body is interested in this wholesale debasement of food. The public health is no doubt injuriously affected by the large amount of lime that is thus taken into the system, for—although perfectly pure food is produced by the use of Royal Baking Powder, which is free from lime and absolutely pure—many of these adulterated baking powders are still imposed upon consumers by the false advertisements with which they are placed before the public.

No Lime in Royal Baking Powder.

Chemical tests have likewise proved the Royal Baking Powder to be free from lime and absolutely pure. This results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes by which the tartrate of lime is totally eliminated. The production of chemically pure cream of tartar involved many experiments and great expense, which add largely, of course, to the cost of producing the Royal Baking Powder. But its manufacturers are amply rewarded in thus being able to give consumers a baking powder absolutely pure in all respects—the only absolutely pure baking powder made. In emphasis of this fact, the report of Prof. McMurtrie, late chief chemist for the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, is given:

"I have examined the cream of tartar manufactured by the New York Tartar Company and used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in the manufacture of their baking powder, and found it perfectly pure and free from lime in any form.

"The chemical tests to which I have submitted the Royal Baking Powder, prove it perfectly healthful, and free from every deleterious substance.

To Dyspeptics.

The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of

Ayer's Pills.

After the bowels are regulated, one of these Pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.

AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

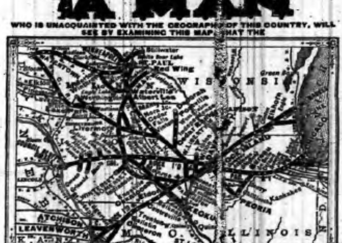
WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE



CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten. "Good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

AN ORDINANCE.

appointing commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh St., and prescribing their duties.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That John W. Murray, Nathan Harper and Jos. A. Hubbard are constituted and appointed commissioners to assess the costs and expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street, macadamized under ordinances entitled respectively "An Ordinance to macadamize Crescent avenue from the middle of Park avenue to the middle of Sixth street," and "An Ordinance to macadamize Seventh street from the middle of Broadway to the easterly side of Park avenue and from the middle of Central avenue to the easterly side of Plainfield avenue," which said Ordinances were approved October 7th, A. D., 1884, and "An Ordinance to provide for part of the expenses of macadamizing Crescent avenue and portions of Seventh street," approved December 2d, 1884.

SECTION 2. Within ten days after this Ordinance goes into effect under the charter of the City, said Commissioners shall take and subscribe before the City Judge or other magistrate of the City of Plainfield, an oath or affirmation that they will justly, fairly and faithfully make said assessments and execute and discharge the duties imposed upon them by virtue of their appointment as such Commissioners according to the best of their skill, judgment and understanding without favor or partiality. Thereupon said Commissioners shall give at least five days notice by advertisement in the official papers of the City, and by mailing written or printed copies of said notice to the post office address of each of the persons owning land along the line of said macadamizing, so nearly as the same can be ascertained, stating when and where said Commissioners will meet for the purpose of making said assessment, and of hearing whatever any persons interested in said assessments may have to say or offer relative to said assessments. Said hearing may be from time to time adjourned by said commissioners. Said commissioners shall give all persons interested full and fair opportunity to be heard before them, shall carefully go over the entire line of said macadamizing, and review every tract of land and premises affected thereby, shall estimate the benefits as well as the damages (if any) sustained by each tract and having first carefully considered the improvement and all that may be presented or offered relative thereto, they shall make the said assessment according to the statutes and ordinances in such case made and provided, and report the same in writing to the Common Council for ratification. Said commissioners are hereby empowered to employ a competent surveyor to make necessary maps and surveys and also to employ such clerical assistance as may be necessary.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER CLI.

An Act to provide for boards of education in the cities of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That on and after the first Monday in May after this act shall have been accepted by any city in this state as hereinafter provided, all powers and duties vested in or devolving on the board having charge of the public schools of said city previous to the said first Monday in May shall be vested in and devolve on a board to be denominated a board of education, to consist of one member from each aldermanic district or ward in said city and one at large, said members to be appointed by the mayor, and the board previously having charge of the schools of such city shall thereupon cease to exist, and the terms of its members and of its clerk shall expire.

2. And be it enacted, That in making the first appointments to said board of education the mayor shall appoint as nearly as possible, one-half of the members for two years and the remaining members for one year, and thereafter each member shall be appointed and shall serve for two years and until his successor is appointed, unless removed by the mayor.

3. And be it enacted, That no more than a majority of the members of said board of education shall belong to the same political party.

4. And be it enacted, That the mayor shall at any time have the power to remove any member of said board of education for cause; provided, that the member to be removed shall receive two weeks' notice of such removal, with a written copy of the charges and cause, and on his formal demand, shall be entitled to a public hearing before the mayor.

5. And be it enacted, That the board of aldermen or common council of any city may, by resolution, submit the question of the acceptance or rejection of this act to the voters of said city, at the first charter election held after the approval of this act, and, if a majority of those who shall vote for the acceptance or rejection of the act shall vote for its acceptance, then this act shall go into effect immediately, and shall be deemed to be accepted by such city, and such city shall be bound by the terms of this act; persons entitled to vote at such election shall express their acceptance or rejection of this act by depositing the ballots in the [illegible]

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

The Republicans of Ohio in their recent State Convention, among other far fetched and absurd resolutions, adopted one denouncing President Cleveland for appointing to public office what they saw fit to term "unrepentant rebels."

Consistency remains to be a jewel, which truth the resolution drafter of that political Convention must certainly have been ignorant of, or he would not have spit spite as he did after his own party Presidents had lavished official emoluments upon such once unmitigated rebels as Longstreet, Mosby and Mahone.

The Democratic party acts upon the known fact that the war of rebellion closed twenty years ago, that weapons of armed hostility were then stacked, peace proclaimed, and the Union preserved under the Constitution, with all the guaranteed rights of that supreme compact in full legal and moral force.

The Democratic party further recognizes the important fact that national unity is essential to national and individual prosperity, that the flag of Union now floats in unchallenged sovereignty from Alaska to Florida and from Maine to Texas, over fifty millions of people, American freemen, alike entitled to the privileges of citizenship, and instead of keeping alive sectional and class animosity, Democracy would fill up every bloody chasm and sow thereon the seeds of mutual respect, confidence and patriotic co-operation.

Democracy knows no North, South, East or West, except as constituent parts of a common country, protected by one flag and animated by a single destiny, and it holds that an honest and worthy citizen of Georgia is as fully competent and deserving to receive public appointment as one born in Ohio.

The war is forever ended.

The last battle was fought over twenty years ago.

The Constitution is the creed of Democracy, and the Star Spangled Banner its emblem of a re-united and co-equal people.

DARING TO DO RIGHT.

The man who fearlessly and uniformly dares to do what he sincerely believes to be right, whether as a private citizen or a public functionary, is the man worthy of and who will receive popular esteem and confidence.

The people admire such a character, and justly so, because upon it they can safely rely at all times and under every circumstance.

That kind of man is President Cleveland.

We will prove the assertion by an incident that has just happened.

Perhaps throughout the whole of our broad land there is not a spot more politically corrupt than Chicago, where the stigma attaches to leaders of both parties, one gang being about as deep in the mud as the other is in the mire of unprincipled tactics.

We do not pretend to say that the voting masses in Chicago are more venal than those of other densely populated cities. It is not them we adversely criticise, but their would-be masters, the professional politicians who live by ignoble trade, who lower the dignity of legitimate politics into discredit, and by ways that are slimy, and at the expense of honor and the public weal, endeavor to convert political power and patronage into mercenary gain. They are the corruptionists we antagonize, be they Democratic or Republican.

The appointment of a United States Marshal for Northern Illinois was pending.

It is a very important office, demanding a first-class man to fill it properly.

There were several candidates for the position from Chicago.

Ward bosses and political henchmen of that unsavory city went in droves to Washington determined to secure the rich placer for some one of their congenial friends and pledged followers.

They raved around and made a terrible noise.

The President could neither be cajoled nor driven.

He stood as firmly for the right as a granite rock.

With his usual cool and sound judgment he set about to find for himself the proper person to commission.

He found him, in Captain Marsh, a soldier of the Union army, a citizen of ability and sterling integrity, a non-applicant for office, and although a staunch Democrat, so well thought of as to be elected Sheriff in a strong Republican county.

He was appointed United States Marshal.

The spoilsmen returned home uttering words more forcible than polite.

Honesty waved them a joyous adieu.

The country is safe under the guidance of such a President, because he dares to do right.

Right must and will prevail. The people are daily becoming more and more enamored with its beauty and public utility.

A telephone has been placed in the Mt. Arlington Hotel, at Lake Hopatcong.

The Governor of New York has vetoed the Arcade (under Broadway) Railway bill.

Hon. J. B. Foraker was nominated for Governor by the Republican State Convention of Ohio.

The trial of Frank Patterson, the Asbury Park Opera House Manager, for forging the name of Henry Kroebl to a note of $800, ended on Monday last at Trenton in the disagreement of the jury.

A negro named Bill Crusen has been arrested in Hunterdon county and fully identified as the criminal assailant of a Mrs. Cooper, five weeks ago, as she was walking on the road leading to the Sourland mountain in East Amwell township.

The City Council of Atlantic City has ordered the Philadelphia and Atlantic City Railway Company to remove its tracks from Mississippi avenue within ten days. The trouble grows out of the failure of the company to keep the avenue in repair.

Frank Carl, living near Stirling, N. J., and Wm. Swanslog, living in the same neighborhood, had each a young bull killed and a third one injured by dogs last week, and the Passaic township authorities have issued a proclamation ordering the muzzling of all dogs running at large, under penalty of death.

WAR STATISTICS.

Adjutant General Drum has just completed a list of the casualties in the Union army during the late war, which is thought to be the most accurate yet published. The aggregate number of deaths was 359,496; of these 29,498 occurred among Union soldiers held as prisoners of war. The total number of troops reported as furnished by the various States, under the various calls, is 2,772,408. Some of the returns were duplicated, and it is estimated that the actual number was about 2,500,000.

REGARDING JAIL WARDENS.

It seems that under a recent decision of the Supreme Court, an old law makes the Sheriff the legal custodian of all prisoners in the County Jail. The only two counties exempted from its provisions are Hudson and Essex. A test case has been made of the law and the decision of the Court, by Sheriff Withington of Mercer county, who served a notice on the Board of Freeholders of that county last week, demanding the keys of the jail. The Sheriff is a Republican, the Warden a Democrat. Sheriff Stiles gives it out as his intention to make a demand from the Union County Board of Freeholders for control of the jail at their next meeting.

THE KELLEY-STANTON VINDICATION.

An exchange in noticing that William D. Kelley, Congressman from Philadelphia, has undertaken the task of "controverting and confuting General McClellan's account of the Peninsular Campaign and of vindicating Stanton," says:

"The country will await with some curiosity to know what special plea the Pennsylvania Congressman and lawyer will make in defence of this less than man, Stanton, whose very memory is a reproach to courage, patriotism and humanity, and it has been left to a Philadelphia lawyer to undertake to defend it."

The terms here used in regard to Secretary Stanton may be regarded as severe, but to many who knew thoroughly the vindictive, partisan character of the man they will not seem a whit too strong. In one or two particulars, however, we differ from the opinion above expressed. In the first place we do not believe that the people have any curiosity whatever in regard to the matter. They have long ago been perfectly satisfied in their own minds that Stanton was the real and primary cause of the failure of that campaign, and that General McClellan was the victim of his partisan hate and jealousy. Every appliance that could possibly be brought to bear—money, newspaper criticisms and censures; secret messages to officers hinting that promotion depended upon an underrating of McClellan's abilities; the employment of a horde of unscrupulous agents and satellites in and around Stanton's department—all were put forth for the purpose of crushing out McClellan; and even after it was plainly evident that the army desired his return, the same Stanton used his every power and every influence within his reach and control to destroy McClellan's popularity with the army and the people. Suggestions were thrown out to officers to hint to the men that there were other Generals just as competent to lead them, and this with the sole object of damaging his reputation and weakening their affections and confidence. The fact was that General McClellan was the only General that the Confederate officers feared; and they cunningly joined in the cry of Stanton, Halleck & Co., that he was a "rebel sympathizer, incompetent," etc., in order that the North might be deprived of his abilities, and another placed in his stead whom they considered had less military knowledge and whom it would be easier to defeat. The "brave young commander" was thus made a target for fire in both directions. In sacrificing him, in weakening his hands, Stanton made the rebellion a war, and thousands of lives, millions of treasure paid the cost of his sectional hate and partisan jealousy. Kelley's attempt to vindicate him will be about as successful as his party's efforts to elect Blaine to the Presidency or his own career as chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means in the 47th Congress—i. e. a lamentable failure.—Camden Democrat.

Ben Mace, brother of the late Dan Mace, both celebrated horsemen, died at Stamford, Conn., June 16th, aged 42 years.

General Grant is much worse. On Wednesday he wrote a memoranda to his family, in which he said he thought he was failing and desired certain instructions carried out.

Among the appointments made by the President on Wednesday last were two Jerseymen. George W. Savage, of Rahway, was appointed Consul at Belfast, and William H. Moffatt Consul at Beurut.

An Italian was caught recently in the act of gathering cigar stumps in the street and confessed that he got 10 cents a pound for them from a cigarette maker. Paste this in your son's new straw hat.

Mr. G. F. Secchi de Casali, the director and projector of the Italian newspaper L'Eco d'Italia, at New York, and the founder of the first Italian newspaper in the United States, died at Elizabeth, N. J., last week.

The State Medical Society at its annual session at Long Branch elected Jos. Parrish, of Burlington, President; Wm. Elmer, Jr., of Trenton, Cor. Sec.; Wm. Pierson, of Orange, Rec. Sec., and W. W. L. Phillips, of Trenton, Treasurer.

Judge Foraker, the Republican nominee for Governor of Ohio, received a letter of congratulation from James G. Blaine on Monday, in which was an offer from that gentleman to stump Ohio for Foraker this Fall.

Clement Van Dyke, of Jersey City, died Wednesday night of last week at the Charity Hospital. He became delirious during the night, escaped from his ward, and in attempting to scale a fence fell to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull.

The appointment of a revenue collector for the Third district in the place of "Cal" Barcalow still hangs fire. Senator McPherson desires one man and Congressman Green another. Congressman Pidcock also has a choice. There have been various meetings between the Senator, Congressmen and other influential men, but no definite understanding could be arrived at. Our representative, Congressman Green, very emphatically and very justly demands his right to deal out at least a little of the patronage of his district. He is perfectly right in such action.

On Tuesday last Gen. Grant was removed to Mr. Drexel's cottage at Mt. McGregor, in the Adirondack region, where he is expected to find rest and recuperation. He bore the long and tedious journey remarkably well.

The French transport, Isere, arrived at the port of New York on Wednesday. This vessel is loaded with the celebrated Bartholdi statue. To the grand efforts of the New York World must be accredited the honor of raising the $100,000 required for the erection of the pedestal for the statue.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Collector Pierson has returned from his trip to Springfield, Mass.

Mr. H. Lacey and family have moved into the Ripley house on Park street.

The Rev. Mr. Farwell, of Bergen, has accepted a call from the Baptist church of our town.

Fourth of July is close at hand and no preparation for celebrating it has been started as yet.

Miss Mary Cooper has arrived home from New Hampshire, where she has been the past year.

The Westfield Public School No. 10 will hold their closing exercises on Thursday, June 25th, in the Presbyterian church.

Miss Hattie Pierson and Miss Susie M. Marsh were graduates of the Class of '85 at the Elizabeth Institute, on Thursday last.

Stewart Pierson, brother of Oliver M. Pierson, is on a short visit to his native town. Mr. Pierson is located in business at Lockport, New York.

The great cow case of Baker vs. Clark, which was to have been tried by a jury before Justice Jaques on Thursday, was withdrawn by the plaintiff the day before.

Mr. John Bishop, of Bound Brook, has been engaged the past week in placing lightning rods on a number of dwellings, including those of Messrs. Jas. L. Miller and C. B. Ripley.

Mr. Edward H. Anderson has exchanged his farm in Fanwood township, where he has resided the past year, for the house and lot corner of Central avenue and Quimby street, of Mrs. Letitia Miller. Mr. Anderson expects to be a resident of our town the coming week.

The Assessor has completed the State census for the year 1885. The total number of inhabitants of all ages are 2,352, an increase of 136 since 1880, a gain of 6 per cent. The sex are divided as follows:

Native born, White—Male	893
" " " —Female	1,069
" " Colored—Male	34
" " " —Female	54

Town Committee met at the Town Rooms on Saturday evening, June 13th, 1885. Present—J. L. Miller, E. Embree and Levi Cory. L. M. Whitaker, Clerk. Minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved. The clerk presented the following communication from Mr. Albert A. Drake:

To the Town Committee of Westfield, N. J.:

GENTLEMEN—As one of the many benefitted citizens in town, I take pleasure in thanking you for the many practical evidences of your interest in their behalf, which in time they will all be compelled to acknowledge publicly and privately. Now that the rubbish has been removed from the centre of the town, at least I would suggest your announcing a specified place for a public dumping ground in some out of the way place, which would be desirable to fit up, for the purpose of encouraging the well-disposed to assist in the good work, thereby making an example for others to follow in the future, to the benefit of the whole community. The prosperity of our town depends upon its proper drainage and generally clean roads and surroundings, inducing visitors to become residents, property to advance, and the happiness and convenience of all increased.

I am Sirs, Respectfully,
ALBERT A. DRAKE.

This was received and on motion ordered on file, and the clerk instructed to acknowledge receipt of same. The following bills were on motions ordered paid: Bill of Manning T. Crow, services and expenses in removal of Dr. E. V. Stryker to Morris Plains, $10 50; Peter V. Berkman, do $10; Amos Moffett, do $8; J. Warren Brown, do $6 25; Charles A. Smith, coal for poor, $14; John J. Jaques, Justice of the Peace, $4 05. Bill of John M. Knapp for seven days' services as Health Inspector, by order of the Board of Health, $14, was on motion ordered paid. On motion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Township Clerk be and is hereby instructed to issue a Proclamation in regard to dogs running at large to take effect the 25th inst.

The clerk was instructed to have the proclamation printed in poster form and posted in conspicuous places in the township. Also calling attention of each owner of a dog by postal card to the Proclamation.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The penalty for killing woodcock before the first day of July is fifteen dollars for each bird so killed.

Woodcock are nesting late this season, and we hear of more young birds being seen than for many years.

Elizabeth has a good gun club of prominent sportsmen. Plainfield has none. Why is this thus? There are plenty of good shots here who could cope successfully with the Betsytowners.

On Saturday afternoon there will be a contest at live pigeons at Campbell's Club House, Park avenue, between Lebbeus Ayres, of Oak Tree, and D. Crowell, of Perth Amboy. The terms are 15 birds each, 80 yards boundary, $25 a side. Both are good shots and an interesting time may be expected. Other sweepstake matches at clay birds and glass balls will occur during the afternoon. The following Saturday, June 27th, a match will be shot off at the same grounds between Daniel Terry, of Short Hills, and Wm. Parker, of Elizabeth, for $25 a side.

A Bergen county farmer came to Paterson a few days ago with a mess of trout, and proceeded to explain to a number of persons what to the farmer was a new method of capturing trout. He said that he and his sons had been fishing for trout for several years, and they had recently used for a float a piece of cork with a feather stuck in it, so that they could more readily perceive the workings of the float at dusk, when the larger of the largest trout generally feed. On a number of occasions they had observed trout jumping out of the water after the feather on the cork, and so they conceived the notion of fastening a hook to the feather. This resulted in the capture of a trout. This novel method of catching fish pleased the farmer and his sons, who then started to fish altogether with a cork, feather and hook. They then found that the smaller the cork was the more readily would the trout leap for the feather, and so the size of the cork was reduced and finally it was abolished altogether. The farmer explained that the trout he had were all caught on nothing but a bit of white feather. He considered this a wonderful discovery and apparently had no idea that he had discovered fly-fishing, a species of angling that had been carried on for several centuries and a method of which is considered the acme of the angler's art.

A BAKING POWDER TRICK.

All kinds of schemes and tricks are resorted to by unprincipled persons to obtain unfair advantages over their neighbors. The latest and most dishonest of these that has come to our notice is one by which certain manufacturers of baking powder have sought to prejudice consumers against the use of other brands that have an established reputation as the best and purest in the market, for the purpose of introducing their own. Their method, we are informed, is to heat a can of baking powder of a well-known brand over a lamp or stove, when, if there is a gas given off having the odor of ammonia, the powder is condemned as being made of ammonia and unfit for use. The prejudices of the unsuspecting are thus excited against the baking powder submitted to the so-called test, and the grocer who has a quantity of it on hand suffers a serious loss in consequence.

If the intelligent consumers will stop a moment to think, the will readily perceive that this "test," if successful, proves nothing but the superiority of the baking powder tested. The aim of all baking powder makers is to produce an article that shall most readily, under use, give off its leavening gas. The powder that does this with a moderate heat, at the same time evolving the largest quantity, is scientifically the best.

There is probably not an article prepared for food that cannot be manipulated to prove that something is wrong about it; and when a person goes into a kitchen or before a housekeeper who is not to be presumed to understand chemical relations, and performs an experiment of even the simplest character, it is not difficult to impress one that something awful is the matter. As to baking powders, we could suggest a dozen tests that would be as ridiculous in giving a fair idea of their relative merits to an uninstructed mind as the one here mentioned.

The true domestic value of a baking powder consists in its purity, wholesomeness and leavening power. It is only the chemist, with his chemical appliances, who can determine these qualities, scientifically and exactly. Aside from this, the best test for a baking powder is to try it in making bread, and see which makes the most and the best. To this practical test all the established brands have been put, and housekeepers have very generally made up their minds which they prefer, and the tricksters will find ultimately that a brand that has been a household favorite for years will not be displaced by reason of any tricks which they may show.

AN ORDINANCE.

To provide for the licensing and regulation of Scavengers.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Licenses may be granted by the Common Council to persons above the age of twenty-one years to carry on the business and act in the capacity of scavenger or night scavenger in the city of Plainfield, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Board of Health, and the ordinances of this city. All applications shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be recommended by the Board of Health, or some member thereof, or the City Physician.

SECTION 2. Each license granted under the provision of this ordinance, shall expire on first day of February in each year, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person licensed, the number of the license and the date of its expiration, and may contain any restrictions that the Board of Health may direct. No person shall be held to be licensed under this ordinance until he shall have paid to the City Clerk for said license the sum of ($10) Ten Dollars, and in addition thereto the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the same.

SECTION 3. No person shall carry on the business or act in the capacity of a scavenger or night scavenger, or clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy without being first licensed for that purpose by the Common Council, and no person shall keep and use or drive any scavenger cart or wagon or any night scavenger cart or wagon within the City of Plainfield without the same being licensed as aforesaid under penalty of fifty dollars for each and every violation of any of the provisions of this section. Provided that the owner of any sink, cesspool or privy may remove the contents thereof himself or by his hired help continuously in his employ without being licensed by the Common Council, but subject to the regulations of the Board of Health.

SECTION 4. Every person licensed as a night scavenger as soon as licensed shall cause his name to be marked in plain letters, and the number to be marked in plain figures in a conspicuous place on each side of the cart or wagon so licensed under the penalty of ten dollars for every day he shall use or employ any such cart or wagon, without having the same so designated.

SECTION 5. It shall not be lawful for any person licensed as a night scavenger to hire out or sub-let any night scavenger cart or wagon, to any person or persons not licensed to act in the capacity of night scavenger under penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every violation of this section.

SECTION 6. No night scavenger shall stop or leave any night scavenger wagon or cart in any street, avenue, alley or highway, nor permit his wagon or cart to occupy an unreasonable time in loading or unloading or in passing along any street, avenue, alley or highway, or through any inhabited place or ground, nor leave any such wagon or cart, when not in use, on any premises where the same may become a nuisance to the occupants of other premises, under penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

SECTION 7. It shall be the duty of the Board of Health to establish from time to time such rates to be charged for the removal of the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy as they may deem reasonable and proper, and no person licensed under this Ordinance shall charge or receive more than the established rates, under a penalty of $10 for each offence. And any person licensed under this Ordinance who shall refuse to clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy for any one at the rates established by the Board of Health shall be liable to a penalty of $10 for the first such refusal and shall forfeit his license for the second offence.

SECTION 8. No person shall remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy, or any part thereof, or carry the same in, or through any street, road, lane, alley, or public place between the hours of [illegible] o'clock in the morning and [illegible] o'clock in the evening under a penalty of [illegible], unless the same is done by the process [illegible] the "Odorless Excavating Apparatus Company" of Baltimore or other like process to be approved and certified to by the Board of Health in writing.

SECTION 9. No person or persons shall deposit or cause or permit to be deposited the contents, or any part thereof, of any sink, cesspool or privy anywhere within the City of Plainfield, without first obtaining the written consent of the City Physician or Health Inspector, specifying therein the place where the same is to be deposited, and the manner in which the same is to be covered or otherwise disposed of, and any violation of this section or failure to conform to the terms of the written consent aforesaid, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars.

Adopted June 2, 1885.
Approved June 3, 1885.
GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Mayor.
Attest: O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

YOUNG lads roam along the brooks and mountains with the deadly flobert rifle on their shoulder, despite the stringent law prohibiting their having such a weapon in their possession.

THIS (Thursday) afternoon and evening, the members of the Bethel Mission (colored) will have a strawberry festival at Ryder's Hall. There will be a "Rebecca at the well" and other customary attractions.

THE heavy thunder showers of Monday and Tuesday evenings did three good things. They cooled the heated atmosphere, cleaned the streets and helped along growing vegetation most wonderfully.

THE Union Club had a regular meeting but transacted no business, last Monday evening. The Club members occasionally visit the Club House and go through the form of enjoying themselves as others do—but its awful dry.

CITIZENS, in their complaints addressed to the Board of Health, would save confusion and more readily attain the consummation of their desires, by always being sure of the correctness of the locations they designate.

WHEN action is taken (if ever it is) on the question of a Poor Farm, it will be found that such a plan for this city is as impracticable as ex-Councilman West always believed. It would be necessary to hire hands to work the Farm.

SOME of these fine mornings just take a comprehensive survey at the superficial condition of your back yard. And then another peep at your cellar, and you will suddenly discover that something more urgent than a base-ball match needs your attention.

HAVING secured the permission of the Council to stretch wires along certain streets, and having rented of the Telephone Co., the use of its poles, Mr. Chas. Wann will at once begin placing electric lights in the Hotel Netherwood and a number of business places in the city.

ALL the orchestra seats in the Music Hall will be reserved for the teachers of the pupils of the High School, and the relatives and friends of members of the graduating class, upon the occasion of Commencement, next Thursday evening. The rest of the house—balcony and dress circle—will be free to all, without tickets of admission.

AT the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital held May 28th, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Rowland Cox, President; Mrs. Samuel Huntingdon, Vice President; Mrs. T. THE following fact proves how complete is the course of study in the North Plainfield public school. A young gentleman member of the highest class over-the-brook was compelled to leave upon his removal from the borough. After examination for admittance to one of Brooklyn's public school, however, he was placed in the graduating class there.

EIGHTY-THREE complimentary and paid admissions were the extent of the audience, Thursday evening of last week, at Knox & Williams' combination enterment. Messrs. Thatcher and Rice of minstrel fame, a half-dozen reporters, four members of the Music Hall directory and other celebrities, were included. The entertainment was no better than the house.

THE opening of Fred. Caspar's new saloon and hall, the "Golden Horse Shoe," on Second street, last Monday, attracted a large attendance of friends and patrons of Mr. C. An elegant lunch, including a "Strawberry Bowl," was served free during the entire day. In the evening, the Casino Band discoursed fine music to the large throng inside and out the building, under the leadership of Henry Neilson. Mr. Caspar has an attractive place of business and a fine hall, which is also the headquarters of the Saengerbund.

JOHN B. HOLMES of North Plainfield, paid a judgment of fifteen dollars and costs, amounting to twenty dollars and forty-two cents last Monday, the result of a suit brought against him by a workman for wages due. Holmes had discharged the man, afterward causing his arrest on a charge of attempting to fire his barn. At the trial in Somerville, Holmes failed to appear as a witness and the workman, named William Jones, was discharged. This man afterwards sued Holmes for wages due and secured a judgment from Justice Vosseller, of Somerville. A levy was made on Holmes property for the amount by Constable Gee, and on Monday the money was paid. Score one against Holmes.

THE remains of the late John N. Steiner were buried with masonic rites on Friday afternoon last. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives of deceased. Services were held at Mr. Steiner's late residence on Somerset street, and a sermon in German delivered by Rev. Mr. Kohll, of the German church. The remains were escorted from thence to the M. E. church by the brethren of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., where remarks were made by Revs. A. H. Tuttle and Mr. Kohll. The masonic brethren then again took possession of the remains and escorted them to the cemetery, accompanied by members of the Saengerbund, relatives and friends. At the grave the beautiful masonic ceremonies were performed, conducted by Worshipful Master Jno. Ulrich.

THE R. C. church of St. John the Evangelist, at Dunellen, will have a picnic in Coriell's Grove, Saturday afternoon and evening, July 4th.

THE Union and Middlesex Agricultural Association holds a special meeting for the election of nine directors, this (Thursday) evening at Force's Hotel.

THE machinery for the electric light plant is completed and expected to arrive to-day or to-morrow. The lights will all be burning by the first of July.

ONE colored sister called another colored sister a liar, and the latter pulled a "pop." Justice Nash bound her over to keep the peace for a hundred years.

A SOCIAL reunion of the members of the Union Club will be held at the Club House, next Wednesday evening. Supper will be served at ten o'clock by Manetti.

A NEW firm, J. P. Laire & Co., will occupy the Berry & Thorn store on Front street about the middle of July, and will offer to the public a full of general house furnishings and hardware.

THE members of St. Joseph's church of North Plainfield are to have a grand time, during Saturday afternoon and evening, July 4th, in the Casino Rink. Full particulars of the entertainment we will give in another issue.

ONE of the Economic Gas Motors, of which Carney Bros. are the agents, was placed in Postmaster Pope's new house, and filled his large tank in one hour. It is guaranteed not to exceed a cost of 2½ cents an hour, in gas consumption.

THE new proprietors of Bowers & Co.'s grocery store on the corner of Fifth and Peace streets, Messrs. Hanchett & Sparks, are meeting with the popular favor in their business which they well deserve. Their goods are new and fresh, and prices reasonable. Give them a call.

THE joint committees on bridges of Union and Somerset Counties met at the site of the line bridge on Rockview avenue, near Evona, Wednesday, and passed a resolution condemning the present wooden structure and recommending the erection of an iron bridge in its stead.

BESIDES the loan exhibition of valuable paintings, the address by Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., music by Lander, refreshments, and the permanent attractions of the Male Art Gallery itself, a programme of dancing has been arranged as one of the features of the opening night, July 2.

LAST Monday evening when the shower came up, Mr. L. B. Woolston, of the firm Woolston & Buckle, of this city, started to run through Duer street, North Plainfield, to his home in that neighborhood. In crossing the street in the darkness he ran against a hitching post, and broke two of his ribs. Although suffering from the accident Mr. Woolston is able to be about attending to his business.

THE victims of the mishap we recorded last week as happening at Harlingen, N. J., where Mr. Whitlock and his grand-daughter, Miss Mamie, daughter of John Whitlock of North Plainfield, were seriously injured by a runaway horse, are not improving as rapidly as was hoped. Miss Mamie is suffering from severe bruises, and Mr. Whitlock from three broken ribs. Their numerous friends in this section and elsewhere, hope with us, that in our next issue we may record their convalescence and a speedy recovery from their injuries.

The M. E. Festival.

The fair and festival in the parlors of the Methodist church, Thursday and Friday of last week, attracted the generous members of the congregation and a few friends of other denominations. The music by a trio of New York musicians was the most generally pleasing of the features of the affair, though not so particularly pleasing as the features of the ladies that ornamented the flower bower, sought contributions for crazy-work presents to the pastor and his wife served the iced cream and berries, or in other ways gathered in a silver harvest to swell the satisfactory financial result.

Expressions of Condolence.

At a special meeting of the Plainfield Saengerbund on Thursday, June 11, the following resolutions were adopted:

In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and associate brother, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him, be it

Resolved, That it is only a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, That this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be forwarded to the family of our departed friend and associate, John Steiner.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be printed in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

HUGO WEIGMANN,

North Plainfield Borough Officers.

The North Plainfield Citizen's Association at a meeting of Monday evening, selected the following ticket of borough officers, which will be presented for the approval of the people: Mayor—John H. Van Winkle; Councilmen—Henry A. McGee, Fred M. Slater, Benjamin S. Braider, Charles Place, Henry K. Carroll and Rodolphus R. Fairchild.

The candidate for Mayor is a late partner of the late Mayor of this city; and such association of the past is believed by some to especially recommend Mr. Van Winkle for an office which he would personally and intellectually fill with honor.

The candidates for the Council are also as well-known and popular. Mr. McGee is a young man possessing unusual ability, public spirit and personal attraction. He is in the oil business in New York, and resides on Willow avenue.

Mr. Slater is one of the most generally admired of North Plainfield's young citizens. He was a prominent and active Democrat throughout the late Presidential campaign, but even should politics influence the coming election, Mr. Slater would be acceptable to both parties by reason of the absence of prejudiced partisanship in his nature. He is a civil engineer by profession, and resides on Jackson avenue.

Mr. Braider is well known and has many friends. Recently he severed his connection as salesman at French's Mills, and opened a grocery establishment on Somerset street. Being "at home" day and night, is a strong reason for his election to look after the borough for the borough's good.

Mr. Place is a New York lawyer residing on Grove street. He is a bitter though not an "offensive" Republican partisan, but still a man who would set for his community's good against his party's prosperity. With all good works he is earnestly identified.

Mr. Carroll lives at Westervelt and Grandview avenues, and is one of the editors of the New York Independent. He also works faithfully for the perpetuation of the Republican party, but just as honestly and ardently for the best interests of the boroughites. For the adoption of its latest form of government, North Plainfield has to thank Mr. Carroll more than any other one man.

Mr. Fairchild is one of the most successful merchants of this city. Coming to Plainfield a young man, he has—though still a young man—built up by his enterprise, fair dealing and courtesy a large business and an enviable reputation. He lives on his own property on Grandview avenue.

The other "citizens" who are not members of the "Citizens Association," are already talking of an opposition ticket. If they cannot—and we believe they cannot—nominate better candidates, let them nominate as good and the result will be satisfactory whoever wins.

Editorial Note.

One of the cutest of A B C books is the "Household Primer." Each large letter has an amusing picture and a pretty verse. The whole is daintily printed in brown; and, best of all, is mailed free by D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, on receipt of a two-cent stamp.

The City Census.

The census of the city as just completed by Assessor Hubbard, is as follows:

Wards.	Dwellings.	Families.	Population.
First,	308	418	2,012
Second,	386	404	2,238
Third,	304	349	1,920
Fourth,	[illegible]	649	[illegible]
Totals	1,474	1,870	[illegible]

The total in 1880 was 8,125.

Marriage on Wheels.

Charles R. Zacharias and Miss Adelaide Marsh of Newark, were married at Orange on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. Zacharias rode from Newark to Orange on a bicycle, and Miss Marsh rode a tricycle. They were married in their riding costumes, and after the ceremony departed for a wedding tour on their wheels through Pennsylvania.

The Heat.

The following shows the changes in the temperature for the 24 hours of Tuesday last in comparison with the corresponding date of last year, as indicated by the thermometer:

Prize Judges.

The following are the committees of award selected by the Board of Education:

English Composition—Aaron M. Powell, Rev. Wm. R. Richards, C. M. Goddard.

Botany—Rev. C. L. Goodrich, David Thompson, Abraham D. Balen.

Penmanship—E. H. Potter, O. S. Teale, J. W. Jackson.

Mathematics—W. M. Stillman.

The State House to be Rebuilt.

The State House Rebuilding Committee of New Jersey, consisting of Governor Abbett, Comptroller Anderson, Secretary Kelsey and Treasurer Toffey, came together Tuesday afternoon and reconsidered their purpose of abandoning the rebuilding of the burned portion of the Capitol. They agreed to advertise for new plans by architects, to be submitted on Tuesday next. The plans will be for a building 60 by 160 feet, or about one-third larger than the burned section.

A Contest Proposed.

Brothers Force are certainly guilty of a base attempt to deceive the people of the State in saying that Plainfield girls are prettier than those of Bound Brook. The Chronicle is willing to put the matter in this way: If Plainfield can produce one girl as handsome as any one of fifty Bound Brook girls, you can have the State Capitol, as far as the Chronicle is concerned. We will refer the question for settlement to Grandpa Runkle, of the Hunterdon Democrat, who is a most competent judge of such matters.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

Gifts to Rutgers College.

At a banquet of the Alumni of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, Tuesday morning, President Gates announced that Robt. S. Ballentine, of Newark, had given to Rutgers $5,000; also that the late Johnson Letson had left $5,000, which would soon be paid in. The financial prospect was bright. The $40 prize for the most lively and original essay on foreign missions had been awarded to Wm. S. Willis, of New Brunswick. The $25 prize was awarded John Allen, of the same place. The judges were the Faculty of the Theological Seminary. Rev. Dr. W. H. Ten Eyck, Rev. Dr. Peter Stryker and Rev. Dr. John Steele were present. The Chi Phi Society enjoyed their annual supper Tuesday night.

At Last!

The Board of Health at its meeting in the Mayor's office, Monday evening, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That notice be served on all persons having water closets or privies constructed or situated over Green Brook or the race-way, to remove the same within ten days after service of such notice.

Resolved, That any person or persons who shall disobey this order of the Board of Health, shall be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law.

Resolved, That notice be served upon all persons unlawfully having water closet or privy connection of any kind with Green Brook or the race-way, directly or indirectly, to sever connection therewith within ten days after service of such notice.

Resolved, That any person or persons who shall disobey this order of the Board of Health, shall be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law.

Princeton Commencement.

Tuesday was class day at Princeton, and the members of the class of '85 had their customary exercises in the First church. The master of ceremonies, Clinton W. Bird, of New York, delivered the address of welcome. The class poet was F. S. Wood, of New York, and the class orator was Duncan Edwards, of New York. The class then proceeded to the North college, where Mr. McCluphe, of New York, delivered the ivy oration. The cannon exercise was held in the afternoon on the back campus. Mr. Sturges read selections from the class history. Bradley Gaither, of Baltimore, delivered the presentation oration, and Edmund Wilson the class prophecy. Clarence W. McIlvaine, of Vermont, was the censor. The class ode, written by T. Kershing, of Pennsylvania, was then sung.

Excursions.

The members of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, and the Chautauqua Town and Country Club, are to have a basket picnic at "Houghton Farm," near Mountainville, N. Y., next Tuesday.

Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., are to have an excursion to Oriental Grove, Long Island Sound, Wednesday, July 8th.

The First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed Sunday Schools will combine forces again this year, and go to Long Branch and Ocean Grove on Friday, July 10th.

The Methodist Episcopal Sunday School will pay the second visit of the season to Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Asbury Park, Friday, July 17th.

St. Mary's R. C. church and the T. A. B. Society are to sail for Hudson Grove, Long Island Sound, Thursday, July 23d.

The First Baptists, whose excursion is without doubt one of the largest and best, will this year bathe in the surf at Ocean Grove, Friday, July 31st.

Messrs. Laing and Nelson will conduct an excursion to Long Branch, Ocean Grove, Asbury Park and return, Wednesday, August 12th.

The members of No. 2 Engine Co., and their friends intend to have the best time of all in a sail up Long Island Sound to Cold Spring Harbor, Wednesday, Aug. 19.

Fire Board Meeting.

After several attempts to get a quorum, the Board of Managers of the Fire Department succeeded in holding a June meeting, last Thursday evening. Messrs. Knowland, and Morris were absent. A few bills were ordered paid, and notes given in settlement of claim of ex-Collector Clark and payment of Warren's Engine. One thousand dollars more "in anticipation of taxes" was ordered borrowed, and the Chief was authorized to arrange the usual extra precautions against fire during the fourth of July.

Arranging Another Season.

The Plainfield Vocal Society, in making announcement of its plans for the season of 1885-86, expresses its appreciation of the cordial support received from the subscribing members during the season just closed—the most successful one since its organization. The Society is also gratified by the increasing interest evinced in its work and aims by the community generally. These facts, the approval of their patrons and the evidence of an educated musical taste in the community, are the ample rewards to the members of the Society for the persistent work which has been required of them. It is proposed to give three private concerts in the coming season. The dates selected (subject to change if necessary) are December 18, 1885, March 10, 1886, May 20, 1886. To aid the directors in perfecting their plans, subscribing members are requested to send their names at once to the Secretary, Mr. W. R. Cock. Their co-operation is asked also in securing a few new subscribers. By the payment of ten dollars, each subscribing member will receive four invitations to each concert, with reserved seats. Subscriptions are payable October 1, 1885.

North Plainfield Census.

We are indebted to Assessor Isaac Brokaw, of North Plainfield, for the following figures in relation to North Plainfield's census, which he has just completed:

Males of all ages	1,773
Females	1,954
Total population	3,727
Of these there are—
Under 5 years	405
From 5 to 20 years	1,169
From 20 to 60 years	1,891

The total population of North Plainfield in 1880 was 3,217.

Bicycle Records.

The Club's tallest rider is considered by the ladies, the handsomest. He is considered by all, an honor to his craft.

The only one of the boys that "indulges," has put a bolt on the back door so that his wicked associates can't steal into the hotel and get full on tobacco smoke.

The doctor has persuaded a friend (who is not eligible to ride a bicycle) to lend him a pair of high neck socks, and he may consent to wear the knickerbockers.

The President has done quite a business in the sale of bicycles and sundries, which is the result of his judicious use of the advertising columns of "THE CONSTI."

Gus gave up the old reliable expert and invested in a Royal Mail. It was a mistake to which he soon tumbled, and now only one of his arms is of any use as a shawl-strap.

The Captain has called club drills for Tuesday evenings at the junction of Crescent avenue and Broadway. It would be just the location for a "group" as soon as the new uniforms are completed.

The new member has given up riding the "Kangaroo" on account of his delicate health. But he is still endeavoring to build up a shattered constitution by dissipating on Mellin's Infant Food.

For the convenience of its own members, members of the League and Bicycle tourists, the Plainfield Club has some magnificent road maps of the State and other documents of reference at its new rooms on North avenue.

The daughter of a club member rode from this city to Westfield (her home) in one hour on a Columbia tricycle—and it was her first ride of any distance. Such a graceful and competent rider as Miss Decker, should become an associate member.

He claims that "a root" was the cause of his accident en route between Scotch Plains and this city. As woman is the root of all evil, and caused the first fall, the Patriarch, wonders what woman caused this particular fall, and George ponders upon the strangeness of a fall so early in the summer.

Mutual Fire Ins. Co's vs. Stock Fire Ins. Co's.

In order that all may have an understanding as to the relative cost of insuring in Mutual or Stock companies, the officers of the American Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Plainfield, N. J., take pleasure in making known to the public what the comparative small cost of $1,000 in said company for forty years past has been, with what the cost would have been for the same amount and time in a Stock company. The American Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Plainfield was incorporated in March, 1846. The original or first cost of insuring of $1,000 ordinary risk (for which a premium note of $100 as capital stock is given) was 6 per cent. in cash which is $6; cost of survey, $1; cost of policy, 50 cts.; total first cost $7.50. Since the incorporation of said company in 1846, there have been four assessments made on said notes: the first for 6 per cent; the second for 6 per cent; the third for 4 per cent; the fourth for 2½ per cent; total, 18½ per cent; upon said $100 note, $18.50. To these amounts add the amount paid to reinsure in 1866, which was the same as the first cost in 1846, viz—$7.50; total, $33.50. From this amount take the rebate of 9 per cent. returned to each policy holder in 1866, making total amount on $1,000 for forty years in said American Mutual Fire Insurance Company, $24.50. The cost in a Stock company, ordinary rates, would be $1 per $100 for five years, or $10 per $1,000. This for forty years, $80; showing a difference in favor of the American Mutual of $80 less $24.50, or $55.50 less than the same insurance would have cost in a Stock company, and on $2,000 insurance the difference would be $111. Surely with such a showing as this, where insurance in the American Mutual Fire Insurance Company cost less than one-third of what it does in a Stock company, the policy holders of said Mutual feel the necessity of continuing said company, and at their meeting held June 12, it was unanimously decided to continue for twenty years from March next, being at present free from debt and with about $2,000 in the treasury. By order of the following Board of Directors:—President, L. K. Barkalew; Vice President, W. H. Shotwell; Lewis Craig, John Simpson, Thomas Worth, Morgan Bird, C. C. Morgan, Voorhees Van Fleet, L. B. Boice, Andrew Zeiss, W. D. Craig, Abner S. Coriell.

THE NEW LIBRARY AND ART BUILDING.

Erected by Job Male and to be Presented to the City—The Opening.

A public opening of the new library and art building which our worthy and munificent fellow citizen, Job Male, has erected and promises to give to Plainfield, is appointed for the evening of July 2d. The exercises will consist of an address by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and Lander's band will discourse sweet music, and the art gallery will be rendered especially attractive by a loan exhibition gotten up by some of our public spirited ladies to give interest to the occasion. Mr. Male has signed a proposition to convey the buildings and grounds to the city, when twenty thousand dollars is raised to be devoted to the purchase of books and pictures. Eighteen thousand dollars have been subscribed, and it is greatly to be desired that the whole sum shall be promised by the night of the opening, so that the announcement may then be made that it is an accomplished fact. The money obtained from the opening is to be devoted to paying for fitting up the library and art gallery, and for preliminary work such as arranging catalogues etc. This offers an opportunity for our wealthy and public spirited citizens to aid in making this institution so nobly provided for by Mr. Male, of far reaching influence and altogether worthy of the building and of our city. A library has this advantage over the public schools. It reaches all classes, old as well as young; the clergyman, the physician, the editor, the mechanic, the laboring man and the student. Each will find it useful and profitable in his or her sphere. The advantage of a good public library to Plainfield will be incalculable. Few towns or cities in New Jersey can boast such an institution. It will therefore add another to the already long list of our city's prominent attractions. The two thousand dollars that is required to complete the subscriptions and render the library and art gallery an accomplished fact, ought not to be long in forthcoming. Let every one do what they can. Tickets for the opening can be had at Shaw's, Butler's and Reynolds' drug stores.

Personals.

Ex-Councilman Charles S. West will spend the summer at Monticello, N. Y.

Prof. and Mrs. Arthur Kimball and Mrs. Kimball's mother and sister, left for Europe last Saturday.

Ex-Chief Andrew L. Carney is again prostrated with serious illness at his residence, North Plainfield.

Miss Estelle Daniel is justly honored by her selection as the valedictorian of the High School graduating class of 1885.

Mrs. Warren Marsh, mother of Corporation Counsel Marsh, sails for Europe, on July 11th, intending to visit her daughter at Stuttgart, Germany.

Ann Packer of Ohio, a minister of the Society of Friends, will be at the Friends Meeting House, Peace street, on First day morning, 21st inst., at 11 o'clock. A general invitation is extended to all.

Mr. Alex. Warnock and daughter Laura went to New York on Sunday to greet the arrival in this country for the first time, of a married sister of Mr. W. from Scotland. She will make her home with a daughter in New York.

Rev. A. H. Tuttle is absent from the city for a few days, seeking rest and recreation in a short ocean trip. He will necessarily be absent from his pulpit next Sunday. Services will be held as usual. Rev. Mr. Loomis will preach morning and evening.

Mr. John Walker, the popular Park avenue baker, started on Thursday (18th) for Carribee, West Indies, via schooner Scotia, Captain Shearen commanding, on a pleasure trip, to be absent about five weeks. His numerous friends wish him a pleasant and safe journey and return home.

Judge E. Wilson Bloom, a former resident of Plainfield, died at his residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday night last. His remains were interred in the latter city on Thursday. Deceased leaves a widow, daughter of the late Jackson Pound, of this city, and a grown-up daughter. Mr. Bloom was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 56 years ago, and went to that city soon after he was admitted to the Bar and began practice there. He was a Democrat, and in 1862 he was elected Supervisor in the Seventh Ward of Brooklyn. After serving his term he was made Justice of the Peace "under the old regime," defeating the present District Attorney, J. W. Ridgway, who ran against him. He was sent as a delegate to many city and county conventions.

Styles For The Sterner Sex.

Elegant suits at the furnishing centres are shown at reasonable figures.

No watch chains are worn; or if any only a small fob chain, with trinkets attached.

Shirt fronts are plain, and are made of three and four thicknesses of linen in the shield shape.

Two studs only are worn—these set with fine colored stones or small diamonds of first water.

The English fashion of wearing a white, cream or fawn-colored duck waistcoat dotted with darker color or black, is coming into Summer fashion on this side.

The three pieces should be of the same cloth, though pants of light colored goods are still permissable, though very light trousers are out of date. The cutaway coat is preferred for dressy day wear by young men of fashion, though older disciples of the mode wear the double-breasted Prince Albert frock.

According to the Season for July a remarkable change is introduced in Paris in gentlemen's evening dress. Knee breeches and silk hose are worn on all festive occasions. The knee breeches are long enough to cover the knee, are finished on the outer seam with three buttons and button-holes and fasten with a button or bow of ribbon. Black silk stockings and low patent leather shoes are the natural sequences of short trowsers. Undervests and drawers en suite of silk or India gauze are most desirable, as they assimilate with every movement of the figure and preserve intact the electrical forces of the system.

General Longstreet, in his article on "The Seven Days' Fighting about Richmond," in the July Century, after discussing the Confederate leaders, says, "Without doubt the greatest man of rebellion times, the one matchless among forty million for the peculiar difficulty of the period, was Abraham Lincoln.

The Art Interchange of May 21st contains a charming study in color of pansies, the yellow, purple, lilac and red varieties of the flower being shown. A large embroidery design (21x24) has as a motive, dog wood against a darned in background. Other designs include a rich and beautiful model for metal alter vase, to be chased in silver or hammered in brass; half a dozen designs for stained glass transoms and panels, and Japanesque designs for oyster soup plate. The Notes and Queries treat of house decoration in all its details, give suggestions for painting terraline ware, for painting on matting, relief work, moist water colors, staining marble, mantel draping, polish for old mahogany, treatment of disks, fashion in linen marking, hints for dinner and menu cards, oil colors for pelargoniums, how to paint golden rod. Published by William Whitlock, 37 and 39 West 23d street, New York. Price, 15 cents.

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—We deem this explanation necessary in reference to your article in your issue of the 12th inst., concerning private watchmen and the nightly theft of plants. The public would infer from your article, that we were employed to watch every house on our respective patrols. Such is not the case, however. We have many residents on each of our patrols who do not employ a watchman, and over whose property we have no control, who are foolish enough to think we are in duty bound to put into practice a doctrine they would be the last themselves to practice viz: to work for nothing. Therefore, were thieves to enter the premises of the aforesaid parties, much more stealing a few plants, it would not have been any business of ours; by going into their yards without authority, we would lay ourselves liable to be shot. Our duty is to those who employ us and not to those who do not. We have no right to stop a person coming out of a yard over which we have no control given us by the owner, and therefore knowing our duty we shall not exceed it, but that we do our duty wants no better guarantee than that no plants has been stolen from the property we protect. And while we do our duty honestly, we fear not the influence of a few croakers who are too mean to pay a watchman, to injure us with our employers.

Respectfully Yours,
JOHN M. JACKSON,

The meed of merit for promoting personal esthetics is due to J. C. Ayer & Co., whose incomparable Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair. Harmless, effective, agreeable, it has taken rank among the indispensable articles of the toilet. To scanty locks it gives luxuriance; and withered hair it clothes with the hue of youth.

WHAT PARENTS FEAR.

Many persons—especially parents—object to many quack nostrums as likely to engender or encourage a love for strong drink. They are right. Better die of disease than drunkenness. The use of Parker's Tonic does not involve this danger. It not only builds up the system, curing all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it stimulates without intoxicating and absolutely cures the appetite for liquor.

THAT DIRTY DANDRUFF.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It soils the clothing continually, and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the falling hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, and elegant dressing. Very economical, as only a small occasional application keeps the hair in perfect condition.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

FORT VALLEY, Georgia, March 12, 1885.

THE O. I. C. CO., GENTLEMEN:—A sense of duty impels me to write you a brief history of my affliction and its cure by the use of your medicine. Mine was a severe case of white swelling, and so painful was the disease that I could not put my foot to the floor. This was my unfortunate condition for about nine months before I was induced by a friend to give O. I. C. a trial. During the time mentioned I had physicians to treat me and to lance my foot, and was informed by them that I would never be able to walk without limping. I am rejoiced to say that this prediction has not proved true. I am completely restored to health, can walk as well as I ever did before the attack, in fact I plow and attend to all my business, and am a sound and well man. O. I. C. (Old Indian Cure) did the work for me, and God knows my heart is full of gratitude. Yours is a wonderful blood remedy and the world ought to know it. R. B. SMITH. I certify to the truth of the foregoing statement, having personal knowledge of Mr. Smith's suffering and cure. J. W. COLYER, Sheriff of Houston County. PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 28, 1885.

Pursuant to adjournment the board met on Thursday, May 28, 1885, at 2 p. m.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Astfalk, Belmer, Bauer, Chapman, Doty, Debbie, Dardis, Etheridge, Hubbard, Howard, Halliday, Isenmann, Oliver, Pierson, Roll, Vanderbeek—17. Absent none.

The minutes of the annual meeting were read, and, on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication from D. M. Smyth, esq., publisher of the Summit Record, in reference to publishing the official proceedings of the board was, on motion, received and ordered on file.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

From committee on appropriations:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on appropriations beg leave to report that they have examined into the expenditures of the last three years and find that many of the accounts vary from year to year, very many of them beyond the control of your board.

At this time it is necessary to make the appropriations for the year, and it is made a crime to exceed the amount so appropriated.

Last year the tax levy was over one hundred and forty thousand dollars ($140,000), this year we have to provide for the additional accomodations for the grand jury and witnesses, shelving for record room, steam pipes and radiators for said rooms.

We would therefore recommend the passage of the accompanying resolution, which makes the tax levy one hundred and thirty thousand dollars ($130,000), or ten thousand less than last year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN ISENMANN,
J. F. HUBBARD,
GEO. W. DOTY,
Committee.

On motion received and placed on file.

From committee to settle with sheriff:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee to settle with the sheriff, to whom was referred the return of the county clerk of fines imposed during the year, beg leave to report that they have examined the same, and find that costs to the amount of forty dollars ($40) have been remitted, and one prisoner escaped whose fine was five dollars, the same being chargeable to the sheriff. All the rest of the fines, to the amount of five hundred and thirty dollars ($530) have been accounted for to the county collector by the jail warden or sheriff.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

S. P. DEBBIE,
WILMOT M. CHAPMAN,
A. VANDERBEEK,
Committee.

On motion, received and placed on file.

From committee on jail inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN— Your committee, to whom was referred the matter of providing a "suitable place and work for tramps, disorderly persons," etc., beg leave to report that, while considering the subject, the following resolution, passed by the grand jury, was handed to the director and passed to your committee:

"Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union be requested to examine into the matter and see if some means cannot be provided for the erection of a work-house or houses for the confinement of such persons so confined as vagrants and disorderly persons, or that a suitable enclosure be prepared and supplied with stone, so that they may be able, from the labor performed by them, to get sufficient means of supporting themselves, so that they will not be a burden to the county of Union."

Your committee have examined into the matter, and fully understand that "a work-house, or even work-houses, could be built," for we have the authority and the people of the county the property to be taxed to build them. There is no difficulty in the way except the conservative spirit of the board and a disinclination to increase taxation. We have also the authority to provide a "suitable enclosure, with stone and tools," but as how to get sufficient means from the labor performed to support these vagrants and disorderly persons so that they will not be "a burden on the county," is beyond our comprehension.

This is no new subject to us, we have often considered it. It is seldom we have over one vagrant or tramp to every five thousand inhabitants, and how to engage so few laborers of that class, many of them committed for short terms, to a profitable employment, is a problem we have be unable to solve.

Possibly stone-cracking may drive them on other communities. Should that be the result, it might warrant the expenditure of two hundred and fifty dollars on an enclosure, tools, etc.

We therefore recommend that the experiment be tried, and present the accompanying resolution for the action of the board.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. M. OLIVER,
A. VANDERBEEK,
JOHN ISENMANN,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 12, 1885.

On motion, the report was received and ordered on file.

From committee to take collector's bond:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on collector's bond beg leave to report that we herewith submit the collector's bond, which we have approved after making inquiry as to the parties signing it.

It is the same in amount as last year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN A. HALIDAY,
JAMES T. PIERSON,
ROBERT DARDIS,
Committee.

Elizabeth, May 28, '85.

On motion, report received and placed on file and bond deposited in the county clerk's office.

RESOLUTIONS.

By appropriation committee:

Resolved, By the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, that the sum of one hundred and thirty thousand dollars be raised by tax for the use of said county for the year 1885 to be appropriated, together with thirty-eight thousand dollars of the uncollected taxes and assets of the county, for the following purposes:

7th, For stationery	[illegible]
8th, For advertising, publishing and printing	2,500
9th, For incidental expenses and schools, burial of soldiers and monuments	5,000

II. DEBT AND INTEREST, TO WIT:

1st, Payment of principal of bonded debt	30,000
2d, Payment of interest on bonded debt	23,000
3d, Payment of temporary loans	[illegible]
4th, Payment on bank interest on temporary loans	4,000

III. PUBLIC WORKS.

1st, Permanent improvement of public buildings and grounds	3,000
2d, Erection and repair of culverts and bridges	15,000
	168,000
Less a portion of taxes due from cities and townships and assets due the county	38,000
Total amount to be raised by taxation	$130,000

To be assessed and collected in the manner and at the times prescribed by the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes for the use of the state, and the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in the cities of Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway, in said county, respectively; and that the board hereby direct the assessors of the respective townships and wards in said county to assess the said sum of one hundred and thirty thousand dollars on the inhabitants and their estates, agreeable to the law for the time being for the raising of money by taxation for the use of the state of New Jersey; and that the said assessors meet at the Court house in the city of Elizabeth, on the third Monday in July next, at 10 o'clock a. m., to adjust and ascertain the proportion of said sum to be levied in each township and ward in said county; and that the clerk of the board send a copy of this resolution to each of said assessors.

On motion of Freeholder Debbie, adopted. Seventeen affirmative votes; no negative votes.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That the director and collector be authorized, in their official capacity, to borrow one hundred thousand dollars for the use of the county in anticipation of taxes.

On motion of Freeholder Oliver, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Chapman:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to examine Pine Grove avenue bridge, at Summit, to ascertain the necessity and probable cost of work to be done on said bridge.

On motion of Freeholder Isenmann, adopted; and the following committee appointed by the director:

Freeholders Chapman, Astfalk, Oliver, Roll, Debbie.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to meet a similar committee from Somerset county, to consider the advisability of rebuilding the bridge across Green Brook, on Rock avenue, Plainfield, and report the same to this board.

On motion of Freeholder Oliver, adopted and the following committee appointed: Freeholders Hubbard, Oliver, Vanderbeek, Astfalk, Etheridge.

By Freeholder Oliver:

Resolved, That the jail committee be authorized to spend a sum not to exceed two hundred and fifty dollars in erecting a suitable enclosure where tramps and disorderly persons may be compelled to work during their term of sentence.

On motion of Freeholder Doty, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Howard:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to examine Milton avenue drawbridge; also bridge on Jefferson avenue, in the city of Rahway, and report the probable cost of necessary repairs to one or both, at the next meeting of the board.

On motion of Freeholder Astfalk, adopted and the following committee appointed:

Freeholders Howard, Belmer, Vanderbeek, Doty, Oliver.

By the director:

Resolved, That the collector's report be published in the Journal, Herald, Leader and Free Press, of Elizabeth; the Constitutionalist and CENTRAL TIMES, of Plainfield, and the Advocate and Democrat, of Rahway, at a cost not to exceed $100 to each paper.

Freeholder Chapman moved to amend by adding the Summit Record to the number of papers.

A vote being taken, the amendment was lost.

Freeholder Astfalk moved to amend by making the amount to each paper one hundred and twenty-five dollars.

A vote being taken, the amendment was lost.

Freeholder Oliver moved the adoption of the original resolution, which was carried by the following vote:

Affirmative—Director Martine and Freeholders Astfalk, Belmer, Doty, Debbie, Dardis, Hubbard, Howard, Haliday, Isenmann, Oliver, Pierson, Roll, Vanderbeek—14.

Negative—Freeholders Bauer, Chapman—2.

Freeholder Bauer presented an estimate from the New York Exhaust Ventilator company in reference to ventilating the court room.

Which was, on motion, referred to the committee on public building.

On motion of Freeholder Debbie, the board adjourned.

Preparing for the State Fair.

The New Jersey State Agricultural society have issued their premium books for their twenty-seventh annual fair. The premiums will be $15,000. The fair will open on Monday, September 14, and continue five days. A great many improvements have been and will be made on the extensive grounds. One of the features this year will be the kennel or dog show. The society have always offered a praiseworthy exhibition representing the products of the State, but this year an effort will be made to eclipse even the last exhibition in the matters of magnitude and variety. It is in consideration to build an extensive building in the rear of the grand stand for the consolidation of the refreshment booths. The stands there already built will be rented. This will do away with, in some instances, the uncouth-looking structures hurriedly and cheaply put up by impecunious venders. The State fair at Waverly, situated as it is so close to the metropolis and on the line of the best governed railroad in America, the Pennsylvania railroad, has a grand future before it which will be as a monument to its present general excellence. Already it is learned that farmers, horsemen and others are preparing for the great event. Premium books can be secured at the office of Amos Clark, Jr., on West Grand street.

AN ORDINANCE

Directing the flagging of certain sidewalks on north side of La Grande avenue, between the east side of Washington street and west side of Franklin place.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. The owners of lands fronting on the north side of La Grande avenue, between the east side of Washington street and the westerly side of Franklin place, are hereby required to flag the sidewalks in front of said lands, for a width of at least four feet, [illegible] they are now already flagged with stone flagging. Said flagging shall consist of [illegible], and shall be properly laid to and under the direction of the street commissioner, and shall not be less than four feet long, and not less than two inches thick[illegible].

Sec. 2. Should the said owners neglect to lay the flagging prescribed in this ordinance within [illegible] days after [illegible] becomes a law, then the street commissioner [illegible] authorized and directed to cause the flagging to be laid, and the costs and expense thereof shall be assessed upon and paid by the said owners, and said owners shall be liable for the same in the manner laid down in the city charter.

as a cough remedy.
"While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
"I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. J. W. WHITLEY."
Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY
By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.
The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.
THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE
Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.
The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten, "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.
THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE
Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.
Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

COUNTY COLLECTOR'S REPORT.

Report of P. Sheridan, County Collector of the County of Union. May 1st, 1885.

To the Director and Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Your Committee to settle with the County Collector beg leave to report that they have carefully examined his annual report, which is hereunto annexed, and have compared each disbursement with its accompanying voucher, and find the same correct in every particular.

The bank book was also presented to your committee, showing the amount to agree the difference between the disbursements and receipts.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN A. ETHERIDGE,
JOHN J. DONAHUE, } Committee.
A. VANDERBEEK.

May 1st, 1885.

To the Committee to Settle with the County Collector:

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit herewith my annual report of the receipts and disbursements of the County of Union up to the 1st of May, 1885.

The tax levy for the present year was one hundred and forty thousand (140,000) dollars which will be sufficient to meet all demands.

The amount of bonds falling due was twenty-two thousand dollars, which have been paid.

The school tax next year will be $61,[illegible]. Provision will have to be made for $[illegible] bonds and $21,[illegible] coupons and interest on registered bonds falling due during the year.

My thanks are due you, gentlemen of the committee, as well as all the members of your Board, for the kindly feeling and support given me during the year.

Respectfully submitted,
P. SHERIDAN, County Collector.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

APPOINTMENTS.

It is the earnest desire of the Cleveland Administration to fill public offices with Democratic citizens of known good standing in their respective communities and who possess practical ability for the right discharge of official duties.

That is a wise programme of action, and such as will not only advance and protect the public welfare, but confer lasting honor upon the Democratic party.

The difficulty has been and doubtless continues to be how to get hold of first-class appointees. That such are to be found in every locality cannot be questioned, and that in several instances the appointing power has been grossly deceived by injudicious recommendations is also a truth.

So far as New Jersey is concerned, it seems to us, if the Democratic Congressmen would carefully canvass their own Districts, keeping plainly in view the high official standard set up by President Cleveland and his Cabinet, and after fairly and thoroughly consulting public opinion as to the very best men for appointment, men who would not only faithfully discharge the obligations of office, but do credit to the party, and then certify ascertained facts to the proper Department at Washington, many impediments in the way of sound nominations might be removed and the public service greatly benefited.

LIBERTY.

There is a spirit of patriotism manifested in the presentation of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" by citizens of the French Republic and its acceptance by those of the United States worthy of all commendation, because, aside from the value of the gift as a work of art, it bears testimony to the proven excellence of those grand principles of free government which uphold the dearest blessings of mankind.

The thunder voiced cannon as they echoed and re-echoed over the harbor of New York last Friday, in honor of the French naval vessels bringing to American shores a magnificent and friendly memorial, uttered an eloquent tribute to both the historic past and the living present.

The fact should be held in lasting and grateful remembrance that during the anxious days of our struggle for national liberty, it was France that bid her military and naval forces go forth to the support and final achievement of Independence. Beside Washington on the glorious field of Yorktown, in full sympathy with the American cause, stood La Fayette and the armed battalions of his gallant countrymen.

So points Liberty to the past.

More than a hundred years have sped away, and now, the French sustained infant nationality of October 19, 1781, is the strongest government on earth, dispelling by her cheering example of freedom the dark shadows of Kingcraft, and infusing hope into the down-trodden and oppressed people of every clime. And furthermore, beside her to-day, in national affinity, stands France, proudly waving aloft the banner of a sister Republic.

So speaks Liberty of the present.

The Bartholdi statue is one of the grandest conceptions of the age. May it firmly stand upon its popularly erected pedestal, and wider and wider cast its enlightening rays until the entire globe shall bask secure in the joyous light of Civil and Religious Liberty.

AT LAST.

The appointment of a Collector for the Third Internal Revenue District, has at last been made by the President, after weeks of struggling between Senator McPherson and Congressmen Green and Pidcock for a choice. On Saturday last President Cleveland announced the name of Matthew H. Vanderveer, of Somerville, to be the successor of Culver Barcalow, the present incumbent. The appointment is a good one, and we are satisfied will suit both parties in the District, while it is a victory for no particular one. Mr. Vanderveer's name has been mentioned in connection with the appointment ever since the election of a Democratic President, although he was at no time as prominent a candidate as others named. Besides his fitness for the position the selection of his name by the President seems to have been a sort of compromise to put an end to the warring between Senator and Congressmen. Mr. Vanderveer is an unswerving Democrat and a man of ability, and honesty. He is the present County Clerk of Somerset county. Now let us have peace.

Same Government for All.

The opinion of the Supreme Court, rendered by Justice Van Syckel, is of great importance to the people of the State, inasmuch as it not only defeats the attempt to legislate for particular localities by the classification of boroughs, but also attacks the same scheme for cities.

The Court accepts as the groundwork of its decision the rules, as previously laid down—

1. That the word "town" in the amendments to the Constitution forbidding special legislation means all municipal corporations, and includes cities, towns and boroughs, incorporated as such.

2. That this provision cannot be evaded by classifying towns on a basis which has no relation to the subjects on which they are classified.

In this case the Court holds that the classification by boroughs is illusory, because there is no natural connection between the population of a borough and the question as to what power shall grant license to sell liquor therein.

The Court goes further, and says that the act in question is special, even upon the basis of population, because it excludes from its provisions places of the same size which have been incorporated as cities,—but which under the previous decision of the Court of Errors must be considered as coming, equally with the boroughs, under the Constitutional term of "towns."

On this point the Court cites several instances in which so-called boroughs are of much greater population than cities, and leaves it plainly to be inferred that they must all be considered as one, and that any attempt to legislate on a basis of population in regard to subjects of which population is not an inherent element or characteristic is vain.

This decision will again balk the attempt of legislatures to break through the limits of the Constitutional amendment, as prescribed by the Supreme Court in one of the earliest decisions, and will re-awaken the demand for a system of general laws which has been deferred year after year because of a hope that some way would be found to avoid the rigorous rule of the amended Constitution.—[illegible] American.

SENATOR McPHERSON SPEAKS.

The following is Senator McPherson's reply to newspaper criticisms now going on regarding his political career:

The Jews, it is said, flailed anew the thrice threshed straw whenever there was a famine in Israel.

The following, which for convenience I will take the liberty of numbering, (and refer to by numbers) was mailed to me yesterday and is said to be a clipping from the Trenton True American. From whatever newspaper it came it is a rehash of malicious falsehoods, which failed in their purpose before and will scarcely serve the new purpose now. I have never dignified them with a public denial and would not do so now were they not connected with some new matters about which the public have a right to know:

No. 1. It is now eight long years since the election referred to took place, and I have never heard of said charge before, except as vague rumor, always busy on such occasions. It will not, however, be forgotten, my election at that time caused some people great distress, and the public will scarcely believe that the so-called authenticated proofs would not have been brought into requisition to undo what at first they tried to prevent. Lies never prove anything—this is a lie and all the circumstances show it to be such. As to matters of intrigue with Republicans, I shall make but one answer which, I trust, will be sufficient. It is a lie, and the proof is in the knowledge of every man, Democrat and Republican, in the State.

From 1876 to 1885 I have been in charge almost absolutely of the Democratic politics of the State, and during that time in matters intrusted to me we have never suffered a political defeat. I have repeatedly tried to shift the labor and responsibility to other shoulders, and on every such attempt friend and foe alike have demurred—and especially those I cannot count as my friends. It is true a Democratic Senator was not elected in 1880, but I was not charged specially with the work, but was charged with the responsibility at the same election of carrying the State for Hancock. It was done, and at great personal sacrifice to me, and without my personal effort thus directed no one believes that result would have been reached. I say this without egotism; and it is all I need say on this subject.

No. 2. If by this is meant my votes upon the financial and tariff measures before Congress, the only two important measures in which I have not acted with my party associates, then I fear I am still in "subordination." I may also add, in subordination to my own conscience and sense of right, and in subordination to the often expressed will and demand of the Democratic people of the State. We have never entered upon a campaign upon any other platform and never will.

No. 3. This charge happened to be made the same week in which the Legislature which re-elected me to the Senate convened; although aged at the time it was made. The complaint and my answer will be found by any one sufficiently interested to examine the record spread at large upon the court records of New York city. It will there be found that a few days after my answer was filed the suit was withdrawn by the complainant. Why, I don't pretend to say, nor why the following card from the complainant in the case which appeared in all the papers a few days subsequent to my selection for a second term was made public. I quote the card:

MR. RUBLING EXONERATES SENATOR MCPHERSON.

[From the N. Y. World of January 24, 1883.]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WORLD—SIR:—Since filing my bill in equity against John R. McPherson I have been made acquainted with facts and circumstances of which, prior to the filing of my bill I was ignorant, and which go to show that he was not pecuniarily interested in stock cars or patents while a member of the United States Senate. I am now satisfied that his efforts in behalf of legislation were from humane rather than from selfish motives. I also learn from the public press that use is making of my suit to affect unfavorably the political canvass of Senator McPherson. This has not been at any time my intention or desire, and I should greatly regret if it should tend to produce that result. I have therefore directed my legal advisers to discontinue the suit against him. It is only just to say the discontinuance is made wholly without the knowledge of Senator McPherson.

(Signed) J. F. RUBLING.

New York, January 23, 1883.

I suppose this second statement left no issue between us as to a fact, and the only one in the complaint in which the public had or felt the least interest. The public, unless personally interested, feel but little interest in a contest involving nothing but money, and I beg pardon for referring to it at all; but that even the True American may have light upon a point which seems to trouble it greatly, I gladly give it. I paid no money at any time, near or remote, nor authorized it to be paid, in settlement of this alleged claim, and since the withdrawal of the suit have had no demand made upon me whatever. I have never received or seen any of the papers alluded to, and for other information I refer to the court records.

No. 4. I do profess a great regard for both President Cleveland and Secretary Bayard. I have no knowledge of their civil service predilections, if they have any. Foreign ministers and consulates, for which places we have in New Jersey very many worthy applicants, do not come under civil service rules. I thought they could very properly give some of these appointments to New Jersey—and have made to them daily requests for such action—and have complained that it has not been done.

No. 5. I do not know to what this charge refers except it be to an article that appeared in the New York World, and which is not altogether my statement, and the article in question does not say it is. I have no recollection of being interviewed by anybody during the past six months, and am not in the habit of denying or affirming the statements of others.

One word as to the political situation in which the public feel some interest. The President is "going slow" to avoid mistakes, and in this he is acting wisely. Whatever may be his views, of which I know nothing, touching removals from office and appointments thereto, he is obliged to obey the law, which gives him but little liberty or choice in the matter.

In respect of New Jersey appointments, in all districts having a Democratic representative in Congress I take no action as to appointments, except when specially called upon to interfere, and I hope I shall not be.

As to the Congressional districts represented by Republicans: In counties represented by a Democrat in the State Senate I have requested such Senator to ascertain the wish of the people in regard to postmasters and other federal offices in the county and certify the same to me. When there is no Democratic Senator it is referred to the members of the State or County Committee or both, and their action is indorsed by me to the appointing power.

The only appointments I have personally recommended were for Collectors of Internal Revenue, which action I would gladly have avoided but circumstances prevented. I have filed every application for removals for cause—and have requested an immediate investigation of the same. I have indorsed nearly every applicant for some office—in some cases advising a change as to office to be applied for.

(Signed) J. R. MCPHERSON.

WHY IS IT?

Is there any pretense that the men who are now being put into office are any better than those who are turned out to make room for them? If this is not so, why substitute inexperienced for experienced.—Elizabeth Journal.

Because they have been there long enough. Turn the rascals out.

LOCAL ANNEX.

Billy Button's Fast Time.

On Thursday afternoon at Narragansett Park, Providence, R. I., Mr. John W. Stearns' Billy Button trotted, and made the best eight consecutive heats on record in the 2.21 class, making one heat in 2.18½. The average time was 2.20¼.

As Proud as Possible.

Frank Blatz, son of Mr. Joseph Blatz, of North Plainfield, was ten years old on Wednesday, and his father made the little lad's heart glad with a pony and cart as cute as a Christmas card. For the next six months that boy will be the proudest man in the Borough; not excepting the coming Mayor and Councilmen.

Serenading Collector Vanderveer.

Matthew H. Vanderveer, who was appointed by President Cleveland internal revenue collector for the Third New Jersey district, was serenaded by the citizens of Somerville, irrespective of party, last Monday night. Speeches eulogistic of the appointment and appointee were made by J. T. Van Cleef, Charles Honeyman, John Maxwell and others.

Let Our Mayor Do Likewise.

An ordinance to prevent dogs running at large upon the streets has been published by Mayor Grier, of Elizabeth. It provides that during the months of June, July, August and September, dogs found without muzzles may be killed by any person whatever, and in a supplement police officers and constables are directed to kill such dogs, for which they will be allowed a compensation of fifty cents for every dog so killed. The authorities intend enforcing this ordinance to the letter.

"The Russian Honeymoon."

The above, according to the New York press critics, "is the prettiest of all the pretty plays which have been seen at the Madison Square theatre," and one of importance and undoubted interest." The people of the city were also enthusiastic in its praise and in its appreciation of the play during the long run that was accorded it. A selected caste direct from Madison Square company will present this bright little comedy at Music Hall next Tuesday evening; and Manager Marsh's demand that it shall be presented in the very best manner, has been agreed to.

Another Good Move.

By order of the Board of Health, pipes of sufficient size are to be laid along either side of the North avenue sewer from the corner of Park avenue to the large cesspool opposite the depot, which will hereafter drain all the sewage matter from buildings along the line, whose owners have the privilege from the city to tap the sewer for that purpose. Once a week the vault or cesspool will be cleaned of its contents by the city. The sewer will be again connected at that point and used only for its original purpose, that of carrying off the water from the streets at the railroad crossings, and emptying it into Green Brook. The other cesspool into which the sewer emptied at the corner of Peace and Second streets will be filled in, and the sewer connected at that point also. By this means no sewage matter other than that carried off the streets by the waters after rains will be allowed to empty into Green Brook, as has formerly been the case. The Board of Health are bound that the city shall not be responsible for any pollution of that stream. Others who are doing so have received proper notice to abate such violation of law.

Bicycle Records.

There will be a Club run, to-morrow afternoon, starting from the rooms at three o'clock. There will be a short evening run at seven o'clock.

A number of the Club members will participate and a few will compete in the bicycle races at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, July 4th, at two o'clock.

The Club is under great obligations to Messrs. Clark W. Evans, John M. Crane and others of its members for desirable contributions to the comforts and furnishings of the new rooms.

Ex-Judge Suydam is a lover of bicycling and a friend of its votaries. Although not a member of the Club, he has presented that organization with an elegant raw-silk portierre for its new rooms.

Last year's records for six months and twenty-four hours, are framed and hanging on the Club room walls. This year's records are yet to be made, but to excel the previous ones will require a great deal of getting up early in the morning.

Personals.

Mrs. Charles D. Wadsworth will summer as usual at the Wachusett House, Princeton, Mass.

Mr. Richard H. Hasbrouck died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Seymour Hait, yesterday morning.

The death of Elizabeth Stockton Green, daughter of Judge Ashbel Green, and niece of Congressman Robt. Green, is announced, occurring June 23.

Mrs. George Thatcher, wife of George Thatcher of minstrel fame, died at her residence in Westfield, N. J., on Thursday last, after a lingering illness.

Mr. John Hall, formerly a resident here, and now engaged in the lumber business at Williamsport, Pa., is stopping at Force's Hotel, while transacting business for his firm in this city.

Mr. James Keeney, of New Orleans, is visiting his sister, Miss Dr. Keeney, of Fourth street, this city. Mr. K. was one of the eighty-five officials, citizens and firemen of New Orleans, who acted as escort to the Liberty Bell on its way home from that city to Philadelphia.

The sudden death of Dr. Arnold at his office in New York city, was a shock to those who had met him a few days before while a guest at Netherwood. The heartfelt sympathy of hosts of sincere friends is possessed by the brilliant and accomplished young lady of this city who was more than all others to the deceased.

A Novel Exhibit.

Among the many objects of interest in the new art gallery, there is a collection of unused postage stamps and postal cards, which to the average sight-seer might not be considered worthy of more than passing interest, were not its beauties and peculiarities to some extent explained. This collection was collected and mounted by Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman of this city; and though it is not very large in numbers, it is remarkable for its having a representation from every stamp issuing country that is now issuing or that ever has issued postage stamps. In the centre of the frame there is an original Mulready wrapper, issued in 1840 in the finest condition possible for it to be, of which the principal dealers in this country have not seen a duplicate in such fine condition. When Sir Rowland Hill had perfected his postal system, this design was the one which he selected as the form of prepayment. The observer will do well to note the change from this cumbersome form of prepayment to the more convenient one of to-day. Among the many stamps which comprise the border around the wrapper, we note especially the one from Corea, which to the historian, will prove of more than ordinary interest. About March of this year a number of Japanese officials went to Corea, intending to confer the postal system upon the inhabitants of Corea, but a few days after the system was inaugurated, the Coreans, apparently not desiring these benefits, murdered the post-office officials, burned the postoffice, and destroyed all the stamps they could lay their hands upon—thus abolishing, for the present, any postal system in that country. Among the other stamps to be found in the frame, we notice those from the Reunion Islands, the originals of which are worth five hundred dollars apiece. There are also a large number of postal cards, among them some very curious ones, notably those from Cashmere, Jhoend, and Siam. The smallest denomination of stamp used for prepaying postage, is also represented by that of Spain, of the value of one quarter cent, de pesetas, twenty of which equal only one cent in our currency. The largest denomination is also represented by the five pounds of Great Britain, equal to about twenty-five dollars in our currency. There being many stamps in the collection, whose nationality might not be distinguishable to the casual observer, the name written in English has been placed beneath them. As much valuable information in the way of practical knowledge is imparted to students of this branch of curiosities, called Philately, it is with the view to fostering collections of this kind in our community, that this collection is put on exhibition.

The Mayor's Health Protective Measures.

Mayor Rockfellow is determined that proper sanitary measures shall be observed in our city, so that infectious diseases may be warded off. Since his induction into office, the Board of Health have been called together and active measures inaugurated by them to see that the health ordinances are properly enforced. As a result there is to-day less of the evils complained of in consequence of parties dumping refuse matter in open lots and cleaning out cess-pools by daylight, than under former administrations. Violators of the health ordinances will be promptly arrested and summarily dealt with. His Honor will have the thanks of the community for his efforts toward cleanliness in the city.

Step Up, Philanthropists!

The Hon. Job Male's public spirit and charity has made him indeed admired and esteemed by the entire community. The latest evidence of his philanthrophy is the erection of a public library and art gallery to be presented by him to the City of Plainfield for the free use of its people forever. He justly believes, however, that the public itself should so far appreciate the benefit of the gift, as to fill its walls and shelves with works of art and literature. Twenty thousand dollars for this purpose was required, and eighteen thousand dollars has been raised. If there are other citizens in Plainfield—as public spirited as Mr. Male and the few that have already subscribed—who are able to donate together the two thousand dollars still needed, we trust they will do so at once, that on the opening night of next Thursday the announcement may be made of the completion of the fund.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The Plainfield Gun Club announce that they will produce a man aged over 67 years, who will shoot a match at glass balls against any man of like age in this State, for a purse of $50. Trot out your uncles, boys.

Members of the Bound Brook and Plainfield Gun Clubs had an interesting glass ball shoot at the former place last Friday. Some good scores were made. This Friday the same parties will shoot again on the latter's grounds near Evona.

In the pigeon match at Campbell's Club House last Saturday, between Lebbeus Ayres, of Oak Tree School House, and Mr. Crowell, of Perth Amboy, each tied on six birds out of fifteen each. In shooting off the ties Ayres won by killing two birds to his opponent's nothing. Next Saturday there will be a match on the same grounds between Lebbeus Ayres and Mr. VanSicklen, of Metuchen, at clay pigeons, for $25 a side.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. THOMAS W. COIT.

[From the New York Times, June 23.]

The Rev Thomas Winthrop Coit, D. D., died at Middletown, Conn., Sunday night. He was the eldest son of Dr. Thomas and Mary W. Saltonstall Coit, and was born in New London, June 28, 1803. He was graduated at Yale in 1821, entered the ministry of the Episcopal church, and became successively Rector of St. Peter's church, Salem, Mass., in 1827; of Christ church, Cambridge, Mass., in 1829, and Trinity church, New Rochelle, N. Y., in 1839, and still later, of St. Paul's church, Troy, N. Y. Since 1854 he had been a Professor in the Berkeley Divinity School, and resigning his Rectorship in Troy in 1872 since resided in Middletown. Dr. Coit was among the foremost scholars of the Episcopal church, and was the author of several able works in defense of its doctrines and position. Besides a large number of addresses, sermons, and contributions to the church papers and reviews, he has left a large library filled with marginal notes made in his beautifully clear handwriting that is of inestimable value to its present owner, the Berkeley Divinity School. Dr. Coit's mother was a daughter of Gov. Saltonstall, he was also a great-grandson of Gov. Winthrop. Dr. Coit was an uncle of Mrs. L. B. Morrison, of this city.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Some of our sportsmen say there is no woodcock in Ash Swamp.

John Peiffer is a reposer for the newspapers. What next, John?

The Assessor has his assessment roll for the year 1885 nearly complete.

The Fourth only one week off and as yet no preparation for its celebration.

A Chinese laundry is soon to be opened on Prospect street near the Lyceum building.

Mr. Bilye and Mr. Harden, of North avenue take the cake for the finest strawberries.

Chas. L. Welch and family started on Tuesday last for a visit to his friends and relatives in his native state—Virginia.

One of our ice merchants was seen at the corner of Broad and Market streets, Newark, on Tuesday last viewing the procession.

Three persons were confirmed at the Episcopal church before a large congregation last Sunday. Bishop Scarborough officiated.

Mr. Treynor is about fencing his lot on Elm street. If the rest of the owners of lots would do the same it would be an improvement.

Mr. James L. Miller and his daughter Bessie have gone on a fortnight's trip through New York state. They expect to visit Niagara before returning.

Our "Eclipse" base ball-club played last Saturday a nine of the Sturtevant avenue club of Brooklyn. The Westfield boys were "scooped" by a score of 18 to 12.

The wife of Mr. Lewis W. Heinzer of Georgetown, Delaware, is on a visit to our town. She is the guest of Mr. Heinzer's father who resides on Central ave.

The members of the Congregational church and Sabbath school anticipate having a very pleasant time on their excursion to Oscawanna Island next Wednesday.

The law against cruelty to animals ought to be enforced. Some evil-disposed person has been placing poison on our public streets and a number of pet dogs have died from the effects of the poison.

The ladies of the Episcopal church at their ice cream entertainment last week netted fifty dollars for the church fund. The church edifice has been painted outside and beautifully decorated walls adorn the inside.

Divine services are to be held on Sunday morning next at the "Mountain Home," Balters Roll hill, at the residence of Dr. George H. Perine. The Rev. Mr. T. B. Stryker, of the Metropolitan church of Humanity will officiate.

The town committee at their next meeting in July will no doubt issue warrants for the collection of unpaid taxes due on real estate for the year 1884. Those in arrears will save costs and expense by calling on Collector Pierson before the warrants are issued, and settle the same.

Mr. John Doner jumped from the 11.30 a. m. train Wednesday last at the Central avenue crossing. The brakes had not yet been applied and consequently when Mr. Doner struck the earth he tumbled and rolled about in a very loose manner. Mr. Doner escaped with bruised hands and face and torn clothing. After picking himself up he thought he had better waited until the train arrived at the depot and alighted from the cars as other people do.

THE rich members who believe they are a very particular part of the very aristocratic congregation of a very swell church of this city, sat through the distress and torment of the organ, Sunday, without a visible blush of shame.

THE new time table that went into effect Sunday, contained few and unimportant changes. The 7:58 a. m., train from Plainfield leaves one minute later and stops at Netherwood. The 8:00 p. m., from New York leaves hereafter at 8:15.

THE strawberry festival at Ryder Hall, Thursday evening of last week, in aid of Bethel Mission, was an unexpected success. This is to the credit of the few members of the Crescent avenue church who have labored so earnestly in the cause.

MESSRS. KRATSKE & HOGAN, for so long past efficient workmen in the employ of Messrs. Berry & Thorn, have stepped into the vacancy left by the late firm and are filling contracts for plumbing, heating and gas and steam fitting in all their branches.

WE had Harrigan and his company, without Hart. Next month we are to have Hart and his company, without Harrigan. We hope for Mr. Tony Hart's sake and Plainfield's credit, that Mr. Ned. Harrigan's success will be equalled by that of his late partner.

IN just five days the new postal law will go into effect and people will no longer have to hesitate and hitch over the question whether a letter will require an extra stamp. With one ounce instead of a half ounce for the limit, all ordinary correspondence will pass. This will be a great convenience.

CONSTABLE ALEX GEE of North Plainfield was on Tuesday last placed under $500 bonds to appear before the Somerset county Court at the September term. He was charged by John Brute Holmes with assault, upon a recent occasion of serving one of the periodical writs that issue against the latter.

ON Wednesday, July 1st, Mr. E. P. Thorn will open a number of bottles of Ballantine's lager beer, bottled by Wirtz, which has been standing in his show windows, exposed to the sun's rays for a year. His customers are invited to be present and give their opinion as to the excellency of this beer after such a severe test.

ONE of the most successful fishing clubs is the Sand Pond Club, which has a long lease of the Sand Pond, a beautiful lake three miles long, on the top of a high mountain near Hamburg, Sussex county, where they have a complete club house. State Comptroller E. J. Anderson and "Boss" Hugh McLaughlin, of Brooklyn, are among the members.

THE business of the late John N. Steiner will be continued at the old stand under the firm name of John N. Steiner's Sons, under the management of George W. Steiner. The reputation established in an experience of thirty years in manufacturing and selling first-class cigars and tobacco will be kept up. And they solicit a continuance of the patronage of the public.

MR. PETER HENSON coachman for Mr. Harry H. Moore of Grove street, was the victim of a runaway accident on Tuesday afternoon. The pole strap breaking the thousand-dollar team he was driving dashed into Mrs. Lisignolo's turn-out at the depot and generally wrecked both vehicles. Henson was thrown out and carried to his home, where he is steadily recovering. Mrs. Lisignolo fortunately escaped any great damage.

GEROME PACK & SON have a full line of fireworks, crackers, etc., at their place of business on Park avenue. The small boy and big boy will undoubtedly patronize this old established house on the Fourth.

THE Hotel Netherwood is filling rapidly, and the end of next month will find it without a vacant room. So great has been the demand that prices uniformly higher than ever before have gladly been given for the choice of suites.

THE Hotel Tenakill at Demarest, N. J., is full for the first time in many seasons—but it is now under the management of Mr. C. L. Johnson, who was the proprietor of the Park House in this city when that resort was a popular one.

THE Messrs. Moore Bros., on North avenue, last week disposed of 125 pounds of salmon to their customers in this city. They have facilities for keeping on hand fish fresh and palatable. Parties desiring bait for fishing excursions, will have their orders promptly filled by this firm.

THOUGH pressed to do so, Mayor Rockfellow does not intend to prohibit the small boy from enjoying himself, and remembering the day, by firing off firecrackers and other Chinese inventions, on July Fourth. His Honor recollects that he was a small boy once, and "knows how it is himself." Let the rising generation enjoy themselves as the older ones did when they were boys on the great and glorious Fourth.

THE owner of a property on W. Front street, who has been in the habit of removing night soil therefrom at night, contrary to the provisions of a health ordinance, leaving quantities of the matter exposed on the ground, was notified by the Health Inspector that he would be arrested if he again renewed the practice. Saturday evening found him again repeating the offence. He was arrested and taken before Judge Ulrich, who fined him $10 for his violation of the law.

Oh, For Electric Lights.

All the machinery is here, the contract with the Telephone Company to use its poles is completed, and the electric lights in our city and at The Netherwood will be burning before many days.

Borough Primary.

The primary to be called over-the-brook by the Citizen's Association, it is rumored, will occur next Thursday evening, July 2d. Quite some interest is felt in the event and a large attendance is probable.

Public Band Concerts.

The Plainfield Cornet Band intend to have a public rehearsal upon the last Friday evening of each week hereafter, during the Summer. The public are cordially invited to attend at such places as will be announced.

One Of The Best.

Mr. Charles Boice has been appointed by the Postmaster-General, postmaster of Dunellen in place of Mr. Charles Pope, deceased. The selection gives general and unusual satisfaction to all people and both parties. Mr. Boice has removed the office to his store.

Too Proud To Work.

One of the city's paupers might have been seen on North avenue, recently, having his boots blacked by a colored boy who received five cents from the destitute (?) customer for the service. And yet some think such "gentlemen" should be brought up on a Poor Farm!

So Far As Our Experience Goes.

The finest strawberries this season, excelling anything in size, flavor and firmness are the "Downings" raised by Mr. Halsey Compton. Of course this opinion of ours is liable to be changed should the grower of a better berry prove its worth by the evidence of a quart or two sent to the office.

Early Closing.

A movement is on foot to bring about a universal closing of dry and fancy goods stores at 7 o'clock during the evenings of July and August. The sympathy of the people in general is with the clerks that serve them; and the merchants who adopt the righteous plan proposed will receive the endorsement of their best patrons

The Opening Hop Later.

Extra music at the Hotel Netherwood, last Saturday evening, attracted some of the young people of the city who embraced the opportunity of a summer night's dance. Every Saturday evening hereafter the same fine music will be furnished, and the grand invitation hop that is to be the real "opening of the season," will be arranged in a week or two.

Wrong, As Usual.

The Sun, which has been "all wrong" on politics for a year past, states that Mr. Vanderveer of Somerville, recently appointed revenue collector, "resides in Plainfield and is Clerk of Union county." To relieve the minds of the many friends of Clerk Vosseller, we would state that he is still with us and rapidly regaining his former good health and spirits.

Prepared For College.

Messrs. Albert Tilney, Harvy Opdyke, Percy Stewart, Carleton Ryder and Dean Ryder are coming honor men at Yale College. They have been prepared at Prof. Leal's school for a preliminary examination to be completed prior to their entrance to the college in 1886. Mr. Charles Bleecker and Mr. Alfred Price will enter Columbia College from the same thorough and excellent source.

An In Door Picnic.

The picnic to be held in the Casino during Saturday afternoon and evening of next week, will be a most novel and enjoyable entertainment. A full band of music will be in attendance, and an abundance of refreshments obtainable. No finer dancing floor can be offered in the State. This picnic is to be the most novel and largest affair of its kind. Every enjoyment obtainable will be furnished in abundance; and every one present will be entirely satisfied.

Two Of a Kind.

Mr. George Demeza had two of his fingers badly injured Monday by the engine used in his kindling wood factory on Somerset street. Supposing it had stopped, he thoughtlessly laid his hand where the last revolution of the crank had just power enough to strip the flesh from the bone.

The next day a lad named Winckler, working about the same engine, ran his hand through some of the gearing and badly crushed it. Neither of the victims will lose any fingers.

Art Gallery Opening.

The opening of the Male Public Library and Art Gallery that is announced for next Tuesday, will not only be a "swell affair" but also a financial success. The building itself with its interior arrangements and permanent attractions, is enough to incite the curiosity and insure the attendance of the community; but added to all that is the promise of an exhibition of loaned art treasures, an address by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, music by Lander's orchestra, refreshments and dancing. The musical selections to be rendered are as follows:

Nanon	Genee.
Gasparone	Millocker.
Carmen	Bizet.
Prince Methusalem	Strauss.
Viola-Gavotte	Hill.
Grace and Beauty	[illegible]

PUBLIC SCHOOL COMMENCEMENTS.

This (Thursday) evening Public School Commencements are announced to take place in many towns and cities, all of which will possess a certain amount of interest in the localities where they occur. In Plainfield, North Plainfield, Westfield and pay stations the usual arrangement of graduating exercises will be carried out; the programmes of some of these we present in this issue. We regret exceedingly that we cannot include a description of the sweet graduates' dresses that are such an important part of the stupid affairs; or state the number of floral offerings received by the fairest sayists. But as this paper is printed before the evening hour set for the beginning of the exercises, we can only present a prospective outline of the events.

PLAINFIELD.

The closing exercises of our own particular school will be held in our own particular Music Hall; and the entire orchestra will be reserved for the own particular friends of the graduates, city officials and others included in a list of a favored three hundred. The class of '85 is one of the most talented—and one of the smallest—that has been graduated from the Plainfield High School in the past fifteen years. Its motto is "Certum Pete Finem," and its number is eight. The English of the motto can be found in the back of Webster's Dictionary, and the graduates are:

J. Augusta Ackerman,
Maude A. Bowers,
Estelle Daniel,
Florence G. Hawkins,
Annie A. Moore,
Florence M. Randolph,
Julia G. Taylor,
William D. Thickstun.

Each of the above is honored with an appointment, not because necessary to fill out a programme but because of individual merit. The full titles of the subjects and their subjects, are:

Henry David Thoreau	Wm. Daniel Thickstun.
The Kremlin	Jennie Augusta Ackerman.
Landscapes of Tennyson	Florence Genevieve Hawkins.
The Six Boy Kings of England	Annie Augusta Moore.
National Flowers	Julia Graham Taylor.
Forest Music	Florence Mabelle Randolph.
Cobwebs	Maud Agnes Bowers.
Song of the Poets, with Valedictory	Estelle Daniel.

Prizes will be awarded for excellence in the following branches, by the following generous gentlemen and ladies, to the following fortunate competitors:

PRIZE WINNERS.

First and second prize in penmanship, offered by Mr. J. W. Murray.

First prize for best specimen of penmanship—Edith R. Leonard.

Deserving Honorable Mention—Alice Quinn, Lulu B. Runyon, Thomas N. Horn, Theo. J. Gillies, Jr., J. Augusta Ackerman, James H. Wagner, Leora Wenzel, Emma L. Adams, Katie Mullen, Frank E. Newman.

Second prize for greatest improvement in penmanship—Clarence N. Mundy.

Deserving Honorable Mention—Willie A. Crawford, Lillie A. Moore, Louis G. Newman, Ross A. Pearce.

First and second prize for mathematics, offered by Mrs. C. H. Stillman.

First prize, Estelle Daniel; second prize, Florence G. Hawkins.

Prize for United States History, offered by Mr. J. W. Murray—Lulu B Runyon.

Honorable Mention—Annie W. Crane, Hattie Leeh, Wm. Rockwell, Fletcher Hallock.

Prize for English Composition, offered by Mr. J. Kirkner—Edith R. Leonard.

Honorable Mention—Maude Bowers, 1st; Emma L. Adams, 2d; Edward T. Perine, 3d; Fred T. Cuthbert; 4th; Walter L. Chamberlin, 5th.

Prize for Spelling, offered by Mr Mason W. Tyler—Ella C. Woltmann.

Honorable Mention—Ella U. Osborne.

First and second prize for Botany, offered by Mrs. C. A. Rutter—First prize, Kittie L. Clem; second prize, Augusta Holmes.

Following this there will be an address by Prof. Henry M. Tyler of Smith College; and Judge Nathan Harper, who will preside in the absence of John W. Murray, Esq., will present the diplomas.

The Board of Education includes

John W. Murray, President,
Nathan Harper, Secretary,
Mason W. Tyler,
Rev. J. L. Hurlbut,
Lewis F. Wadsworth.

The music by the Seventh Regiment Band will consist of

Overture—Summer Night's Dream	Suppe.
Gavotte—Octavia	Wiegand.
Serenade	Moszkowski
Selection—Lohengrin	Wagner
Waltz—Estudiantina	Waldteufel

NATIONAL AIRS.

The class averages above past classes in personal appearance, and the collective essays are fully up to the standard of past productions. From them we have selected the following essay by Miss Maude Agnes Bowers, and print it in full with Miss Estelle Daniel's valedictory. Miss Bowers' subject is a novel one, treated in a remarkably original and beautiful manner. It even excels in some respects many former works of this talented lady. Its delivery will be appropriate in manner and almost perfect in every part. Miss Bowers received the first prize for English Composition in each of the years of 1883 and 1884, and first Honorable mention in 1885.

COBWEBS.

It is early morning! The whole earth is bathed in the golden glory of the rising sun. On the grass, many filmy cobwebs, with dew-drops of sparkling loveliness twinkling among their meshes, are stretched in a shining network. The small spiders who wrought these fairy wonders have gone, and left these airy evidences of their presence under the shining sky. Soon the great orb of day will disperse these frail threads, and only the remembrance of their beauty will remain. These tiny webs are like some finished and lovely lives. A quiet corner in this busy world is chosen, and the strong threads of love and charity are flung out in all directions, taking firm hold within the hearts of the "lowly and humble of the earth." When the woof, with dew drops of good deeds clinging among its meshes, is completed, it is taken, only too soon, into the great Light which illumines its mystical glory, until only the holy memory of a god-like life remains to those who knew it. Now it is dewy evening. The hour of vespers in the great cathedral. The priests, robed in snowy whiteness, are chanting in dreamy monotone. The swinging incense, divine emblem of ascending prayer, fills the soft air with its sweet presence. The setting sun, with warm radiance, streams through the stained glass glory of the high windows, flooding the altar, aisles and marble with wondrous beauty, and shedding a calm and peaceful light upon the bowed heads of the people, who are reverently kneeling in prayer. From the "dim religious light" of a distant nave, the rich, mellow tones of the organ add an irresistably holy charm to the kneeling throng, until their "very souls are lifted up and borne away on the swelling tide of harmony." High up over this peaceful throng, in a deep and shadowy corner, is a small spider in the midst of its thickly-woven snare. Among the lofty beams where the sun can never penetrate, and where the dust of years upon years has collected, wary and alert, intent only upon prey, the solemnity of the scene below, nor the sacred building upon which its home rests, cannot affect its existence—Its very life is the one conscious task of securing its prey! Out in the busy world are many ensnared in strong meshes of worry and care, who pass heedlessly by the sweetest spiritual influences and high, noble surroundings—holding before their eyes the one pursuit of business, and in their minds the one aim of money-making. And like the spider who builds his nest on a flowery bank, and who only goes out at night to rid the earth of hurtful insects, is the helpful life of charity, which hides itself in the deep caves of truth, and sallies forth into the night of ignorance and air, sweeping out falsehood, doubt and doctrinal errors with a strong and kindly hand. There are many in our world, who move idly from one thing to another in this great, busy creation, like spiders that weave webs from day to day, sometimes more than one in a day, leaving them as soon as completed; and others that fasten one end of a filmy thread to any foundation, sometimes firm, oftener weak, and swing aimlessly to and fro in the breezy sunshine, only to drop down after a time, leaving the incompleted thread fluttering in gauzy proof of its useless life. These idle ones, move listlessly from one thing to another in this great, busy creation, wasting their bright gifts; dabbling first in one thing, then in another, never finishing anything. Though with clever genius, bright beginnings are often made, yet the projects are abandoned long before their finished beauty can be admired. These lives of loosely-woven threads fastened carelessly upon insecure foundations, are floating webs of wasted life. Literature, like the web of the house-spider, begins with a tiny nucleus, from which radii are thrown out to cling upon sure foundations. These radii support the most perfect geometric figures which grow larger and larger around their common center. England has just cause to be proud of Chaucer, the great center of the web of English literature. And Shakespeare, whose works make a perfect web. Sparkling in the light of wonderful originality and diversity of thought, and shining with dewdrops of beautiful sentiments. Milton's works, too, describe a perfect web in themselves; wonderful and sublime threads of thought make up this sombre web of divine ideas; but its grandeur will always remain before the grateful eyes of the world. "Rare Ben Jonson" with his dry humor; Spenser in his sweet and fanciful language, and myriads of others with sparkling wit and bright thoughts are circles of brilliant, intellectual beauty which sweep around their great bright centre, and complete the web of England's literary glory.

Languages, laws and customs, all grow out of smallest centres. From what a tiny nucleus was our great country developed; out of the handful of brave spirits who first set foot on the barren shores of the Atlantic coast, have grown a great and honorable people; To complete this web around such a tiny nucleus was not an easy task, and it was attended by almost insurmountable obstacles, and severe hardships and difficulties. Famine and poverty assailed it first, making its foundations unsteady; but strong threads of perseverance, pluck and industry were thrown out, and the great work went on steadily from day to day and year to year. When it had grown into a tiny web, strong even in its incompleteness, relentless and mighty enemies assailed it, and for a long time the destruction of its very existence was feared. But, at last, the glorious sunshine of Liberty burst out after the night of despair and doubt, revealing its shining web of victory and honor, stronger than before, and more firmly established in the faithful hearts of those who defended it so loyally. Years rolled by; each one adding newer and brighter threads to the nation's shining woof. And so it was, when the longed-for freedom which has been so gloriously accomplished, and which had been enjoyed for so long, that a terrible, blinding storm of discord and hate swept over it, rending the glowing threads of "unity and love and spreading fear and dismay over it all. After bitter bewailing and anguish, the sullen rain of battle abated, the hurricane of war and death subsided, leaving a gaping rent in the frail and tempest-tossed web which only the "tincture of time" could knit. Now, as before, many sunny years have passed over it; its broken threads and shattered meshes are firmly united, and the sparkling woof of a fair, brave nation lies extended under the blue vault of heaven. Its wide meshes are entwined with the threads of myriad webs of "life, whose many hued textures interlace those of the arts and sciences, literature, languages and laws, an uncounted number of shining threads making a brilliant network of finished webs which will cling together in a sunny corner of this vast universe in a mazy glory of beauty and usefulness, until "Time itself shall perish." MAUDE AGNES BOWERS.

VALEDICTORY.

When I ask the question my dear school mates—when shall we all meet again to share, as we have so often done, each other's toils and pleasures? I seem to hear the old clock in the school reply—never—never! But how long will the benefits which we have received remain? To this the answer comes—forever—forever! There are moments in life when it seems that all the joys and pleasures of the past are summed up and come crowding upon the memory at once. Thus it is to night as we look back upon our happy school days. The things which once seemed irksome tasks come to us in pleasant memories. There is no sadness in the past—only in the future. To-night the cord which bound us together must be broken asunder and we each start out on life's great journey for which we have all been preparing. But before we part, I, in behalf of my class give thanks to you, our Board of Education and Principal, for your kind guidance and care for us during these many years which we have been together. As we start out anew, we feel better fitted for the world's rough path, and our lives seem to be made brighter and nobler by the ever faithful precepts and true examples of our beloved teachers, and may we always in the untried future keep in mind and endeavor to live up to our motto, "certum pete finem."

ESTELLE DANIEL.

NORTH PLAINFIELD.

The closing exercises of the North Plainfield School will take place at 8 o'clock, p. m., in Warren Mission Chapel. Admission will be by ticket. This school under Principal Charles Boss stands now as high as any in the State. We noted last week the case of a late member of the graduating class that was on examination at once admitted to the graduating class of one of Brooklyn's High Schools. This result of itself evidences the thoroughness of the course of study pursued, and the high grade attained. The work of the class as will be shown even by its part in the programme below, could not be bettered.

The class consists of:

Coriell Boice,
Elston Marsh French,
Alfred A. Obitz,
M. Tillie Young,
Lillian M. Bird,
Matilda E. Hudson,
Jennie B. Crosley,
Sarah E. Mackey,
M. Emma Cory.

In his labors that have accomplished so much and have so advanced the school in character during the past year, Principal Boss has been ably seconded by the capability and faithfulness of his assistant, Miss M. J. Purdue. The other teachers whose services North Plainfield is so fortunate in possessing, are:—Miss L. H. Keeler, Miss R. G. Mair, Miss C. E. Randolph, Miss E. J. Bainbridge, Miss E. K. Corwin, Miss L. Kiernan, Miss I. M. Wilson, Miss A. K. Williams, Miss E. B. Gina.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.

Chorus—Come Where Flowers are [illegible].

Miss Hudson's graceful and admirable essay we take pleasure in presenting in full to the public as below. The other compositions are alike creditable, but space will not permit their publication. Miss Nolan's, especially, is well done:

MONUMENTS.

From the earliest times, nations have had a desire to perpetuate the memory of events or individuals. This they accomplish by means of monuments. In Bible history, pillars of stone were erected, like that which Jacob built after having seen the vision of angels on the shining ladder. In Scotland the places of great battles or important events were marked by Cairns, which were piles of unhewn stone. The pyramids, obelisks and mausoleums of Egypt are unsurpassed in massiveness and grandeur by any other national monuments. In Italy, arch trumphals were erected at the gates of Rome and named after victorious Roman generals, and returned laden with the spoils of the adjoining countries. Passing through a modern cemetery, one sees the graves marked by stones, some more stately and elaborate than others, but all answering the same purpose—of marking the place of the dead. The Bunker Hill monument speaks to us of civil and religious liberty. It speaks of patriotism and courage and of the improvement and elevation of mankind. It speaks of the past, of the many hardships that were endured by the self-denying soldiers in risking their lives for their country, and the breaking at last of the shackles of the slave and giving back his manhood. The memorial of Edgar Allen Poe, which was presented by the actors of New York to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, is a monument to his extraordinary ability and his enthusiasm for literary art. It is not a monument to his character, or his noble deeds, but to his success as a poet, and nothing more. Not only after death, and by others' hands are monuments erected to an individual, but very often by noble deeds, generosity, and genius, men may see rising before them structures which speak of their good works, not only to the present generation, but to those of the future. More than one hundred years ago several attempts were made to build a lighthouse on a dangerous rock, but to no avail, two having been swept from the spot, one by the wind and waves, the other by fire, until one was built of so firm a character that it has withstood the fury of the tempest for more than a century. This Eddystone lighthouse stands as a monument to John Smeaton, and as long as one stone remains upon another, or as long as the sailors are kept from the dangerous shore by the warning light, his perseverance and skill will not be forgotten. Franklin brought the lightning from the clouds, while Morse, Cyrus Field and Edison successfully appropriated it to man's use. Worcester showed to his fellow men the use of steam, and Watts, Evans and Fulton applied it, and as long as messages are transmitted from one place to another by the telegraph, the continents of America and Europe connected by cable, public places illuminated by the brilliant rays of the electric light, and while the iron horse speeds across the continent, and the steamship sails on the sea, the names of the inventors will be remembered. Voltaire, a French poet and dramatist, was a most licentious and wicked man, and through his writings helped greatly to bring about the French Revolution with all its bloodshed and terror, which shattered the government, and threw the whole civilized world into violent commotion. He was a persevering enemy to the Christian faith, and it was predicted that he would one day become the Standard of Deism in France. His brief career is a monument to a character of profligacy and base wickedness. How different from Voltaire's is the life of Humbert, the present king of Italy, who, while the cholera epidemic was raging in Italy, left his palace with its luxuriant surroundings and its life of refinement, to relieve the sufferings and wants of his poor subjects; not only spending his money and time, but brightening the meanest hovel and soothing the bedside of the sick and dying with his gentle presence. Long after his death, will his memory be cherished in the hearts of the Italians with reverence and affection. Of all the monuments that have been mentioned, a good character is the most lasting and in it is influence extending not only through this life but eternity. Voltaire and King Humbert are not the only character builders, but every individual, whether rich or poor, great or small, is constantly rearing that which shall last for ever and be remembered either for good or evil. It is not because there is too little material that the structure which we build is too small, for the Master has supplied us with an abundance, but because by carelessness and indifference we find the rebuilding of yesterday's work the task for to-day. The materials with which we build are little deeds of kindness, acts of self denial, temptations overcome, passions controlled, and trials and sorrows borne patiently, knowing that God would not have sent them if they were not for our good. A character to be enduring must be in proportion, and perfectly symmetrical; not one power cultivated exclusively, but each developed to its fullest extent, thus growing into the status of a perfect man—the plan of the architect, for whom we are all building.

WESTFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOL.

This successful school has just closed another year under the able and satisfactory leadership of Mr. Oakley A. Johnson, principal. The result is highly gratifying to all, and the people of Westfield have just cause to be proud of the educational advantages of the town and the outcome of such. The efficient Trustees are Messrs. R. R. Sinclair, J. B. Harrison and J. L. Miller. The teachers are Miss Lizzie Stryker, Miss Lillie Schamp, Miss Sarah Spicer, Miss Mary E. Moore, Miss Helen M. Hetfield, Miss Elnora Morehouse.

THE EXERCISES.

The Commencement exercises of this school will also be held this (Thursday) evening, in the Presbyterian church of Westfield, with the full programme as given below. The honors are awarded as follows:

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

Mark Twain's "reading" tour is said to have netted him nearly $35,000.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE." Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

Bay windows are safe harbors at night for little smacks.

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price 10 cts., 50 cts., and $1. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

ARE YOU MADE miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow Skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

Whom did the pastry cook marry? His sweet tart, of course.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla operates radically upon and through the blood, and is a safe, reliable and absolute cure for the various diseases, complaints, and disorders, due to debility, or to any constitutional taint or infection.

They who "pine" in their youth can never look "spruce" in old age.

FOR DYSPEPSIA and Liver Complaint, you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by Chas. A. Butler.

"HACKMATACK" a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by C. A. Butler.

Farmers have learned that it takes the best of soil to raise a mortgage.

Avoid by all means the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, costiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

"I came off with flying colors," as the painter said when he fell from a ladder with a palette on his thumb.

WHAT PARENTS FEAR.

Many persons—especially parents—object to many quack nostrums as likely to engender or encourage a love for strong drink. They are right. Better die of disease than drunkenness. The use of Parker's Tonic does not involve this danger. It not only builds up the system, curing all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it stimulates without intoxicating and absolutely cures the appetite for liquor.

"Yes," said Mrs. Spriggins, when she read the menu of a recent fashionable dinner, "the man who got up that there feast must have been an epicac!"

THAT DIRTY DANDRUFF.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It soils the clothing continually, and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the falling hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, and elegant dressing. Very economical, as only a small occasional application keeps the hair in perfect condition.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

FORT VALLEY, Georgia, March 13, 1885. THE O. I. C. CO., GENTLEMEN:—A sense of duty impels me to write you a brief history of my affliction and its cure by the aid of your medicine. Mine was a severe case of white swelling, and so painful was the disease that I could not put my foot to the floor. [illegible] by a friend to give O. I. C. a trial. During the time mentioned I had physicians to treat me and to lance my foot, and was informed that I would never be able to walk without limping. I am rejoiced to say that this prediction has not proved true. I am completely restored to health, can walk as well as I ever did before the attack; in fact I plow and attend to all my business, and am a sound and well man. O. I. C. (Old Indian Cure) did the work for me, and God knows my heart is full of gratitude. Yours is a wonderful blood-remedy and the world ought to know it. B. B. SMITH. I certify to the truth of the foregoing statement, having personal knowledge of Mr. Smith's suffering and great recovery. J. W. OLIVER, Sheriff of Houston county. PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N.J., June 4, 1885.

Regular meeting of the Board, held Thursday, June 4, 1885, at 2 p. m.

Present—Director Martine, and Freeholders Astfalk, Belmer, Chapman, Doty, Debbie, Dardis, Etheridge, Hubbard, Howard, Haliday, Isenmann, Oliver, Pierson, Roll, Vanderbeck—16.

Absent, Freeholder Bauer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, and, on motion, approved.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

From Committee on Pine Grove avenue Bridge, Summit:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee appointed to examine into and report as to repairs needed on Pine Grove avenue bridge, Summit township, would respectfully report that they find an arch bridge was built in the year 1864, after which, in the year 1870, the grade of the street was raised some eight or ten feet, when a white pine bridge was built over this arch. This pine bridge is now much decayed, and the piers are, some of them, in a dangerous condition. This wooden superstructure is 47 feet span, resting on abutments and six piers. Your committee decided that the best interests of the county would be served by removing this wooden superstructure and build parapet walls to the original arch bridge, which is perfect, to the length and height of the present bridge, filling between the walls with earth, the cost not to exceed $900.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

C. W. L. MARTINE,
W. M. CHAPMAN,
S. P. DEBBIE,
J. MARTIN ROLL,
J. E. ASTFALK,
WM. M. OLIVER,
Committee.

June 4, 1885.

On motion of Freeholder Debbie, the report was received and the recommendations of the committee adopted by a unanimous vote.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Debbie:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to meet a like committee of the board of chosen freeholders of Morris county on a line bridge crossing the Passaic river, and known as the Potter bridge, in the townships of New Providence and Chatham, to ascertain the advisability of replacing the old structure with a new one, or order such repairs on the present structure as the joint committee may deem actually necessary.

On motion of Freeholder Isenmann, adopted, and the following committee appointed:

Freeholders Debbie, Dardis, Pierson, Etheridge, Bauer.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, to report at the next meeting of this board as to the necessity and probable cost of a new bridge over the Rahway river at Meeker's mills, between Union and Springfield townships.

On motion of Freeholder Debbie, adopted, and the following committee appointed:

Freeholders Roll, Doty, Chapman, Haliday, Astfalk.

By Freeholder Hubbard:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, to report at the next meeting of this board as to the necessity for and the probable cost of a bridge across Cedar brook, on Tenth street, Plainfield.

On motion of Freeholder Oliver, adopted, and the following committee appointed:

Freeholders Hubbard, Vanderbeck, Dardis, Haliday, Chapman.

By Freeholder Etheridge:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to examine as to the necessity and probable cost of building new bridge over West brook, on Price street, and new structure on old walls over same stream, across Lumber street, Linden, near the residence of Hon. Ferdinand Blancke.

On motion of Freeholder Oliver, adopted, and the following committee appointed:

Freeholders Etheridge, Oliver, Debbie, Chapman, Haliday.

By the director:

Resolved, That the yearly compensation for keeping the criminal record be sixty dollars.

On motion of Freeholder Debbie, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Chapman:

Resolved, That the Summit Record be placed on the list of papers to publish the collector's report.

Freeholder Debbie moved the adoption of the resolution.

Freeholder Oliver moved to refer to the legal committee.

After a lengthy discussion the county attorney was asked for his opinion, who stated in substance that the law required the report to be published in an equal number of papers of the two political parties, and that it would not be lawful to add the Record unless another paper of the opposite politics was added also.

Vote being taken upon Freeholder Oliver's motion to refer to the legal committee, it was declared carried by the following vote:

Affirmative—Director Martine and Freeholders Belmer, Doty, Dardis, Hubbard, Howard, Oliver, Pierson, Roll, Vanderbeck—10.

Negative—Freeholders Astfalk, Chapman, Debbie, Etheridge, Haliday, Isenmann—6.

Absent—Freeholder Bauer.

By Freeholder Chapman:

Resolved, That the bill of Morris Plains asylum for maintenance of patients for quarter ending August 15, 1885, for $5,621.26, be paid when properly audited. On motion of Freeholder Doty, adopted by a unanimous vote.

HUMOROUS SAYINGS.

A BATCH OF LIVELY GOSSIPING SELECTIONS.

SUDDEN REFORMATION.

Caller—"What a good little boy you are becoming."

Little Dick—"Yessum."

Caller—"You were not so good when I was here before, but you had not begun to go to Sunday school then, I remember. Are you good all the time, now?"

Little Dick—"Yessum; I has to be. Ma's corns hurt her, and she wears slippers now."

LIFE IN CHICAGO.

Irate Chicago Dealer—"I shall stand this trifling no longer, madam. If you don't bring the money for that jewelry within a week I will send the bill to your husband, and you know very well what a row he will make."

Fair Chicagoian—"Send it! Send it to him, right off. Do. Perhaps you think you know his address?"

"I know his residence. He lives where you do, of course."

Brown—"Ah, Smith! I hear you have left your last situation?"

Smith—"Yes! I am going to start a roller skating rink."

Brown—"But, my dear boy, just think of the capital required. Rinks can't be got for nothing."

"I've got one, though. Not a cent to be charged for rent, either."

"Good gracious! Why, who owns the building?"

"An arnica man."

WHAT UPSET IT.

Minks—"Mme. Janauschek met with a curious accident near St. Paul recently, I hear. Her private car, while running smoothly along with the train, toppled over and went down an embankment without any apparent cause."

Winks—"Rails spread, perhaps?"

"No, the rails were found all right."

"Was Janauschek in at the time?"

"Yes."

"Ah! I see. The madam probably changed too suddenly from one side of the car to the other."

A NECESSARY STEP.

First College Man—"Have you heard the awful news about Princeton?"

Second College Man—"Princeton! Great Cæsar! Hasn't burned down, has it?"

"No, not exactly; but it has withdrawn from the Rowing Association."

"Oh? Well, that's not so bad. Such a step was absolutely necessary in order to give the students a fair chance, you know."

"A fair chance?"

"Yes; it is simply impossible for an educational institution to do full justice to rowing without actually neglecting base ball."

ALL EXPLAINED.

New Boarder—"I beg your pardon, madam, and hope you won't be angry, but I can't stay here. I did not know your daughter had a craze for art or I would not have come. I left the last place because I was driven almost insane by their esthetic trumperies."

Mrs. Slimdiet—"Really, sir, you surprise me. My daughter has no craze for art."

"Then how does it happen that she has been doing repousse work for the last hour?"

"Repousse work?"

"Yes; hammering brass. The noise is fearful."

"Oh! calm yourself, sir. That's only the cook with the beefsteak."

The total length of the submarine cable now in use is quoted at 68,000 miles.

A New York artist recently shot himself before one of his unfinished pictures. Perhaps if he had exhibited it somebody else would have shot him.

AN ORDINANCE.

To provide for the licensing and regulation of scavengers.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Licenses may be granted by the Common Council to persons above the age of twenty-one years to carry on the business and act in the capacity of scavenger or night scavenger in the city of Plainfield, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Board of Health, and the ordinances of this city. All applications shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be recommended by the Board of Health, or some member thereof, or the City Physician.

SECTION 2. Each license granted under the provision of this ordinance, shall expire on first day of February in each year, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person licensed, the number of the license and the date of its expiration, and may contain any restrictions that the Board of Health may direct. No person shall be held to be licensed under this ordinance until he shall have paid to the City Clerk for said license the sum of ($10) Ten Dollars, and in addition thereto the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the same.

SECTION 3. No person shall carry on the business or act in the capacity of a scavenger or night scavenger, or clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy without being first licensed for that purpose by the Common Council, and no person shall keep and use or drive any scavenger cart or wagon or any night scavenger cart or wagon within the City of Plainfield without the same being licensed as aforesaid under penalty of fifty dollars for each and every violation of any of the provisions of this section. Provided that the owner of any sink, cesspool or privy may remove the contents thereof himself or by his hired help continuously in his employ without being licensed by the Common Council, but subject to the regulations of the Board of Health.

SECTION 4. Every person licensed as a night scavenger as soon as licensed shall cause his name to be marked in plain letters, and the number to be marked in plain figures in a conspicuous place on each side of the cart or wagon so licensed under the penalty of ten dollars for every day he shall use or employ any such cart or wagon, without having the same so designated.

SECTION 5. It shall not be lawful for any person licensed as a night scavenger to hire out or sub-let any night scavenger cart or wagon, to any person or persons not licensed to act in the capacity of night scavenger, under penalty of twenty five dollars for each and every violation of this section.

SECTION 6. No night scavenger shall stop or leave any night scavenger wagon or cart in any street, avenue, alley or highway, nor permit his wagon or cart to occupy an unreasonable time in loading or unloading or in passing along any street, avenue, alley or highway, or through any inhabited place or ground, nor leave any such wagon or cart, when not in use, on any premises where the same may become a nuisance to the occupants of other premises, under penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

SECTION 7. It shall be the duty of the Board of Health to establish from time to time such rates to be charged for the removal of the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy as they may deem reasonable and proper and no person licensed under this Ordinance shall charge or receive more than the established rate, under a penalty of $10 for each offence. And any person licensed under this Ordinance who shall refuse to clean out or remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy for any one at the rates established by the Board of Health shall be liable to a penalty of $10 for the first such refusal and shall forfeit his license for the second offence.

SECTION 8. No person shall remove the contents of any sink, cesspool or privy, or any part thereof, or carry the same in, or through any street, road, lane, alley, or public place between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and nine o'clock in the evening under a penalty of $25, unless the same is done by the process in use by the "Odorless Excavating Apparatus Company" of Baltimore or other like process to be first approved and certified to by the Board of Health in writing.

SECTION 9. No person or persons shall deposit or cause or permit to be deposited the contents, or any part thereof, of any sink, cesspool or privy anywhere within the City of Plainfield, without first obtaining the written consent of the City Physician or Health Inspector specifying therein the place where the same is to be deposited, and the manner in which the same is to be covered or otherwise disposed of, and any violation of this section or failure to conform to the terms of the written consent aforesaid, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars.

Adopted June 8, 1885.

Dear Sir:—* * * I had been suffering with malarial intermittent fever for more than twenty years, and my life had become a burden to me. The last attack, which was four years since, threatened to terminate fatally. Through my brother-in-law, who had been recently cured of fever and ague, I heard of the PILLS, and procuring them, was CURED by them in a few weeks and have had no return to this hour. I most cheerfully and earnestly recommend these PILLS to all suffering from this miserable disease. JESSIE HALLENBAKE.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier that can be used. It invariably expels all blood poisons from the system, enriches and renews the blood, and restores its vitalizing power. It is the best known remedy for Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin, as also for all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, and Scrofulous Catarrh.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten, "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

O.I.C.

(OLD INDIAN CURE.)

Is rapidly taking the lead of all other Blood Purifiers, being the only original O. I. C. Purely vegetable, having no potash, mercury, or other drug in it whatever. It is fast gaining the confidence of the people all over the country.

PERRY, GA., June 16th, 1884.

Old Indian Cure is a perfect blood purifier.

F. A. TOOMER, A.B., A.M., M.D.

After twenty years' use O. I. C., I can safely recommend it as perfect a blood purifier as our materia medica furnishes.—JOSEPH PALMER, M D.

I take pleasure in saying that after using 8 bottles of O. I. C., for a case of Scrofula of eight years' standing, I am fully restored to health.

S. S. W. SMITH, Echeconnee, Ga.

W. B. Jones, Macon, Ga., writes:—Two bottles cured me sound and well of a long standing case of Rheumatism.

If you suffer from any disease due to impure blood, a certain cure is within your reach. Orders by mail promptly filled.
